BRIEF HISTORY OF A YEAR

A Resume of the Leading Events That Occurred in This and Other Countries.

THE RECORD FOR 1897 FOREVER CLOSED

Matters of National Importance in the United States—Review of Events in the Old World—The Bright and Gloomy Side of Life in Our Own Country.

The year 1897 is one which will long be remembered in the political and economical history of the United States. Everything has steadily improved during the year. Crops have been richly remunerative to the farmers, which has enabled them to pay off their debts and get rid of some of their mortgage burdens. The markets have grown more stable. There is more buying and selling. The number of employed is steadily increasing. There is less suffering among the poor. Coupled with all this it has been a year of abundant harvests, of good health, of renewed activities in all directions, of peace and national security, while all the rest of the world is more or less perturbed.

Tariff and Currency Reform.

Immediately after President McKinley had been sworn into office he called congress together to legislate on the subject of the tariff and the revenues. After a session lasting a little over four months the Dingley tariff bill was passed. The currency question was left untouched at the special session. But when congress reassembled last month the president called its attention to the subject and submitted his proposition that after the revenues of the government meet its expenditures greenbacks when redeemed shall not be paid out except in exchange for gold. Secretary Gage also submitted his plan of currency reform, and it will be considered by congress after it reassembles along with other plans. Among them will be that drafted by the committee appointed by the Indianapolis monetary convention, which will be made public in a few days.

The Treaties.

The treaty history of the government is of more than ordinary interest. Early in January a general arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain was negotiated and sent to the senate. It was amended in that body by a vigorous declaration of the Monroe doctrine and ruling out King Oscar of Sweden as umpire. On the 4th of February, however, the treaty was hung up in the senate until the next session, and there is now a prospect that it may be reintroduced in some modified form, which may go no further, however, than the recognition of the principle of arbitration.

On June 16 the Hawaiian annexation treaty was signed and sent to the senate, Japan making at the same time a formal protest, which the state department declined to recognize. The senate committee reported favorably on the treaty on July 14, and it is likely that upon the reassembling of congress the treaty will come up for debate, with its prospects for ratification materially enhanced by the stirring events now transpiring on the Asiatic Pacific coast.

Cuban Question.

As a whole the year has been a peaceable and prosperous one at home and our foreign relations have not been seriously disturbed. The Venezuelan quarrel with Great Britain has been settled in a satisfactory manner, likewise some minor disagreements with Japan as to the Hawaiian islands. The Cuban question still remains a vexed one. The administration, notwithstanding the impatience of the people, still pursues a policy waiting upon the efforts of Gen. Blanco to induce the Cubans to accept autonomy. As they show no signs of accepting it or any settlement other than independence, and as during the last few weeks they have won important victories and are now in the immediate vicinity of Havana itself, it is evident that the question will soon force itself upon the administration in a manner demanding prompt action.

THE OLD YEAR ABROAD.

A Resume of Important Events in Foreign Lands.

The old year abroad has been characterized by a spirit of unrest and turbulence, by internal dissensions in many quarters, by wars of greater or lesser magnitude, and by schemes set on foot for the partition of territory among the great powers. The new year opens with war clouds drifting about menacingly, which may portend a colossal struggle before 1899 comes in view.

Great Britain.

Great Britain in June celebrated the queen's diamond jubilee upon a scale of lavish munificence and with a pageantry whose splendor attracted the admiration of the world. Then we were shown the reverse of the medal. The plague, which broke out at Bombay in January, spread alarmingly and fatally, sweeping away thousands, and famine followed in its tracks, sweeping away thousands more. Fanatics seized upon the sufferings of the people as an agency for arousing discontent, disaffection, and religious hatreds. These manifested themselves at first in riots at Calcutta an delsewhere. The spirit of turbulence increased so fast that Great Britain at last found itself confronted with a serious uprising of the hill tribes on the Afghan frontier, the natives, it is alleged, being reinforced by accessions from Afghanistan, which at last called for the presence of a strong army. Operations against the tribes are still going on, and though in the end they will be overcome and severely punished, order and authority will only be restored at a heavy cost in life and money.

France.

France has been unusually quiet, and there is nothing in its foreign policy to note except the clinching of its authority over Madagascar, its recent movement to get its share of Chinese territory, and the advance of its African expeditions into the Nubian territory.

Germany.

Germany has been mainly interested in watching the spectacular performances of the young emperor, whose last exploit was the seizure of Kiao-Chau bay, on the Chinese coast, ostensibly to secure indemnity for the murder of missionaries, which at last precipitated the movement of the European powers in that directon.

Austria.

Austria has been rent with internal dissensions. The reichsrath began its sessions in September, and bitterness at once manifested itself between the Germans and Slavonian nationalities. A climax was reached when the Austrian government decided that the Czech language was in every way coordinate with the German in Bohemia and Moravia. The government was [illegible] bitterly attacked [illegible] members of the reichsrath, and the latter [illegible] to have the ministers indicted. The most violent and unprecedented scenes took place daily in the lower house, and after sitting was suspended in the attempt to maintain some degree of decorum, but the obstructionists, backed by strong popular support, provoked conditions equivalent to a revolt, and the Badeni government was forced to surrender. Rioting has occurred at Prague and other Bohemian cities, and the government has had to order out troops to quell the disorder. The emperor meanwhile has closed the reichsrath, which is unable to transact business.

Spain and Cuba.

Spain has been occupied with its hopeless Cuban war, which has resulted in a loss of nearly 25,000 troops on the field of battle and the deaths of hundreds of thousands of pacificos by disease and famine, and yet it is no nearer the conquest of Cuba now than it was at the beginning of the year. It has subdued and pacified the provinces, but the Cuban rebels are as permanent and incomitgore as ever, and during the last few weeks have begun to menace Havana itself. Meanwhile there have been serious dissensions at home. In June the cabinet resigned and was reformed by Canovas. He did not live long, however, to administer power, having been assassinated by an anarchist in August. The ministry resigned in September, and a liberal one took its place in October under Sagasta, whose first act was the removal of the butcher, Weyler, from the governor-generalship of Cuba, and the appointment of Gen. Blanco in his place, with instructions to offer the Cubans a scheme of autonomy That scheme has been already rejected, and meanwhile Weyler finds himself under arrest for issuing a memorial to the queen regent assailing President McKinley in connection with his message to congress.

Defeat of Greece.

The year has been made memorable by the drubbing out of Greece at the hands of Turkey, growing out of the administration of Cretan affairs and the traditional hatred of Christians and Mussulmans. The Greeks entered upon the war in spite of the admonitions of the powers and unprepared to meet so formidable an adversary. The official declaration of war was made in April, and before the end of May Greece was utterly crushed. The treaty of peace was signed in December, Under its terms Turkey occupies a frontier which will make another invasion of Macedonia impossible and Greece has to pay Turkey an indemnity of about $20,000,000.

The Chinese Puzzle.

The Chinese coast has been the theater of stirring events during the last month of the year. Late in November a fleet of three German vessels entered Kiao-Chau bay, on the south coast of the Shan-Tung peninsula, and under pretense of demanding indemnity for the lives of two Catholic missionaries who had been murdered by natives in the interior proceeded to occupy the fort commanding the bay, the Chinese garrison fleeing without resistance. Other incidents following in rapid succession have been the sending of reinforcements from Germany to the fleet at Kiao-Chau bay, indicating a purpose to hold that point permanently, in spite of the willingness of China to render ample indemnity, the seizure of Port Arthur, on the Pe-Chi-Li gulf, by Russia, with the attempted usurpation of the Corean finances by the same power, and the occupation of the island of Hai-Nan by the French—all looking to a partition of the Chinese empire. These events have produced alarm in Great Britain and Japan, which do not seem to have been consulted in the schemes of the other powers, and the gathering of a strong fleet of British and Japanese war vessels on the Corean coast will cause future events in that quarter to be watched with intense interest.

Our Southern Neighbors.

South and Central America have had their usual share of wars, revolutions and other turbulence. Honduras has had a revolution, but managed to suppress it. Gautemala has had its customary revolution, but easily quelled it. Nicaragua had a slight revolt, promptly put down. The Greater republic of Central America has been completed and a representative sent to Washington, but how long it will endure is problematical, since already, at the close of the year, Salvador, one of the members, is rising in revolt against the scheme. Venezuela has settled its dispute with Great Britain by consenting to arbitration. Gen. Alfaro has been elected president of Ecuador, and almost his first act was to put down a rebellion against his authority. Bolivia has seized Peruvian territory and is on the verge of war with that country. Brazil has had more or less trouble with some of its states, but on the whole the new republic is in a flourishing condition.

BRIGHT AND DARK SIDE.

Charities of 1897—Also a Brief Story of Crimes and Disasters.

It is certainly an optimistic and encouraging outlook for the best that is in man and for the outreachings of charity and humanity that the dark record of embezzlements in 1897, shown elsewhere, is magnificently offset by the generous sums contributed by bequest or personal gift to churches, colleges, charities, museums, art galleries, libraries, amounting to $33,812,814, $43,649 in 1896, and $19,967,116 in 1894. In preparing these statistics no record has been kept of small donations, since to collect them all would be a manifest impossibility. Of the total amount stated above there has been given to colleges the large sum of $10,363,450; to charities the still larger sum of $14,795,636; to churches and religious societies, $5,622,733; to museums and art galleries, $1,215,000.

Summary of Disasters.

As closely as can be estimated 2,428 lives have been lost upon the ocean, 65 upon inland waters, 2,764 by railroad accidents, 49,354 by disasters abroad, 9,115 by disasters in this country, 222,902 by epidemics and famine, and 156,551 by war or massacre, making a total of 389,077, as compared with 246,546 in 1896 and 275,391 in 1895.

Embezzlements.

The record of embezzling, forgery, defaulting and bank wrecking for 1897 shows an increase, being $11,248,634, as compared with $9,465,921 in 1896 and $10,423,205 in 1895. Out of 411 cases of embezzling reported, 19 persons stole over $50,000 each, 12 over $100,000 each and 5 over $500,000 each. The losses are distributed as follows:

Fire Losses.

The losses by fire in the United States in 1897 aggregated $129,001,737, as compared with $111,856,067 in 1896 and $131,578,206 in 1895. Of these fires those with losses of $100,000 and upwards contributed $56,786,500 of the total and smaller fires $72,215,237.

Suicides.

The total number of persons who have committed suicide in the United States during 1897 is 6,000, as compared with 6,520 in 1896, 5,759 in 1895, 4,912 in 1894, 4,436 in 1893, 3,869 in 1892, 3,531 in 1891, and 2,940 in 1890, the figures showing a steady increase in the crime of self-murder. Of this number 5,186 were males and 1,414 females, the proportion of about four to one being steadily kept up from year to year. The causes of suicide were as follows:

Murders.

The total number of murders committed in 1897 shows a decrease over 1896, being 9,520, as compared with 10,652 in 1896, 10,500 in 1895, 9,800 in 1894, 6,615 in 1893, and 6,742 in 1892.

Hangings.

The number of legal executions in 1897 was 128, as compared with 122 in 1896, 132 in 1895, 132 in 1894, 126 in 1893 and 107 in 1892. There were 82 hanged in the south and 46 in the north, of whom 72 were whites, 51 negroes, 3 Indians and 2 Chinese. The crimes for which they were executed were murder, 119; rape, 10; burglary, 1.

Lynchings.

The criminal work of the mob-murderers is again on the increase. Judge Lynch has executed 166 persons during 1897, 162 men and 4 women. Of these lynchings 146 occurred in the south and 20 in the north. Of the total number 122 were negroes, 39 whites and 5 Indians. The alleged crimes for which the victims were lynched were as follows: Race prejudice, 1; arson, 5; murder, 69; robbery, 18; assaults, 7; attempted rape, 9; rape, 23; writing insulting letters, 1; outlawry, 3; by white caps, 4; burglary, 6; elopement, 2; furnishing information, 2; unknown offenses, 5; train wrecking, 1; mistaken identity, 1; refusing to give evidence, [illegible] disobedience of regulations, 1; running quarantine, 1.

TRAGEDY IN NEBRASKA.

Man and Wife Murdered by an Unknown Assassin.

Fairbury, Neb., Jan. 5.—George Baker and his wife, who live about three miles west of here, were murdered Tuesday morning. They were found lying dead in the dining-room of their home. Each had received a charge of birdshot in the head. The shot had been fired through a window as the couple sat at breakfast. There is no clew to the murderer.

NO MORE MEN FOR CUBA

Spain Refuses the Request of Capt. Gen. Blanco for 30,000 More Soldiers.

THE FIRST STEP TOWARD EVACUATION.

Gen. Pando Greatly Disheartened Because of the Failure of His Campaign—Weyler to Be Tried—Cuban Cabinet Installed—President McKinley on the Situation.

Havana, Jan. 3.—Gen. Pando cabled Friday to Gen. Blanco from Manzanillo asking for 50,000 more men to begin operations again on the Cauto river. Gen. Blanco cabled Pando's demand to Spain, and this answer was received Saturday from Senor Sagasta: "Not a single man more can be sent to Cuba." The failure of Pando and the reply of Spain to his request are considered as the first step toward the Spanish evacuation of Cuba.

Pando Disheartened.

It is reported from Santiago de Cuba that Gen. Pando is greatly disheartened on account of the obstacles which prevented a successful campaign against the insurgents in that province. He declares that he has no base of operations, the insurgents' control being so complete that it is impossible to convey supplies to Spanish columns operating in the interior of the province Gen. Pando is said to be convinced that the insurgents of Santiago de Cuba province will not accept autonomy. When he was in Spain he did not realize that the insurgents in the province had such strength.

Weyler to Be Tried.

Madrid, Jan. 3.—The cabinet has decided that the trial of Gen. Weyler, late captain general of Cuba, by court-martial is imperative. The action of the ministry in this matter is grounded upon the fact of Gen. Weyler's breaches of the law in having furnished for publication a protest against the references made to Spain and the Cuban question by President McKinley in his message to the United States congress. Gen. Weyler admits having given to the press a protest against McKinley's references to Spain and Cuba, and particularly against his own administration a governor of Cuba, but denies the illegality of his utterances.

Cuban Cabinet Installed.

Havana, Jan. 3.—Many people assembled at the palace Saturday to witness the swearing in of Rafael Montero, marquis of Montero; Francisco Zayas and Laureano Rodriguez as secretaries of the provisional government.

Marshal Blanco, the captain general, escorted by a number of high Spanish officials, the consular corps, army and navy officers, politicians, etc., reached the throneroom at nine o'clock a. m. A new Bible was open on a table, and upon it the secretaries took the oath of fidelity to the queen, the monarchy and the Spanish government, placing their right hands on the Bible and kneeling as they repeated the words required. Galvez, president of the cabinet, was first sworn in, and then the oath was administered to the others.

Will Let Cuba Alone.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The president is taking occasion to assure members of congress that he does not think there is any need of action by the legislative branch of the government regarding Cuba. He told a western member two days ago that the Cuban question seemed to be working itself out; that he did not expect to advise any legislation, and that he did not think the United States should do anything at this time beyond the relief work. Members of congress have noted a feeling of strong hopefulness on the president's part that the war will not be of much longer duration. The president does not predict what the outcome will be, but he shows that he believes the solution is not far off. He takes a more sanguine view than at any previous time since his inauguration. Of one thing he seems to be wholly confident, and that is that there is no longer any danger of an open rupture between this government and Spain over Cuba. He makes no concealment of his satisfaction that all indications point to a rapidly approaching end of the war without involving this government in serious complications with Spain.

The Public Debt.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business December 31, 1897, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $999,111,567, a decrease for the month of $10,114,899. This decrease in the debt is due principally to an increase in the cash, which is accounted for by the sale of the Union Pacific railroad.

Will Meet in Indianapolis.

New York, Jan. 5.—The executive committee of the League of American Wheelmen has decided to accept the invitation of the Indiana state division and various clubs in that state to hold the annual meet at Indianapolis. August was fixed upon as the month of the annual meet, it being left to the state division to fix the exact date.

Jas. Haight and others are filling their ice houses from Loree's artificial pond at Ridgeway. They are procuring ice of fine quality.

If you wish any packages delivered in Tecumseh send them by Lawrence Brown. He is a dandy, so thoughtful and prompt. O. B. Lenardson can vouch for him.

A. S. Hughes bought and shipped 3863 tons of baled hay between August 15, '97 and Jan. 1, '98, paying an average price of $7.25 per ton F. O. B., making a total of $28,006.75 paid to farmers of Tecumseh and Ridgeway.

Tuesday forenoon a team belonging to Geo. Exelby attached to a load of baled hay got frightened in the railroad grounds and for a few moments made things jingle. The wagon and harness were seriously damaged.

Rev. C. I. Deyo will preach on the following topics at the Christian church next Sunday: Morning, "The Kind of Church Demanded in 1898," evening "A Machine Religion." Reception of members at the morning service.

Mrs. Grundy says that grain dealers in other localities are paying higher prices than is offered at our village elevator. This is to be regretted as it will have a tendency to divert trade from our stores to our loss as a community.

The Rev. L. W. Graves, of Lenawee Junction, spent the Sabbath with Rev. Nickerson, preaching at the DeSpelder in the afternoon and also on Monday evening at the beginning meeting of the week of prayer in the Britton Reformed church.

Barry, the baker, has shown his enterprising, public spiritedness by being the first man to plant one of the village lamp posts on his corner. Street Commissioner Geo. Exelby on his return from the county capital on Monday found the job neatly done. When all of the lamps shall be adjusted in the well chosen localities, then shall our village have light.

Dr. E. E. Hendershot has received a letter from Congressman Spaulding asking him to select three men to act as mail carriers between Ridgeway and Mooreville as the government is making experiments in different sections of the country as to the feasibility and practicability of free delivery in the rural districts. He was also informed that an official of the government would arrive soon to consult with him.

RIDGEWAY.

R. S. Houseman was in Adrian Tuesday on business for the Page Fence Co.

Lester Sherman, who is attending Cleary's college, Ypsilanti, was home last week.

Milk pans, pails and barrel churns at Ed Smith's.

Maggie Cheever arrived from Detroit Saturday for an indefinite stay with her grand-parents.

Mrs. Scove Isabelle, of Baldwin, is with her mother, Mrs. John Pocklington, who is sick.

Cass and Forrest Florance, of Holloway, visited their cousin, Mae Culbertson, part of last week.

Eugene Clarkson, of Detroit, came Friday to visit a few days at his father's, John Clarkson's.

Dr. Loree has filled his ice house at the creamery with good 9 inch ice cut from the Loree Park lake.

Lou Arner was able to resume her duties at Harris & Hineshu's, Tecumseh, Tuesday after her illness.

Mrs. E. A. Wilson, of Benton Harbor, spent Saturday and Sunday at W. R. Wilson's, returning Monday in company with her husband.

Mrs. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Britton and Mrs. S. Pierce spent the Holiday week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ace Smith.

Rev. D. H. Yokom will make his discourse Sunday evening unusually interesting with illustrations of his own design. All are welcome.

Ed Smith has just received another car of Jackson Hill soft coal. Parties wanting such can save 25c per ton by taking it from the car for the next ten days.

The Hoffman Grand Concert Co., the third on the Tecumseh Star Course, will appear at Sutton's opera house on Tuesday evening next. Season tickets, $1.00; single admission, 50c.

T. H. Allison has been laid up for three months with rheumatism but is about his work again, having been under the treatment of Dr. G. P. Ward, of Chicago, only two weeks.

As the first day of the new year faded into the rays of twilight Miss Daisy Riggs was united in marriage to Ervin Barnes at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Riggs, Rev. Yokom performing the ceremony. Only the near relatives were present. The couple will make their home with Mr. Riggs for a time. May all that assists in making a happy and prosperous home be theirs through life.

Home Testimony.

Mt. Jewett, Pa., Jan. 15, 1897.

MESSRS. HENRY, JOHNSON & LORD,
Burlington, Vt.

Gentlemen:—I was very bad with stomach trouble and believe I had chronic dyspepsia. I had taken one medicine after another, getting no help, and my system was fearfully run down. I despaired of getting my health again. I then saw Baxter's Mandrake Bitters advertised in a newspaper as a curative of my trouble. With very little faith (as I had before noticed my symptoms described and a cure prescribed in connection) I asked for this remedy at our druggists, Mr. C. J. Stahl, Mt. Jewett. and began taking a twenty-five cent bottle as directed. To day I am cured, and as well and strong as I ever was. As a blood purifier the bitters have no equal; and as a curative of stomach trouble and indigestion cannot be questioned. I do not hesitate to advise sick persons to give the bitters a fair trial for the ailments it is advertised to cure.

MRS. GEORGE RICHARDS.

History is what character has written.

MACON.

Mrs. Lavinia Jackson returned to Tecumseh Monday.

M. V. Sickly and wife visited friends at Ann Arbor last week.

Wm. Collins and family moved to Ann Arbor last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Osborn are happy over the arrival of a little son.

John Sherman made a business trip to Toledo Thursday of last week.

Melankton Smith and wife spent Monday with relatives in Ridgeway.

Harold Hatch, who has been in Detroit for a few weeks, has returned home.

Miss Gertrude Howell, of Tecumseh, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Erwin Conklin.

The Misses Della and Addie Hendershot returned Tuesday from a ten days' visit at Leslie.

Mrs. Mills Hatch and Mrs. Samuel Sarvy returned from a week,s visit at Bellevue the first of the week.

Much interest is being shown in the special meetings which are being conducted by the Rev. E. M. Moore.

Rev. Jongewaard and Rev. Graves are conducting a series of revival meetings at the South Macon Reformed church.

Mr. and Mrs. Acel Smith, of Ridgeway, Mrs. Cora Brown, of Grand Ledge, and Mrs. Edyth Pierce, of Grand Rapids called on Lank Smith and wife New Years.

Mr. Clark, of Saline, was at the M. E. church last Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing a singing school. The first lesson will be given Saturday evening, Jan. 15.

"I burned my fingers very badly. The pain was intense. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil brought relief in three minutes. It was almost magical. I never saw anything like it." Amelia Swords, Saundersville, O.

A civil tongue is a better protection than steel armor an inch thick.

Consumption is the natural result of a neglected cold. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma, and lung troubles of all sorts down to the very borderland of consumption.

So many people are at home when a golden opportunity knocks.

MR. STABLER SAYS

Local Treatment for Catarrh Does No Good.

Mr. E. M. Stabler, Payne, Ohio, writes: "I had catarrh of the head. I tried a local catarrh remedy and it did me no good; I tried two different catarrh snuffs and they did me no good; I tried a catarrh balm and it did me no good; our home doctor and his medicine did me no good; I tried a Fort Wayne doctor and he did me no good. I gave them all up, for they were doing me no good. All they were after was my money, and they got it, and that was all they wanted. Then I got a Pe-ru-na Almanac. I read it all through and saw that Pe-ru-na was highly recommended for catarrh. I took eight bottles and they cured me sound and well. I am 59 years old and I can do a good day's work right along. I think Pe-ru-na is the best medicine that was ever got up for catarrh. I think every one that has catarrh should use it, as I believe it will do the same for others as it has done for me." Send to The Pe-ru-na Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, for Dr. Hartman's free book on catarrh. Ask your druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for 1898.

What Do The Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. GRAIN-O is made out of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

"It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the leaders of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

The Railroad Shops.

It is the duty of every citizen of Tecumseh to subscribe every dollar he can afford and "then some" toward the railroad shop fund, and it will be necessary to do so to secure them. We must have the shops and that's all there is to it. Every five dollar supscription is a great help, and on the wind up these small subscriptions will tell the story.

In another column will be seen the report of the proceedings of the village council which contains an ordinance prohibiting the use of the sidewalks for bicycle riding at any time of year. The council was hasty in its action in this matter which was brought about by one or two boys recklessly riding on the walks. The boys should have been arrested and fined or locked up, then the people who decently enjoyed the privilege of using the walks when the roads were bad should have been allowed to do so.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Mr. Vanderbilt is quoted as saying that nothing will be done in the matter of the selection of a president of the Nickel Plate until February. The dispatch printed in this column to the effect that General Manager Greene, of the B. & O. will be appointed to fill the position was denied by a letter dispatch published in another place. It is not probable that the Vanderbilts are looking on the B. & O. for a president. There are several officials on the Vanderbilt lines who are in every way competent for the position. Besides the officials in the Vanderbilt family, there are several other railway men of ability on some short lines who stand closer to the coveted position.—Toledo Blade.

The Michigan Central and the Lake Shore roads have issued a statement to the effect that they will accept the interchangeable mileage tickets of the Central Passenger association roads upon all their trains, but they say that they have prepared a ticket which is superior to that of the association in that it will be accepted on the trains of all the roads which are members of the new interchangeable mileage ticket bureau. All the roads which have agreed to put out the new ticket have declared that they will retain their membership in the Central Passenger association, and will continue to be members of the old ticket bureau as heretofore.—Adrian Times.

The D. & L. N., as it approaches Detroit, seems to have more and more trouble, and J. S. Brailey, the right of way agent, is kept busy denying intentions to steal marches on unsophisticated property owners. Over in Trenton the Sibley property bothered them Sunday, but everything has been amicably settled. The Michigan Central and Lake Shore engines which have been stationed at Trenton, presumably to guard the crossing their roads and the D. and L. N., were removed Tuesday morning.—Clayton Record.

The Detroit & Lima Northern railway extended its roadbed across the Michigan Central and Lake Shore tracks near Detroit Sunday. A force of 200 men are at work, and there is talk that this force will be doubled, one gang carrying on the work at night. It is expected that Detroit will be reached inside of 30 days.—Register.

The Lake Shore Railroad Company has contracted with the Smith Bridge Company to put electric power in the draw in the Lake Shore bridge. This will enable the bridge tenders to open the draw promptly for the passage through of vessels.—Toledo Blade.

Engineer C. L. Uhel who has been ill at the Lilley House for some time with malarial fever, has so far recovered as to start for Lima this morning.

B. J. Slater, Expressman on the D. T. & M., spent Sunday with his family here.

1898 Calendars.

A very handsome calendar for 1898, made to represent a government mail pouch, has been issued by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. It is printed in a rich brown and gold on heavy enameled card, size 8x15 inches. The calendar will be sent free anywhere, on receipt of eight cents in postage to cover cost of mailing, by applying to A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A., Cleveland, O.

Trappers and hunters are making money this winter. The price of fur is higher than usual, and it is said that there are a good many rats, mink, skunk and coon in the country. From the odoriferous packages occasionally sent by express, we are sure this is true concerning skunks.—Manchester Enterprise.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Jan. 5, 1898.

Wheat was firm today, and while at times the speculative action was uncertain and nervous it was noticeable that the cash article was in better demand and at higher prices than on yesterday.

There were good sales of cash wheat to New York millers, and another fact which encouraged the believers in better prices was that the exports were large, showing that Europe is still short of wheat, and this view is confirmed by Schwartz, Dupee & Co's advices from that quarter. The report that Leiter had sold the greater part of his cash holdings to a French syndicate was denied by that gentleman's manager, but it nevertheless impressed the trade with an idea of what might happen if such a deal should take place, and shorts were more careful about selling May short than they have been of late.

Corn was fairly steady, while provisions enjoyed a little boom, May pibs selling above 70. The range of fluctuations was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close
Jan. wheat,	90 5-8	89 7-8	89 3-4
May wheat,	91 3-8-1-2	90 1-2	90 5-8
Jan. corn,	29 1-8-1-4	29	29¼-8
May corn,	30 1-4	30	30 1-8

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council Chamber, Village of Tecumseh.

Regular session of Jan. 3, 1898.

Present, the president, Trustees Heesen, Heesen, Orr, Eldridge, Wright and the clerk. Absent, Lowry.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Sexton's report for month of December presented, showing 6 adult and 1 infant interments and two lots sold for $75, showing treasurer's receipt for the same.

Street commissioner's report presented showing fire team labor 4 days, and 2 poll tax worked

The following bills were presented and referred to the finance committee: Chas. Bidwell, marshal, $25; the TECUMSEH HERALD, $6 66; H. Brewer & Co., 88.58; Tecumseh Electric Co., $222 08. Water works: Wm. Powell, 60c; Thacker Coal & Coke Co., coal, $18 52; the Detroit & Lima Northern R. R. Co., freight, $38 20. Finance committee made favorable report and clerk was instructed to draw his order upon the treasurer for the several amounts.

Marshal was instructed to notify L. S. & M. S. R. R., the Detroit & Lima Northern R'y and the D. T. & M. R. R. to keep their crossings open.

Insurance on council building and contents was referred to committee on fire and fire limits.

Committee on public grounds and buildings were authorized to look over ground owned by E. Williamson with view to purchase same for use of village as store grounds for lumber, etc., said committee to report at next meeting.

Moved and supported that the following ordinance be adopted and passed.

AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE USE OF BICYCLES VELOCIPEDES AND VEHICLES PROPELLED BY PEDALS, ON SIDEWALKS WITHIN THE VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH

SEC. I. The common council of the village of Tecumseh ordains that from and after the 24th day of January A. D. 1898, no person or persons shall ride any bicycle or, velocipede or other vehicle propelled by pedals, upon any sidewalk within the corporate limits of said village, excepting, however, that this ordinance shall not apply to or prohibit the riding of velocipedes by children under six years of age nor the use of tricycles and wheel chairs by invalids upon said sidewalks.

SEC. II. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than ten dollars and costs of such prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail of Lenawee county not less than five days or not more than fifteen days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

SEC. III. An ordinance entitled "An ordinance regulating the use of bicycles and velocipedes on sidewalks," passed by the common council of said village on the 4th of May A. D. 1896, is hereby repealed.

Trustee Heesen yea, J. Heesen yea, Orr yea, Eldridge yea, Wright yea. Nays none. Declared adopted and passed.

Council then adjourned.

J. H. ELLIOTT,
Village Clerk.

Newspaper Advertising in the United States.

A book of two hundred pages containing a catalogue of about six thousand newspapers, being all that are credited by the American Newspaper Directory (December edition for 1897) with having regular issues of 1,000 copies or more. Also separate state maps of each and every state of the American Union, naming those towns only in which there are issued newspapers, having more than 1,000 circulation. This book (issued December 15, 1897) will be sent, postage paid, to any address, on receipt of one dollar. Address the Geo. P. Rowell Advertising Co., 10 Spruce St. New York.

The editor of the American Monthly Review of Reviews, in the January number of that periodical, discusses the Hawaiian annexation issue under the four heads of "The Ethical Question," "The Constitutional Problem," "The Strategic Bearings," and "The Economic Aspects." The Review's attitude has all along been in favor of annexation, for strategic reasons, but fears are expressed lest the enthusiastic friends of the American beet-sugar industry will force an adverse decision for the sake of an incidental gain.

The golden rule is just one inch longer than a 35 inch yardstick.

A word to the wise is generally sufficient to get the advisor in trouble.

No physician can be considered great until he has discovered a new germ and a way of transmitting it.

The Lady is Always a Lady.

Ruth Ashmore, writing on "The Simplicity of the Grande Dame," in the January Ladies Home Journal, asserts that "a lady may stand behind the counter, be mistress in her own home, or busy all day at a desk, but no matter what her position in life is, she never swerves, and unconsciously she always impresses those who are around her with the fact of her gentleness and her simplicity. The lady gains her strength not from riches, not from her high position, not from great learning, but from good common sense. Any one of us may learn this if we will take a good model and copy it. No lady is free and easy in her manners. She does not however, go to the other extreme and become stilted, but she tends rather to quietness and to a slight reserve, since, when she takes a friend, she proposes to keep her. She does not become intimate with you after twenty-four hours' acquaintance, put you in the place of a confidante in forty-eight hours, and in a week's time tire of you. The lady knows you first merely as an acquaintance, and then, if she finds you interesting, or if she thinks she can in any way be of use to you, she permits you to come gradually into her life, and between you may grow up a friendship that may last through life, even unto death."

Night Work among Women.

It may seem incredible that there is a large and growing body of women who work regularly all night. But it is only necessary to reflect that all the department stores, railroad depots, office buildings, and other sky-scrapers are scrubbed by women at night, to verify this statement. The telephone girls in the offices of the great dailies work at night; and in one of the great electrical works, which employs more women than any other manufacturing establishment in Illinois, girls are engaged regularly from six at night to five in the morning thirteen weeks of every year. The effect of this work upon the health is ruinous, for the girls do not acquire the habit of regular and sufficient sleep by day, but work, as they say, "on nerve," using stimulants for the purpose of keeping awake.

In the sewing trades, since the "Song of the Shirt" the hours of labor of women and girls have been reduced only in those establishments which have steam-power, and even in these the improvement is seeming rather than real, many of them requiring employees to carry home work at the close of the day whenever a sudden pressure requires "rushing." Throughout these trades the pay is so meager and the season so short and precarious that girls who have worked with the intensity which the steam-driven machine exacts, for nine, ten, or even eleven or twelve hours a day, eagerly seize every opportunity to work over time whenever opportunity offers.

In all factories and shops, in which foot-power is used the working day is practically unlimited, being determined only by the endurance of the operative. Even in states in which the working day of women and girls is limited by statute to ten in any one day, or sixty in any one week, the garment shops are practically exempted from such limitations by their very numbers and the impossibility of inspecting them often enough to enforce the law effectually.—From "The Hours of Work of Women and Children," by Florence Kelley, in The Chautauquan for January.

An unknown but intoxicated person fell against a barber pole in Chelsea the other evening and knocked it through a $60 plate glass window.—Ann Arbor Argus.

A combination of overalls, gasoline and boiling water got in its work at Chelsea last week, the explosion painfully burning Mrs. R. J. Beckwith and slightly warming up Mr. Beckwith.

The spirit of burglary seems to have been rife in Brooklyn last night, and everyone was all excitement, when it was learned that an attempt had been made to blow open the safe in Exchange bank. It is a Detroit safe and resisted all effort to force it to give up its valuables. But the fine fire proof vault is a total wreck. The large iron doors are torn off, and the side walls are cracked. The funny part of it is that Mr. Carter's family was not disturbed by the explosion. An expert will be sent for to open the safe and the debris will be cleared away as soon as possible. The occurrence will not affect business in any way as the bank has $11,000 in Detroit that can be expressed here at any time if needed. There is something over $2,100 in the safe.

About 11 o'clock last night some one "touched" E. H. Loomis' stables for one of his best rigs, a horse and buggy of considerable value. Deputy Sheriff Ambler started out on the search for it early this morning. Whether this has any connection with the above is not known.—Brooklyn Exponent.

An alarm of fire was turned on Sunday morning about 11 o'clock which summoned the department to the cooper shop and broom factory of Edward Williamson. The buildings were frame and burned like tinder, leaving but little time to save the contents. The cooper shop and tools suffered the worst but most of the broom stock and machinery was saved. The frame of the building in which the fire started together with most of the siding still stands while the second building was severely scorched. Without the water works it would no doubt have been a very serious fire. What fired the building is unknown.

FARM & GARDEN.

CORN CRIB AND SHED.

How to Build One Cheaply on the End of the Farm Barn.

A cheap corn crib and shed can be built on one end of barn as shown in cut. Corn crib 6x28 feet, leaving shed room 16x24 feet, and should be built in the following manner: First set up eight-inch sewer pipe on end by digging down one foot and filling in with cement. Set pipe, rim end down, into the cement so that rim end will be covered. Sills to be made of 2x6 joist doubled and spiked together. Cut cross-pieces out of 2x4 stuff; run over on shed side so as to form shelf (see cut). This will be very handy in getting corn out of crib. Next cut studding to length, using 2x6 stuff, cut so as to flare out one foot six inches at top end from plumb line. Then frame rafters, using 14 feet 2x4 stuff placed two feet on centers. Put on roofing strips, 1x6 stuff; place two feet on center. Then you are ready for sheet steel roofing, which will be found cheaper for this kind of building. Any farmer can build it with the following materials:

Ten pieces eight-inch sewer pipe; one barrel Akron cement; one load sand; eight pieces 2x6—14 feet; four pieces 2x6—16 feet; 14 pieces 2x16—12 feet; 27 pieces 2x4—14 feet; 30 pieces 1x6—14 feet, S 1 S; 140 pieces 1x4—14 feet, S 2 S; 30 feet flooring, matched; 16 pieces 1x12—14 feet; 50 pounds ten-penny wire nails; 20 pounds 20-penny wire nails; two eight-inch T hinges; one hasp and staples for door; seven squares steel sheet roofing.—Ohio Farmer.

STRAIGHT FARMING.

More Popular Now Than It Has Been for a Long Time.

The past five or six years have been a period of shifting, experimenting and trial with a large number of farmers. Urged by low prices of staple products they left the old and ventured into new fields of live stock production, cropping and methods of farming. These experiments have not been satisfactory to the vast majority, for no sooner did they get into a new field than it was overrun with their competitors. But the experience has been valuable. The result is a general tendency to return to the production of the staples in a system of mixed farming as being the most satisfactory in the long run. Most of the so-called "specialties" which were to do so much for the average farmer have failed to enrich him. Most of the new crops which were so loudly praised in the beginning have been found no improvement over the old. But in methods of farming, which involved cheaper production and a better product, there has been considerable advance. For these reasons "straight farming" is now more popular as well as more promising than for a long time—and this is for the greatest good to the greatest number of farmers

Future of Fish Farming.

Fish farming has never been taken up seriously by our farmers, although hundreds of farms have suitable water privileges or are so constituted that ponds could easily be made on them. The rage for German carp which swept the country a few years ago has acted as a setback for fish farming, because the German carp is a coarse, flavorless fish, its flesh full of bones and its habits that of a buzzard, no feed being too foul for it and no pond too muddy. We have native fishes that are first-class for the table, and with very little trouble they could be bred with profit. No doubt an acre in fish could be made more profitable than it would be put to any other use. This is one of the industries that will come later.—Farmers' Voice.

Care of Seed Potatoes.

There has been more than usual of wet and warm weather so far this fall and winter. It has been extremely difficult to keep the seed potatoes from sprouting, especially those that were thoroughly ripened before they were dug. All this implies that there will be much poor potato seed planted next year. The majority of potatoes were of poor quality, anyway, this year, and if the warm weather continues their quality will be still further impaired. Those who have choice potatoes for seed should keep them in a cool, dry place, where they will not freeze. They will bring good prices at planting time next spring.—American Cultivator.

The Crossing of Grains.

Great things are promised from the discovery of the English scientist, Gaston, of a new method of crossing grasses, grains and clovers, by which new and surprising species are claimed to have been produced. The cross between barley and oats, for instance, results in a new and peculiar grain of permanent type; while comparatively useless plants are, by judicious crossing, made to produce valuable food substances. Probably the value of the discoveries has been overestimated by the enthusiasts bringing them forward. As a rule, hybrids are more remarkable as curiosities than valuable as staple crops.—Rural World.

HELPFUL FARM NOTES.

Purchase bran and oil meal to feed with the straw.

A good dairy cow is always a hearty eater and drinker.

It is a safe plan to apply all manure on a plowed surface.

Fences on the farm are like a tax—they must be kept up.

The old-time grasses hold their own against all newcomers.

The successful farmer now must be a wide-awake business man.

Plan to grow as far as possible all of the grain grown on the farm.

When early pigs are wanted it is best to depend upon matured sows.

The advantage in grinding feed depends largely upon how it is fed.

Do the most of the farm work with good brood mares or growing colts.

When the hogs begin to bed close together is the time to look for lice.

During the winter comfort is an important item in securing a good gain.

Buying stock and then buying feed to feed them rarely proves profitable.

A calf will never get over the effects of being stunted during its first winter. —Farmers' Union.

Great Waste in Pasturing.

It is an advantage to a certain class of overeconomical farmers when winter's mantle of snow finally covers the frost-bitten grass which was left from summer pasturing. In most cases this grass while fresh and green was unpalatable, but after it was frost-bitten there is very little nutrition left in it. The cheapest place to keep a cow at any season of the year is in the stable, cutting and bringing food to her. Pasturing at its best in summer does not make as cheap food as cut clover or corn does. If continued after the ground is frozen either the cow loses flesh and fails in her milk or she has to be fed so much corn that the frost-bitten herbage does not count, and the cow becomes too fat to be a profitable milker.—American Cultivator.

MAKE LIFE ATTRACTIVE.

Otherwise Children Cannot Be Kept Upon the Farm.

We often hear it deplored that so many farmers' boys and girls leave the farm so early, but it is all in their bringing up, and nine times out of ten the parents are responsible. They do not make farm life attractive enough. They forget that God designed every farm for an Eden, and stalk through life as unconcerned to the beauties around them as the dumb brutes under their care do.

I heard a young man of 23 say the other day that he wouldn't leave home for anything—that he considered it the prettiest spot on earth. Come to find out, that boy never had to get up at three o'clock in the morning and work until sunset. He was blessed with parents who considered their children of more importance than overwork or money. Pleasures were furnished at home to keep the boys out of danger. Even Fourth of July was celebrated so splendidly at home that the boys had no desire to go anywhere. I went to one of those farm entertainments, and there was a picnic all day in the orchard, with swings and boat rides on the mill pond, ice cream and fireworks. The farmer was not a rich man, either; he only looked out for the good and enjoyment of his boys.

Some farmers and their wives take time to interest their children in beauties around them, and set them to work making collections of flowers, leaves and grasses, with names written neatly under each. They let their children bring mosses and stones into the house and form little cabinets of their own. They encourage them to draw and paint pictures of all the birds and insects they see, to learn their names and become acquainted with their habits. Such children will not want to leave the farm. But the average farm of to-day is so dreary and monotonous, with its endless routine of duties, oftentimes accompanied with hurry and harsh words, no wonder the young people want to leave the farm and hunt up something more cheerful.

There is nothing in the world so sweet, so healthful, as farm life when carried on right, and "there's love at home." Let parents look to it that their children are entertained, and so many of them will not want to leave the farm, but will be satisfied to remain at home with papa and mamma as long as they live, and then take their places afterward.—Mrs. A. E. C. Maskell, in N. Y. Tribune.

A Mechanical Holder That Saves Lots of Perspiration.

The season for sawing up the year's supply of firewood being at hand makes the device shown herewith of special interest. Sawing wood is hard work at the best. No small part of its irksomeness is the necessity of holding down the stick with one's knee while the stick is being sawed. The sketch shows a mechanical holder whose construction is seen at a glance. The rod is of steel, so that it can be bent tightly over the wood. The pegs and the rachet permit its use with either large or small sticks.

It Beats All

The great success that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has reached in so short a time. Those who once give it a fair trial, then and there become walking and talking advertisers of this great remedy. Constipation, Indigestion and Sick Headache cured. Get a 10c trial size, larger sizes 50c and $1.00 of JOHN J. ORR, druggist.

What science says is man's best guess.

Have You Seen The New "C" In Town?

It has come to stay. It is the initial letter of Carter's Cascara Cordial, the ideal tonic laxative that cures chronic constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia. Price 25c and 50c. S. E. PARRISH

Don't take the bull by the horns. Take him by the tail and then you can let go without getting hurt.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidney and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

Wm. R. Hayes Writes

Payne, Ind., Feb. 1896

I have been using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin ever since the agency was established here four months ago When I began taking it I weighed 150 pounds and now I weigh 177 pounds. Feel better than ever did in my life and must say it is an excellent remedy. In 10c size (10c dose 10 cts) regular sizes 50c and $1.00 at J. J. ORR, druggist.

The devil will not be long in making some kind of a flank movement against the preacher who makes sinners feel the need of Christ.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system. Buy the genuine, made by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Some people show that they are on the way to heaven by what they tell others they must do to get there.

Four Things That Are True.

If you are bilious, Carter's Cascara Liver Pills will cure you. If you have Dyspepsia, Indigestion, or are troubled with chronic constipation Carter's Cascara Cordial will restore you to health. If you have a cough, or are suffering from La Grippe, asthma or bronchitis, or your child has croup or whooping cough you should use Carter's Cough Cure. If you have eczema, salt rheum or piles, cuts, bruises, burns, or any inflammation in your body, Carter's Herbal Ointment relieves and cures. At S. E. PARRISH'S.

NO CURE—NO PAY.

That is the way the druggists sell GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC, for Chills and Malaria. It is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating tonics. Price 50 cts For sale by John J. Orr.

NEW WINDOW DRAPERY.

Particularly Suitable for the Sitting or Sewing Room.

It is often difficult to curtain the window of a sewing-room without darkening the interior too much. Often shades are objectionable, and yet the window must be relieved of its bare appearance.

A simple arrangement for this consists of two curtains of thin material

DOUBLE SCALLOPED CURTAIN.

—madras, figured lawn or china silk. Cut one curtain three times as long as the other, the shorter one being of a length to just reach the window sill. Fasten upon the pole by the usual ring arrangement and overlap in the middle.

Now take the shorter curtain and with a piece of bright ribbon loop it to the first ring on the pole, tying it tightly there.

Drape back the other curtain in a loose, graceful sweep with a band of the goods, and you will find that you have a curtain that forms a double scallop. It will be very pretty and will not darken the room.

FIRST SILVER WEDDING.

A Custom That Dates Back to the Reign of Hugues Capet.

The fashion of silver weddings dates back to the reign of Hugues Capet, king of France in 987, says Vogue.

Once, as Hugues was arranging his uncle's affairs, he found on one of the estates a servant who had grown gray in the service of his relative. He had been such a friend of his master's that he was almost looked upon as one of the family.

On the farm with this old man was also a serving woman who was as old as he, and also unmarried, and who had been the most devoted and hard working of the women servants of the king's uncle. When the king heard these praises of the two, he ordered them to be brought before him, and said to the woman:

"Your service is great, greater than this man's, whose services were great enough, for the woman always finds work and obedience harder than a man, and therefore I will give you a reward. At your age I know of none better than a dowry and a husband. The dowry is here—this farm from this time forth belongs to you. If this man who has worked with you five and twenty years is willing to marry you, then the husband is ready."

"Your majesty," stuttered the old peasant, confusedly, "how is it possible that we should marry, having already silver hairs?"

"Then it shall be a silver wedding," answered the king, "and here I give you a wedding ring," drawing a costly ring from his finger and placing the hands of the thankful old people together.

This soon became known all over France, and raised such enthusiasm that it became a fashion after a 25 years' marriage to celebrate a silver wedding.

THE WINTER SASH.

Dressy Ribbon Affair for Street or Indoor Wear.

This is a white silk sash made out of six yards of ribbon about eight inches wide. The belt is made separately, and fastens with a hook and eye under the bow, which is also a "made" one.

THE FASHIONABLE SASH.

The bow and ends are doubled, and along the edges, where the ribbon is sewed, a tiny plaiting of white chiffon is sewed in. This gives weight to the ends and makes them a part of the trimming of the dress. Many dressmakers interline their ribbon sashes with heavy cambric to give them still more foundation. The chiffon is ruffled very thick and is sewed between the edges of the ribbon with machine stitching.

These sashes are made of black and white ribbon, and are also, as in this case, made of ribbon with tiny figures

CHINA PAINTING HINTS.

Description of Some Very Popular Styles of Decoration.

Within the past few years the art of china decoration has been a most popular pastime and a profitable business to many.

The mode of coloring is simplified and much improved with the advance in this work, and the demand is for a better class of designs than formerly were placed before the public, they being for the most part decidedly crude and inartistic.

Here is a conventional design for decorating a set of plates; either breakfast, soup, dinner, dessert or fruit plates, and a design for decorating a tea caddy, biscuit jar, rose jar, or even a tray. The design for plates can be easily painted by an experienced person, as it requires simple tinting, and the shading of the cut will guide one in shading the colors from dark to light.

One desirable scheme of color is carried out in painting the darkest scrolls in deep purple. The next lighter is carnation No. 1, and the lightest scrolls in silver yellow. The scrolls should be all shaded, starting from the center of the design with the darkest shade and gradually fading out to a pale shade at the top of the scrolls.

Another style of decorations is as follows: Tint the darkest scrolls with carmine, shading to light at the tips of the scrolls. The next lighter scrolls should be shaded with grass green, and the lightest in a delicate tint of sky-blue. There are many other harmonious combinations of color which will suggest themselves to the artist.

In painting the yellow narcissus design more skill is requisite in order to shade the petals and cups to prevent a flat appearance. One must use his own judgment, following the shading of the drawing as nearly as possible. The petals are of bright yellow. In painting them use silver yellow and mixing yellow. The cups of the flowers are tinged with deep yellow, and should be shaded at the base as well as the leaves with brown green.

The foliage of this plant is naturally stiff, and is of a rich green tone. Use grass green, apple green and brown green in painting this. It is always well to use a combination of greens rather than a single shade, as in nature one finds that leaves are quite varied on the same plant. The effect of work thus executed is much more professional in appearance, a point all china painters aim to attain.—N. B. Simmonds, in Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Spice Pudding.

Put half a cup of butter and lard mixed, in a pan; add to this one cupful of sugar, one well beaten egg, half an ounce of ground cinnamon, quarter of a nutmeg, one teaspoonful each of ground allspice and cloves; beat well together. Pour in one-half cupful of molasses and one cupful of cold coffee, one cupful of sifted flour in which three teaspoonfuls of baking powder are mixed. Add enough of flour to make a stiff batter, then put in the mixture three-fourths pound of raisins and half a pound of currants; add flour until you can just barely mold it with the hand, make into a roll and pin securely in a cloth, leaving a little room to swell; place in boiling water and keep boiling for one hour. This is nice cold.—Good Housekeeping.

Chinese Woman Honored.

Miss Hu King Eng, M. D., the only female native of China who has ever graduated from an American medical college, has just received very high honors in her own country. Following close upon her appointment as sole delegate from China to the Women's medical convention, to be held in London next June, comes the announcement that Li Hung Chang, China's grand viceroy, has appointed her first physician in his private household. Never before has this high office been given to a woman.

Care of Embossed Brass.

The simplest means of brightening brass is to cover it with a solution of oxalic acid in soft water, made in proportions of one ounce of acid to a pint of water. When the metal is well covered with the fluid polish it briskly with a wash leather. It must be noted that this oxalic acid preparation is a poison, and very strong in its effect upon the brass, so I do not advise that it be used too often, or be kept where irresponsible people could reach it. The bottle should be labeled "poison."

Nice Way to Roast Lamb.

A delicious roast of lamb is secured by parboiling a carefully selected leg with five or six onions in the water. When it is put into the oven the onions, which are, of course, by this time well boiled, are scattered over it. One might fear that the dish would be disagreeably permeated with onion, but it is not; rather there is obtained a fine, delicate suggestion of the vegetable, mingled with the native flavor, now quite devoid of any suggestion of woolliness.

Shirt Waists for Spring.

FOR AN EXTRA SESSION.

A Report That Gov. Pingree Will Call the State Legislature Together.

FEBRUARY 1 IS NAMED AS THE DATE.

Object Is to Adopt Measures Providing for a Greater Taxation of Railways, Telephone and Telegraph Lines — Extracts from Railway Commissioner's Report.

Detroit, Jan. 3.—The Evening News announces that Gov. Pingree has decided to call a special session of the legislature before January 11, the session to begin February 1. Persons close to the governor intimate that the call will include action upon bills to repeal the charter of the Michigan Central railway, and to provide for greater taxation of all quasi-public corporations, including railways, telephone and telegraph lines, etc., and other measures calculated to carry out the governor's reform ideas.

Report of Railway Commissioner.

Lansing, Jan. 3.—Sybrant Wesselius, state railroad commissioner, has submitted to the governor his annual report. In addition to the usual statistical and advisory matters the report recommends: Increase of the tax upon railroad properties, to be accompanied by a general revision of the law taxing all quasi-public corporations and not limited to railroads only; repeal of all laws providing for a tax on gross earnings as being unfair to the property of private individuals not having this privilege; that all railroads should not be taxed alike, because their franchises are not of equal value; that in determining the value of the franchise the earning power should be considered, but for no other purpose; payment of all taxes realized from corporations to the state treasury; a heavy penalty inserted in all tax laws governing taxation of corporations if the tax is not paid when due.

Commissioner Wesselius states that the interchangeable mileage book sold by Michigan railroads is not in compliance with the state law requiring railroad companies to sell family mileage books for $20, and recommends that proceedings be taken to annul the charters of the offending roads.

The commissioner says that during the present year new companies have commenced the construction of 247 miles of main track and existing companies have built 132 miles of road, the mileage constructed being the largest increase in the history of the department.

TEACHERS ADJOURN.

Compulsory School Law Praised and Free Text-Books Urged.

Lansing, Jan. 1.—The annual meeting of the State Teachers' association closed Thursday afternoon with a business session. In the morning the desirability of introducing German and other high school studies in the grammar grades was discussed by leading educators. American schools were compared with English and German schools to the credit of our educational system. Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Approving the selection of Washington as the place for holding the next annual meeting of the National Educational association, recommending a careful study of the report of the committee of 12 submitted to the National association, indorsing the new state manual and course of study for rural schools, asking for stronger interest in teachers' institutes, rejoicing in the operation of the compulsory school law, demanding a more equitable distribution of the primary school funds on the basis of school attendance, asking for a law requiring library funds to be used only for library purposes, favoring limitations upon state normal schools, urging the adoption of free text-books, protesting against the methods employed by text-book lobbyists and deprecating any movement toward the state publication of uniform text-books

MAY REDUCE STOCKS.

Banks at Grand Rapids Considering the Advisability of This Step.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 3.—The National City bank has appointed a committee to report on the advisability of reducing the capital stock of the bank from $500,000 to $300,000, and the old national bank is also considering a reduction from $800,000 to $600,000. This course is deemed advisable because with the decadence of lumbering in western Michigan and the more conservative methods of the business men and manufacturers so much money is not needed. There is also talk of consolidating some of the banks, and this will be made easy because the charters of three national and one savings bank will expire in the next five years, and two other national banks will reach the end of their charters in the two years following.

Possessed Great Vitality.

Monroe, Jan. 2.—Eli Cooley, about 55 years old, at one o'clock Saturday morning, was run over by a Michigan Central train. In spite of the fact that both legs and his right arm were cut off, and that he was not discovered for an hour or more after being hurt, he was conscious two hours afterward, and then expired.

Death of Gouverneur Morris.

Detroit, Jan. 1.—Gouverneur Morris, a great-grandson of Robert Morris, the revolutionary patriot, died suddenly here Saturday, aged 50 years. He was well known throughout the country as a civil engineer.

Interest Rate Reduced.

Plymouth, Jan. 1.—The Plymouth savings and the First national exchange banks, of Plymouth, have given notice that they will reduce interest on savings and time deposits from four to three per cent.

Loses One Wife.

Marquette, Jan. 4.—Mrs. D. E. Bates, first wife of the noted bigamist, has been granted a divorce, the charge being adulterv, bigamy and extreme cruelty.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING.

The "Pleasures" Mapped Out in Boston for a Western Girl.

Not long ago while a young woman hailing from a western state was residing in the east she had a slight attack of the grip and was much in need of something to cheer her up. With a view of securing the needed amusement she wrote accepting the standing invitation of a Boston girl to come and spend a few days at the Hub. When the time was near for her to leave home she received a letter from her Boston friend which ran like this:

"I think I have planned as pleasant a programme for you, my dear, as would be possible. You will arrive Monday morning; that afternoon we shall have a luncheon of the Quiet Hour club in your honor, at which 30 literary women will be present. Monday evening we shall attend a lecture by Prof. —— on 'The Semitic Races.' Tuesday forenoon we are going to a meeting of the Browning club, and in the afternoon we are booked for a musicale in behalf of the colored old ladies' home. Tuesday evening we shall wind up the two days with a lecture by Prof. —— on 'Esoteric Buddhism,' which I am sure will be the greatest treat of the whole two days."

As soon after the receipt of this letter as she could recover strength enough to hold a pen the western girl wrote her friend as follows:

"I am afraid, my dear girl, that you will have to modify your programme, or else I can't come to you. What little intellect the grip has left me I don't propose to wreck in any such manner as you have arranged for."

NO OLD MAIDS THERE.

An Everlasting Disgrace to Grecian Girls.

In Greece it is considered an everlasting disgrace to remain an old maid. Girls are betrothed often when still tiny babies.

Marriages of love are absolutely unknown—even more so than in France. And the father is most particular that the intended husband must have an ample provision to support a wife and family. For the girl a dowry is not so important as in France, but a certain amount of linen and household furniture is required. The whole training and education of a Greek girl is simply a preparation to render her brilliant in the society of the great world. Her toilet is a subject of constant anxiety.

Although most Greek girls are naturally very pretty, they begin to paint and powder from a very early age—cheeks bright red, eyebrows and lashes deepest black and veins delicately blue. The result is that she is a withered old woman at 40, and nowhere are uglier women to be found than beneath the blue skies of lovely Greece.

Next in importance to beauty comes languages. Every Greek family who can afford it keeps a French nurse or maid, and French is universally spoken in society. Painting and music are quite unnecessary, but girls are carefully trained in dancing and drilled to enter a room and sit down with elegance. Lastly, household duties are taught—how to make rose jam, Turkish coffee and various delicate sweetmeats.

Fine Household Preparation.

Cleansing cream made after the following recipe is highly recommended for general use in the household. It will remove grease spots from coats, carpets or any woolen texture, paint from furniture and ink from paint. This cream will keep an indefinite period: Cut four ounces of white castile soap very fine and put it over the fire in a quart of hot water to dissolve; as soon as it is thoroughly melted add four quarts of hot water, and when nearly cold stir in four ounces of ammonia, two ounces of glycerin and two ounces of ether.

New Anesthetic.

A new anesthetic, which relieves at once the pain of deep burns, of ulcers, and of cancer, has been discovered by Drs. Eichorn and Heinz, of Munich. It is a preparation of benzomethylic ether in the form of a powder, to which the name orthoform has been given.

A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small — but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle it, and put in its place a new one equal to any. It's just like this: hit at the cause; most backaches come from kidney disorders. Reach the kidneys, start their clogged-up fibres in operation; when this is done you can say good-bye to backache.

Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

NEW SLAVERY AT CAPE TOWN.

Bechuana Prisoners Are Bought by the Farmers.

The "slave mart," judging from an article in the Cape Times, appears to be definitely established in Cape Town, says the London Chronicle. The slaves, of course, are the Bechuana prisoners, and although there is no suggestion that these wretched creatures are treated with harshness while in the government care, they are clearly considered and disposed of precisely as if they were mere bales of goods or cattle. Careful watch and ward is kept over them and the writer says that "it is not easy to pass the strict guard at the gate unless you are a farmer coming to pick your labor. * * * Round three sides of the square courtyard men and women are squatting impassively or standing chattering in knots. They are ill-clad and exceedingly ill-favored, but not ill-nourished, like the first batch of skeletons that came down to town. A child here and there is even bonny. There is no very obvious dejection. The nearest to it is a moody, passive look."

The farmers, too, quite enter into the spirit of the "slave mart." They go round the market scanning the men and "sorting out those of the largest size," as did the walrus and the carpenter with the oysters. The natives cast expressionless, sidelong glances at their possible masters while they are being appraised like goods in a store. Having selected one or two from a group, the farmer is chagrined at being told by a harried official: "We cannot break this lot for you," as if the knot of negroes were a dinner service or a suite of bedroom furniture. Back goes the farmer and looks the natives up and down again, and at length decides "to take the lot." When the natives are duly indentured for five years their master unhitches his cart and mules, outside, bundles his "labor" in and drives his bargain home.

THE BULLDOG, A GOOD DOG.

Yet We Do Not Care to Take Liberties with One.

No member of the canine family has been more persistently maligned than the bulldog. Writers who have no intimate knowledge of the dog and his attributes have described him as stupidly ferocious, and illustrators have pictured him as a sort of semi-wild beast, till the general public has come to look upon him as dangerous, says Outing.

"Give a dog a bad name," is an old saw and perhaps a true one, but when it is applied to the bulldog, it is manifestly unjust. Writers, too, have fallen into grave error in claiming that the bulldog is deficient not only in affection, but in intelligence.

No greater proof of the falsity of the latter could be given than was witnessed at the late Westminister Kennel club's dog show, when Col. Shults exhibited his trained dogs, with the bulldog Nick performing all sorts of wonderful feats, especially that of walking a tight rope, and, when in the center of it, turning round and retracing his steps, amid the applause of an admiring audience.

Stonehenge, who is considered one of the greatest of canine scientists, claims that the bulldog's brain is relatively larger than that of the spaniel, which dog is generally considered to be the most intelligent of the canine race, while the bulldog's affection is never to be doubted.

JUDGED BY THEIR WALK.

Pace Sometimes Indicates the Character of the Girls.

You have seen the woman who jerks her head as she walks, I suppose? The habit is not uncommon, and on close acquaintance you will find that a woman so afflicted is given to fickleness. She trifles a little too much with love, and is just the woman to miss a good husband and be sorry afterward, says the Boston Traveler.

The quiet man will never be happy with the woman who digs her heels into the pavement and scurries along as if she were running a race. She is business-like and most likely the woman to succeed in trade affairs, but her manner is one of those simple things that worry the quiet man to death.

The girl who cannot walk without skipping is a very cheerful girl and enjoys life with much the same gusto as the girl with an elastic step who tips on her toes at every stride. But perhaps the girl we like most is the girl with the brisk, musical walk, who loves to peep for a moment into shop windows and then walk briskly on, and who goes through life with the fixed resolve of getting the most pleasure out of everything.

Irish Donkey in Africa.

The Irish donkey has covered himself with glory in South Africa, where he is in great demand, says the Philadelphia Record. His toughness laughs to scorn the tsetse fly, so fatal to cattle and horses, and all the other insectivorous pests of that region, and in the matter of diet he is as accommodating as at home. There is, in consequence, a great boom in the Irish "moke" market, English and Dutch syndicates having already invested $25,000 in donkey flesh in Clare, Tipperary and Limerick alone, and a new branch of industry is opening up to the Irish farmer.

Comparative Fertility.

A Yorkshire man and a Leicestershire man were arguing as to the superior fertility of their respective counties. The Leicestershire man declared that he could turn a horse into a newly-mowed field in his county and the next morning the grass would have grown above his hoofs. "Pooh! that's nothing," cried the Yorkshire man. "You may turn a horse into a field in Yorkshire and not be able to find him the next morning."

A Family Cremated.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 3.—Adolph Reich and his wife and four children were cremated at their home here.

ODD MORAVIAN CUSTOMS.

Simple Ceremonies Observed at Christmas and New Year Times.

No more law-abiding and generally upright citizens are to be found in the republic than the Moravians at Lititz, Pa. Their Christmas and New Year observances are characteristically simple. At the appointed hour on Christmas eve the services of the church commence with instrumental music by the choir, after which the pastor reads the sacred history of the birth of Christ, when all partake of a love-feast, consisting of "love feast cake" and a mug of hot coffee. The choir again performs a piece of sacred music, near the conclusion of which all the little children are served with a lighted wax candle about four inches long, which they hold in their hands until the close of the ceremony. The Moravians have a number of queer customs, among others that of assembling in church before day on Easter morning and marching in procession to the graveyard to the sound of plaintive music, and sounding a funeral dirge for each member of the community who has died during the preceding year.

On New Year eve the people also repair to the church about seven o'clock and pass the time in reading the Scriptures, listening to a sermon, etc., until within a few minutes of 12 o'clock. The congregation then unite in solemn prayer, but at the first stroke of the clock in the steeple that proclaims the birth of the new year the band stationed in the choir strikes up a tremendous clangor of welcome, in which cornets, flutes, dulcimer and all kinds of instrumen's help to swell the joyful strain. After performing for several minutes the congregation interchange congregations and retire to their respective homes.

SILAS SAGGLEBY.

An Old Time Resident of Storkville Centre Who Was Lazy and Thrifty.

"One of the wealthiest of the old-time residents of Storkville Center," said Col. Calliper, reports the New York Sun, "was at the same time one of the laziest. This may seem like a contradiction, but the money was left to him by his uncle. The uncle was a miserly sort of man, who liked to accumulate money, and loved to gloat over it. He put most of his money into bonds, and bought coupon bonds of small denomination, so that the pile would be bigger to look at, and there would be more coupons to cut off. The old man's chief delight in life was cutting off these coupons.

"I don't suppose that one needs to be miserly, though, to find enjoyment in such work as that. As a matter of fact, I know of very few people, whatever their condition in life, or their temperament, who would not find pleasure in plying the coupon shears. Not so, however, with Silas—his name was Silas Saggleby—he was too lazy even for that; he used to hire a man to cut off the coupons for him. But the first thing he did after coming into the property was to change all the little bonds into the fewest possible big ones, so that there would be fewer coupons to cut and he could get the work done for the smallest possible amount. So you see that, lazy as he was, and he was the laziest man I ever knew, he had something of his uncle's thriftiness, too."

ANXIOUS TO MARRY.

He Popped the Question Before His Wife Was Dead.

Widowers, as well as widows, are the targets for many jokes. Here is a story they tell of a farmer in a certain county not 50 miles away from St. Louis, says the Republic:

His wife had been in poor health for some time, and one day he was called in from his work because she was so much worse. The neighbor women told him to hurry to town for the doctor. He rushed out to the stable, saddled a horse and galloped toward the village, a few miles distant.

As he rode he met an interesting widow. She was interesting because she had been a widow but six months, and the departed one had left a good farm to her. Of course, she wondered why Neighbor Jones was hurrying so. She called to him to know what was the matter. He pulled up his horse, turned toward her and said:

"My wife is very sick. They don't think she will live, and I am on my way for the doctor." He paused and seemed about to ride on, but a thought struck him. He leaned over toward the widow and asked, anxiously:

"If she does die, will you have me?"

Fooled the Gambler.

A Louisville gambler on one occasion thought he had a good thing when a stranger who looked as if he had plenty of money came along and suggested a friendly game of poker. The game ran along smoothly for awhile and at last when the opportune moment came the gambler dealt the guileless stranger four queens and gave himself four kings. The betting became interesting right away and after all the cash was up and it came to a show down the Louisville man laid down his four kings and the stranger showed four aces. "Take the money, mister!" gasped the astonished Kentuckian; "take it if you have the heart to do so, but I'll be darned if that was the hand I dealt you!"

It may not be generally known, says the Bloomington Pantagraph, that German carp can be used as lawn mowers, but Krampff Kyle had Rudolph & Shafer, fishermen of Havana, put a large number of German carp in the upper end of the slough east of Havana, to remove the moss before ice-making begins. These fish cut the moss close to the ground, when it sinks and becomes buried in the sediment. They have done the work well and the firm will now have a clear field for ice this winter. These fish are being seined and shipped. Over 5,000 pounds were taken out in one day recently.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

Abstract of the Annual Report of the President.

Ann Arbor, Jan. 1.—In his annual report the president of the university reviews at length the work of the year in the various departments, which he characterizes as being most successful. He calls special attention to the work of the graduate school in the literary department, in which 88 students were enrolled last year. In the newly organized women's department courses in personal, domestic and municipal hygiene are given. Every woman student receives a careful physical examination by the dean of the department, and is thus benefited by her personal counsel. The dean recommends that gymnasium work be made compulsory, or put on a credit basis. During the year 153 women have enrolled for gymnasium work, on a course extending over three years. In the men's gymnasium the daily attendance has been 350. The number of men using the gymnasium for all purposes was 1,036. It is to be hoped that some scheme will be formulated whereby the opportunities offered by the gymnasium may be more used by those who are most in need of physical training and development.

During the year only about 56 per cent. of the patients applying for admission to the university hospital were accommodated within the building. The number of beds should be largely increased. The university hospital is a great medical charity, worthy the support of the state. The majority of the people applying can pay the small fees for board and room, but cannot pay for expert medical attendance. Most of them come from the rural communities in the state. The farmers more than others reap the benefits of the hospital facilities.

Despite the fact that the requirements for admission have been raised and the course lengthened the department of law is larger than ever before.

The regents named the women's gymnasium the Barbour gymnasium, as a compliment to Levi L. Barbour, of Detroit, whose term of office as regent expired this month. Regent Barbour has been one of the foremost benefactors of the gymnasium, as well as an efficient regent, and the board takes this method of doing him honor. The board also named the audience room in the woman's building Hebard hall, in honor of ex-Regent Charles Hebard, of Pequaming, who gave $10,000 toward the building.

CONDEMNS JURY SYSTEM.

Judge Cahill Makes a Sensational Address to the Bench.

Lansing, Jan. 1.—In a paper on "The Bench as Viewed from the Bar," read before the State Association of Judges, ex-Justice Cahill, of the supreme court, made a sensation by severely criticising the jury system. He said that the corruptibility of jurors was recognized, and jurors have to submit to an espionage which no self-respecting judge would stand for a day. Men with neither education nor experience for their work were selected as jurors, and new men selected by lot every day. Judge Cahill said:

"The jury system stands condemned as a relic of barbarism and has no place in the courts of to-day. The attorneys do their utmost to befog the jury, and the judge cannot marshal the actual facts for the instruction of the jurors. Most judges are afraid to have any opinion as to the case for fear that by revealing it they may give occasion for a new trial."

Juries were declared to be notoriously opposed to certain interests, notably of corporations, and Judge Cahill said that either the old practice of judges giving their opinion as to the facts should be reinstated or trial by jury should be abandoned.

The paper provoked a lively discussion, which showed Judge Cahill to stand alone. Justice Montgomery and Judges Daboll, Peck and Hosmer, as well as several attorneys, took issue with the paper. All defended the jury system and maintained that the court should confine his charge to the law, being careful not to even intimate his opinion as to the facts. The judges elected the following officers: President, Erastus Peck, Jackson; vice president, A. C. Adsit, Grand Rapids; secretary, R. H. Person, Lansing.

DIES OF OVERTRAINING.

Henry L. Becker, a Young College Athlete, Expires at Lansing.

Lansing, Jan. 3.—Henry L. Becker, of Hesperia, died here Saturday night of a combination of ailments brought on by excessive training for athletic sports. He was an agricultural college senior, and was the best athlete in the institution. He trained hard, but not discreetly. Last year he was injured in a wrestling match, but upon recovering engaged in athletics as earnestly as before. He was 27 years old and a splendid specimen of physical manhood.

Braved a Blizzard to Wed.

Niles, Jan. 4.—Charles Gifford, a Chicago traveling man, and Miss E. M. Johnson, of Eaton Rapids, were so anxious to be married New Year's day that they drove 60 miles over a rough road in a terrific blizzard with the mercury below the zero point to get a license. The county office at Eton Rapids was closed and the county clerk out of town, so they drove to Mason, 30 miles away, and secured a license. A new team was secured, and hurrying back to Eaton Rapids the wedding ceremony was performed.

Church Burned.

Saginaw, Jan. 3.—The Warren Avenue Presbyterian church was burned Sunday. The society had just prepared the structure and had installed a $2,500 organ, on which there was insurance of $1,500. The whole loss is $20,000, with insurance of $8,000.

Benton Harbor, Jan. 2.—Hunting skunks for their fur is a growing industry among farmers in this locality. The number killed is enormous.

Insane Man Hangs Himself.

Niles, Jan. 3.—George Smith, of Dayton township, hanged himself in his barn with a log chain. He was insane.

DEFEND PENSION ATTORNEYS.

Michigan Practitioners Make Reply to Commissioner Evans.

Kalamazoo, Jan. 3.—Col. C. E. Foote, of this city, who conducts the largest pension agency in the country outside of Washington, in replying to Pension Commissioner Evans' sweeping charges against pension attorneys, says that the charges that wholesale frauds exist in the department are wholly false. Gen. William Shakespeare says that the commissioner makes a wholesale denunciation of 50,000 citizens of the United States when he says that frauds on the pension rolls were placed there by attorneys, and that the charge is unjust.

New Telephone Line.

Niles, Jan. 2.—The Independent Long Distance Telephone company has commenced work extending a line from Kalamazoo to Chicago. The line will be connected with local exchanges in Dowagiac, Cassopolis and Niles, in Michigan, and Goshen, Elkhart, South Bend, Laporte and Michigan City, in Indiana. It will prove a strong competitor to the Bell company.

Saginaw, Jan. 3.—Sewell Avery, one of the wealthiest lumbermen of Saginaw valley, died Sunday at a private sanitarium in Flint, after an illness of three years. He was the father of Waldo A. Avery, a wealthy vessel man of Detroit.

LITERARY NOTES.

Since becoming a monthly, published at one dollar a year, Harper's Round Table makes a most attractive Christmas gift for young people. In the January number there will be a notable article by Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, describing his "Battle with the Bangala," and the first instalment of a new serial story by H. B. Marriott Watson, entitled "The Adventurers."

The initial number of The Arena for 1898 is strong and aggressive. The frontispiece of the January number is a portrait of Henry George, the prophet of the American Republic. "Questionings from the Pews" is the title of an able and caustic paper by Judge Benjamin F. Burnham, who lays open some of the worst practices in the religious cant of the times. The number concludes with a three-page review of Camille Flammarion's story of "Urania."

The complete number in the January issue of Lippincott's is "John Olmstead's Nephew," by Henry Willard French. A hurried marriage is necessary to secure some solid interests and defeat an enemy, and thereon hangs a romance. "Christmas Gold," a tale of Austalia, by Owen Hall, and "Christmas Eve at Bilger's," which was in a western mining camp, by Frank H. Sweet celebrate the season. Why should Christmas stories appear a month ahead of Christmas? These are just in time.

Cheap articles of dress should be inconspicuous and unobtrusive. One is pretentious who buys cheap jewelry, cheap ornaments or cheap satins for personal wear, hoping to make an impression with them. It is better to be honest and straightforward, better to go without; then no law of good taste is violated. Muslin for a dress has a quality of its own, and commands a respect which cheap satin would forfeit. A dress of cheap muslin may, besides, be both dainty and charming, and lend a certain dignity; but a dress of cheap satin, when one of more richness is required, becomes only vulgar and out of place. Cheapness, allied with pretentiousness, is a monstrosity; therefore fight shy of both.—Harper's Bazar.

"Bad cooking is waste—waste of money and loss of comfort." Smiles tells us, hence we feel sure that the housewives of his day could not have had such a guide as Table Talk, for instance—the January issue of which is just out, and gives as usual, much of value in helping over those stumbling blocks and many others that comfort the home-maker. A sample copy of Table Talk is offered free to any of our readers who will send their name and address to Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

NATIONAL LAW-MAKERS.

Proceedings of the Fifty-Fifth Congress in Annual Session in Washington.

BOTH HOUSES SETTLE DOWN TO WORK.

In the Senate Many Bills and Resolutions Are Introduced and Discussed—In the House Important Measures Are Considered—Daily Summary of Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Senator Mason introduced a bill in the senate yesterday fixing a special tax of $100 upon the manufacture of mixed flour. Senator Teller introduced a concurrent resolution declaring the bonds of the United States payable in silver dollars. Senator Davis gave notice that he would call up the Hawaiian annexation treaty in executive session on Monday next. The civil service law was discussed. President McKinley sent in the nomination of Jonathan Merriam for pension agent at Chicago.

Washington, Jan. 7.—A favorable report on the bill increasing the military force of this country to the extent of two regiments of artillery was made in the senate yesterday.

Washington, Jan. 8.—In the senate yesterday a joint resolution was offered for an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of the federal judiciary by the people. Senator Allen introduced a resolution declaring that the United States should begin the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator Davis, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, brought up the subject of the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty in the senate yesterday and it was considered in executive session after a vain attempt to have the discussion in open session.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The entire time of the executive session of the senate yesterday was consumed by Senator Davis in a speech in support of Hawaiian annexation.

The House.

Washington, Jan. 6.—In the house yesterday a bill was introduced appropriating $250,000 for a gunboat on the upper lakes, and another making the gold dollar the sole unit of value, directing every national bank to redeem its notes in dollars of such value. The legislative appropriation bill was taken up and the item covering the expenses of the civil service commission led to general debate on the question of civil service.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Bills were introduced in the house yesterday to amend the patent laws of the United States; to attach the Indian territory to the territory of Oklahoma and make the two territories into one, and a bill for carrying out the plan of the monetary commission for the reform of the currency. A joint resolution providing for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people was favorably reported. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) spoke in favor of a modification of the civil service law, and Mr. Johnson (Ind.) replied in defense of the law.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The civil service debate continued throughout the day in the house yesterday and all efforts to fix a time for its termination failed.

Washington, Jan. 10.—In the house on Saturday bills were introduced to protect war veterans in the government service, and to increase and make flexible the national bank currency. A favorable report was made on the bill appropriating $50,000 for a statue to Abraham Lincoln on the Gettysburg battlefield. The civil service debate occupied two hours.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The opponents of the civil service law had much the best of the debate in the house yesterday so far as the number of those engaging in it were concerned, nine of the eleven speakers being of the opposition. A memorial was presented asking the enactment of a law to provide the death penalty for the crimes of train wrecking and train robbing.

Washington, Jan. 12.—In the house yesterday the civil service debate was closed and the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill upon which the debate was predicated was passed The urgent deficiency bill ($1,738,843) was reported.

Jackson Day.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—A host of democrats, quite a number of them from Iowa, Indiana and Wisconsin, celebrated Jackson day by a banquet at the Tremont house Saturday evening. Hon. William J. Bryan was the principal guest.

Favorable for Hanna.

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—In the legislature yesterday Mr. Hanna got 56 votes in the house and 17 in the senate, enough to elect him United States senator on a joint ballot if no changes occur before the joint ballot to-day.

Gov. Bushnell Inaugurated.

Columbus, O., Jan. 11.—Gov. Bushnell was inaugurated yesterday for the second time as chief executive of the state. The inaugural address was short, and contained no reference to the contest for the senatorship.

MOSES P. HANDY DEAD.

Widely-Known Newspaper Man Expires at Augusta, Ga.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 10.—Maj. Moses P. Handy, special United States commissioner to the Paris exposition, and chief of the editorial staff of the Times-Herald, of Chicago, died at the Bon Air hotel, a winter resort near here, aged 54 years.

Maj. Moses P. Handy was born in Virginia, his father being a prominent Methodist clergyman. While under age he entered the confederate service and served with gallantry during the closing months of the war. He was employed by the New York Tribune as special correspondent during the Cuban troubles, and won distinction by his report of the Virginius massacre. Later he became managing editor of the Philadelphia Times, and subsequently the editor of the Philadelphia Daily News. He was one of the founders and for many years the president of the Clover club, of

MAJ. MOSES P. HANDY.

Philadelphia. He moved to Chicago in 1893 to accept the position of chief of the bureau of publicity and promotion of the World's Columbian exposition. At the close of the fair he went to New York and engaged in literary work and newspaper correspondence for a year. He returned to Chicago as the editor of the Times-Herald in 1895 when the paper was purchased by Mr. H. H. Kohlsaat. Last year Maj. Handy was appointed by President McKinley as special commissioner to the Paris exposition, where he rendered valuable service.

EAGER FOR REVENGE.

Seminole Indians Said to Be on the Warpath in Oklahoma.

Muscogee, I. T., Jan. 12, 2 a. m.—The Seminole Indians went on the warpath Tuesday and left a trail of blood and ashes. Two hundred and fifty braves went to Maud, O. T., just over the line, and massacred 25 men, women and children of the homesteaders. After killing every white person they could find they fired the town and it is in ashes. Many of the victims were scalped by the savages, and other bodies were otherwise mutilated according to Indian traditions. The redskins then marched on Earlboro, O. T., swearing vengeance on every white, regardless of age, sex or condition. United States Marshal Bennett's information early this morning is that their march through the country was marked at every point by bloodshed and fire. A troop of cavalry has been ordered to the scene from Fort Reno, and infantry companies are expected to start from Fort Reno and Fort Sill early this morning.

The Indians are seeking to avenge the recent burning of Lincoln McGeisey and Palmer Simpson, two Indians of the Seminole tribe who were accused of murdering and outraging Mrs. Leard, of Maud, and since then two more Indians have been burned.

Another report says that the dispatches stating that the Indians are uprising are false and without foundation. It is rumored that the people along the Oklahoma line are much excited and fear the Indians will cross the line and endeavor to avenge the death of their brothers.

SIX MEN KILLED.

Disastrous Result of an Explosion on an Ohio River Towboat.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 10.—The boiler of the towboat Percy Kelsey exploded Saturday morning and only three of the 16 persons on board escaped uninjured. The explosion occurred near Glenfield, Pa., while the boat was towing nine coal barges down the Ohio river. Four persons were instantly killed, two others are missing and probably dead and seven more were injured, four fatally.

Natural Gas Explodes.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 12. —The town of Daleville, eight miles west of Muncie, was given another severe shaking by an explosion, window panes falling out and buildings seeming ready to topple over. The trouble was caused by a natural gas explosion at B. F. Lefter's tile factory, in which John Rinker was killed and two others dangerously injured.

Tobacco Factory Burns.

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—Fire broke out in the large tobacco warehouse of Christian Pepers at Twelfth and Market streets shortly before six o'clock Saturday night and an hour later the structure was in ruins. The immense building was stored with tobacco. It is estimated that the loss will amount to over $100,000.

Given a Life Term.

Knox, Ind., Jan. 10.—At a late hour Saturday night, William Messenger was convicted in the Starke circuit court of murdering one Charles Nelson, at Sun Pierre, in this county, on August 11, 1897, and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment in the state's prison.

[illegible] Jan. 12.—The eighth annual banquet of the Hamilton club was held at the Auditorium, Loren A. Thurston, ex-minister from Hawaii to the United States, being the principal speaker.

DIED ON THE GALLOWS.

Theodore Durrant Hanged in San Quentin, Cal., for Killing Blanche Lamont.

HIS WONDERFUL NERVE SUSTAINS HIM.

Proclaims His Innocence of the Awful Crime with His Dying Breath—His Father Witnesses the Execution—Brief History of the Tragedy for Which He Suffered.

San Quentin, Cal., Jan. 8.—When William Henry Theodore Durrant died on the gallows Friday morning for the murder of Blanche Lamont he gave such an exhibition of coolness and nerve as has seldom been seen under similar circumstances. Hopeful almost to the very last minute that something or some one would intervene to save him he walked to the scaffold and made his speech protesting his innocence as calmly and with as distinct enunciation as if he had been addressing an assemblage of friends upon some ordinary topic of the day.

THEODORE DURRANT.

His face was pale, his eyes were red, but his voice was firm and he stood as solidly as a rock while he proclaimed his innocence and professed forgiveness to those who, he said, had hounded him to death. There was not a hitch or accident to mar the plans of Warden Hale in carrying out the sentence of the law. The neck was broken by the fall of five feet and 15 minutes later the murderer's body was cut down and placed in the coffin.

Proclaims His Innocence.

The hangman was about to adjust the black cap, when Durrant announced his desire to speak. Permission was given and the doomed murderer spoke briefly, in quiet tones, asserting his innocence and forgiving those who had persecuted him, mentioning especially the press of San Francisco. His last words were: "I am innocent." The words were delivered slowly and distinctly and without emphasis. The eager crowd of spectators grouped closer to the wooden framework that they might not lose a word of what was being said. Not a sound could be heard except the even tones of the man about to die.

Father Witnesses the Hanging.

The father of Durrant gazed steadily at the proceedings until the body shot through the trap, then his head fell forward upon the shoulder of young Smythe, Deuprey's clerk, and he buried his face and the expression of his grief from the sight of men.

Durrant's Atrocious Crime.

William Henry Theodore Durrant, who was hanged at the state prison at San Quentin Friday, gave his life in exchange for the lives of two young women, who were members of the church to which he belonged. While Durrant was convicted of but one murder under the law, he was held responsible by public opinion for the murder of both Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, and it is felt that his death expiates one crime as much as the other.

Blanche Lamont disappeared on April 3, 1895, and was never seen alive afterwards. She left the home of her aunt, Mrs C. G. Noble, on that day to go to school, and for ten days no trace of her could be found. Many members of Emanuel church assisted in the search for the missing girl, and among others was Theodore Durrant, who had often acted as Miss Lamont's escort.

Ten days had passed since Miss Lamont disappeared, and her friends had almost given up hope of ever knowing her fate, when a discovery was made which led to the finding of Miss Lamont's body.

The ladies of Emanuel church were engaged in decorating the edifice preparatory to the celebration of the Easter Sunday services, when the mangled body of Minnie Williams was found, almost naked, in the library. A number of ugly knife wounds and some rags that had been forced down the young woman's throat told of the unequal struggle she had made to protect her honor.

The trial, which began on July 22 and lasted until November 1, was one of the most celebrated in criminal jurisprudence. Nearly 1,200 talesmen were examined before a jury was secured, and six weeks passed before the taking of testimony was begun. The evidence throughout was circumstantial, but when taken together formed a chain so strong as to admit of no reasonable doubt.

CLINTON.

Ex-Postmaster Kyle, of Tecumseh, was calling on friends Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kishpaugh were calling in Manchester Wednesday.

Chas. Sturm was called to Adrian Saturday, by the death of his sister's son.

Casper Jacobs went to Deerfield the last of the week for a visit with relatives.

Saturday, Tate and Skinner shipped sheep and hogs, Skinner going with them.

Albert Aylesworth, who lives west of Tecumseh, was greeting friends here Monday.

Mrs. Freeman Morningstar, of Grand Rapids, came down to attend the Downs—Benham wedding.

James Hogan arrived home from Chicago Tuesday, with over 300 sheep which he purchased to feed.

Miss Eva Shimmin arrived from Toledo Saturday and will remain with Mrs. J. S. Kies several weeks.

Frank Hogan, of Chicago, is expected home tomorrow for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hogan.

Mrs. Franklin Swift and Miss Lizzie Green, of Paines Hollow, N. Y., are visiting their sister, Mrs. G. W. Freese.

Archie Hixson, who for some time has been in Grand Rapids, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Maria Hixson.

Richmond, Gadd & Hogan made a shipment of swine and sheep Wednesday. The former accompanied them.

James Jackson, of Tecumseh, has for the past ten days been visiting his daughters, Mesdames Harlan and Sutfin.

Mrs. Chas. Bartlett completed her visit in Clinton, and returned to her home in Grant, Newaygo county, Monday.

Robert J. McClure, wife and child, of Tecumseh, visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Middlebrook, Wednesday.

Mrs. Chas. W. Parker and little daughter arrived from Hillsdale Saturday, for a visit with her father and other relatives.

James Dold, the boss weaver at the Woolen Mill, gave in his time last Friday, having accepted a like position in a woolen mill some place in Maine.

Ray Vest and wife and John Van Tuyle and wife were called to Brooklyn Wednesday, by the critical illness of their brother-in-law, Philip Howland.

Last Saturday, the Dorr families living in and about Manchester, surprised Mrs. Mary Dorr by walking in upon her. The day was pleasantly passed.

Dr. Fred C. Bradner, of Des Moines, Iowa, visited his grandfather, J. M. Bradner from Saturday until yesterday. He is convalescing from a severe run of typhoid fever.

The University Extension Circle had a pleasant and profitable session at the home of Kit de VanTuyle Monday evening. The circle will meet with Miss Nellie Kishpaugh, Monday, Jan. 24th.

Hance and son attended the funeral yesterday of Davison Boroughs in Franklin. Mr. Boroughs lived but a few weeks of being 98 years old and was well known in old residents here.

W. A. Scott, state agent for the Grand Rapids Home and Hospital Insurance Company, has been in town the past week in the interest of said company, and has appointed E. A. Clark local agent. They insure against both accident and sickness.

During Rev. Hutchin's remarks Sunday, he took occasion to score the people of this community for patronizing traveling theatrical companies so liberally that they would return in a few weeks, when they did not patronize entertainments for worthy objects like the reading room, &c.

The first of the course of four entertainments to be given for the benefit of a public reading room was held at the Congregational church Tuesday evening and was a lecture by Philip E. Holp on the "Almighty Dollar." Mr. H. is a fine orator and handled his subject in a manner that charmed his audience. Nothing in any of the former courses gave better satisfaction.

At the home of Mr and Mrs. James Benham in Bridgewater Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, their only daughter Della and Mr. Frank Downs were married in the presence of about 70 invited guests. After a short visit with relatives at different towns, they will go to Chicago where they will reside. It was a very pretty wedding and the young couple received many substantial tokens of the esteem in which they are held.

FRANKLIN.

Mr. David Tripp and Pearl were guests of Franklin relatives Friday. They left for their home in Charlotte Saturday morning.

Miss Alma Whelan returned last week from her visit in Shiawassee and Saginaw counties. Uncle Clarke Whelan came with her for a few days stay among relatives and friends.

EAST FRANKLIN.

David Tripp, of Charlotte, visited at W. Allen's last Friday.

Tipton tent of Maccabees installed their officers last night.

W. Allen is getting timber ready to build a new barn in the spring.

Clark Whelan, of Vernon, Shiawassee county, is visiting at Len Billington this week.

S. N. Munger attended the annual meeting of the Grange Insurance Co., of Lenawee county, Monday, he being the director for the Tipton Grange. The company is in a flourishing condition, they have $250,000 in policies written up and have been running about 8 months and have not had a loss or an assessment and have money on hand for all necessary expenses.

Truthfulness is the diamond of character.

When wear begins to exceed repair in your body you are going to fall sick. The signs of it are: loss of flesh, paleness, weakness, nervousness, etc. The repair needed is food. You think you eat enough, and yet you feel that you wear out more tissue, energy, nerve-force, than your food makes for you. The difficulty is that you do not digest enough. And this is so serious it is worth sitting down seriously to think about. If you can't digest what you eat, take a few doses of Shaker Digestive Cordial. The effect of it will be to increase your flesh and make you feel stronger. You won't fall sick. Proof that it is in control of your repair apparatus. It's easy enough to test this for yourself. Take a few bottles of Shaker Digestive Cordial. Sold by druggists at 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE FOR 1898

A Great Programme.

THE STORY OF THE REVOLUTION by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, to run throughout the year. (For the first time all the modern art forces and resources will be brought to bear upon the Revolution. Howard Pyle and a corps of artists are making over 100 paintings and drawings expressly for this great work.)

CAPTAIN A. T. MAHAN'S "The American Navy in the Revolution," to be illustrated by Carlton T. Chapman, the marine artist; Henry Penn, and others.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE'S FIRST LONG NOVEL, "Red Rock—A Chronicle of Reconstruction." Mr. Page has devoted four years to the story, and he considers it his best work. (Illustrated by R. West Climedinst.)

RUDYARD KIPLING, RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, GEORGE W. CEBLE, and others, are under engagement to contribute stories during 1898.

ROBERT GRANT'S "SEARCH LIGHT LETTERS"—replies to various letters that came in consequence of his "Reflections of a Married Man" and "The Opinions of a Philosopher."

"THE WORKERS" in a new field—Walter A. Wyckoff, the college man who became a laborer, will tell about his experience with sweat-shop laborers and anarchists in Chicago. (Illustrated from life by W. R. Leigh.)

THE THEATRE, THE MINE, etc., will be treated in "The Conduct of Great Businesses" series (as were "The Wheat Farm," "The Newspaper," etc., in '97) with numerous illustrations.

LIFE AT GIRLS' COLLEGES—like the article on "Undergraduate Life at Harvard, Princeton and Yale," and as richly illustrated.

POLITICAL REMINISCENCES by Senator Hoar, who has been in public life for forty-five years.

C. D. GIBSON will contribute two serial sets of drawings during '98, "A New York Day," and "The Seven Ages of American Woman."

GETTING READY

Every expectant mother has a trying ordeal to face. If she does not get ready for it, there is no telling what may happen. Child-birth is full of uncertainties if Nature is not given proper assistance.

Mother's Friend

is the best help you can use at this time. It is a liniment, and when regularly applied several months before baby comes, it makes the advent easy and nearly painless. It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects.

Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "is a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

J. W. Ball, Editor and Publisher of the Mountain Mirror, Restored to Health From La Grippe by the Use of DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE.

FOR over a year I suffered with complete nervous prostration as the result of La Grippe, writes Mr. Ball of Lake Placid, N. Y. Doctors did all they could but their efforts were without results, and I grew worse. My trouble affected my mind, but kind nature came to my relief by helping me to think, 'If I only had a helping hand to aid nature to build me up, slowly and surely.' The result was I refused all other medicine and my wife procured a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine which I took faithfully and am fully restored to health. I write this hoping it may help others, for Dr. Miles' Remedies surely cure.

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants.

A XMAS GIFT FOR ONE DOLLAR

APPROPRIATE ALIKE FOR ONE OR ALL.

A broad statement this, but one that is borne out by the facts.

Not only can you make such a present on such terms, but in doing so you will be giving something that will remain a source of delight and instruction to its fortunate owner for years to come. We have decided to extend through the holiday season our remarkable Introductory offer on the great in ten large handsome volumes, over 5,000 pages and 3,000 illustrations, which has recently been completed after years of preparation and the expenditure of vast sums of money. Our reason for this is that the sets sold in this manner will be the most effective advertising that we could give the regular subscription edition, which will be sold at $50.00 net.

Briefly, it is a gathering within the covers of one set of books of all that usually goes to make up the "reference corner" in any public or private collection of books.

Chief among the contents of the library stand the necessities in every home, office, or school in the land. But besides these, it includes Biographical Dictionary, Gazetteer of the United States, Dictionary of Technical Terms, and other indispensable requisites of a working reference library.

The Encyclopedia is in itself worth twice the price of the whole library. It is par excellence the book of reference for every man, woman or student to have at his or her elbow at all times for quick, ready reference. It is the latest, best, most concise, yet thorough and accurate encyclopedia extant, and the only one in existence that is brought down to September, 1897. It is edited by John Clark Ridpath, LL.D. It includes comprehensive and reliable articles on The Cuban Rebellion, Klondike Gold Fields, Moving Photography, and other topics of live interest to-day. In all, nearly 100,000 topics are treated, and these are magnificently illustrated with thousands of engravings, colored maps and charts.

The Atlas comprises a handsome series of maps and charts, brought down to date; 100 colored and 200 in monotint, which, for convenience sake, are scattered through the volumes of the Encyclopedia, according to their alphabetical arrangement. Also hundreds of diagrams, sketches, battle plans, portraits, etc.

The Dictionary is the work of the ripest linguists of modern times. It is an unabridged, etymological, pronouncing, literary, scientific and technical Dictionary of the English language, and is an acknowledged authority both in England and America. The regular price of this great king of books is $24.00. It comprises nearly 3,000 closely printed columns of words and definitions.

OUR GREAT INTRODUCTORY OFFER.

For advertising purposes merely, and to introduce this grand work to the public, we have decided to place a few sets in each community at about one-third of the subscription price, and deliver the set complete the balance of the special reduced price being due in small monthly payments.

GOOD FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY.

UPON PAYMENT OF ONLY ONE DOLLAR,

To show our entire confidence in the work and to insure you against any risk whatever, we further agree that if, after keeping the set ten days and thoroughly testing it, you are not perfectly satisfied, you are at liberty to return it to us, and receive your money back.

SEND ONE DOLLAR NOW and the complete set will be forwarded, at once, to any address you may desire. Unless otherwise instructed, shipment will be made by freight, at purchaser's expense. Subsequent payments will be at the rate of $1.50 monthly for fifteen months. Half Morocco and Full Sheep bindings can also be supplied, the monthly payments being $2.00 and $2.50, respectively. To those who desire an extra durable and handsome binding, we strongly advise the selection of the Half Morocco style. We refer to this publication and the Garfield National Bank, New York City. Send 2-cent stamp for postage on 40-page booklet of sample pages, illustrations, etc., and further particulars regarding our wonderful Home Reference Library and its contents.

What Do The Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. GRAIN-O is made out of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee out costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

SEVEN DOCTORS FAILED.

A Case of Systemic Catarrh in Its Worst Form Cured.

Invalids would do well to read the following letter recently written to Dr. Hartman by Mr. Abe Miller, of Stilesville, Ind. Not only read it, but ponder on it. Not only ponder on it but act upon it. He writes: "A word of praise to your medicines. I began taking Pe-ru-na the 20th of February, 1897. I was all worn out. My weight was 134 pounds. I was weak and almost ready to go to bed. I had catarrh, asthma and kidney trouble. I have taken ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and I weigh 161 pounds. I feel as if I could do as much work as any man on earth. I had tried seven doctors; some of them as good as there were in the state. But none of them did me any good. At last I saw Pe-ru-na advertised. Then I began taking it and it has cured me. So I recommended it to my neighbor and it is doing the work for him. He has gained four pounds from the use of three bottles." Send to The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh written by Dr. Hartman. Ask your druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for 1898.

IT PROVES SATISFACTORY

Commissioner Cox Discusses the New Child Labor Law in His Annual Report.

DECLARES IT HAS HAD A GOOD EFFECT.

A Thorough Investigation of Factories in This State Has Been Made—Important Recommendations in Regard to the Work of Inspection.

Lansing, Jan. 10.—Labor Commissioner Cox will issue his annual report in a few days. The commissioner says that the amendment made to the factory inspection law by the legislature of 1897 relative to the employment of child labor has proven very satisfactory, and under this regulation the employment of children in the factories of the state has been reduced to the minimum. It is believed that fully 95 per cent. of the manufacturers of the state are in accord with the laws upon this subject. The compulsory school law has, it is said, proven a grand success and of great assistance in enforcing the law.

During the past year the commissioner has established a branch of factory inspection in connection with the employment of females. The results have been very gratifying. The inspection of 1897 was made practically between the months of June and December. The total number of factories inspected in 1897 was 3,796, as against 2,991 in 1896, 3,137 in 1895, 2,688 in 1894, and 2,066 in 1893. The commissioner suggests that hotels, opera houses and other places where the public congregate should be brought under the supervision of the state inspectors to the extent of requiring fire escapes to be constructed. It is also believed desirable that hotel and business elevators should be inspected. Steam boiler inspection, the commissioner believes, should be provided by the next legislature. A small inspection fee for this purpose might be provided.

While thanking the state legislature for the enactment of needed legislation, Commissioner Cox suggests that one serious error was made in cutting down the number of printed reports of factory inspection, as it will be impossible to supply even one-half the persons who have already made application for the report. In every instance where precautions have been commenced for violation of the factory inspection laws the department has been successful.

TO RECLAIM BEAVER ISLAND.

Mormons Seek to Recover "King" Strang's Old Stronghold.

Detroit, Jan. 11. — Beaver island, 60 miles west of Petoskey, once the home of "King" Strang, the head of the Mormon movement in the north, is again the subject of contention. Strang's colony of Mormons, which controlled Beaver island for many years and over which he ruled with a not entirely bloodless administration, became so dangerous in the early '50s that the state and local authorities dared not attempt to enforce the laws. A raid from the main land in 1856 destroyed the colony and drove off the Mormons. Now a systematic organization has been effected with the intention of gaining sufficient Mormon strength in Michigan to reclaim the island, to which they assert they have never given the state legal possession.

BAD FIRE IN SAGINAW.

Eight Million Feet of Lumber, Valued at $120,000, Destroyed.

Saginaw, Jan. 7.—Eight million feet of lumber burned on the docks of the Saginaw Lumber and Salt company at Crow island, three miles below the city, early Wednesday morning, causing a loss of about $120,000. The dock held about 16,000,000 feet and a large quantity of lumber was piled in the mill yard, which the flames did not reach. The mill and salt dock were saved. One drill house was destroyed. As nearly as can be estimated three-fourths of the loss will be covered by insurance.

Crop Report.

Lansing, Jan. 12.—The Michigan crop report for January says that wheat was injured very little, if any, during the month of December. The condition of live stock is excellent. Compared with January, 1897, there is an increase in the price of all farm products except hay. The average in the price of wheat is two cents per bushel; corn, five cents; oats, four cents; fat cattle, 75 cents; fat hogs, 14 cents, and dressed pork, nine cents per hundred. Sheep have increased in value $1.09 per head.

Furniture Buyers in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 11.—This is the big week in the furniture season opening, and the arrivals Monday were 76 buyers. Up to Monday morning the arrivals had been 70, and with those who came during the day make this a record breaker for attendance. The buyers are from all parts of the country, and they almost invariably bring flattering reports of what the fall trade has been and what the spring trade promises. They are placing orders with more freedom than since 1892.

Death of Ludington's Postmaster.

Ludington, Jan. 10.—Harry A. Scott, postmaster of Ludington, died Sunday of pneumonia, after an illness of one week. Mr. Scott was one of the most prominent men in the community and stood high in masonry. He was 58 years old, and had held numerous civil and governmental offices. He was also a lumberman, and as such was widely known.

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE FOR THE COMING YEAR

Some Notable Features

CHAS. A. DANA'S REMINISCENCES — These reminiscences contain more unpublished war history than any other book except the Government publications. Mr. Dana was intimately associated with Lincoln, Stanton, Grant, Sherman, and the other great men of the Civil War. He had the confidence of the President and his great War Secretary, and he was sent on many private missions to make important investigations in the army. Lincoln called him "The Eyes of the Government at the Front." Everywhere through these memoirs are bits of Secret History and Fresh Recollections of Great Men. These Reminiscences will be illustrated with many Rare and Unpublished War Photographs from the Government collection which now contains over 8,000 negatives of almost priceless value.

RUDYARD KIPLING STORIES & POEMS — The Christmas McCLURE'S contained a complete Short Story by Rudyard Kipling entitled "THE TOMB OF HIS ANCESTORS," the tale of a clouded Tiger, an officer in the Indian army, and a rebellious tribe. We have in hand also a New Ballad, a powerful, grim, moving song of War Ships. It will be superbly illustrated. Mr. Kipling will be a frequent contributor.

ANTHONY HOPE'S NEW ZENDA NOVEL — "Rupert of Hentzau," the sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda." In splendid invention, in characters, in dramatic situations, it is the noblest and most stirring novel that Anthony Hope has ever written.

SHORT STORIES BY GREAT AUTHORS — Rudyard Kipling, Robert Barr, William Allen White, Ian Maclaren, Octave Thanet, Stephen Crane, and many others, the best story writers in the world, will contribute to McCLURE'S during the coming year.

EDISON'S LATEST ACHIEVEMENT — Edison's Wonderful Invention. The result of eight years' constant labor. Mountains ground to dust and the iron ore extracted by magnetism. The Fastest Ship. An article by the inventor and constructor of "Turbinia," a vessel that can make the speed of an express train. Making a Great Telescope by the most competent authority living. Lord Kelvin, a character sketch and substance of a conversation with this eminent scientist on unsolved problems of science.

THE RAILROAD MAN'S LIFE — Drawn from fifteen years' personal experience as brakeman, fireman and engineer, by Herbert H. Hamblin. It is a narrative of work, adventure, hazards, accidents and escapes, and is as vivid and dramatic as a piece of fiction.

THE CUSTER MASSACRE — The account of this terrible fight written down by Hamlin Garland as it came from the lips of Two Moons, an old Indian Chief who was a participant in it.

NEW YORK IN 1950 — Its houses, streets, means of travel, water supply, safeguards of life and health, sports and pleasures—the conditions of life of the perfected city of the next century, by Col. George E. Waring, Jr., Commissioner of the Street-Cleaning Department of New York.

MARK TWAIN — Mark Twain contributes an article in his old manner, describing his voyage from India to South Africa. The illustrations are by A. B. Frost and Peter Newell, and are as droll and humorous as the article itself.

ADVENTURE — Andrée, His Balloon and his Expedition, from materials furnished by the brother of Mr. Stribnerg, Andrée's companion. Sven Hedin in Unexplored Asia, a story of remarkable adventure and endurance. Landor in Thibet. His own story. He was captured, tortured and finally escaped to India. Jackson in the Far North. The famous explorer writes of the years he lived in regions far north of the boundaries of human habitation.

NANSEN — The great Arctic explorer has written an article on the possibilities of reaching the North Pole; on the methods that the next expedition should adopt, and the important scientific knowledge to be gained by an expedition; concerning the climate, the ocean currents, depths and temperature of the water, etc. This knowledge will be of the greatest value to science.

ILLUSTRATIONS — The best artists and illustrators are making pictures for McCLURE'S MAGAZINE. A. B. Frost, Peter Newell, C. D. Gibson, Howard Pyle, Kenyon Cox, C. K. Linson, W. D. Stevens, Alfred Brennan, and others.

Mark Hanna downed all opposition and was elected to the United States senate by one vote in the Ohio legislature Wednesday. Ohio has seen many political battles but this one eclipses them all. Great charges of bribery have been made against both sides and it is to be hoped that the grand jury will investigate and find out if both sides are not to blame. Either these frequent charges of bribery should be stopped, or some one should be punished.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Jan. 12, 1898.

Wheat continues in a very strong position, so far as statistics gathered by Schwartz, Dupee & Co., concerning the European demand and the shortage of the grain in farmers' hands is concerned.

There is less disposition on the part of shorts to put out big lines of wheat now that they find moderate efforts in that direction result in loss every time they are obliged to cover their contracts. On the other hand, those who are confident that May wheat will sell much higher than the present prices are not averse to buying liberally on every decline, and this makes the market, generally speaking, a firm one on the basis of 90 cents for May, which has thus far been practically the bottom.

In corn the situation has not changed materially in the last week. It holds steady, but there is no aggressive selling, while buying orders are always on hand at any material decline.

Provisions enjoyed a veritable boom today, the light receipts of hogs and good cash demand combining to put May ribs to 4.30, their top price thus far.

The price range today was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
Jan wheat	91 1-4	91	91
May wheat	91 1-4	90 3 8	90 3 8--1-2
Jan. corn	29 3-8	29	29 1-8
May corn	30 3 8	30 1-8	30 1-8
May oats	23 7-8	23 5 8	23 5 8--3 4
May pork	9.52	9.40-2	9 50
May lard	4 87	4 82	4 85
May ribs	4 80	4.72-5	4.77-80

The Youth's Companion contains the most carefully selected, instructive and interesting miscellany printed in any American periodical. The New Year's number is rich in this department. The principal feature of the number is Mr. Gladstone's recollections of Arthur Henry Hallam—a paper of extraordinary interest and charm. The article is illustrated with fine portraits of Mr. Gladstone and the subject of his sketch. A number of excellent short stories, editorial articles touching on various current topics, and notes on science and affairs fill out this most attractive number of the great family weekly.

Truthfulness is the diamond of character.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Tecumseh is claiming to have landed the allied shops of the D. & L. N. and D. T. & M. roads, a statement from there being to the effect that they have a proposition from Chas. M. Hascall, of New York, that if $14,000 is donated and ten acres of land provided the shops will be located there. It is also alleged that an additional $6,000 will bring the main shops, and they will have till tomorrow to raise the money. A committee is out and it is claimed they have already raised $6,000. The whole story looks a little fishy, and D. & L. N. officials at this end of the route know nothing about it. Hon. W. O. Hunt, who is one of the pushers, places little credit in Tecumseh's claims.

To those who knew about this matter all the time, the above is very, very funny. This same Hon. W. O. Hunt was in Tecumseh the day before this article was printed and knew to a certainty that the proposition had been made to Tecumseh.

Arrangements are being made for an extra mail daily each way on the Wabash between Detroit and Montpelier, and it is said E. F. Steeres, who was taken from the Dundee run will have charge of the car. This will be a great convenience to those wanting to get mail down to intermediate stations west after 7:30 in the morning, and the same time east. This new arrangement gives a mail east and west between 3 and 4:30 in the afternoon, something we have not had at all yet. It will go into effect in a short time.—Adrian Telegram.

It is alleged that any day an injunction is not issued against the Lima Northern, by property owners and others, impeding the entrance of the line into Detroit, the Lima Northern officials just get awfully lonesome. They have had to fight injunctions all the way through Wayne county.—Adrian Telegram.

Chicago, Jan 13. The big verdict given Engineer Fred R. Ketcham against the Chicago & Northwestern railroad for alleged blacklisting was to-day set aside by Judge Richard W. Clifford. A new trial is granted. By the verdict, Ketcham had been awarded $21,000 damages. The case was an outgrowth of the Debs strike.—Blade.

Word from Monroe to the effect that the F. & P. M. has abolished its local agent at that point is officially denied. It appears that some negotiations relative to the matter have been pending with the Lake Shore, but no agreement has been reached by which those companies will have a joint agency or use the same depot at Monroe.

The depot in Dundee, each morning, is one of the busiest of railroad points. There are four passenger trains of the several roads besides several freight trains there, all within 15 or 20 minutes of time. The station building is filled with passengers going the various directions.—Dundee Reporter.

Dan Sullivan, a D. T. & M. brakeman, got his right hand crushed between the bumpers Saturday evening while coupling cars. The accident is not as serious as might be expected, but will give a forced vacation for a week or so.

New York, Jan. 13.—The committee on stock lists of the New York Exchange has listed $2,692,000 additional 3 1-2 per cent one hundred year gold bonds, of 1997, of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway company, making the total amount listed $25,125,000.—N. Y. World.

The Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti motor line has been consolidated with the Detroit, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor Electric road. The work will be pushed forward next spring so that this city and Detroit will be connected.—Ann Arbor Register.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen are moving to Marshall. The appointment of Mr. Allen as Master of Transportation for the D. & L. N. with headquarters at that place makes the change necessary. We regret very much to lose them.

The Northern Pacific Railway has issued a "Key to Klondike" containing a map of Alaska and its gold fields and the best way to get to them, also a copy of the U. S. mining laws. It is very complete and based on actual survey.

The D & L N. yards have been so smoothed up and packed with cinders that you can scarcely reccognize it as the unkempt corner of a few months ago.

Wm. Cotterman went to McComb, O., Wednesday to move his household goods here. He will occupy the house vacated by Frank Allen.

A. R. Arner has recovered from his injuries, and returned to work on the D. T. & M.

The D T. & M. have a new six-driver freight engine, No. 18, on duty.

A L. Richmond returned from New York Thursday.

Jacob Haad, the young man who stole a bicycle from in front of the Pennsylvania house, last summer, was captured in Ohio and taken to the county jail, last Thursday night, by Deputy Sheriff Holt, and he will remain there until his case comes up for trial.—Blissfield Advance. Verily the mills grind slowly. The young man must have received the price of the wheel in rides.

How's this? The Saline Observer man says: "While 2,500 people at London, Canada, were assembled in a large building the other night listening to the reports from the Ohio election, the floor gave way and plunged them into the lower rooms killing and mangling a large number." Of course we knew that all the world was standing in open-mouthed astonishment, wondering what it would be possible for Hanna to do next, but that Canada should assemble amid great enthusiasm and jollificate over the situation in Ohio had escaped us, but then Canadian municipal elections must take a back seat in the face of modern journalism.

Rev. James McLeod.

Some of our readers will remember Rev. Jas. McLeod who died at Bakersfield, Cal., December 21, 1897. The following is taken from a sketch of his life in the Daily Californian:

"Mr. McLeod was born in Scotland in 1816 and was the youngest of a family of eleven children. He learned the tailor's trade and supported himself thereby while taking his course in the University of Edinburgh. In 1847 he came to America and was licensed as a minister by the Baptist Tabernacle of New York. He married Miss Emeline Whittemore, of New York, in 1850 and in 1851 they started for the then far west—Michigan, living for four years in this place, after which he moved to Laingsburg, Mich., where he resided for the following 36 years. In 1886 he became blind and was so for five years when an operation restored his sight. In 1891, most of his family being in California, he moved to that state where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a close student up to the day of his death, having taken up the study of Hebrew at the age of 78. Thus passed away one of Nature's noblemen, leaving to his family and friends the legacy of a long and well spent life."

Morris Hyde.

One by one the old settlers of Lenawee county are passing away. Another of the links that bind us to pioneer days was broken on Wednesday Dec. 29, when death came to Morris Hyde, in the ninetieth year of his age. Morris Hyde was born in Rose, Wayne county, N. Y., Dec. 16, 1808, and his early years were spent in that vicinity. In 1832 he was married to Miss Abigail Colburn, and to them was born a daughter, Caroline, now deceased. In 1833 occurred the death of his wife, and on June 15, 1834, he was married to Mrs. Harriet Lawrence Whittier, at Sodus, N. Y. Of this union six children were born. In 1835 he with his family, came to Michigan, making the trip by boat and wagon. He bought a farm in Franklin, Lenawee county, and lived there for ten years. In 1846 he removed to the village of Tecumseh and for the last fifty years has lived on the corner of Union and Pottawatamie streets in the home in which he died. For many years Mr. Hyde was prominent in the business life of the village. He was one of the proprietors of the old Tecumseh foundry, and after retiring from that business, held for eighteen years the office of village street commissioner. He also pursued for some time, his trade of carpenter and joiner, and many buildings in Tecumseh stand as monuments of his industry. He was of an exceptionally robust constitution, and retained his strength and activity of body until his eighty ninth year. His mind remained clear and active until a few days before his death. In February '97, he suffered a stroke of paralysis and since that time has been partially helpless. A second stroke followed in October, and from that time he failed rapidly. Four children survive him: Mrs. Clarisa Kendrick, Mr. Albert Hyde, Mrs. J. A Munger and Mrs J. M. Ingersoll, all of this place. His wife preceded him, having died Nov. 6, 1896. His funeral services were held at his late residence on Friday morning, Dec. 31, conducted by Rev. B. S. Hudson, of the Baptist church.

An exchange speaks of a man who, it is said, always pays for his local paper in advance. As a result, he has never been sick a day in his life, never had any corns on his toes, or the tooth ache; his potatoes never rot; his oats never rust; the weasel never kills his chickens; the frost never kills his beans; his babies never cry at night; and his wife never scolds. When he dies he will get a free editorial pass to the New Jerusalem.—Gazette

How to be "popular and successful:" Speak disparagingly of the town in which you earn your daily bread, and say it is one of the worst places you ever lived in; allude in sneering and insulting terms to people and events which do not conform entirely to the creed you have established, and see nothing good in life except that which is done within your own sphere, and in accordance with your ideas. This makes everybody love you and think you are a great man.—Exchange.

Superintendent Curtis has his hands full trying to break up the pitched battles that are continually taking place between the boys of the Central school building, and those of St. Mary's Catholic parochial school, which school is close by the central building. He has found it necessary to ask the aid of Marshall Henig. The boys get into rows while conducting snowball battles, and sometimes pandemonium reigns. Passers by stop to see the fight, and crowds are often seen at the contests.—Telegram.

A Trip to Delhi, India, by an old Tecumseh Pioneer.

It was on the 21st of February, eighteen hundred and eighty nine, that I reached New York and was obliged to wait there over night as the steamer did not leave until about 2:30 the next day. I wished now to find something by which to amuse myself and so inquired for a library. This having been found I passed the time away most beautifully until evening shades began to hover o'er the city, and then returned to my room at the Central Hotel.

The night passed slowly, but just as the sun cleared the horizon next morning I started for a walk through the city. The forenoon passed quickly and at twelve I was standing on the dock awaiting my departure when I turned about and recognized an old acquaintance standing near. Soon the crowd began to gather and as the boat began to creak I took my seat in the cabin. Suddenly she began to move from land and thoughts of my dear home came up before me.

She was moving very swiftly and smoothly over the blue and the old saying came true, "the swallow began to fly upward." I was somewhat seasick.

On the first day of March we came in sight of land and at 10 o'clock that night we anchored at Calcutta. I was informed there would be a train leave soon for Delhi. I ordered a hack to the depot, and was soon on my way to Delhi reaching my destination about noon on the following day.

Perhaps before going further, it would be well to give a short description of the city.

Delhi is a city of great beauty situated in the north of India on a rocky range of hills, near the Juma, and is surrounded with an embattled wall. This city is thought to outshine the cities of the east. It has a palace called the "Palace of Delhi," which consists of all the splendor and wealth of the Moguls. Delhi is a city of architecture and it is said that every inch of ground has been soaked with human blood.

This was the favorite city of the Emperor Akbar, who was one of the wealthiest rulers of his time. This great Emperor died in Agra in 1605.

In this great city of wealth is a troublesome party, called Thugs, or in our language, murderers, who believe in murdering travellers they are performing a religious service to the Hindu god. No traveller in India is safe; the most mysterious murders are committed.

During my first week's stay in the city, I became acquainted with a brother missionary by the name of Hugh Ainslee and from that time we were intimate friends.

One fine morning we went for a ride through the city to look up missionary work and we became discouraged. I finally urged my friend to go with me to Lucknow and we departed at once. We arrived at the Ganges river just in time to find that a boat would leave in twenty minutes. The time soon passed, and we were enjoying a most delightful ride on that beautiful river.

As we came in sight of Hurdwar, a city on the Ganges, we observed a great throng of people in the river's edge. The boat pulled close and anchored. It was a river festival. We regard an assemblage of a hundred thousand people as immense, but what are we to think of a gathering that numbers hundreds of thousands and even millions?

At last the boat glided down the river and soon we landed at Lucknow, which is a very ancient city. It has a large population of very poor people. This city is also troubled with Thugs.

One night as we were returning to our room, we were stopped by a company of men, and ordered to follow them. We struggled for freedom but all in vain. We were taken to a building and locked in the cellar. I suppose they expected to make sport with us, on the day following by taking our lives, but we expected this and during the night we forced our way through the door.

My companion thought it was not safe in such a city and therefore we took the first train for Calcutta. We waited there three days for a boat and reached home on the 30th of June with quite a knowledge of India.

The number on the Star Course given Tuesday evening by the Hoffgett Concert Co. and it is said today was decidedly superior to previous entertainments. Mr. Hoffgett and Miss Leggett were well known soloists and were splendid in music in the trio but the hearts of the audience with one accord went out to Miss Eastman and Miss Deering, who graciously responded to repeated encores. Miss Deering has remarkable talent as a pianist, and the sweetness of Miss Eastman's voice long be remembered by those who heard it.

It will be a grand affair and the ladies, who are at the helm, prove conclusively that it will be a success. Look out for it at the Armory, Thursday evening, Jan. 27.

TECUMSEH

SECURES THE RAILROAD SHOPS.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Pledged in Four Days.

On Saturday, the first day of January, the committee, consisting of A. W. Mills, N. S. Satterthwaite, C. E. Williamson and Geo. N. Stacy, secured a proposition from Messrs. C. N. Haskell and C. H. Keyer whereby, if the bonus should be raised, Tecumseh could secure the D. & L. N. railroad shops.

Monday and Tuesday were consumed in perfecting preliminary arrangements, Wednesday a meeting of citizens was called, Thursday, the soliciting committees commenced their work and at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon the telegram was sent which announced the fact that $15,000 had been pledged to secure the two buildings and that the $6000 for the third building would be secured at once.

Four days to raise $15,000 in old Tecumseh. Hip—Hip—Hurrah! Is there another town in the state of Michigan in which the citizens would all pull together and boost up such a subscription? And this is not all. The other $6000 will be raised.

The D. & L. N. Railway now owns and controls 473 miles of main track besides the boat line from Grand Haven to Milwaukee. This road has caused more trouble to the old lines on account of freight rates than any road which has been built for years. The price of coal for Toledo, Detroit and every town on the line has been reduced. This is the first coal road which has reached the northern country and is in fact destined to be a great factor for both Michigan and Ohio.

The shops for Tecumseh means a new era, and will be of benefit to every person here. The liberality and willingness with which people subscribed were a wonder to even the soliciting committees, and, as a matter of fact, the number of persons in all, Tecumseh who refused to give anything are not equal to the number of fingers on two hands. The HERALD has no thrust to make at the other towns that desired the industry. One of the finest letters ever written came from Moreland Bros. & Crane, of Adrian, and contained, beside congratulations a check for a nice little sum toward the bonus.

All are to be congratulated with the success of the undertaking, the success of which is due to the cheerful co operation of every citizen of Tecumseh.

Mrs. A. B. Tilton was taken seriously ill Sunday and for a time fears were entertained for her recovery, but at present she is improving.

The G. A. R. boys are now nicely settled in their new rooms over S. W. Anderson's store and will formally dedicate them next Monday evening. Every member is urged to be present.

A terrible tornado struck the town of Ft. Smith, Ark., at about eleven o'clock Wednesday night killing forty people seriously injuring a score of others and destroying $1,000,000 worth of property. The people of the doomed city were thrown from their beds without a moments warning, some crushed to death instantly, others who escaped the first fury of the wind perished in a more terrible way in the fire which immediately followed the storm.

The old charter of Tecumseh Grange has been revived and the Grange reorganized, officers elected and installed, the meetings so far being held at the Waring schoolhouse east of town. ALASKA AND THE YUKON.

From Sea to Sea by Crossing Only Thirty Miles of Land.

Alaska is a most difficult country for traveling; even in the only available short season of its arctic summer, there being no roads; and even Indian trails, on account of the small number of natives, are very rare, says Outing. The surface is rough, being traversed by many ranges of mountains. Even in the more level portions travel is hindered in the summer by the wet moss which grows knee deep, and by the insect pests; in the winter it [illegible] impossible by the inte[illegible]s made of all these difficulties cold. In view of all these difficulties, the peculiar relation [illegible] of the Yukon river to the coast is such that one might fancy nature had arranged it especially for a highway through this inaccessible interior, in partial compensation to man for the obstacles she has put in his way.

The headquarters of the network of streams that ultimately drain into the Yukon river fortunately lie within 30 miles of the sea, just on the northern or inland side of a range of mountains which runs along the southern coast of Alaska. From this point the river flows north away from the sea, far towards the Arctic ocean; then, suddenly changing its mind, turns west; and finally, after traversing the whole width of Alaska, arrives at the Behring sea, its entire course being considerably over 2,000 miles. For a considerable distance it is a broad and deep stream, so that one may go [illegible] through the center of Alaska, [illegible] to sea, by crossing only 30 miles or so of land.

REMARKABLE CORN FIELD.

Former Bed of Lake Produces 200 Bushels to the Acre.

Prof. Thomas L. Cox, who recently returned from Morrilton, says crops are unusually good in that vicinity, and prosperity is knocking at the door of every citizen. He says there is one cornfield near Morrilton that will produce 200 bushels to the acre. This, says the Little Rock (Ark.) Democrat, is a remarkable statement, and yet he declares that it is true. Until a year or so ago there was a lake near Morrilton covering about 10,000 acres. When the big floods came two years ago, an opening was made by the surging waters which carried off all the water of this lake when the floods subsided. The bed of the lake dried up and left the richest soil the world ever saw. It is ten feet deep, and nothing the River Nile ever produced could excel it. This year Mills and Halley have a crop of corn on about 1,000 acres of this land. They sowed the corn broadcast like wheat, and the stalks are as strong as saplings, and scores of "shoats" are also loaded down. "It is the most remarkable corn crop ever produced in the world," declared Prof. Cox, and, to make the story even more interesting, he ended it by declaring that a "coon" was caught between the stalks, and, being unable to extricate itself because they were so thick, was killed by those who came upon it.

"WHAT ARE WE HERE FOR?"

Question as to Sunday Fishing Settled by the Ministers.

Some two or three years ago a party of anglers, including a minister as one of their number, were fishing in the North Woods, and when Sunday came the question arose whether the party other than the minister should not refrain from fishing, out of respect to his feelings, says Forest and Stream.

One of the party, however, made bold to ask him whether he thought that it was wicked to fish on Sunday, and he declined to express any opinion, on the ground that he was there as an angler and not by virtue of his calling, and that every person must act according to the dictates of his own conscience. He referred, however, to the following incident which had occurred not long before within his personal knowledge.

A man and woman called at the house of a minister for the purpose of being married. After going through the preliminary part of the service, the minister asked the usual question: "Do you, John, take this woman to be your lawful, wedded wife?" This was met by the rejoinder: "What in thunder do you suppose I came here for?"

The party other than the minister went fishing, while he remained at home with ample opportunity for rest and meditation

CAUSED BY VEGETABLE GERMS.

A French Physician Says Rural People Suffer Most from Cancer.

A medical student, before he can begin active service in France, must write a treatise on some medical subject which will be approved by the government experts, says the Kansas City Journal, Dr. Noel, who recently obtained his diploma, wrote a treatise on cancer, which has attracted the attention of scientists. According to his opinion cancer is due to vegetable germs, which infect the human system, either through manual contact or through absorption or inhalation of the poison with water or food. According to statistics cancer prevails more in districts surrounded by forests and along the banks of rivers than in places where vegetation is scarce. Dr. Noel began a careful investigation around his home at Lyons. Birch, elm and willow trees predominated. He tested the sap from thousands of these trees and in a score of specimens found cancerous germs. A dog, inoculated with these, in a few days showed every symptom of cancer. Dr. Noel states that the percentage of deaths from cancer is much greater among persons whose business it is to handle wood and vegetation than those employed in trades where wood is not used.

An Eel That Whistles.

A remarkable eel has been discovered in the Fiji islands. It has a peculiar formation in its throat which causes it to whistle when in an excited state. The eel is 15 feet long and several inches in girth.

LIVES CRUSHED OUT.

Three Men Killed and Many Injured by Collapse of New Building.

Owosso, Jan. 8.—In the collapse of a mammoth icehouse in process of construction for the Toledo Ice company at Whitemore Lake Thursday afternoon 70 workmen were buried in the ruins. Three are dead and about a score are injured, five probably fatally. The dead are: Oscar O'Connor, Whitemore; Albert Murray, Whitemore; John McBride, Owosso. The two first named, young men and unmarried, were dead when taken from the ruins, and it is reported that McBride died today. He was foreman of the work and a prominent contractor. He leaves a wife and family here. The more seriously injured are:

George Martin, Whitemore Lake, internally injured, may die; Joseph Commette, Owosso, internal injuries and head crushed; Henry Stilson, Whitemore Lake, internal injuries and arm crushed; William Foltz, legs terribly crushed and injured about the head; John Baumgardner, Whitemore Lake, badly crushed.

All these are in a critical condition. The icehouse was 132 feet long and 321 feet wide. Five cross-partitions 50 feet high had been erected, and the workmen were engaged in putting on the roof when the crash occurred. One of the side walls fell outward and the cross-walls, each striking the one ahead of it, fell like a row of blocks, carrying the workmen, many of whom were 50 feet from the ground, with them.

JOURNALIST PASSES AWAY.

Death of Judge Boynton, Political Editor of the Detroit Free Press.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—Judge Albert G. Boynton, for 25 years political editor of the Detroit Free Press, died Sunday evening at the Alma (Mich.) sanitarium. He had suffered from kidney troubles for two years past, which finally caused other complications. Last September he relinquished his work and was taken to Alma three weeks ago, but was unable to rally.

[Judge Boynton was born March 31, 1837, at Bangor, Me. His father was of English ancestry, and his mother was a lineal descendant of John Alden and other pilgrims. In 1854 he abandoned study at Bowdoin college, on account of ill health, and went to Montreal, where he later began law practice, and also contributed to the Canadian press. He came to Detroit in '57, practiced law, and became acting city attorney and later police judge. In 1872 he resigned office, and purchased an interest in the Free Press, and had ever since been the principal editorial writer of the paper. He was vice president of the Free Press company, and usually represented, together with ex-Minister William E. Quinby, in the meetings of the Associated Press. Deceased was always a democrat, and an uncompromising gold democrat since the money issue was raised. He was a skillful and clear, but eminently fair and dignified, writer on all questions of public concern. He leaves a widow, three daughters and a son.]

Secures a Branch Road.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 11.—The Chicago & West Michigan railway executed a lease Monday for the new Grand Rapids, Kalkaska & Southeastern railroad for a period of ten years. The road runs from Van Buren, Kalkaska county, to Stratford, 33 miles east, and penetrates a rich timber district, including the Thayer Lumber company's 3,000,000 tract of pine. The Thayer company will cut 30,000 feet of logs annually for shipment over the line.

Enos Putnam Dead.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 12.—Enos Putnam, president of the board of public works, died Tuesday of heart failure, aged 65. He was a resident of Grand Rapids since 1858. He was one of the main stockholders in the Ball, Barnhart & Putnam grocery company and president of the Grand Rapids national bank, being elected to succeed Edward F. Uhl when the latter went to Germany as ambassador.

Resigns Her Pulpit.

Kalamazoo, Jan. 11.—Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, minister of the people's church, at the annual meeting Monday night, at the end of her tenth year, announced she would retire as a minister of the church and spend a year at least in study. She will probably attend the University of Chicago to better herself for the ministry, which she intends as her life work.

ANN ARBOR'S MAY FESTIVAL.

University Musical Society Furnishes an Elaborate Programme.

Ann Arbor, Jan. 10.—The University Musical society definitely announces the programme for the coming May festival. There is even a larger number of artists than in former years, all of them in the front rank. First and foremost is Gadski, at present the greatest soprano singer of Wagner roles. There will be two new sopranos, Mrs. Jennie Walker, who sang several years in "The Redemption," and another whose name is not yet announced. Miss Spencer, who scored such a success last year, will sing again, and also Miss Stein, one of the favorites in past years. Campanari heads the list of barytones. David Bispham, the English barytone, will be here, and Mr. Howland, another basso, not so well known. Probably there will be no dramatic tenor, but for a lyric everyone will be satisfied, surely, with William Rieger. There will also be another tenor, not yet announced; a pianist, whose name is not given, and a cello soloist.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Governor and His Advisers Consider the Question in Conference.

Detroit, Jan. 12.—Gov. Pingree and nearly all the chiefs of the state departments held an all-night conference at the governor's residence in this city Monday night to discuss the advisability of convening the legislature of Michigan February 1 in special session to pass, if the governor's friends are sufficiently strong, a law establishing a straight two-cent rate of fare on all railroads in this state, and to revise the system of taxation to make a uniform tax for all quasi-public corporations. This will mean the taxation of all railroad property, proportionate to the taxation on other real and personal property. Gov. Pingree refuses to discuss the situation, but his advisers announce unofficially that the legislature will be reconvened.

Death of William L. Wetmore.

Marquette, Jan. 11.—William L. Wetmore, a pioneer of this section, died Monday, aged 77 years. He came here in 1856 and became a large iron and lumber dealer. At one time he was worth $250,000, but in the panic of 1871 he lost his entire fortune. He was once owner of the New York mine with Samuel J. Tilden, and his business relations ended in the famous suit against Tilden.

SCIENCE OF PRUNING.

Description of a Perfectly Safe and Effective Method.

The enlargement at the base of limbs on trees is nature's work; it serves as a brace to the branches while growing and has a great amount of healing property stored up in it to cover the wounds where limbs are broken or cut off. My rule for pruning trees is to cut off the branches nearly straight across, just beyond this enlargement. By so doing the wounds will not be half as large as when cut close to the trees and they will heal much quicker. Trees trimmed in this way do not look as neat as when the branches are cut off close, but I consider it safer and better. I have known of young apple trees being killed by pruning close to the main stem, where three or four limbs grew out close together. The trees were nearly girdled and the hot sun dried up what little live bark was left between the cuts. I have had excellent success trimming in March. It is not advisable to prune during the spring flow of sap. I consider June the best month. I cut off limbs one inch in diameter last spring, which healed entirely over during summer. A practical way for anyone to decide this matter is to take two trees of the same size, trim one as I have directed, and the other by cutting the branches close to the trunk of the tree and watch results. During the past 40 years I have planted and cared for thousands of fruit, forest and evergreen trees successfully. I have 17 acres of forest trees of my own planting, growing on my farm, and have started timber belts on two other farms since I came to Dakota. From my experience and observation among apple and crab trees I am satisfied we can raise the hardy kinds; several of mine are in bearing; also currants, raspberries and gooseberries in abundance.—S. J. Bromley, in Farm and Home.

ONE METHOD OF PRUNING.

(Upper part, small branch properly pruned. Lower wound, one inch in diameter, healed in one season.)

MICE-GNAWED TREES.

If Treated in Time They Can Be Saved as a General Thing.

When the bark of young trees gets gnawed off either by mice or rabbits if taken in time, before the bark gets too dry, they may be saved. When the bark is not cut off completely around the tree one of the best ways of saving it is to take rather dry cow manure, mix with it an equal quantity of loamy soil, wet up to the consistency of thick paste and spread it entirely over the wound, covering and tying on with a cloth and leaving it on until it rots off.

If the wound extends clear around the tree so that sap circulation is entirely cut off, three or four scions can be inserted, taking care to see that the inner bark of the scion and tree fit closely together. Use grafting wax to hold in place and then wrap with a cloth band. A little care in this way will often save a tree that would otherwise be lost. It will be found a good plan to go through the orchard occasionally, even though protection has been given, and if any trees have been injured care for them at once.

Winter is a good time to graft one-year-old stocks. The work can be done indoors if the scions have been cut in good season and properly stored. In grafting care must be taken to keep varieties separate, tying each up in separate bundles and marking them.

In grafting one-year-old stock the top should be off below the lowest bud. Make a smooth slanting cut and then cut the scion to fit it. Have grafting wax spread upon muslin or some kind of thin cloth, cut in narrow strips. Wrap it two or three times round and tie with woolen twine. This is to hold it in place until a start to grow is made.

This is the simplest form of grafting. Another way is to cut the scion wedge-shaped; split the stock, taking a little of the center wood out and insert the scion, tying as in whip grafting.

The idea is to bring the inner bark of the scion and stock together, as this is where the growth together commences. —St. Louis Republic.

HORTICULTURAL HINTS.

Asparagus is usually profitable to grow.

Water cress always sells well in eastern markets.

Keep a sharp eye on the tree peddler. He is often foxy.

Mushroom growing will bring handsome returns.

Red or yellow onions stand shipment better than white.

Celery to be readily salable must be well blanched and crisp.

Cabbage pays better in sauerkraut than in any other shape.

Beets are a vegetable that ordinarily sell well in the market.

Under favorable conditions the Soy bean can be made to yield from 10 to 12 tons of fresh fodder per acre. If grown for the seed from 25 to 40 bushels per acre is the average yield though the yield has reached 100 bushels.—

GROWING CELERY.

A Method That Has Been Practiced with Great Success.

The following is my plan for growing celery: Instead of sowing the seed in a hot bed or cold frame, as practiced in Europe, it is sown in the open ground, as soon as it is fit to work, in April, and kept carefully clear of weeds until the time of planting, in June and July, in our warmer climate. If raised in hot beds, as in England, a majority of the plants would run to seed. The tops are shorn off once or twice before planting, so as to insure "stocky" plants, which suffer less on being transplanted. After the ground has been nicely prepared, lines are struck out on the level surface three feet apart, and the plants set six inches apart in rows. If the weather is dry at the time of planting great care should be taken that the roots are properly "firmed." Our custom is to turn back on the row and press by the side of each plant gently with the foot. This compacts the soil and partially excludes the air from the roots until new rootlets are formed, which will usually be in 48 hours, after which all danger is over. This practice of pressing the soil closely around the roots is essential in planting of all kinds, and millions of plants are annually destroyed by its omission. After the planting of the celery is completed nothing further is to be done for six or seven weeks, except running between the rows with the cultivator or hoe, and freeing the plants of weeds until they get strong enough to crowd them down. This will bring us to about the middle of August, by which time we have usually that moist and cold atmosphere essential to the growth of celery. Then we begin the "earthing up" necessary for the blanching and whitening of that which is wanted for use during the months of September, October and November. The first operation is that of handling, as we term it; that is, after all the soil has been drawn up against the plant with the hoe it is further drawn close around each plant by the hand firm enough to keep the leaves in an upright position and prevent them from spreading. This being done more soil is drawn against the row (either by the plow or hoe, as circumstances require), so as to keep the plant in this upright position. The blanching process must, however, be finished by the spade, which is done by digging the soil from between the rows and banking it up clear to the top on each side of the row of celery. Three feet is ample distance between the dwarf varieties, but when larger sorts are used the width of the rows should be four or five feet.—J. E. Dillon, in Agricultural Epitomist.

FOR THE FRUIT FARM.

How to Build a Practical Fruit and Vegetable House.

A fruit and vegetable house is a necessity where any considerable quantity of these products is to be housed. The requirements are accessibility and the possibility of maintaining a low—but not freezing—temperature during the months of winter. A cross section of a house meeting these requirements is shown herewith. A sandy or gravelly knoll, if conveniently located, is selected and a few feet of excavation is made, the depth depending on the character of the winter in the given locality. Two feet will be enough in some places

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE HOUSE.

—a greater depth will be required in others. The earth thrown out is to be retained to bank the walls, as shown, thus making the depth below ground greater. A stone wall retains the earth. Above this is a low structure of wood, double boarded, with building paper beneath both boardings. One set of boards is nailed to the outside of studding and rafters and the other to the inside of the same, as shown.

The ends of the building are banked up like the sides, and a door is placed in one end above the earth in the position of the dotted lines. Double doors, with glass in the upper part of each, should be used. A curtain can be placed over the glass of the inner door to keep the interior dark, if desired, to be drawn when one enters the building for any purpose. Such a building can be cheaply constructed and should prove very serviceable. A small ventilator can be carried up from near the bottom and out through the roof, if needed.—N. Y.

Hotbeds and Cold Frames.

Hotbeds are used in winter, but cold frames are preferred in summer. To prepare a hotbed make a frame 18 inches high at the rear and ten inches at the front, three feet wide and of any preferred length. Fill it half full of clean horse manure and then with six inches of rich dirt, using glass sash for covering. Cold frames may be made in the same manner, but no glass is required. Leaf mold for hotbeds may be prepared by composting leaves with manure, but what is usually meant by leaf mold it top soil from the woods.

Culture of Licorice.

Surely, in some part of our great country, licorice would be found to thrive. And yet all attempts made to cultivate it have failed! The difficulty seems to be with the summer sun. Leaves blight and turn brown as soon as the weather becomes warm; but this would probably not be the case in submountainous regions. When it is remembered that nearly 20,000 tons of these roots come into the United States every year from the old world its culture here is surely a prize worth contending for.—Meehan's Monthly.

A GIFT FOR MOTHER.

How to Make a Fire Screen That Will Prove Very Acceptable.

There are so many useful and acceptable presents that a boy can make for his parents, sisters or brothers, that is really quite unnecessary for him to lay out much money in gifts.

A very serviceable article for such purposes is the fire screen shown in the illustration, intended for an open fireplace, where it is often desirable to ward off the direct heat.

For ordinary uses this screen should be made 42 inches high and 40 inches wide; from the lower style of the frame to the floor the distance is 18 inches.

To begin with, obtain four pieces of wood, each 42 inches long, four inches wide, and three-quarters of an inch in thickness, planed on all sides; also two pieces 14 inches long and of the same width and thickness as the long strips. These are for the feet, while the other pieces are to form the frame. In two of the long strips cut laps as shown in Fig. 1, A. At the ends of the other two, which are cut to a length of 40 inches, make lap cuts as shown at B. Secure these joints with glue and screws, so that a firm union will be the result, and at the bottom of each leg cut a tennon, as shown at C. In the center of the foot pieces cut mortise, as shown at D. The tennons can be cut with a chisel and saw, while the mortise should be made with a large bit and afterwards trimmed square with a sharp chisel.

Cut the parts accurately, so that they will fit snugly and make a good joint with glue. Then a long steel-wire nail can be driven through the edge of the foot-piece into the tennon, and into the other edge of the bottom piece. This nail—or a long slim screw, if you prefer—will give much additional strength to the union.

Have a blacksmith make four scroll brace-irons, curved at the ends and bent after the shape shown in E, which is a side view of a single brace. Where the dotted lines are drawn, quarter-inch holes should be bored to receive the screws that will fasten it to the woodwork. These braces should be made of tire iron one inch and a half in width and one-eighth of an inch in thickness.

If the wood selected is oak, ash, pine, white wood, or birch, and it is thought desirable to stain it before varnishing, a suitable stain can readily be obtained at a paint or hardware store and applied thinly with a brush; when dry, a coat or two of furniture varnish or hard oil finish can be laid over it.

The facing and backing may be of almost any pretty and durable material; but it must be of good body and not too thin. Figured denim, cretonne or tapestry cloth are excellent for this part of the screen, and they may be found in any large dry goods store.

FINISHED SCREEN.

Stretch the material on the framework, and tack it all around with fine tacks driven an inch apart; after trimming off the ragged edges, put a stiff gimp around the edge, and fasten it in place with large oval headed upholsterers' tacks, driven at regular intervals.

The appearance of the tack heads and the iron strap braces may be greatly improved by painting them dead black. Use two coats of ivory black, thinned with equal parts of japan dryer and spirits of turpentine.

The final result will be a very handsome little screen, sure to give pleasure to the recipient; and its usefulness cannot fail to be appreciated when it is placed before a hot fire on winter evenings. J. HARRY ADAMS.

Feeding War Elephants.

Elephants in the Indian army are fed twice a day. When meal time arrives they are drawn up in line before a row of piles of food. Each animal's breakfast includes ten pounds of raw rice, done up in five two-pound packages. The rice is wrapped in leaves and then tied with grass. At the command: "Attention!" each elephant raises its trunk and a package is thrown into its capacious mouth. By this method of feeding not a single grain of rice is wasted.

PARROT CAPITALIST.

This Bird Has Four Thousand Dollars in a Boston Bank.

A poll parrot with a bank account of $4,000 lives in luxury at the Hotel Gladstone, Roxbury, Boston. The $4,000 is a legacy left him by Mrs. Mary D. Bradford, his late mistress. The income is to give him all the health, comfort and delicacies a pretty poll might wish.

He is a very interesting bird, with all the education and refinement that a long life in Boston can give. He came from Brazil some 25 years ago, an ignorant, though beautiful, fellow, and since then he has never been outside of the Hub. His first home was with Mrs.

THIS PARROT HAS A BANK ACCOUNT.

McDonald, a sister of the [illegible]ra Bradford with whom he finally [illegible]ose heir he now is.

In the Bradford fami[illegible]me a very great pet. He wa[illegible]ally the favorite of Mr. Bradford, upon whose shoulder he would sit for hours in deep thought. His conversation was never of the flippant, chattering sort. He would always speak when spoken to or when occasion seemed to make it necessary, but he never talked, as most parrots do, simply to hear his own voice. He seemed very fond of Mr. Bradford, and for weeks after that gentleman's death he mourned.

But after awhile he came to look upon his sorrow philosophically and began to show as much attention to Mrs. Bradford as he had to her husband.

That Mrs. Bradford was extremely fond of Polly is shown by the provision she made for him in her will. The $4,000 is to be invested in mortgages by Mr. George H. Pierce, who is made trustee by the will. He is to support the parrot through the rest of his life. He is groomed, fed and bathed with all the care of the most prized pet in the world. He has all the palatable viands in the market, such as polls eat. For instance, he has a select assortment of crackers, well pickled nuts, seedless rasins and cake.—N. Y. World.

BAMBOO BRACKETS.

Boys Can Produce Quite a Variety at a Small Expense.

The bamboo brackets herewith illustrated form a novel, yet attractive, decoration for a room, and can be produced at very little cost. The canes used are the ordinary yellow garden canes, three feet nine inches in length, or thick rattan canes.

Suitable dimensions for No. 1 are: extreme height, 12 inches; extreme width, ten inches. The canes should be neatly halved to form the corners, and the three cross pieces prepared for fitting in with a half-inch bamboo rasp (which is the only special tool required). The shelf should be about three inches wide and ten inches long.

No. 2: From the triangle, lengths suggested, 14 inches. Two pieces should then be bent. The bending can be done by putting a piece of cane in the flame of an ordinary gas flame. The cane should be moved backward and forward in the flame, pressure being slowly brought to bear upon it until the cane is bent to the required angle. It should then be rubbed with a wet cloth until cool, when it will retain the bent shape. Cane can also be bent without heat by first soaking it in water for some hours, and then gradually bending it to the required shape.

Nos. 3, 5, 6 and 8 required no description. Nos. 4 and 10 are corner brackets. In making Nos. 7, 9, 11 great care should be taken not to hurry the bending. Bend partly, then cool with a wet cloth, bend again and cool until the proper shape is obtained. By bending too quickly in a flame the cane is likely to be burnt.

For the yellow canes, I suggest that a full-sized drawing be made of the bent shapes, and the cane in process of bending be put on to the pattern. This is much easier than bending by guesswork. The brackets look very pretty enameled or bronzed, and another pretty idea is to drape them with pongee silk, ribbon or colored seaweed.—

A GREAT EXPENSE

To Carry on an Almost Helpless Fight. —At Last the Fight is Over.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Our representative called at 26 Battle Creek Avenue, the residence of S. I. Robbins, and in an interview with him brought out the following facts: Mr. Robbins tells of his wife's experience in a manner that carries conviction with his words. He says: "I am sorry my wife is not at home this P. M., but no one knows better than I how she has suffered during past years. For twenty years she has been afflicted with the various forms of kidney complaint and an enlargement of the liver. She was often confined to her bed for more than two weeks at a time suffering untold agony. She has doctored constantly, and I have paid out in doctors' bills for her alone as much as $900.00, and then her relief was only such that she would be able to be around for a spell. Some time ago she felt the symptoms of another attack coming on, such as a pain in through the kidneys and back. I hardly know what induced me to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, instead of sending for the family physician; however, I got some and she commenced their use. It was a surprise to us both to see their action; the attack was warded off, and she continued taking them with marked improvement each day of their use. She is better now than she has been in years, the pain in the back and others in the kidneys have entirely gone. Hardly a day goes by that we do not mention the great good Doan's Kidney Pills have done her. I was always opposed to patent medicines, but confess that my wife's experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has done much to change my opinions. If it were not for those pills she would not have been able to be out this afternoon.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. Probate Court for the County of Lenawee.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on the 5th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of WILLIAM [illegible]AYLOR, an incompetent person.

On reading and filing the petition, of Charles C. Tefft, guardian of said William Taylor, alleging that the expenses and debts of said incompetent person and the expenses thus far incurred have been fully paid, and that the estate of said incompetent person is about exhausted, praying that his final guardian's account may be allowed, and that he may be discharged from his trust as guardian, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered that Monday, the seventh day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

HORTICULTURE

SHED FOR MACHINERY.

An Investment Which Pays More Than Ordinary Interest.

Select a site convenient to the lanes leading to the various fields and at a proper distance from the other buildings, to insure safety in case of fire. I find 20x40 feet a convenient size on an average farm. Divide into three spaces, two of 13 feet each and one of 14 feet. Inclose these spaces on three sides and on the fourth fit double doors. Windows can be placed where desired. Common lumber will answer, using good shingles for roofing and pine lumber for doors. Make good joints to prevent the entrance of fowls and sparrows, which are extremely fond of roosting on the implements. The floor should be 12 inches above the surface of the ground. The approaches to the doors can be made of earth or gravel.

Put the binder in the 14-foot space, and with it the remainder of the harvesting implements. In the next space put the tillage implements, and in the last the vehicles.

It is very important to have a place for every article and keep every article in its place. When the implements are placed in the shed apply a coating of kerosene oil to the bright parts of castings and where liable to be injured by rust. Do this twice a year. Also get half a gallon of boiled linseed oil and apply to woodwork, especially where the paint has worn off. Repeat this operation once in five years. Use good machine oil on all bearings.

Run the binder and other harvesting machines into the shed every day as soon as the day's work is over. Allow no implement to remain in the fields for any lengthy period. It is thus ready to be taken out on the shortest notice and in good working order. Before using an implement tighten all loose bolts. Keep all knives, colters, skimmers, etc., sharp and in good repair. The work will be more satisfactory and the draft lighter. A work bench, with a vise and a few tools for repairing, would be a good investment. —Orange Judd Farmer.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

Do not use coal tar on wounds caused by pruning. Use wax or paint.

Never plant too many summer apples. Winter apples are what you want.

It is profitable to buy canned fruit if you have none. It is a health promoter.

Keep the squash in a dry room where the temperature never goes below freezing.

Onions rot so easily that when grown for the market should be sold as soon as possible.

Uncultivated orchards suffer more from drought than do those that are cultivated.

Cider is quite as dangerous a beverage as can be given the young. It is an appetite breeder.

Every farm should have an acre of orchard, 40 apple trees, and 60 divided between pears, peaches, plums and cherries, says a horticulturist.

As soon as the blackberry or raspberry is planted—the plant being cut pretty close to the ground—Judge Miller advises to put a small forkful of manure on the hill.

The apple eater, the man who always has an apple in his pocket to offer you, is usualy a good fellow and much safer than a man who has ten cents to buy a drink for you.—Western Plowman.

Hint for Potato Growers.

As the potato is so largely water it might be supposed that it is not at all exhaustive. But the potato crop is always sold from the land instead of being fed on it. The only thing that the potato takes from the soil is potash, and this is largely found in its leaves and stems. The tubers also contain some potash, and it is this which blackens the knives and hands of those who peel and cut potatoes. A large crop of potatoes, it is estimated, will take 100 pounds of potash an acre from the soil. The best potato growers practice a system of rotation of grain and potatoes, and in this way keep up the fertility without much difficulty.—Dakota Field and Farm.

When there are vacancies in old orchards to be filled with young trees, take a wagon to the spot where the tree has died and shovel out a load of dirt, removing all of the old roots, and then fill the place with good, fresh surface dirt from another field and set out the young trees. This is the quickest and cheapest method of replacing. It takes many years for the roots of a dead apple tree to decay, and the acid to leave the earth sufficient to warrant the growth of the second cutting, and a young tree planted in the same soil where an old one has fallen will not generally amount to anything.—Dakota Field and Farm.

PRUNING THE PEACH.

Why Spring Is the Best Time for Performing the Operation.

With nearly all other kinds of fruit, pruning may be done at any time during the fall and winter that the trees are not frozen. And in a majority of cases it is better to prune at this time than later. But with the peach as a rule the better plan is to wait until the danger of severe freezing is past in the spring. The principal reason for this is that the new growth of wood of the peach is easily injured by freezing, and in pruning it is always best first to remove all dead or injured wood and then a sufficient amount of other wood to secure an open, spreading head. The peach requires rather more severe pruning than any other variety of fruit. Unless properly pruned, the trees will have few long straggling branches with leaves, and fruit on the ends of the limbs and little or none on the rest of the tree. The reason of this is that the new shoots come out strongest from the terminal buds, the largest shoots of the previous year becoming the largest the succeeding year, so that in a short time the fruit is out of reach, as it is the habit of the peach to bear fruit on the previous season's growth of wood.

Prune in the spring, cutting out first all dead or diseased wood and then cutting back the new growth until the desired form is obtained. Usually from one-third to one-half of the new growth can be cut back with benefit, and more and better fruit be secured than if the tree is allowed to grow as it pleases.—N. J. Shepherd, in Ohio Farmer.

AMERICAN BEET SUGAR.

In a Few Years Its Production Will Be a Great Industry.

In America about one-fourth of all the sugar produced throughout the world is consumed; four-fifths of this amount is imported at an annual cost of $135,000,000. In 1880 two-thirds of the sugar used came from sugar-cane and one-third from beet roots; in 1897 the proportions are exactly reversed; yet while France, Germany and Austria have been developing their beet-sugar industries until they practically control the trade all over the world, the United States, having far richer beet-sugar lands, boasts an annual output of only about 40,000 tons.

Within the past few years the department of agriculture has carried on an exhaustive series of experiments over different parts of the country suitable for the growth of the sugar beet. These experiments have conclusively demonstrated that this important staple can be grown in profitable quantities and of the highest grade over a considerable area of the United States. There is, in fact, nothing to prevent this country from becoming the largest beet-sugar-producing land in the world. With the same encouragement France has given to the industry, America might have 700 factories instead of seven, which is now her limit.

It has been estimated that it would require from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 acres devoted to beet-culture to produce the sugar necessary for home consumption. This would mean an addition to the agricultural income of the country of $50,000,000 or $60,000,000 a year, with as much more for labor and supplies.—Demorest's Magazine.

STARTING PLANTS.

Suggestions for Those Who Wish to Have Early Vegetables.

Every winter in thousands of homes the gardening operations of spring are anticipated by starting plants in boxes in the kitchen windows. The conditions are admirable for this purpose, so far as the day is concerned, for then there are sunshine, the heat from the kitchen stove and a moist atmosphere from the cooking operations. But the tender little plants suffer at night, and much of the stunted growth seen in plants started in the house can be traced to the chilling effects of cool nights following the very warm, moist conditions of the day. The cut shows a plan for keeping an equitable temperature both night and day. A dry goods box is cut away so that the top may slope. A cover is hinged at one side to shut down over the top at night. Little iron or wooden rods are put in to support the boxes, in which [illegible] are planted. The lower side is [illegible] toward the window. In the box can be set at night a couple of big jugs of hot water, and the box, tightly shut up, will keep a very warm temperature inside, even on very cold nights. The tender seeds or plants thus receive no check in their growth, and not only advance much more rapidly, but make much more vigorous and productive growth when they come to be transferred to the garden.—N. Y. Tribune.

Because of the potash they contain that wood ashes are so beneficial to fruit trees. Farmyard manure contains a certain amount of potash, but the nitrogen it also contains is apt to cause too great a growth. It contains too great a proportion of nitrogen to potash, hence wood ashes come in well to supply this deficiency. Every farmer should save his hardwood ashes in a dry place, so that they will be in the best condition to apply to the land in the spring.—Dakota Field and Farm.

It is of no use to expect to make a success of house plants if the temperature varies from freezing to 70 degrees.

HIS NOSE WAS HIS EYE.

Strange Result of an Accident to a Sixteenth Century Man.

Several authors of the sixteenth century mentioned the existence of a man who, having lost his eyesight, could see through his nose, says the Philadelphia Record. The story, much doubted at the time and pronounced fabulous by physicians, is nevertheless true if the researches of E. Douliot prove correct. It seems that the victim had lost his right eye early in life, and later on while climbing on a cherry tree fell upon a fence, the pickets horribly mutilating the left eye, the cheek and the nose. The surgeon called in considered the eye entirely destroyed, sewed up the wound and it healed in time, forming a large scar where the eye had been. A year later the man, then considered stoneblind, lay in the grass, when he surprised himself by discovering that he could perceive through the cavity of the nose the sky and the color of the flowers on the meadow around him. From that time on he practiced for five or six years to see with his nose, which to him became practically the organ of vision. He gradually became more proficient in seeing in this way and could see everything beneath him while he remained quite insensible to the light from above.

The condition of this man can be explained scientifically. Although the lens of the eye had been torn from its socket by the fall, the optic membrane and the nerves at the rear of the cavity of the eye had retained some of the seeing power. When the eye had healed together a small hole in the bone over the nose must have formed which acted as a lens in the same way as a pinhole can be used to take a photographic picture. This also proves that the retina of the eye acts like a camera obscura where the objects from the outside become visible when the rays of light arrive there after passing through a small opening.

MILD WINTER, SURE.

Hornets' Nests Are Low, Nuts Are Scarce, and Weeds Are Short.

"We'll have a mild winter, unless my signs fail me," says Henry Bife, the oldest farmer in Laltukenny township, N. Y., according to an exchange, who has all his life been noted as a weather prophet among the folks along the North mountains, "and I guess this from the hornets, the nuts, and the woods. I notice that the hornets have built their nests low. They would be high up out of reach, were we going to have a hard winter. I can't explain this, but my father and grandfather always gauged by this. Then nuts of all kinds are scarce. There are hardly any chestnuts, shellbarks, or acorns. If a hard winter was coming the Good Man would have provided for the animals that must starve this year if the snow lies deep. A big crop of nuts is always followed by a hard winter, and this also works the other way. Then I notice that the weeds have grown up short, and their seeds hang near the ground. Were a hard winter coming the weeds would have grown up tall, so that when the snow would lie deep the birds could hop along on the snow and get the seeds from the top of the plants. If the weeds are covered with snow for a long time, the birds can't get any feed. The Good Man looks after the birds, too, and I don't believe they will starve this winter on account of the berries and seeds being covered with snow. For these three reasons I think we'll have a mild winter."

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY.

The Secret of a Miner in the Klondike Gold Fields.

The Klondike is responsible for the concoction of a chemical compound which promises to revolutionize mining methods in every section where winter puts a stop to operations every year.

The nature of the chemical is a secret, which the inventor will divulge to no one. The chemical is simple and cheap, however, and can be manufactured upon the ground where the mine is located. The discoverer will locate several mines in the spring, and develop them the following summer and winter. No matter how cold the atmosphere, it will not interfere with the thawing properties of the wonderful fluid.

The value of such a discovery is readily apparent. It practically conquers the inconvenience of cold and extreme temperatures, and does away with the necessity of thawing the ground by the slow and tedious method of building fires and allowing them to thaw out the frozen earth. The inventor estimates that the chemical will melt the earth to the depth of two feet. Continual application of the fluid will allow the miners to keep continuously at their labor.

Besides using the fluid for developing whatever mines he locates, the inventor will take up enough material to supply the other miners at reasonable prices.

Luxurious Imperial Travelers.

The height of luxurious traveling has been reached by the czar and czarina. The empress' private car is upholstered in pale-blue satin. The electric lamps are all in the form of lilies, and it contains writing and tea tables made of mother of pearl. The nursery is the next apartment, and is as comfortable and handsome as the same rooms in any of the czar's palaces. There are dining-rooms and drawing-rooms and several sleeping apartments. In fact, this train is a miniature palace. The wheels are covered with India rubber tires.

Down to as late as the middle ages cats were comparatively scarce in Europe and were so highly prized that any person who killed one was obliged to pay a fine. This penalty sometimes was required to be paid in the shape of a pile of wheat big enough to cover the slain animal when it was held vertically by the tip of its tail, the nose touching the ground.

CATCHING CONDORS.

A Price Upon the Ferocious Birds in Chili.

Chili offers a bounty for condor heads, and an American in that country has made from $700 to $800 a month killing this bird of prey. One month he got a warrant for $1,080. Condors steal sheep and calves. He writes, says the Chicago Chronicle:

"How did we capture these ferocious birds? Our first job every morning before we had even a peep of sunlight over the mountains was to carry the carcass of a dead animal—a horse or a cow—out on the plain, where it could easily be seen from all points of the compass. We sometimes made a carcass do service for a fortnight, but it required a strong stomach and indifference to stench. We moved about every few days from one locality to another, and never put the rotting body twice in the same place, because of the extreme suspiciousness of an average condor. Generally we would move three or four miles every 24 hours.

"After we had placed our bait carcass we set up our tents and the canvas flies that concealed us and our horses from the view of the condors. Breakfast was no sooner over than we could see from the peepholes in the canvas that hid us several condors coming down through the clouds from the mountain crest straight toward our bait. When the birds had eaten heartily we sprang to our horses, which stood near, bridled and saddled, ready for the chase. When a condor has gorged itself with food it cannot rise without running to give itself momentum. An expert lassoer could send his rope over a condor's head and so manage it that it was slipped down until it touched the shoulders of the wings before it would be tightened on the bird. Then the rider would turn the horse about and lead the chase himself, forcing the unwilling bird along until tumbled, spent, to the ground, and was dragged to death at the horse's heels."

HE LOVED TO GIVE.

The Touching Lesson of a Very Charitable Life.

The story of George Francis Train sitting in the park surrounded by birds and children is a familiar one. It is not so generally known that North St. Louis was the home of a child and bird lover who died some years ago, says the St. Louis Republic.

It was this gentle old man's custom to leave home every morning directly after breakfast with his pockets full of bread crumbs and rock candy. He would go to one of the parks near his home and sit down on one of the benches there. No matter how cold it was he never forgot those bread crumbs.

At sight of him the birds would fly toward him. There were not so many sparrows then as now, but sometimes hundreds of them would flutter about him. He has often been seen sitting there quietly with the little birds perched on his hat and shoulders.

When the birds had collected he would bring out his store of bread crumbs and then there would be a feast.

The rock candy he kept for children and poor people. He was always generous with it. He would say that it was pure and would help the poor wretches to keep warm.

It is told of him that he once paid a debt of $150 for an old friend. The creditor was told to say to inquirers that the bill was paid by "one who loved him." When they asked the old man about it he smiled, but did not acknowledge that he had paid it. He merely said:

"Ah! Love has paid many a debt."

WHAT THEY BROKE.

Th Old Farmer Found That He Had Been Mistaken.

There had been rather a bad runaway accident in a mountain town. Several persons had been injured, and the doctor was miles away. But, as good luck would have it, a clever young medical student happened to be on the ground and did excellent service, says the Youth's Companion.

When the doctor came there was nothing to be done, but he listened with great interest to his young colleague's explanation of the cases. They talked for a few minutes on the hotel piazza. The farmer who had been driving the horses and was himself unhurt, listened with eager interest to explanations wherein scientific terms and classic played prominent parts.

Finally he took up the reins sadly and drove home to his wife. As soon as he entered the yard she threw her apron over her head and hurried forward to meet him.

"Dr. Malm says some of the folks was hurt," she called. "How much was it? Did they break their legs or their arms —which?"

The farmer drew in his now pacified steeds at the post and let the reins slacken in his grasp.

"Well," he said reflectively, leaning forward, both elbows on his knees, "I thought one of 'em broke his leg and another a collar bone, an' so on, but I guess I didn't hit it right. I stood by while the doctors were talkin' on't over and 'peared to me as if, arter all, 'twas only some of them Latin parts."

Used for Life Saving Service Only.

The telephone lines between the United States life saving stations along the New Jersey coast will no longer be used for any other than official business, orders having been issued from the department headquarters to that effect. This will end the rivalry between several prominent ministers, who have from time to time been preaching to the crews of the stations by the aid of the 'phone.

Cost of Elephant Transportation.

Elephants on Indian railways pay at the rate of six cents a mile. The baggage cars have compartments for dogs, cats, guinea pigs, rabbits and monkeys.

Among the natives of Mexico there are, according to Dumbolton, about 150,000 survivors of the Aztec race.

Michigan Crop Report.

Michigan, Department of State,
Lansing, Jan. 11, 1898.

The ground in the principal wheat growing sections of Michigan was bare of snow until about the 17th of December, and lightly covered from this time to the end of the month. The prevailing opinion among correspondents is that wheat was injured very little, if at all, during December.

In answer to the question, "Has wheat during December suffered injury from any cause?" 47 correspondents in the State answer "yes," and 633 "no," and in answer to the question, "Has the ground been well covered with snow during December?" 87 correspondents in the southern counties answer "yes" and 284 "no," and in the northern counties 60 answer "yes," and 23 "no" and in the central counties 41 answer "yes" and 114 "no."

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in December is 1,371,738, and in five months, August-December, 9,934,054, which is 3,344,811 bushels more than reported marketed in the same months last year.

The average condition of live stock in the State is reported as follows, comparison being with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition: Horses, 96 per cent; cattle, 96 per cent; sheep, 98 per cent, and swine, 97 per cent.

The average prices January 1 of some of the principal farm products in the markets where farmers usually sell such products, were as follows:

The average price of wheat was 86 cents per bushel; of corn 28 cents, and of oats 22 cents, and the average price of hay was $6.34 per ton.

The average price of fat cattle was $3.58 per cwt., of fat hogs, $3.16 per cwt., and of dressed pork, $4.12 per cwt.,

The average price of each class of horses was as follows: Under one year, $18.94; between one and two years old, $28 83; between two and three years old, $41.83; three years old and over, $59.70

Milch cows were worth $32 25 per head. Cattle other than milch cows, under one year old, per head, $9.97; between one and two years, $17.69; between two and three years, $26.17, and three years old and over, $32.90.

The average price of sheep under one year old was $2 94, and one year old and over, $3 68; and hogs not fattened were worth $2.99 per cwt.

The prices here given are [illegible] state. For each class of horses, [illegible] sheep one year old and over they [illegible] higher, for sheep under one year [illegible] the same, and for milch cows and each class of cattle other than milch cows lower, than the prices ruling in the southern four tiers of counties.

Compared with January 1, 1897, there is an increase in the prices of all farm products named in this report except ing hay. The average price of hay [illegible] $1.39 less than one year ago.

The average increase in the price of wheat is 2 cents, of corn 5 cents and [illegible] oats 4 cents per bushel, and of fat cattle 75 cents, fat hogs 14 cents and of dressed pork 9 cents per cwt.

The average prices of the several classes of horses are reported from $2.[illegible] to $6.45 higher, milch cows, $4.52 higher, and the several classes of cattle other than milch cows from $2.36 to $3.[illegible] higher, than one year ago. Sheep under one year old have increased 85 cents, and one year old and over $1.09.

WASHINGTON GARDNER,

WOLCOTT TALKS SILVER.

The Colorado Senator Reports on the Work of the Monetary Commission.

PLANS BLOCKED BY GREAT BRITAIN

The Senator Believes That an International Agreement Is Feasible at a Ratio of Twenty to One—Thinks It Would Be the Greatest Blessing That Could Befall Our People.

Washington, Jan. 18. — Senator Edward Wolcott, of Colorado, addressed the senate Monday on the subject of the bimetallic commission's trip to Europe. Following is part of his speech.

It was perfectly realized from the beginning, he said, that bimetallism for England was out of the question. "India was the vital point of all the negotiations with England, and all other proposals were insignificant in comparison with that respecting the reopening of the mints of India to the unlimited coinage of silver, and the repeal of the order pertaining to gold to be paid for government dues and to be exchanged for government rupees."

Mr. Wolcott spoke at some length upon the conditions in India, explaining the value of the rupee since the closing of the mints to silver in 1893. The closing of the mints had, he said, created wide dissatisfaction, and there was a general impression that the Indian government would be glad to retrace its steps.

Present Situation.

Mr. Wolcott summarized the present situation by saying that it is apparent that for the time being it is useless to count on any cooperation from Great Britain toward a bimetallic agreement, and that while France actively desires to see silver restored to its old position as a standard of value equally with gold, she insists that the problem is one which demands international action, and the cooperation to some adequate extent of other leading commercial nations of the world.

Will Retire from Commission.

Here Mr. Wolcott announced his intention to retire from the commission. He said:

"It is my sincere conviction that an international bimetallic agreement is still feasible, by the terms of which certain countries will join us and open their mints to the unlimited coinage of silver, and others will contribute to the plan an enlarged use of that metal as money, and I say this the more freely because I shall give way upon the commission to somebody more fitted for such negotiations and better able to give them his constant time. This result cannot be brought about without the expenditure of both time and patience, and the persons intrusted with the duty of negotiation must have back of them the hearty support of the president and of congress."

He thought it might be necessary to change the ratio to something like twenty to one.

International Agreement Desirable.

Continuing his presentation of the desirability of an international agreement, which had been digressed from to score the treasury, Mr Wolcott said: "Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to the ability of this country to maintain alone the parity between silver and gold, there is no question that the concurrence of other nations would help and not hinder the cause of bimetallism in the United States, and efforts to secure it ought to receive the cordial support of every citizen who is opposed to gold monometallism. International bimetallism is not a myth, a chimera. The people of Europe are, even as we are, struggling to keep their heads above water and seeking blindly for that which they may make for prosperity and progress.

"Much of the recent legislation in Europe looking to the increase of gold holdings and the depreciation of silver finds its origin in the exigencies of a situation where readiness for war is the paramount necessity. There is hardly a statesman in Europe who believes the last word has yet been said upon the question of the remonetization of silver, and hardly one who would not welcome an effort to settle the question internationally. Only a few days ago, just before Christmas, in a debate in the French chamber M. Meline again declared from the tribune that the French government was as one with the United States on the question of bimetallism.

"In the face of such a declaration it is as cowardly to abandon hope as it is false to talk about failure. International bimetallism is to the gold monometallists a stumbling block and to the silver monometallists foolishness, but it is nevertheless a splendid possibility; its accomplishment would be the greatest blessing that could befall our people, and to achieve it we might well afford to sink for the time the hostilities of party and the bickerings of factions."

Cut Loose from Populists.

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—A new party was born Thursday night in the conference of the populists and named the people's party. It has severed all connection with the national populist committee and will take no aid or advice from any outside party. There was a practical agreement among the delegates that a national presidential convention should be held this year.

Domestic Merchandise.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The exports of domestic merchandise for December last amounted to $123,181,743, an increase as compared with December, 1896, of over $7,000,000. For the 12 months the increase was over $93,000,000. The imports during December amounted to $51,514,733, and for the 12 months the increase was about $54,500,000.

Murder and Suicide.

New York, Jan. 18.—John Matthews, a retail grocer, murdered his wife and their two children, a boy ten years old and a girl 12, by hacking them to death with a hatchet. Matthews then committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. It is supposed that Matthews had become despondent from pecuniary difficulties.

Greenup, Ill., Jan. 19. — Miss Etta Leats, 18 years old, daughter of Rev. William Leats, in Union township, about ten miles from this place, was burned to death at the farm home of John R. Drum. Her clothing caught fire from the kitchen stove.

CURRENCY REFORM

The Banking and Currency Committee Questions Secretary Gage.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Secretary Gage and ex-Secretary Fairchild were before the house committee on banking and currency yesterday for a further discussion of the pending plans for currency reform. Chairman Walker made the interrogatories. In response to questions Mr. Gage said he had been in the banking business for 40 years, and made a general statement of what he hoped to see ultimately accomplished as a permanent financial system. He said:

"It would be a condition of affairs with national bank notes, made safe to the people without specific security therefor, wisely restricted by law so as to prevent such evils as might arise, and with the entire elimination of the United States government from paying its debts by giving other debts in payment."

"Why not accomplish this now?" asked Mr. Walker.

"Theoretically there is no reason why it should not be done now; practically there are many reasons. The predisposition of the people is in favor of government notes. I believe the economic loss to the people from this system, although unknown, outweighs the narrow advantage of the mere saving of interest secured by these government notes. You cannot change the minds of the people. They are timid and suspicious of bank note issues. They disbelieve that anyone can uphold a system such as I have sketched without selfish and sordid motives. They fear it involves hazard and loss. They recall the period of wildcat banks. It is desirable, therefore, to make the first step so simple as to show the people that it involves no dangers, so that in time the full development of the plan would be responsive to public sentiment."

AMERICANS ARE BARRED.

Ontario Legislature Passes an Alien Labor Law.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 17.—The Ontario legislature adjourned Friday night and in its closing hours passed a bill providing that no persons shall be employed in the construction of subsidized railways in Ontario who are subjects of any country which has an alien labor law excluding Canadians from employment on public or other works therein. This means that Americans need not expect employment on Canadian railways. The legislature also passed the timber regulations, which require all sawlogs cut in Ontario hereafter to be made into lumber in Canada.

FIFTY LIVES WERE LOST.

Terrible Result of the Terrific Tornado at Fort Smith, Ark.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 19.—The latest official death list shows a total of 50 lives lost in the tornado which swept through Fort Smith. Not less than 70 others are injured, a large number of whom are seriously hurt, and several are expected to die. The property loss is fully $1,000,000. In Crawford county three persons were killed, three fatally injured and about 20 less seriously hurt.

Death of Mrs. Flood.

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—Mrs. James L. Flood, wife of the millionaire mine owner, died Saturday as the result of an operation recently performed at the California woman's hospital. The deceased, who was only 34 years of age, was a native of Kansas City, whither her remains will be taken for interment.

Suspected of Murder and Arson.

St. Louis, Jan. 19.—In a dwelling house in Chouteau avenue the charred remains of a little girl were discovered. The house was occupied by August Bauer, Mrs. Hilda Ersar and her little girl. Bauer was arrested. The police think he killed the child and fired the building.

Lumber Mill Burned.

Milwaukee, Jan. 15.—A special to the Wisconsin from Eland Junction, Wis., says the lumber mill of the Ingersoll Land and Lumber company, located three miles from there, was burned. Loss, $70,000.

Important Decision.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The United States supreme court says the heirs of a man who commits suicide when in sound mind cannot recover on a life insurance policy.

DOGS FOR THE KLONDIKE

Are Being Gathered in All the Large Cities.

The Klondike will open up a new field of usefulness for the dog. In Seattle an enterprise is on foot to establish a dog nursery, where the animals will be trained for the Alaska service and then sent there and sold to the miners. It is believed that the dogs will solve the vexed problem of transportation, says the New York Journal.

Ex-Mayor Black and J. B. Powles, of Seattle, who are behind the enterprise, are gathering dogs in Chicago, St. Paul and other cities. The first carload of 220 picked animals has already arrived in Seattle. They have been gathered with a view of doing packing and sled drawing over the Alaska trails. No spaniels or other sporting dogs have been secured, but only the hard-footed, long-haired breeds, that will weigh from 60 to 70 pounds each.

"Our object," said Mr. Powles, "in bringing the dogs to Seattle now is to give them a good training. They will be placed in charge of Oscar Jones, who has charge of the Seattle kennels. We expect to sell the dogs, and house and train them from now until spring, fitting harness to them, breaking them to drive, and in every way training them so they can be used as soon as they reach the trails. We have brought them in thus early in the season to avoid risks of cold weather. We expect to bring a carload from Philadelphia soon, and in all will have four or five carloads."

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TREE.

A Man of Family Pride Who Met with a Surprise.

A Washington man who prides himself upon his family connections is just recovering from an attack of nervous prostration, says the Star. This man lately became possessed of the idea of constructing a family tree, feeling assured he could produce a growth that would dwarf the giants of the California forests into insignificance. He began on one branch of his family, and soon struck Miles Standish, from whom he ran various shoots and offshoots, with many a feeling of pride. With renewed interest he went to work on another branch of his growing tree, and had gone back but four generations when he was amazed to strike a great-grandfather who had died from strangulation brought on by a rope encircling his throat, his death occurring in the presence of a large gathering of curious people, who had taken a day off during harvest time in order to see the hanging. By this time the man of family pride had become intensely disgusted with genealogical investigations, but all that his friends knew of his disappointment was the fact that he remained away from the busy haunts of his fellows for several weeks, and the family physician gave out the information that he was the victim of a severe case of nervous prostration.

"THEATER SICKNESS."

A New Disease Discovered by a French Physician.

"Theater sickness" is the name of the new disease recently discovered by the eminent French physician, Dr. Morticole, which is at present a topic of a good deal of discussion in scientific and lay circles in Paris. The doctor declares that "theater sickness" and sea sickness resemble one another, take their victims entirely unawares, and prey especially on women. The symptoms consist of giddiness, loss of consciousness, a deep faint, and in perverse cases the malady causes death. It seizes a victim after he has gazed long at the stage, and more commonly in tragedy than in comedy, and, in brief, it constitutes a species of asphyxia. When men feel "theater sickness" coming on they become, according to Dr. Morticole, oblivious to all considerations of locality and put their heads between their knees, while women feel an inclination to recline with their feet at an acute angle above their heads, so excessive is the vertigo. Fortunately, cases of "theater sickness" are as yet the exception rather than the rule. A theater where all the men's heads would be bowed down between their knees, and where all the women were to have their feet in the air, would furnish a strange mixture of the mournful and of the hilarious.

Five Miners Lose Their Lives.

Hermosillo, Mex., Jan. 12.—By the falling of a cage in the Creston mine at Minas Pietras, eight men were hurled 500 feet to the bottom of the shaft. Five were killed outright and the remaining three are not expected to survive.

To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield Iowa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield Ia., Aug 18 1896. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would'nt now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

THE BATHROOM SCALE.

A Fad That Has Captured Many Otherwise Sensible Persons.

Have you seen the bathroom scales? They are among the latest things out. If you have one in your lavatory you will find it an interesting adjunct to your bath, particularly if you go in for massage treatment, as so many persons are doing now.

But what an unsightly article of furniture, you exclaim. Nothing of the kind. That simply shows your ignorance of a matter which is full of interest. The bathroom scale is dainty enough to adorn my lady's boudoir, should she choose to place it there. It can be made to harmonize with any color scheme without appearing grotesque.

Those that I saw were certainly finished most artistically. One was in delicate coloring of oak, another in white enamel and gold, while still another was in pale blue enamel, with a nickel-plated beam. Others are made to order and finished to match the fittings of the bathroom. Scales have long been in use in Turkish bath establishments, and are considered almost as important as the dry room itself. A man loses from one to four pounds weight whenever he takes a Turkish bath, but it is a fact that he seldom loses any weight at all in taking an ordinary tub bath. From this it may be thought by the ordinary man that there is no demand for the bathroom scale, but the ordinary man doesn't know it all. He completely forgets the fat lady who lives next door and the bulky gentleman that always makes such a fuss whenever he climbs on board the cable car. He also forgets the dyspeptic gentleman and the thin lady with the sour face.

But aside from these he does not seem to realize the enormous business which the massage operators have built up within the past few years. It is quite the proper thing to have your masseur visit you at your home at least once a week. He gives you your bath, and then devotes his attention to your cuticle. He kneads you where you need kneading and manipulates your muscles, which have probably grown flabby with lack of proper exercise.

All of this has an effect upon the weight which your ordinary plunge or shower bath would not have. You weigh yourself before you begin, and you weigh yourself after the massour is through with you. You will find the bathroom scale a handy thing to have around.

Previous to the advent of this innovation the ordinary man has not bothered his head very much about his weight. Occasionally, while waiting for a boat or a train, he would attempt to drive away dull care by dropping a nickel in the slot, listening to the music, and casually taking his weight and height. Most of the ordinary men, however, long since wearied of this sort of diversion, for no man has ever found

DEBTS OF TWENTY-TWO YEARS.

Old Man Takes Pride in Hunting Up His Once Satisfied Creditors.

A case of rather remarkable commercial honesty has just come to light. In 1875 one of Springfield's well-known shoe dealers found himself so embarrassed by depreciation in value of stock and the difficulty in collecting accounts that he failed and made a compromise with his creditors of 50 cents on the dollar.

After 22 years, reports the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, the merchant, now considerably over 70 years old, has settled all those old claims in full, paying the balance unpaid at that time, amounting to several thousand dollars. There was no claim on him other than that of his conscience.

All his creditors had signed a paper acknowledging their satisfaction, and, in fact, a large number of the original papers had been destroyed, so that the merchant had to settle in accordance with the figures he had in his possession, paying over money in some cases to heirs, or to surviving partners who knew nothing or had nothing to show of the original transaction.

The conscientious old shoe dealer is very anxious not to have his name appear—his act would lose its merit through advertising, he says.

Saying "Howdy!"

"The salutation: 'How do you do?'" explained a state department linguist to a Washington Star reporter, "is general throughout civilization, though Americans boil it down more than any other people in their one word 'howdy?' The Frenchman, to express the same idea, has to use 'How do you carry yourself?' The German says, that is, he uses German words which mean: 'How does it go with you?' Likewise the Spanish 'Como esta usted?' which means 'How do you stand?' The Chinaman, when he wants to say 'How do you do?' uses words which mean 'How do you run along to-day?' The Italian is almost in the same fix, while the Arab uses words which mean 'Do you stand or do well?' The Portuguese says, in his own words, of course, 'How's your good health now?' and the Indian goes a step further and says: 'You look well, do you feel so?' The American's 'howdy' is as expressive as any of the others, as well as the briefest."

FARM & GARDEN

AN EFFECTIVE TRAP.

Just the Thing for Catching Rabbits and Other Farm Enemies.

The body of the trap illustrated below is made of four pieces of six inch fencing boards 20 to 24 inches long, nailed together to make a narrow box open at one end. The top piece should be an inch shorter than the others. Nail the bottom and top boards to the side boards, thus making the perpendicular length of the opening greater than the horizontal. If the opening is square the drop door does not work properly. A sliding door is then made to fit loosely in the open end and two pieces of lath are nailed against the ends of the perpendicular boards projecting one-fourth inch inside. The door then slides down between the end of the shorter upper board and the projecting edges of the lath, shown at E in the upper part of illustration as seen from above. To support the door, a piece of lath is nailed on each side of the trap and notched on the upper end. A simple cross, M, also of lath, supports the door. It is tied to the door at one end by a string and to the trigger at the other. The trigger is a small notched stick shown at C which passes through an inch hole in the top of the trap near the back end. On the front edge of the hole, D, a piece of hoop iron is nailed and the door is supported at any point desired by hooking the notches in the trigger on the hoop iron. The rabbit or other pest, who in cold weather is always hunting a warm hole, crawls into the trap, and pushing against the trigger causes the notch to slip off the iron strip, the door falls and the pest is caged. No bait is necessary, but a piece of apple in the extreme back end of the trap may be an additional inducement. The trap must be made of old weather-beaten boards for the strong odor of new pine will keep the rabbit from going in.—Dr. Asa Bowman, in Farm and Home.

COUNTRY POLICE FORCE.

New Agricultural Want Discovered by St. Louis Paper.

All over the country we have no country police. It is only in the cities that anybody stands ready to arrest a malefactor. Out in the rural districts every man has really to be his own policeman There is, to be sure, a sheriff, but the sheriff is an officer elected without the slightest reference to his fitness for police duty, and he, if he can be reached in time, pursues criminals, if at all, with as much or as little zeal as his convenience or temperament will permit. The result is crimes committed in the country, unless they are murderous, are rarely punished. What we need in all country districts is what is called a "country police" in England and "gendarmerie" in France; that is, uniformed and salaried police, whose business it is to patrol country roads and pursue criminals. In England every village has at least one uniformed constable, and the whole are under the orders of a single county superintendent. These police are to be met everywhere, and no burglar or highway robber can make more than one stroke without finding them on his track. We are persevering in maintaining in this country the same belief in the continuance of our early rural simplicity which in the cities has ended in making municipal government such a farce. In the meantime people are learning more and more to take the law into their own hands in sheer self-defense.—Colman's Rural World.

Profit in Farm Implements.

A western man is said to have invented a machine for gathering, heading and delivering sugar beets into conveyances. It was devised at the suggestion of the secretary of agriculture. It gathers the beets from four rows at once. The machine will cost to manufacture about $30, and will sell at $60 or $70 delivered at a distance. This item of current agricultural news suggests the quesion as to whether the relative cost and profit on other agricultural implements is in this proportion, that is, selling at double or more the cost of production.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

Value of Grass and Hay.

From recent experiments it appears that a meadow will yield about four times as much feed in bulk if made into hay as it will if pastured. But, as it is well known that the young tender grass of the often cropped pasture is more nutritious than the older and tougher hay, it was found by a careful test that the advantage in nutrients, digestibility and freedom from cost of harvesting, housing and feeding of pastured fields, will nearly balance the greater yield of hay fields, except on very high priced.

A Fearful Experience

A POSTMASTER LOSES THE USE OF HIS LEGS AND ARMS.

Edwin R. Tripp, of Middlefield Center, Meets with a Hazardous Encounter Which Renders Him Helpless.

From Otsego Republican, Cooperstown, N. Y.

Mr. Edwin R. Tripp, the postmaster at Middlefield Center, N. Y., recently had a dangerous experience which left him in a helpless state. His system was so much shattered that it was feared he might never recover.

In an interview with a reporter of the Republican, regarding this experience which had attracted considerable attention, Mr. Tripp stated:

"In March, 1892, I was taken with what I afterward learned was locomotor ataxia, and was unable to walk, and I kept getting worse until I lost the use of my arms. I doctored with two skillful doctors but received no benefit, and also used a galvanic battery but kept getting worse and the doctors told me they could do no more. This was in May and June, 1892. I gave up all hope of ever having the use of my limbs again, and did not expect to live very long. I was unable to dress or undress myself, and could not get around the house unless I was moved in a chair.

"I think it was in June that I read of the case of a man in Saratoga Co., N. Y., who was taken very much as myself. He had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People which contained, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves, and had been cured by their use.

"I learned that the pills were prepared by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and only cost 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 at any druggist's, and sent for two boxes. I used the pills faithfully and they gave me an appetite. I then sent for four more boxes, and before I had taken all of them my feet and legs which had been cold began to get warm.

"I was a member of the Town Board that summer and had to be carried and put into a wagon to go to the meetings, and in fact was helpless, as my neighbors know. In August I could walk around the house by pushing a chair. I kept getting better and managed to move around more, until at election time that year, I walked with a cane to the polls, a short distance from my home. I continued to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People until I had taken eighteen boxes. I could then get around, and to-day walk to the post office and back, a distance of one-quarter of a mile, three times a day, and attend to my duties as postmaster.

"In the spring of 1893 I was elected town clerk, which office I held for three years, I had previously been a justice of the peace for forty-two years. I am now 70 years of age, and have lived in this town for about forty-six years. For nearly fifty years I worked at the blacksmith's trade. I am able to do work in my garden now, and saw some of my wood. I consider that my restoration to health is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

EDWIN R. TRIPP."

Baby Mine!

Every mother feels an indescribable dread of the pain and danger attendant upon the most critical period of her life. Becoming a mother should be a source of joy to all, but the suffering and danger of the ordeal make its anticipation one of misery.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

is the remedy which relieves women of the great pain and suffering incident to maternity; this hour which is dreaded as woman's severest trial is not only made painless, but all the danger is removed by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are avoided, the system is made ready for the coming event and the serious accidents so common to the critical hour are obviated by the use of Mother's Friend. It is a blessing to woman.

Did you make your Grain-O this way?

Here are the latest directions: Use one teaspoonful of Grain-O to two cups of cold water. Mix the Grain-O with half an egg and add the water. (Be sure to measure.) After the water gets to the boiling point let boil for fifteen to twenty minutes. Use cream and sugar to suit the taste. If you have not cream use hot milk.

A lady said: "The first time I drank Grain-O I did not like it, but after using it for ten days and forming the habit, nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." This is the experience of all. If you will follow directions, measure it every time and make it the same, and try it for ten days, you will not go back to coffee.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Jan. 19, 1898.

Wheat holds steady at between 90 and 92 cents for May while in July there has been a sharp advance of late, that option selling today for 83.

A feature of the present condition is the indisposition of the bears to increase their line of short contracts, while on the other hand there is no great pressure to buy unless soft spots appear. It is argued that the market is in a congested state, and to an extent this is true, but the bulls feel confident that conditions favor their side. Schwartz, Dupee & Co., who are daily in receipt of advices from Europe, say that their correspondents talk higher prices, especially as in the last few days the offerings of Argentine wheat have fallen off materially.

Corn is holding steady, but the supply of that cereal is so large that not much in the way of a bull market is looked for in the near future. Provisions continue to advance, the receipts of hogs being light, and while the cash trade is not all that could be wished it is good for this season of the year. The price range in wheat today was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
May wheat,	91 1-2	91 1-8	91 1-4
July wheat,	83	81 3-8	82 3-4

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

The people of Tecumseh are very anxious to secure the location of the Detroit & Lima Northern shops and are exercising all their means to have the shops of not a small system located in their city. They fully realize all the benefits that the possession of the shops would bring and will secure them if possible. The Adrian Times has the following to say concerning the matter:

"The Times placed itself in telephonic communication with Tecumseh this afternoon and learned from editor F. W. Samsen, of the Tecumseh News, that all but two or three hundred dollars of the $14,000 necessary for securing the Lima Northern repair shops and round house, has been raised. The remainder of this amount must be pledged by tonight, and Mr. Samsen stated there is no question but it will be. As to the additional $6,000 for a construction shop, no attempt will be made to raise that for awhile." A gentleman high in the council of the road was asked this morning what, if anything, he knew concerning the matter. He stated that he knew nothing about any alleged location of the shops at Tecumseh or at Adrian. The matter rests as it did last summer. But Lima should be up and doing, or else some of these days she will wake up to find some other city possessing them.—Times, Lima.

The above article was headed "Dreaming" certainly there are many "dreamers" on the line of the D. & L. N.

The injunction suit brought by the village of Wyandotte to restrain the Detroit & Lima Northern railroad from constructing its right-of-way through the village was called in the circuit court this morning. A continuance was asked for and the case went over until this afternoon. In the meantime the company is proceeding with the work. Yesterday the roadway over two streets was graded and the work is progressing at a rapid rate. Supt. Russell said he expected to get arrested, but up to the present time no arrests have been made. The Michigan Central ran a loaded coal car off the track at the point where the D. & L. N. wanted to cross the Burrell & Co. switch. This put an end to the operations of the company. A patrol of the Michigan Central is on guard today to prevent the workmen of the D. & L. N. laying a diamond across the switch of the Michigan Central. There is likely to be trouble in the attempt of the road to cross Ecorse creek, where a swing bridge is wanted.—Evening News.

The D. & L. N. railroad's Dundee branch failed to make connections at Trenton with the mails several times last week. As a result the postoffice department assessed the road $250. The mail trains have been running more regularly since. That's the way to do business. If all public business was conducted along these lines it would be better and more promptly executed. There are other railroads in the state that need fining just as badly as the D. & L. N.—Ann Arbor Argus.

A new depot will be built by order of Railway Commissioner Wesselius at Ceresco on the D. T. & M. to take the place of the one destroyed by fire last summer.

President S. R. Callaway, of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, is credited with saying: "For some time railroad men have been trying to find the reason why, in spite of the fact that business is increasing, especially in the transportation of freight, the passenger business is languishing. After figuring on the matter for some time we have come to the conclusion the long distance telephone is responsible. Business men are using it more and more, and the way it is cutting into our passenger business is a very serious matter to us."—Dundee Reporter.

The D. & L. N. are not only having trouble building a new road, but they are also having trouble finding stations on the railroad bought from the Lake Shore. The "Huckleberry" had a passenger for Briar Hill the other night and the engineer stopped where he thought Briar Hill ought to be, but the passenger refused to get off because B. H. was a mile farther. The train started again and had just got under full speed when B. H. was sighted. Briar Hill is composed of a lime kiln and two houses. The train not being equipped with air brakes the train stopped a mile the other side and the passenger still refused to vacate. The train was then backed down to the station—a large horse block—the conductor leading the way with a lantern, so as not to miss the station in the darkness.—Wyandotte Herald.

Lake Shore section men discovered a broken rail on the "stone bridge" this morning just before train No. 44 from the west, the fast newspaper train due here at 7:47, arrived in town, and after spiking it down, flagged the train that it might be run slowly over the break, and give time afterwards to put in a new rail. Considerable excitement was created among the passengers when the trouble was learned, as a wreck on that bridge would undoubtedly be attended with horrible results. Railroad men state, however, that the track at this season of the year is watched with the closest care and this discovery was due to regular morning inspection by the men under Trackmaster Hoyt. The broken rail was caused by the action of the frost.—Adrian Telegram.

Wednesday the moving of the dispatchers' office upstairs was completed. Supt. Haskell will now occupy the office vacated by the dispatchers and Mr. Yeazell will move his private room into what has been the superintendent's office. Then the partition will be removed in the car accountant's office, enlarging their room to meet the requirements of added help.

The D. & L. N. is now receiving the six new engines ordered some time since, one having arrived and been put into service. Last week an order was given for six more locomotives to be built at once.

Jas. A. Boyd began his duties as yardmaster at the D. & L. N. this morning. W. S. Cotterman, the former yardmaster goes into the car accountant's office as operator.

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway have sent out a folder, "Alaska Goldfields and How to Reach Them." It is very comprehensive and complete.

Mrs. J. M. Norris and son, of Lima, were in town yesterday. J. M. has been transferred from the local freight to the yard engine in Lima.

A change was made Monday in the D. T. & M. mail service. Mail from the west now arrives at 2:20 p. m. instead of 6:43 p. m. as formerly.

Mrs. Peter Flynn and daughter Helen leave for Marshall tomorrow, Conductor Flynn having been assigned to the west division.

The young son of F. M. Bauer has been seriously ill with malarial fever for the past week but is now much better.

Mr. Martin, of Cleveland, an experienced car accountant, has been added to the office force.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Richmond started Saturday for a trip to New York.

Agent Geo. Shiffer was at Leipsic, O., Tuesday to attend a funeral.

Mrs. F. M. Bauer returned from Toledo Saturday.

"A Golden Era"

Is the title of an illustrated pamphlet issued by the general passenger department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on mining in Colorado, California, and other Western States.

"Klondike"

Is an illustrated folder about Alaska and its gold mines, with rates of fare and information as to how to get there and what to expect after arrival. Both publications may be had free of expense by sending four (4) cents in stamps to pay postage to Geo. H. Heafford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

The 1898 calendar issued by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway is probally one of the most unique ever printed, it being made to represent a government mail pouch—the road's trade mark. It is printed in brown and gold on enameled card board. The calendar is sent to any address on receipt of eight cents in postage on application to A. J Smith, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Cleveland, Ohio.

To Whom It May Interest.

I am pleased to say that MR. E. F. KIRCHGESSNER fitted me perfectly with glasses (Dec. 5, 1896) both for distance and near vision, after I had tried several Opticians and Eye Specialists without any satisfaction. Have worn the glasses nearly a year and do painting, crayon portrait and pastel work, and make all kinds of fine laces. Have taken first premiums on all my work at Toledo, Adrian, Hudson and Hillsdale fairs, so one may judge how I use my eyes.

Anyone wishing Glasses will do well to consult

ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

Lately a letter came to this office from Germany addressed to a party at '95 Dog street." The directory showed no one by the name borne on the letter. Clerks, carriers and postmaster were at sea to know where in the city, was "dog" street. It didn't occur to them that there was a canine highway in the city. One day a clerk happened to think that "dog" in German was "hund" and corrupting the name, and translating as pronounced, "Hund" would be "Hunt street. The letter was taken to that address and found its owner, 'Rah for "dog" street.—Adrian Press.

Hon. L. W. Hoch is in receipt of a letter from the national single tax propaganda, at Washington, headed by Congressman McGuire, asking him to take the position of vice president from Michigan for the ensuing year, which honor Mr. Hoch will very gladly accept.—Adrian Telegram.

The various depots were visited at a late hour last night by a number of gentleman who were extremely anxious to catch a glimpse of a certain individual who, it appears, had proven a traitor to his trust. The story, as it has leaked out today, is that the party in question was acting as "banker" for a poker party. During the night he was sent out for a lunch. He brought the edibles from a restaurant, but when he went back with the empty dishes he failed to return. It is said he had about $150 in his possession, which belonged to the players. No trace could be found of him.—Adrian Times.

As usual, Adrian is the same old "easy mark."

Last Friday while Ed. Pool was putting up ice he in some manner let a cake fall on ' foot smashing it quite badly, which makes it necessary for him to remain indoors. Mr. Pool has suffered more or less from a tumor on his neck for some time, but hated to spare the time it required for an operation, and the healing of the wound until Tuesday, when he was obliged to remain in the house with his smashed foot, he came to the conclusion that it would be a good time to have the tumor removed. Accordingly the services of Dr. Eccles, of Blissfield, was secured and the operation effected, and now he is kept busy figuring out which wound will heal up first.—Deerfield Times.

Some of the girls of our village have not given up the old practice of riding astride a horse yet. Only last week a young lady was seen racing her horse down the county line as though she was practicing for a hurdle race. Such is life in a country village.—Deerfield Times.

Those dear girls from Deerfield should when they ride, confine both feet to just one side.

One of our farmers came into a store a few days since with some apples to sell. The storekeeper offered him 50 cents a bushel. A commercial traveler who was standing by said to the farmer: "If you had those apples in New York you could get $1 50 a bushel for them." "Ya'as, I'spose I could," replied the farmer, "an' if I had a pail of water in h—ll, I recon' it would bring a dollar a glass." "One on me," echoed the drummer, as he picked up his grip and slid for the door.—Exchange.

Charles Fenton was employed in the Gazette office last Saturday, and was in the basement of the building where the water moter is, when in some way his sleeve caught in the shaft which runs near the floor, and a moment later his arm was winding around the shaft. Fortunately the young man is possessed of considerable strength, which enabled him to tear loose from the shaft, but his arm was bruised and torn, and the muscles badly strained. He was lucky in escaping with his life, but will be laid up for quite a while with his injuries.—Hudson Post.

It has become quite the custom at theatres for ladies to remove their hats, and we believe it would be a good thing if they would adopt the practice in churches. People like to see the preacher and singers, but the big hats now worn obstruct the view.—Manchester Enterprise. Does the editor speak for himself or for the benefit of others?

Hudson will have an ice skating rink at Island Park—nit. Trouble was, the park leaked. The city water was turned on one cold day last week, but instead of freezing and remaining on the surface like real wet water should, it disappeared into mother earth as rapidly as it came and the projectors were compelled to abandon their project after "sinking" 15 lovely dollars.—Hudson Gazette.

We don't know what the man's name is, however this shouldn,t make the truth any more doubtful, but one man, while out spearing in Devil's Lake last week took a pickerel that weighed 27 pounds.—Onsted News. That must certainly have been the News man.

Burtis R. Kessler, who has been the able and enterprising manager of the Clayton Record, and J. C. Wheeler, its erudite and faithful editor, both retired from their positions with the last number. They fulfilled their mission well, and made the paper newsy and readable. Miss Jennie Bell, its owner, assumes charge again. Success to you, Miss Jennie.—Hudson News.

A "Six Foot Club" has been organized among the students. Only those who are six feet high or over are eligible.—A. A. Argus. It should be of long duration.

On Monday the Argus closed up with the administrator of the estate of the late J. B. Vanatta, of Salem, a subscription account which has been in existence for over 62 years. Mr. and Mrs. Vanatta came to Michigan in 1834 and commenced to take the Argus soon after it was first published. Mr. Vanatta died in April, 1895, at the age of 83 years. His widow still survives aged 84 years, but owing to not being able to see to read any more she has dropped from our list. A 62 year's subscription is a long record and one that any paper can feel proud of.—A. A. Argus.

Ben Hines' father-in-law, John Polle, has come into possession of seventy-five or eighty thousand dollars that he has had his eye on for years. So much for having the coat-of-arms and the good broad sword of his ancestors in "Merrie Old England."—Britton Citizen.

H. D. Cutting has returned from the meeting of the executive board of the State Agricultural Society at Grand Rapids, of which he has been a prominent member for some years. Mr. Cutting tendered his resignation this meeting on account of failing eyesight, but his colleagues would not accept the resignation and he was finally forced to remain a member. As a testimonial of the regard in which he is held by that organization, he was presented with a gold headed ebony cane, engraved as follows: H. D. Cutting from Ex. Com. State Ag'l Society 1898. Mr. Cutting also visited the Agricultural School at Lansing on his trip.

Burch.—Kelley.

Benjamin D. Burch, of Wixom, and Miss Fannie Kelley were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jane Kelley, at Holloway Jan. 12, Rev. Jacob Baker officiating.

It was a very pretty, quiet home wedding, the parlors being decorated with evergreens, ferns and potted plants. The bride was gowned in cream silk and wool, and the groom wore conventional black. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful presents. After a sumptuous repast, the happy couple took their departure to Sandusky, amid showers of rice and best wishes of friends. Mrs. Burch is an estimable young lady and well known. Mr. Burch although a stranger here, is a well known merchant of Wixom.

Guests out of town were, Mrs. Geo. Hoxie and son, Mrs. C. C. Robinson and the Misses Jennie Hollister and Bertha Smith, of Adrian, Prof. Chauncey Graves and the Misses Mabel and Olive Graves, of Ridgeway, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hoxie, of Lenawee Junction, and Miss Dora Crum, of Traverse City.

Saturday, an alarm of fire was given for a slight blaze in the Geo. Spafford house in Brownville. E. C. Brown, of Addison, had just got nicely settled in the house, and the fire caused a general tearing up and moving out for a few minutes. A defective chimney was the cause of fire. Considerable damage was done to the contents by smoke and water, but beyond a slight scorching of the roof, the house was not much injured.

Mr. Bert Lawrence and Miss Ellen Isabel Hastings, were married at the home of the bride in Brownville at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. W. F. Jones performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence drove to Adrian, much to the disappointment of some of their friends who were waiting to see them off on the train. After visiting relatives in Clayton, they will return here and occupy the home they have cosily furnished on Democratic street.

The second meeting of the poultry raisers at this office Tuesday night, was very enthusiatic, about twenty being present. The chairman appointed as committee on program, Messrs A. P. Coddington, Chas. Waldron, Henry Wilson and J. D. Shull. On fiance, Guy Belding, Geo. N. Stacy and Bert Cutting. The date of the poultry exhibition will be either the 15th or 16th of February, to be decided at a committee meeting at the HERALD office next Monday night. In view of the success of the show last year, the promotors have every reason to believe that the one this year will be very interesting.

The City Band is an organization we are all proud of and one which is worthy of everyones hearty support. They are all able musicians and have proven their ability to produce fine band music. Now they are in need of uniforms and in order to secure the wherewithal to purchase them will give a 25 cent concert and banquet at the Armory, Thursday evening, Jan. 26, and will be assisted by the ladies, who have kindly taken an interest in the matter. The price charged is but a trifle to each one but if we all turn out and fill the hall and tables the desired amount will surely be raised and a deserving organization rewarded.

Present also were Mrs. M. W. Sweet, of Adrian, sister of Mrs. Frazier, and C. A. Wright and Donald from here.

Thursday morning it was discovered that thieves had broken into the tailor shop of Jones & Hazlett by smashing a pane of glass in one of the rear windows and turning the sash lock. The perpetrators must have been good judges as they turned their attention to the best in the house and only what was made up, walking around promiscuously on the rest. The firm are out nine whole suits and several pairs of trousers valued at slightly more than $200. The job must have been done between the thirty minute trips of the night watch, who heard nothing nor saw any suspicious characters around. As yet no positive clue has been found to locate either the property or thieves.

YES!

WE GET THE RAILROAD SHOPS

If the following conditions are complied with and $6000 are raised in addition to the $15000 already pledged:

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 17, 1898.

The Detroit & Lima Northern Railway Company contemplating creating, and forever, a divisional point on its railway at Tecumseh and erecting and maintaining thereat yards, yard tracks, and three buildings for the use and convenience of said Railway Company in caring for and repairing engines and cars, said buildings to be two of brick and one of metal and in size one shall have not less than ten thousand square feet ground floor area, and each of the other two shall have a ground floor area of not less than twelve thousand eight hundred square feet, and shall be equipped with such power and with such iron and wood working machinery as said Railway Company may find necessary in caring for and repairing its engines and cars as divisional repair and supply shops. Now, in consideration of one dollar to each of us in hand paid by said Railway Company, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and in consideration of other benefits to be by us derived from such location and construction of said divisional point, shops and yards, we, each for himself, agree to pay to said Detroit & Lima Northern Railway Company or order the amount set opposite our respective names, the same to be paid as follows: Sixty-five per cent. within ten days after any two of said buildings are constructed and in use and yard tracks constructed, and the remaining thirty-five per cent. within sixty days after the third building is constructed and ready for use. It is also understood that ten acres of land will be provided by the town of Tecumseh and title thereto, free of encumbrance, conveyed to said Railway Company whereon to construct said shops and yards, and that a condition shall be inserted in said deed providing that in case said Railway Company shall ever cease to use said lands and buildings for such divisional shops and yards, said lands and buildings shall revert to and become the property of all subscribers hereto in proportion to their subscriptions.

The above proposition was obtained by the committee, who met Mr. C. N. Haskell and other railroad officials in Detroit last Saturday night, and is in black and white.

An article in Sunday's Detroit Free Pree, and repeated by the parrot-like organs in Adrian, caused some uneasiness amongst our citizens the first of the week, but the committee was only waiting for the papers which would positively secure the third shop as well as the first two. The papers came Tuesday, the citizens' committee was called together Wednesday and yesterday started the work of securing the last $6000.

In order to secure this last $6000 every person will have to add to their original pledge about 50 per cent. and indeed the soliciting committees are everjoyed to find out that with very few exceptions the people are giving this additional amount with very little urging, but everyone is interested; many have given more than they could well afford, still think it only a good business investment of money "cast upon the waters." Of the benefits of the shops there is no need to speak. Everyone knows what they are and, if every person gives what is his share, the soliciting committee will have raised the full amount by tomorrow night, and old Tecumseh will not only enter upon a new era of prosperity, but the statement can truly be made, "Not one of her citizens has refused to assist in some way."

Last Saturday night about 10 o'clock Jimmie Cook and his wife living on Union street, came down post haste and swore out a warrant for Chas. Moody and wife and Chas. Krueger and his sister, neighbors, charging that an hour or so before the quartet had jumped upon, thumped, whipped and otherwise enjoyed themselves at the expense of the complainants. As near as can be ascertained there has been bad blood existing among the contesting parties for some time, and that uncomplimentary remarks and other bouquets have been frequently exchanged. Saturday evening as the Cooks were returning home, the other parties to the racket laid for and gave them a severe chastisement. Prosecuting Attorney Bird was over investigating the case Wednesday and before Justice Wightman the defendants plead guilty to the charge of assault and battery and were fined $1 each and costs amounting to about another dollar each, which did not seem to bridge over the yawning chasm which confronts the belligerents.

WAGES IN MICHIGAN.

Result of a Canvass Just Completed by the Labor Commissioner.

Lansing, Jan. 18.—During the last few months of last year Labor Commissioner Cox had made a special canvass of nearly 12,000 tradesmen and laborers, his object being to ascertain as near as possible the average wages that were being paid in the state. The result showed that in most employments the men were receiving more pay than was supposed by the department, although some were receiving very small pay. The following facts are gleaned from the canvass:

Day laborers receive $1.25 a day, with an average of eight months' work a year; cabinetmakers, $1.40 a day, nine months' work; machine hands, $1.35 a day, nine months' work; cigarmakers, $1.66, nine months' work; carpenters, $1.72, nine months' work; machinists, $2.02, ten months' work; printers, $2.28, ten months' work; finishers, $1.37, nine months' work; bookkeepers and clerks, except clerks in stores, $1.55, eleven months' work; saw filers and tinners, $1.95, eight months' work; teamsters, $1.63, eleven months' work; shoemakers, $1.81, seven months' work; painters, $1.62, nine months' work; wood turners and carvers, $1.90, eight months' work; mill hands, $1.35, eight months' work; blacksmiths, $1.88, eleven months' work; stovemakers, $2.12, eight months' work; tanners, $1.42, eleven months' work; polishers, $1.84, eight months' work; barbers, $1.57, eleven months' work; shop foremen, $2.64, eleven months' work; packers, craters, etc., $1.37, nine months' work; bakers, $2.04, eleven months' work; firemen, except locomotive, $1.53, ten months' work; carriage workers, $1.71, eight months' work; patternmakers, $2.22, ten months' work; bookbinders, $1.66, eleven months' work; metal workers, $1.95, nine months' work; linotype operators, $3.70, eleven months' work; boilermakers, $2.13, nine months' work; masons, $2.71, six months' work; bicyclemakers, $1.65, nine months' work; coopers, $1.86, eight months' work; tinners, $1.79, ten months' work; glass workers, $1.42, nine months' work; plumbers, $1.98, ten months' work; tailors, $1.65, nine months' work; stonecutters, $2.80, eight months' work.

PATRIOTS AT A BANQUET.

Michigan Sons of American Revolution Hold Their Annual Rally.

Detroit, Jan. 18.—The Michigan Sons of the American Revolution held their annual banquet in the Russell house Monday night. The toastmaster, ex-Senator Thomas W. Palmer, voiced the hope for an alliance among the English-speaking nations, which shall eventually dominate the peace of the world. The toasts were: "The Tie That Binds France and America," responded to by James M. Richardson, of Cleveland; "Our Friends and Allies in the Northwestern Territory," by Charles Moore, of Washington; "The National Society," by Franklin Murphy, of Newark, N. J.; "Are Ours the Days of a Declining Chivalry," by Rev. Dudley W. Rhodes, D. D., of St. Paul. The future of American patriotism was portrayed by Gen. J. C. Breckinridge, U. S. A., in response to the sentiment: "What Are We Here For?"

BLAIR STATUE COMPLETE.

Will Be Placed in State Capitol Grounds Next May.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 17.—John Patton, of this city, with Gen. Withington, of Jackson, will this week visit Philadelphia to inspect and probably accept the statue of Gov. Austin Blair, ordered by the legislature for the capitol grounds at Lansing. They will also soon let the contract for the pedestal. Edward Clark Potter, sculptor of the statue, wrote some time ago that it was ready for inspection. The statue of Michigan's war governor will be placed on the capitol grounds next May, probably on Decoration day.

Judge Long's Case.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—The celebrated pension case of Judge Charles D. Long, of Michigan, on Saturday made its reappearance before the pension office in the shape of an application to Commissioner Evans to vacate the order reducing the judge's pension from $72 to $50 per month. The application was made by Fred A. Baker, who claimed that a pension once granted was a vested right, and that Judge Long is entitled to the $72 per month within the meaning of the law.

Guilty of Perjury.

Lansing, Jan. 14.—A circuit court jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Christian Breisch, a director of the People's savings bank, now in the hands of a receiver, who was charged with perjury in connection with taking the director's oath. Several other officers of the bank are under arrest.

Populists Favor Pingree.

Niles, Jan. 19.—In many counties in Michigan and Indiana clubs are being organized to boom Gov. Hazen S. Pingree for the populist nomination for president in 1900. Most of the clubs have large memberships, and they are enthusiastic in favor of Pingree.

Trust Mortgage Filed.

Adrian, Jan. 19.—The Adrian Furniture company filed a trust mortgage to secure $48,000, mostly preferred claims, banks holding about $27,000. The company has assets of $75,000. It is expected the works will arrange soon for a full settlement with creditors.

Letter Carried the Germs.

Bangor, Jan. 15.—A child of Will Lynch, living 3½ miles north of here, died of diphtheria and the district school is closed. It is stated that a letter from a neighbor who had lost a child from the same cause fell into the hands of the little one.

Jackson, Jan. 14.—Death Wednesday claimed Margaret Mogette, the oldest inmate of any poorhouse in the country. She was, according to the records, 107 years of age and went to the Jackson county poorhouse seven years ago.

Took Poison.

Sanilac Center, Jan. 14.—Matthew English, aged 65, a highly respected farmer who lived at Cheyenne post office near here, swallowed an ounce of arsenic and is dead. Deceased was an old settler in this county.

Lady Falls Dead.

Niles, Jan. 18.—While sitting in her chair, with her Bible on her lap, Mrs. John Shepard, of Sturgis, fell over dead. Heart disease was the cause.

GOOD FARM CISTERN.

How to Build One at Small Expense of Money and Work.

As good a cistern as can be made is by walling up with brick, and then cementing to make water tight, but when cheapness is to be considered, a good cistern may be made in the following manner: Dig so that it will be larger at the top than at the bottom, like an old-fashioned dash churn turned bottom side up. About two and a half or three feet from the top, cut a square shoulder in the side of cistern to begin laying brick on to make the arch. Cement it well to the earth and brick, then get a flat rock, any size to suit your convenience, cut a hole in it large enough for an average-sized man to get through; put it down in cement over the arch, and you have a good, cheap cistern.

The best filter that I ever saw, is made in the following manner: Take a good, tight barrel, knock one of the heads out; bore an inch and a half hole in the center of the other end, and put in a plug from the outside, this to be the bottom. Put a small, perforated wooden box just over this, and have the pipe through which the water runs come down through the center of the barrel and terminate in this box. The box to have the bottom side out, the pipe to come through the top of the box. Get some nice clean gravel, put in a layer of gravel and then a layer of charcoal, and so on till the barrel is half full or more; arrange it so that the last layer will be of gravel. Just above the last layer put in the pipe that runs into the cistern. Cover the barrel well so that nothing can get into it from the top. When it rains let the water in; it will filter from bottom to top instead of vice versa. Have the barrel sitting on two sills, and after the cistern is filled, take out the plug from the bottom of the barrel, and the water, in rushing out, will wash out all sediment, bugs and insects that might have run in; thus leaving the filter clean and nice, and ready for the next time.—Indiana Farmer.

THE POLE STACKER.

An Implement That Is Very Popular in the Far West.

The farmers of Utah live in towns and have but few barns or sheds on their farms, which, in many instances, are two or three miles away. They often stack hay and grain in small, fenced lots or corrals on an upland spot, where an artesian well or reservoir furnishes water, and there feed horses and cattle during the severest months of the winter. Numerous devices have been used in hay-stacking, some being too expensive and others being patented by unknown parties who occasionally demanded royalties for the use of their ideas.

The most complete and the cheapest device yet discovered is what is generally called the pole-stacker. It is simple in construction, easily handled and is not patented. Although in use but two or three years the pole has become a universal favorite and can be seen in many fields, corrals and stockyards.

POLE STACKER.

The material necessary for the pole-stacker consists of two poles 20 and 30 feet, or longer, as desired, three pulleys, two chains and two ropes. The short pole, usually a dry red pine or balsam, is set about three feet in the ground after slats have been nailed on, or pins driven in auger-holes every two feet, which makes a ladder for getting up and down when necessary to fix the top chain or drop the lifting-pole. A short chain is fastened around the standing-pole and left to drop about two feet, where it hooks around the stacker. This gives the pole plenty of play and enables the man on the stack or wagon to swing it around at will. The long pole is chained at the butt end with a chain which regulates the height of the stack and holds the stacker in place after being swung around for the hay on the wagon. The pulleys, ropes and fork are handled as with other stackers.—Joel Shomaker, in Farm and Fireside.

HELPFUL FARM NOTES,

Do not put all out doors into wheat because of the promise of the wheat market.

The future farmer must be educated. If our boys cannot attend the agricultural college, a systematic course of agricultural reading is possible during the winter evenings, and the time could not be better employed.

Our country roads are best in autumn, but farmers are not always then ready to haul their produce to market. Speed the day when the roads will be good all the year, that the producer may be no longer handicapped as he has been.

When grasses are grown and then pastured or fed to stock during the winter, and the manure carefully saved and returned to the soil, the loss in fertility is practically nothing and this is the ideal manner of keeping up the farm.

It is now accepted by all that in the rotation of crops the farmer only follows nature. When a pine forest is cleared oaks at once spring up in their place, and vice versa. When a gap occurs in a hedge it is useless to attempt to refill it with a plant of the same species, and some other kind must be used.

CALLED UPON FOR HELP.

Gov. Pingree Asks Aid from Residents of Michigan for the Suffering Cubans.

HE SENDS FORTH A PROCLAMATION.

The Recent Suggestion of President McKinley Prompts His Action—Full Text of His Appeal—Names of Men Who Will Receive Contributions.

Lansing, Jan. 17.—Gov. Pingree is taking quite a lively interest in the cause of the Cuban sufferers and has issued the following proclamation to the people of the state in response to the appeals sent out by the chairman of the Cuban central relief committee.

To the People of Michigan—In compliance with the request of President McKinley urging upon the governors of the several states the necessity of asking the people to contribute to the relief of the destitute and suffering Cubans by the appointment of efficient committeemen to solicit funds, food, clothing and medicine for their relief, I have appointed the gentlemen named below. This is the first opportunity that the people of this state have had to express their sympathy, in a substantial manner, for this suffering people, and I hereby solicit a hearty response from all sections of the state to the president's earnest appeal. The gentlemen appointed on the committee are well known. Contributions may be made to them for forwarding to Allen Sheldon, Levi L. Barbour or C. A. Black, Detroit, Mich.

"The other members of the committee are: A. T. Bliss, Ralph Loveland and W. Q. Atwood, Saginaw; H. F. Colby, Dowagiac; Carl G. A. Voigt, Grand Rapids; D. A. Blodgett, Grand Rapids; James Davidson, Bay City; Edwin C. Nichols, Battle Creek; J. H. Kellogg, Battle Creek; M. H. Lane and Otto Ehling, Kalamazoo; Fred Lee, Dowagiac; Thomas A. SANITARIUM IS TO BE SOLD.

Adventist Institution at Battle Creek Under the Hammer.

Battle Creek, Jan. 15.—The Adventist sanitarium will be sold at auction January 27. The sale will take place at the courthouse in Marshall. The advertisement is signed by Dr. Kellogg as receiver of the health reform institute, which includes the sanitarium. The sale does not mean any radical change in management or policy of the institution. It is believed that Dr. Kellogg will be the successful bidder. Not only the real estate, but the furnishings, even to the dishes and tableware, will be sold, and before a bid will be considered its maker must deposit a check for $50,000.

Cured by Prayer.

Benton Harbor, Jan. 19.—Miss Mary Shafer, a 16-year-old girl, who has been in bed six weeks, and who was given up to die Sunday, stopped taking medicine on that day, and since then she and members of the "Saints of God" have been almost continuously praying for her recovery. Tuesday she left her bed and was taken out of doors. She had nearly lost speech Sunday, but can now talk without difficulty, and says the praying did it.

Fire in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 17.—Fire at eight o'clock Saturday night partially destroyed a four-story block, corner of Louis and Campau streets. The losers are Harvey & Heystek Co., wall paper, paints and oils, $8,000; William Reed, glass, $5,000; Ideal Clothing company, overalls, etc., $4,000. Loss on building $4,500. All losses are well covered by insurance.

To Investigate in Mexico.

Lansing, Jan. 15.—The Michigan Republican Newspaper Puplishers' association has decided to send a representative to Mexico to investigate various aspects of the operation of the unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, and to report the result in a series of letters to the republican newspapers of the state.

Get More Wages.

Ironwood, Jan. 19. — The Metropolitan Iron and Land company, operating the Norrie group of mines and employing 1,000 men, has announced a raise in wages to go into effect February 1. It is not given out what the raise will be, but it will probably be ten per cent. at least.

Coal in Saginaw County.

Saginaw, Jan. 15.—Excitement over the coal-mining prospects in this region is growing daily. Agents for big eastern concerns are here securing leases on all the land they can get hold of. Coal in five-foot veins is being found in all parts of Saginaw county almost daily.

Gift from a Queen.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 19.—Henry Brakeman, secretary of the Holland Home for the Aged, recently wrote to Queen Wilhelmina telling her the objects of the home. He has just received an acknowledgment of his letter, and with it 100 guilders (about $40) to help the work along.

Edison Homestead in Ashes.

Port Huron, Jan. 17.—The old Edison homestead was destroyed by fire Friday night. Inventor Thomas A. Edison's father lived there for years, and Edison himself spent many days there. The house stood in a large grove on the lake shore, outside the city limits.

said the driver: "the game is a big ditch around the side of that butte, and another garden of Eden blossoming out right here where we are standing!"

"Oh!" said the oiler.

"Oh, the deuce!" said the kicker.

The promoter went to a big eastern city and opened an office on a busy street. Conspicuous signs announced cheap and fertile irrigated lands in the golden west. Few in the passing crowds noticed, but many saw, the windows dressed with tempting fruits. Some entered the office. Baxter street methods are not available in the real estate business, but once inside his doors our promoter asked odds of no dealer and rarely failed of interesting and convincing those who crossed his threshold. His forte was frankness. A plump and healthy-looking man, with nothing sinister about him except a habit of looking out at his customers from under half-closed eyelids, he received them without effusion and opened upon them in this manner:

"Fruits in the window raised on our lands? Certainly not. Our lands have no improvements whatever upon them. That's why we offer them so cheap—$150 per acre, and half on time. But look at this map. Right here is our property. Just seven miles north is Highgrove, the famous orange colony; these specimens were grown there. Land worth $1,500 an acre. Ten miles west of us is Colside—finest deciduous land, except ours, in the state. These cherries and apricots grew there. Come in next week and see the early peaches from that section. We combine the advantages of both these communities. Level, fertile land pure mountain water. We can raise anything on earth. Why has our tract not been improved before? Because it takes large capital to bring the water to it. We are capitalized at one million and can get more if we need it. Here, take a copy of our prospectus—and, hold on, just fill your pockets with fruit, and when you get home tell your wife of this chance we are offering people to secure a home and a profitable business in the fruit belt of California at a nominal cost. We raise the price to $200 per acre next month. If you buy before you start you get one-half your transportation."

Among many who heard this siren song was a young drug clerk, lately married, who was looking about for something better than the living afforded by his present employment. After several visits to the land agent, he one night astounded his wife with the announcement that he had bought ten acres of California land and had given up his place in the store to go west. She cried a little—women are so deficient in enterprise, so fearful of the new and untried—but early autumn saw the plan carried out.

It was in the month of September that Fred Fisher and his wife first saw their California fruit farm.

They were among the first arrivals in the new colony, and the big field of stubble still had few other settlers than the wary jackrabbit and the whistling quail. A row of white flags on laths showed the line of survey for a canal, and parallel intersecting furrows at regular intervals indicated the streets and avenues. By the aid of the map furnished purchasers our clerk identified the "choice" selection which he had made, and knew so little of the requirements of irrigation that he was rather pleased to find it upon a little knoll. Busy days followed; the cabin which was to serve as a dwelling until a more pretentious house should be built from the profits of the orchard was soon put up and occupied. Many other newcomers were building near them.

"When I get over my homesickness I shall like this, Fred," said the wife one day; "that is, if we can make a living here."

"There are twenty ways of doing that," he answered; "and the man said the orchard would be productive in three years."

"But the water?" she questioned.

"Oh, the superintendent is sure the canal will be finished before next spring, and he says that I can have work with the construction force all winter."

Two years later the bubble had burst and the canal company was hopelessly insolvent. It had furnished much work and little pay to Fred and to a hundred other settlers as unsophisticated as he. The canal was incomplete; not a drop of water had ever reached the parched soil upon the little knoll they called their home. Even the customary rainy season had failed them, and the effort to raise a crop of grain upon their small holding had resulted only in loss of labor and of seed. The wife had been hopeful and helpful until the baby came to the cabin for a little time and thence to a neighboring cemetery. Now she was very ill, and Fred was impoverished.

The old farmer had foreclosed on his blanket mortgage, and already with his gang plows was restoring the big field to its former aspect. The cabins that dotted it here and there, if not removed by the settlers, were torn down when the plows reached them, and only ragged board piles and mounds of earth where cellars had been dug marked their former sites.

Fred took his wife to a hospital in the county town and she died there.

In a few months the winter rains will transform all the landscape into fields of living green. Then, out of the abandoned colony, the little cellar mounds at each cabin site will look like sodded graves.

Fred is in the Highland asylum.

THE HERON'S NEST.

Down in the sedge by the river
That flows from the south to the west,
By the iris' blue pennants, a-quiver,
There builded a heron her nest.
With hay from the lowland meadow,
With twig from the forest tree,
With moss from the woodland shadow,
She wrought it cunningly.
Then, with mother love, she brooded above,
And—hark! to the children three.

With the mists of the dawn upcurling
In vaporous wreaths to the sky,
The heron, her wings unfurling,
Went forth from her children's cry.
"When the lamps," she said, "of Heaven
Shall burn o'er the land and the sea,
In the cool of the dewy even
To my home I will hasten me."
Then, in search of food, went she from her brood,
And—alas! for the children three.

The eve was fled, and the stars had burned them
Adown to their sockets' edge,
The dawn was chill, and the nestlings turned them
In lone unrest in the sedge.
But home no more came the heron ever,
From over the land and the sea;
Through the even song, and the dawning, never
In all the years came she;
For the bullet had sped, and the heron dead,
Lay—afar from the children three.

THE PROMOTER.

By G. B. Dunham.

THE SCHEME of the California Consolidated Ditch company comprised a dam across a mountain stream, a storage reservoir, a canal several miles in length curving around the base of a granite butte, and farmers galore upon the subjacent plain. The company was capitalized at $1,000,000, and its sole assets consisted of articles of incorporation, office furniture, and a promoter. This may seem a high inventory value for a promoter, but a good one is worth it, and this man certainly had his work cut out for him.

With an empty treasury, it became necessary to reverse the rule obtaining in similar engineering operations of beginning at the head of the works, and to secure first the land, secondly the settlers, and lastly the water. The lands included in this proposition were in use as grain fields and sheep ranges, and as such were valued at but a few dollars per acre. With water for irrigation, they could be subdivided into ten-acre fruit farms and sold for 20-fold their present value. The problem before the promoter was to buy these lands without money, to sell them without water, and to get rich from a commission of 15 per cent. The company's problem was to build the irrigation works out of the proceeds of land sales, and to pay for the land later from money received for water tolls. The promoter's instructions were Biblical: "What thou hast to do, do quickly." But on long time, sell for cash or good paper. The operation was to be equivalent to kiting checks on a grand scale. If they succeeded, they were financiers; if they failed, scamps.

"Fail?" quoth the promoter. "It isn't on the cards. Within two years we shall have every ten-acre tract sold and improved; in five years we shall be shipping fruit by the train load. It is the chance of a lifetime to secure, at nominal cost, a home in the citrus belt."

In one of the hot interior valleys of California, on a still June morning, a vast field of ripe barley spread out on a rolling plain, at the base of the butte, like a great copper-colored blanket. It was as though the towering mountain had risen suddenly from sleep and flung aside his covering. A harvesting machine, itself well proportioned to the largeness of the task, moved slowly along the margin of the grain field, unraveling the blanket in strips 20 feet wide. This modern evolution of the sickle and the flail cut the grain, threshed it, put it into sacks, and scattered the straw. Forty mules, eight abreast, tugged and sweated at their task as they dragged the machine upon the long slope. A cloud of protesting locusts in front, a dust and chaff cloud following—these with the four men of the crew were all the life and all the movement within the prospect.

"This is a fine morning—I don't think," said the man at the water-butt, putting his head into a bucketful. "Is that breeze never a-coming? I've seen the sand-augers down the valley for an hour."

"Hand me up a can of that stuff and don't get impatient," replied the driver. "It is only about ten o'clock. You'll have a chance to sizzle for an hour yet."

The machine groaned and lumbered along to the next corner, where a halt gave the kicker a chance to resume: "Say, is this place actually hotter than every other place?"

"Oh, I don't know," was the rejoinder; "but I know you will think so wherever you happen to be, in this world or the next one."

"No wonder the old man has sold this ranch for just about money enough to oil the machine one season."

"What do you mean? I heard eight dollars an acre."

"He told me himself that he got only $100 cash and gave two years' time. I reckon he will get the land back. He sold it twice before."

"If he does get the land again he'll be out two crops of grain," persisted the kicker.

"Much you know about it," said the driver. "I tell you the old man is a weather sharp. He figures on a couple of dry seasons after this big crop. He will save his seed and rest up the land, get a small payment or two from these fellows, and in about three years we will be cutting him the biggest crop he ever raised, with the mules a-sweating and you a-kicking at every corner, just like now."

"What's the lay, anyhow?" asked the kicker.

"Why, haven't you heard about it?"

The Loss of the "Earl of Eldon."

ON THE 24th of August I embarked on board the ship "Earl of Eldon," of London, 600 tons, Capt. Theaker, at Bombay, with a view of returning to my native land on furlough. She was one of the finest and strongest ships in the trade, and any insurance might have been had on the chances of her successfully resisting the winds and waves. She was laden with cotton. The number of individuals on board were 45, including three ladies and an infant and the captain and his crew. It unfortunately happened that the cotton had been brought on board in a damp state, not being dried at the warehouse previously to being put on board, and it seems not unlikely that the fire damp may have been generated within, in the same manner as in a haystack when it has been stacked damp.

On the 26th of September, after a series of baffling winds and calms, and heavy rain with squalls of wind, we got into seven degrees 27 minutes south latitude; and the trade wind appeared to have fairly caught hold of our sails. We began now to anticipate our arrival at the Cape. On the morning of the 27th I rose early (about half past five) and went on deck. I found one of my fellow passengers there, and we perceived a steam apparently arising from the fore hatchways. I mentioned at the time to H—— that I thought it might be caused by fire damp, and, if not immediately checked, might become fire. The captain came on deck, and I asked him what it was; he answered steam, and that it was common enough in cotton-loaded ships when the hatches were opened. I said nothing, but the smoke becoming more dense and beginning to assume a different color, I began to think that all was not right, and also that he had some idea of the kind, as I saw the carpenter cutting holes in the deck just above the place whence the smoke appeared to come.

I went down to dress, and about half past six the captain knocked at my door and told me that part of the cotton was on fire, and he wished to see all the gentlemen passengers on deck. We accordingly assembled, and he then stated the case to be this: That some part of the cargo appeared to have spontaneously ignited, and that he purposed removing the bales until they should discover the ignited ones and have them thrown overboard, as well as those which appeared to be in the same damaged condition; and that it being necessary, in his opinion, to do this, he deemed it his duty to lay the case before us. We of course submitted everything to his judgment, and he ordered the hands to breakfast as quickly as possible, and to work to discover the source of the fire.

After breakfast he said there did not appear to be any immediate danger. However, about eight o'clock the smoke became much thicker and began to roll through the after hatchway, the draught having been admitted forward in order to enable the men to work. Several bales were removed, but the heat began to be intolerable below, and the smoke rolled out in suffocating volumes; and before nine o'clock we discovered that part of the deck had caught fire, which obliged the men to discontinue their labors. The captain then ordered the hatches to be battened down, with a view to keep the fire from bursting out, and to hoist out all the boats and stock them in case of necessity. This was done, and about half-past one the three ladies, two sick passengers, an infant and a female servant were put in the longboat, with 216 gallons of water, 20 gallons of brandy and biscuit for a month's consumption, together with such pots of jam and preserved meats as we could get at, and the day's provision of fresh and salted meat. It was now about two o'clock; the hatches were then opened and all hands set to work to endeavor to extinguish the fire. The main hatchway being lifted and a tarpaulin removed, there was a sail underneath which was so hot that the men could hardly remove it. When they did the heat and smoke came up worse than ever, and it being now known from inspection that the fire was underneath that part, orders were given to hoist out the uppermost bales in order to get at those that were burning underneath. But when the men laid hold of the lashings to introduce a crane-hook they were found to have been burned through beneath and came away in their hands. The case now appeared bad indeed. However, we cut a bale open and tried to remove it by handfuls, but the smoke and heat became so overpowering that no man could stand over it, and water in the quantities we dared to use it only seemed to increase it, for had the captain ventured to pump water into the ship sufficient to extinguish the fire the bales would have swelled so much as to burst open the deck.

Under these circumstances, perceiving the case to be utterly hopeless, the captain called us together on the poop and asked if anyone could propose any expedient likely to avail in extinguishing the fire and saving the ship. As in that case, said he, we will stick by her while a hope remains. It was unanimously agreed that all had been done that could be done; the men had been most arduous in their exertions, but one and all seemed positively decided that the case was hopeless. The heat was increasing so much that it became dangerous to leave the poop; the captain therefore requested the gentlemen to get into the boats; next he embarked his men, and at three o'clock he himself left the ship, the last man who did so, just as the flames were bursting through the quarter deck. We then put off the two boats, towing the longboat. The progress of the ship had been previously stopped by backing her yards, and when we were about a mile from her she was in one blaze and her masts began to fall in. Between eight and nine o'clock all her masts had fallen in and she had burned to the water's edge; suddenly there was a bright flash, followed by a dull and heavy explosion; the fire having reached the powder. For a few seconds the splinters and flaming fragments glittered in the air and then all was darkness, for the waters had closed over the "Earl of Eldon."

Sad was the prospect now before us! There were in the long boat the captain and 25 persons, including an infant four months old; the size of the boat 23 feet long by 7½ broad; in each of the others ten individuals, including the officer in charge. One of the boats had some bags of biscuit, but the chief provision was in the long boat. We were, by rough calculation about 1,000 miles from Rodrigue and 450 from Diego Garcias, the largest of the Chagos islands; but to get there we must pass through the squally latitudes we had just left, and be subject to variable winds and heavy weather or calms, neither of which we were prepared to resist. Seeing, then, that our stock of food was sufficient, we determined on trying for Rodrigue, and, having humbly committed ourselves to the guidance of that Providence in whom alone we had hope, we accomplished rigging the boats, and got under sail. On the third day of our boat navigation the weather began to threaten a change, but as we were in the trade we did not apprehend foul or contrary winds. In the course of the night it blew fresh with rain; we were totally without shelter, and the sea dashing its spray over us drenched us and spoiled some of our biscuit. The weather grew worse, and one of our small boats, in which were Mr. Simpson, the second mate, with nine others, was split by the sea. She came alongside, and we put the carpenter into her, who made what repairs he could, but with little hope that they would answer. We then proceeded to fasten a sprayeloth of canvas along our weather gunwale, having lashed a bamboo four feet up the mast and fixed it on the intersection of two stancheons, at the same height above the stern; the sprayeloth was firmly lashed along so as to form a kind of penthouse roof. Toward evening it blew hard, and, not thinking the other damaged boat safe, we took in the crew and abandoned her. We were now 36 persons, stowed as thick as we could be, and obliged to throw over all superfluities, and we had not more than eight inches of clear gunwale out of the water. Wet, gloomy and miserable, the night passed away; at last the day broke, and though the weather was still very bad, I again felt hope, which had never entirely forsaken me, that we would still weather the storm. During the last night the sea had broken right over us more than once; one sea came roaring down, and while I held my breath with horror it broke right over our stern, wet the poor ladies to their throats and carried away the steersman's hat. The captain then cried out in a tone calculated to inspire us with confidence: "That's nothing; it's all right; bale away, my boys!" He never expected us to live out the night, but harassed as he was both in mind and body he gallantly stood up, and never, by word or deed, betrayed a feeling that might tend to sink our hopes. He stood on the bench that livelong night, nor did he ever attempt to sleep for nearly 48 hours.

Later the weather began to moderate, and we enjoyed a comparative degree of comfort. We had three small meals of biscuit and some little jam, etc., and three half pints of water per day, with brandy if we liked it. The men had one gill of spirits allowed them daily. Thus we had enough for necessity, and I incline to attribute to our having no more the good state of bodily health we enjoyed. The ladies were most deserving compassion and praise, and never uttered one single word like repining or complaint.

On the eleventh evening we began to look out for Rodrigue; the captain told us not to be too sanguine, as his compass was not to be depended on after the rough treatment it had met with. The night fell, and I went forward to sleep. About dawn I was awakened by the cry that land was ahead. I looked and saw nothing through the mist. An instant after I informed the captain that I could see no land every person in that boat was awake. Every eye was strained in the direction the captain indicated. Some thought they could see land; others had their visions blurred by phantom ships, and finally the tears from their overexerted eyes shut out their vision to such an extent that their imagination ceased to act.

"Where is it?" "What is it?" "I can't see anything," and dozens of similar questions were asked in as many seconds.

Daylight was now asserting itself a little more, and the captain had the boat brought to, and she drifted about for an hour. Rodrigue appeared right ahead, distant about six miles, and by eight o'clock we were all safely landed. A fisherman who came off to show us the way through the reefs received us in his house and proceeded to feed us, and, in the meantime, sent to tell the people of the island of our arrival. Two of them came down immediately, and, having heard our story, said that we had been most miraculously preserved. Every arrangement was made for our comfort, and during the period of our stay at Rodrigue we were treated with such invariable kindness and attention as demands from us the fullest expression of our gratitude toward those to whom we are under so many obligations, without forgetting our paramount obligations to that Power by whom we were preserved through all the dangers that had surrounded us.—N. Y. Ledger.

FIRST WOMAN'S CLUB.

It Was Founded in Philadelphia Over a Century Ago.

The first woman's club founded in America, or at least the first about which we have authentic information, was held in the city of Penn 102 years ago, under the name of "The Female Society for the Relief and Improvement of the Poor." It was begun and organized by a Quaker spinster, Anne Parish, who was born in 1760 and died just before the nineteenth century began, at the end of the year 1800. The society consisted first of 23 young, accomplished women of the best families, who met every week to go about among the poor and needy. When the city was visited by yellow fever, shortly after the formation of the club, the mettle of its members was tried and found to ring true; while most who had the means fled from the town, these 23 Quaker women stayed with Anne Parish and fought the plague, raising money, visiting the dying, clothing the well and comforting the bereaved. From that time to the present the society has endured and continued in the work thus early initiated; the granddaughters and great-granddaughters of the first founders, who have inherited the club membership along with their Quaker traditions, their fine old family names that still count in Philadelphia society, are now preparing to celebrate the club's one hundred and second birthday. The membership is passed down through the eldest daughter, and the methods are not altered from those first chosen; there is no president nor vice president, the only officers being two clerks, a treasurer and a committee of 13; the prominent work of the club is the maintenance of a "house of industry," where nearly 100 old Quaker women of indigent circumstances go daily to sew, knit and mend in comfortable quarters in the house on North Seventh street, which the club has lodged in since the middle of this century. The women are paid good wages for their work and are given a good meal in the middle of the day, besides being provided with easy-chairs while they work. The society women provide them with sewing and bachelors send thither for their mending.—Philadelphia Ledger.

NEW DRESSING SACQUE.

Combination of Flannel and Linen That Washes Well.

Very dainty women do not like dressing sacques that will not wash. They much prefer simpler fabrics that "do up" to soiled silk and mussed-up velvet. It is understood that a dressing sacque means a garment that protects the underwear when the hair is combed.

A decidedly French dressing sacque has a yoke of embroidered brown linen, upon which plaits of old rose flannel are attached so as to form a waist. These plaits are put on separately and are gathered in under a crushed belt. Underneath there is a very dainty sunplaited lining of old rose silk. This lining shows between the plaits. The sleeves are full and there are wide turnback cuffs of embroidered linen that can be pulled to the shoulders.

The yoke can be trimmed with bands of wash silk, if desired, to match the belt. An experienced laundress will "set" her colors before washing the goods, just as they do at the cleaner's.

Treatment of Stained Floors.

Stained floors should be restained at least once a year. Have the floor thoroughly scrubbed and dried before going over with the paint and varnish. To secure the best results, the stain should be put on first and allowed to dry before the coating of varnish is added. A mixture of warm water, soap and household ammonia is the best fluid one can use for cleaning board floors. Never use a scrubbing brush on a painted, stained or varnished floor. Use a soft mop. Ink spots may be easily removed by rubbing them with spirits of salts, and grease will disappear after an application of fuller's earth.

Worry Claims Many Victims.

Modern science has brought to light nothing more curiously interesting than the fact that worry will kill, and the way in which it kills is stated to be that the worry injures beyond repair certain cells of the brain. The brain being the nutritive center of the body, the other organs become gradually injured, and when some disease of these organs or a combination of them arises, death finally ensues. Occasional worrying of the system the brain can cope with, but the iteration and reiteration of one idea of a disquieting sort the cells of the brain are not proof against.—Pharmaceutical Products.

One Way to Cook Onions.

Remove the tops, tails and thin outer skin of the onions, but no more, lest the onions cook to pieces. Spread them over the bottom of a pan large enough to hold them without placing one onion upon another. Barely cover them with salted water and let them simmer gently until they are well cooked, without breaking to pieces. Then serve with melted butter.

NEW HOUSE DRESS.

Hint for Women Who Study New Things to Wear Indoors.

A house novelty is a dress of lavender, with bunches of wisteria and wisteria leaves running all over it. This is naturally a conspicuous design, made more so by the treatment which it is to receive.

A dress which is positively attractive in its showiness was made of this material, with a very full skirt. At the waist line the skirt was laid in tiny tucks that formed a vest. Above the vest the material flared, standing out in a full puffing all around the figure.

The tucks looked not unlike a high girdle, and would have been taken for such at first glance. A lace yoke with deep purple velvet revers and collar was worn with the gown. This yoke can be changed, and a white or lavender one substituted. A dress like this is suitable only for the house, but on dark and gloomy days it is quite the most cheerful thing to be seen.

NOVELTIES IN SILVER.

Dainty Articles for Birthday and Wedding Presents.

Of silver novelties there is really never an end. The demand for something new in sterling is so great that the manufacturers are always at work getting up new designs.

One of the prettiest, and perhaps the latest, in these is a duster which is made of a fox's brush. The tail of the fox is mounted upon a silver handle and used like a feather duster. Of course it is hung in a conspicuous place as an ornament when not in use.

The latest silver powder boxes are enormous, being fully eight inches across. They are of cut glass, with silver or silver gilt tops. They are kept only partly filled with powder, and the little pink or blue powder puff shows very prettily through the cut glass.

A useful thing is the opera vinaigrette. It is also of cut glass. It has a division in the middle, which makes it possible to carry aromatic salts in one end and a favorite perfumed salt in the other. The top can be of silver, with a monogram cut in the glass.

Rhinestones and Brilliants.

The taste for rhinestones and French brilliants increases constantly. Merchants display a wonderful assortment of dress trimming scintillating with these mock gems, and milliners take varied assortments of pins, brooches and fanciful ornaments set with these stones to insert among the foliage and flowers with which their hats and bonnets are laden. Slides set with rows of pebbles are worn on neck ribbons, and single glittering stones are mounted in metal so that they can be sewn on velvet in sparkling arabesques.

Excellent Floor Polish.

Here is an excellent floor polish, the recipe for which comes from Japan: To one pint of linseed oil add a pint of strong cold tea, two ounces of spirits of salts and the whites of two eggs. Mix thoroughly and pour into a large bottle. Shake the bottle well before applying the polish. Pour half a teaspoonful on a mop or pad of old soft silk and rub the wood with it, following up the grain. Polish with an old silk handkerchief. The result will compensate for the tedious and careful labor necessary.

GOT THE BACKACHE?

If You Have, Here's the Way to Rid Yourself of the Weariness and Pain Attending It.

Some people suffer with headaches, many people are worn out and weary all the time, many more people have lame back and backache. Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can find a cure. Just a word of explanation before we prove that what we say is true. The back is the key-note of the kidneys. It aches; that's a sign that the kidneys are not working properly; it is lame; another sign, the kidneys are out of order. The kidneys, you know, are the filters of the blood, but filters sometimes get clogged up. This means in their case that the blood courses through the entire system impregnated with poisonous uric acid, bringing on many a disorder which, if neglected, means disease perhaps incurable. And now about the cure:—Don't take our word for it; read what others say:

Mr. David C. Oaks is proprietor of the well known hardware and paint shop at 220 East Main Street, Kalamazoo. Mr. Oaks has suffered a great deal from kidney ailments; he described his condition and cure as follows: "I had a bad, lame back, which I suppose was caused by my kidneys; was confined to my bed during bad attacks. I might say, from time to time, I have been in that condition for years. The urinary organism was affected, urine being scanty, highly colored, and difficult in passage. I was in a bad shape when I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, about which I had heard. I have used now two boxes of them, and the pills have removed all the pain and trouble. There was a marked improvement right from the first, and it has continued right along. Doan's Kidney Pills are the right thing in the right place."

The Yellow Dragon.

HE was a quaint old yellow dragon, with a pointed tail and big wings and time-worn claws, and a ferocious expression which the designer's gluminess, or the wear and tear of 50 winters, had made perilously near a grin. Yet, after all, perhaps he had cause to smile, since he had seen the third generation of bookish lovers sitting on the marble rim of the idle fountain, or whispering nonsense as they walked, with arms entwined, along its grassy borders.

This afternoon, when pretty Violet Newman came tripping down the mossy path, in her new, white gown with its favor of pink roses, and her saucy little hat half falling from her chestnut curls; when she greeted him with a kiss of the hand from afar, and dropped him a mocking courtesy as she reached his precincts—why, even a stone monster was bound to smile. Indeed, when she tiptoed to reach down his capacious throat with her small white hand, a casual observer would have sworn that he winked—though really it was an affection of the eyes for which a boy of two generations back (now a portly dean) was responsible. The dragon was, in truth, of very hard material, and his command of countenance was limited. But he looked at Violet as sweetly as he could, and no one who knew her would blame him.

When she drew a paper from between his threatening jaws and glanced at it, she gave a harmless little frown, and contorted her red lips into a pout. "Bother!" she said. "I'm ready on dragon!" But he imagined all the same and swallowed the paper without a murmur, when she released it. Then she seated herself daintily upon the marble rim, leaning against an urn full of scarlet flowers, and opened a book; but something seemed to distract her. "I wonder," she said, musingly, resting her round chin upon one hand and looking inquiringly at the dragon. But he only smiled and winked with his injured eye. "I wonder," she repeated a few minutes later, listening intently. It looked as though she might be attending to the pleas of the lark who was swimming up towards the sun, or the bleating of the young lambs in the meadow beyond the trees. But the dragon, who had seen the three generations of lovers, knew better than that. He would have chuckled, if the structural limitations had been less stringent, when a well-built young fellow vaulted the fence, just by the warning to trespassers, and came lightly towards the fountain; and Violet's absorption in her book became profound.

As he reached the monster he paused, and she looked up. Their eyes met and changed together from expectation, through doubt and disappointment, to mutual approval; as though each had expected some one else, but had found a tolerable substitute.

"I beg your pardon. I am trespassing, I fear?" he apologized, raising his hat.

"Well—yes, unless you are going to Mr. Newman's. I'm afraid you are." It was dull at Duckworth, and she wasn't quite sure that she didn't know him. That was how she came to smile upon him—ever such a little smile. So he stopped, with his hat in his hand, leaning against the pedestal of the old yellow dragon.

"I don't know Mr. Newman very well," he explained, studying her very carefully, "but his niece, Violet Newman, and I were playmates when we were youngsters."

"Indeed!" said she, with a start and a bright flash of her eyes. "Do you know very long ago?"

"Why, yes. It is over seven years." He sighed; which was absurd, because they had been very good years to him.

"She has altered very much since then," she observed, thoughtfully.

"You know her?"

"Of course. You see I am a niece of Mr. Newman, too. He has about 40—all different!"

"You are certainly very different from my little friend Violet, as I remember her," said he, looking admiringly at her pretty face and slim figure. Man is an inconsistent animal. "Though for a moment I thought perhaps you were she."

"Ah!" said she, with a laugh, "you would find her quite changed—almost as different from what she was as I am."

"Yes," he observed, thoughtfully, "that's the worst of it." She bit her lip angrily.

"Are you so much attached to her memory?"

"Well—I was." He looked very pleasant as he laughed.

"Flattery is nearly as bad as inconstancy," she remarked sternly. "But I suppose you want to get me to talk about her?"

"Yes," assented he; "or anything."

"You are Mr. Mostyn, then, I suppose?"

"Richard Mostyn, at your service."

"Vi told me about you once."

"Did she, by Jove! What did she say?"

"Well, I scarcely remember; it's such a long time ago. I think she took your boy-and-girl affair rather seriously, you know."

There was a far-away look in her big dark eyes, and she laid her book on the grass beside her.

"O," said he, eagerly, "so did I. We used to meet here nearly every morning till I went away. We made this old dragon's mouth"—he patted its head familiarly—"a post office when one of us couldn't turn up. Did she tell you that?"

"Yes, she told me—a long time ago."

"Probably she has forgotten now."

"Most likely. But she is a strange girl; rather loyal, you know."

"She was an awfully nice youngster."

"That is very pretty."

"It is perfectly true."

It happened, oddly enough that Ardsley chanced not to have heard of Miss Hampden's reputation by the next night. He was rudely awakened to a knowledge of it. There were private theatricals in the hoproom, and Miss Hampden was the leading lady. Now the suitor was quite recovered, and he meant to play a joke on those in the audience who were not—and these were some eight or ten, three of them married. He proposed to the heroine in nicely read lines, and was rejected by her with a perfection that spoke her practice. So the audience thought; and it laughed. When the laugh had subsided, the hero arose from his knees. He walked to the footlights and sighed.

"Ah! well," he said, "I have one crumb of comfort. I am not the only man in this place who is in the same fix."

The astounded Ardsley looked about him, and he picked out the entire number by their faces. Miss Hampden dropped her head in her hands and laughed with the rest.

Between the acts, Ardsley made inquiries, and learned the truth. He was bitten with a desire to obtain the unattainable, and he was not one to dally. He went behind the scenes.

"Whom are you going home with, Miss Hampden?" he asked.

"I fear no one will take me after the light Mr. Graves has put me in."

"May I do so?"

She nodded, and Ardsley went back to his seat.

"So you have refused the entire army?" he mused, as they walked home.

"Not quite."

"The entire department?"

"Well, a fair percentage of it," she admitted.

"Are you going to refuse me?"

"I can't say until you are offered."

"I offer myself now."

"And I accept you now."

"Good enough. Will you announce our engagement to-night at supper?"

"At the risk of being judged insane—yes."

"Put on your ring until I can get you another. Your hands are not small. It will fit your middle finger. Now I am in earnest."

"So am I," she said.

They were very much in earnest, the event proved, and the garrison derived much pleasure from the total, unconditional, obvious surrender of Miss Hampden. She was as open in her infatuation as she had always been in everything else. And Ardsley was equally infatuated. He took back the class ring and gave her a diamond which cost him three months' pay. They were altogether happy. So, just a fortnight before the day arranged for their wedding, the gods demanded the first payment on their loan.

Ardsley was ordered off on a scout. Miss Hampden was the sort of a girl who might have been expected to take this reasonably. But she did not. She clung to Ardsley and cried like any little girl, and did not behave in the least like a woman who had seen countless scouts. And she let him go to the wars, remembering her standing with her arm against the wall and her head upon her arm, sobbing as if her heart were utterly broken. He himself was moved and stern. Loving would have liked to remind her that hearts which were really wrung did not show their pain. He had not yet recovered.

Ardsley did not come back from the scout. He was in a fight or what should have been his wedding day. Others were killed and their bodies were recovered and buried, but Ardsley's body was never found. There was a tale that a fire had been seen on the battlefield the night after the encounter, and in the midst of the fire a tree with a form which might have been that of a man against it. There were Indians grouped around it. Miss Hampden never heard the story. She never even guessed at what had happened until 20 years afterward.

She was the superb and spiritless wife of a mighty general, and she was accompanying her husband on a tour of inspection in the west. They were at an agency one day and were visiting the tepees. It was the agency of the Indians that young Ardsley had fought two decades before, and the general's wife was nerving herself not to show that she remembered this.

The general was examining the trinkets that hung on a string around the neck of a half-blind squaw.

"Here is a West Point class ring!" he exclaimed.

His wife repeated her words of 20 years a-past.

"May I see it?" she asked, coolly.

She took it in her hands and turned it about. She could make out the design, though it seemed to have passed through some heat that had melted it. There was no doubt in her mind. Nevertheless she looked inside. The heat had not affected it there, and the initials were quite plain even yet.

"D. A.," she said; "it was David Ardsley's ring. The fire did not touch the letters. I understand now why they never could tell me which was his grave."

The general broke the string and picked up the class ring from among the scattered baubles. The squaw was chattering and whining and clawing around on the earth. The general held the ring out to his wife. She raised the dark eyes that had been so bright and happy the last time it had been held out to her.

"Can I have it?" she asked.

The general put it in her hand, and the hand closed over it.

"Thank you," she said.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Japanese courtesy stands the latest test. An American riding a bicycle in Tokio accidentally knocked down a venerable man. The aged victim gathered himself together, deferentially approached the rider, and humbly begged pardon for being in his "honorable way."

SURGEON'S DILEMMA.

A Lewiston physician tells a story about a surgical operation and an electric light, says the Journal of that city.

"It was 12 o'clock at night," says he, "when I heard a thunderous knocking at my door, and going to it I found a man walking up and down the steps in pain. He had an abscess under his left arm, and was suffering intensely. It needed lancing, and we proceeded to do it. I got my instruments ready, placed the man in a chair under the electric light and made an incision. The armpit is a very dangerous place, as many large and small arteries gather there. I had just time to see that I had lanced it, and had also severed a good-sized blood vessel, when the electric light went out. I had no kerosene lamp or gaslight in the room. I could hear the blood falling in a little pool on the floor, and my patient was terribly excited. I was scared. I seized a towel, made a wad of it, and, chucking it under the man's arm, told him to hold it down at his side. Then I ran to the telephone and called up the power station. 'It'll be an hour before we can get the light on again. A belt has broken,' they said. 'But I have just cut a man and he is bleeding to death in the dark here.' 'Sorry, but I can't help it,' came the answer. I then remembered a kerosene stove, and, lighting this, I caught up the blood vessel with thread and dressed the wound by its failing light. It was the most startling and precarious operation I ever performed."

NOVEL TREATMENT.

The Russians Take an Ant Bath to Cure Rheumatism.

The Russian peasants, more especially those residing in the neighborhood of Moscow, have a peculiar and original method of treating themselves for that bane of mankind, rheumatism. Many cures, even in very bad cases, are, it is claimed, effected by making the patient take ant baths, says an exchange.

The manner of preparing these baths is as follows: An anthill is sought, and when found, a sack is filled with ants, ants' eggs, and if it be considered necessary, a certain quantity of the earth which composes the hill. The sack is then closed hermetically and carried to the home of the sufferer. A warm bath is already prepared here, and the sack is plunged bodily into the hot water. Soon this latter begins to give off a peculiar pungent odor, characteristic of formic acid. The bath is now ready for the patient's immersion. The action of the bath on the skin is one of intense irritation, and the result seems to be a drawing out of the evil, and the consequent disappearance of the rheumatic pains.

It is advisable for anyone who may be tempted to try this remedy to be careful not to remain too long in the ant bath, as the consequences might be a total disorganization of the skin, which would peel off, due to the violent action of the acid.

ROOTS ENTWINED HIM.

An Oak Tree Sundered the Coffin of John Randolph.

John Randolph, of Roanoke, died June 24, 1833, at the City hotel in Philadelphia, where he had gone to set sail for England. On his way there, says the Philadelphia Times, he passed through Washington, and, dragging his emaciated body with difficulty to the senate chamber, again met Henry Clay. The former enemies had a touching interview and parted, for the last time, in peace and good will.

Randolph was carried to Virginia and buried under the pines of Roanoke in the midst of that solitude which he had always craved in life. Many years later his remains were removed to Hollywood cemetery in Richmond, and a handsome monument placed over them by John Randolph Bryan.

In making the removal it was found that his body was buried no less than eight feet in the ground; the triple lead coffin was with difficulty removed, as the roots of an old oak had burst it asunder and wrapped round and round his body, holding him in a long embrace close to the state he had loved so well.

A Waifless City.

There are no "waifs" in San Francisco, says the Post of that city. Occasionally a family is discovered struggling with dire poverty, but as soon as their condition is known they are cared for. If any of the members of the family are capable of self-support they are put in a way of earning a livelihood; and if they are too young to work or the natural bread-winners are incapacitated by sickness or other affliction ample provision is made for their necessities. There are hundreds of boys and girls in San Francisco, children of parents who are poor, earning money with which they assist to support their families, but there is not one of these who would answer the description of "waif."

Trees Root in a Tomb.

Meehan's Monthly has recorded trees growing from the mortar of stone walls and on church steeples. It is said that a horse chestnut several years old is still growing from a tomb inside an old church at Kempsey, near Worcester, England. The monument built in the church is to the memory of Sir Edmund Wylde, who died in 1620. The tree is now several years old, having sprouted in the crevice of the mortar on the back of the tomb, spreads toward the light and forms a leafy canopy over the stone form of the old knight as out on the surface.

Make Many Acquaintances.

It has been calculated that a gold coin passes from one person to another 2,000,000,000 times before the stamp or impression upon it becomes obliterated by friction, while a silver coin changes about 2,250,000,000 times before it becomes entirely effaced.

"KINE TO EVERYBUDDIE."

The Odd Inscription on a Kentucky Tombstone.

"I saw a rude, roughly hewn stone above a grave on an eastern Kentucky hillside a few weeks since," said a state insurance solicitor to a reporter for the Louisville Evening Post, "that was pinned there before monument cutters flourished in that part of Kentucky. There were but two graves in the little, unfenced spot, and they were in the center of a sassafras thicket. This old stone, over which the ivy had crept, well nigh blotting out the inscription, bore these words, which seemed to have been chiseled by a trembling fingered novice: 'Jane Laler, ded Agus, 1849. She wus allus kine to everybuddie.' I thought as I stood there by the weed-crested mound of what a world of meaning there was in those few simple words: 'She wus allus kine to everybuddie.' When I shall have composed my weary limbs for the last sleep I would ask no greater boon than that such a compliment might truthfully be placed on the tomb above my silent form. It was no different from any of the chiseled platitudes one sees in large cemeteries. I wondered what loving heart could have inspired it, and stopped to ask about the woman whose gentle life could merit so tender a tribute. Nobody on either side of the mountains knew much of the Lawler family, but one old mountaineer said he had been told the woman was the wife of an old woodsman who lived and hunted on Mount Elkhorn in the first half of the present century. The palsied hand of the loving husband doubtless traced the last testimonial of reverence."

WENT TO JAIL FOR LOVE.

Woman Takes All the Blame for a Murder Her Fiance Committed.

The supreme court of Mexico has asked President Diaz to pardon Maria Montesillos, who, some time ago, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment in Belem jail for a murder she never committed. The crime for which she is suffering punishment was the killing of Pascaul Montafio, in a family quarrel. Miss Montesillos' lover, Piquinto Torres, was the real murderer, but because she loved him Maria was willing to take the penalty. She took all the blame for the murder and during the preliminary inquiry by the third criminal judge, and afterward at the trial by jury, stoutly maintained that she, and she alone, was responsible for the death of Montafio, whom she had killed, she said, to free herself from his constant courtship and dishonorable propositions. Torres, therefore, got off scot free, and the woman, as the murder was considered to have been committed under aggravated circumstances, was sentenced to 20 years in prison, a sentence which she cheerfully accepted. But Torres, when he got out, was unfaithful, and jealousy then proved too much for Maria when she learned of this. She presented the clearest proof that she was innocent and Torres guilty, and showed letters from him to that effect. Her first attempt to secure relief was made before the superior tribunal and was unsuccessful, but the supreme court has just set aside that decision and asked President Diaz to grant her freedom.

SHED THEIR TEETH.

A Peculiarity About the Muskellunge Fish.

A few weeks ago I advanced what was to me the curious information regarding the shedding of its teeth by the muskellunge during the summer months, says a writer in Forest and Stream. I now have confirmation on the matter advanced at that by Mr. H. L. Stanton, of Chicago, and I believe the phenomenon properly to be regarded as established. Mr. Stanton's observations were made in Wisconsin, and his original informant had seen the prenomenon in Canada. Now comes Mr. H. G. McCartney, of Chicago, who has observed the same thing in the waters of Cass and Itasca counties of Minnesota. Mr. McCartney says that last spring in May and June the teeth of all the muskellunge taken in Woman lake and adjacent waters were sound and normal. On July 10 he examined fish which showed jaws red and inflamed, and with some of the teeth missing. In August still more teeth were found to be absent in specimens examined. In late August and in September it was the rule that no teeth at all would be found in the mouths of the muskellunge taken. The muskellunge taken in October all showed perfect teeth. Mr. McCartney intends to keep a record on this matter next year. He does not know whether the teeth are shed yearly or not, but knows that they are shed sometimes.

Production of Ozone.

The progress in the construction and working of ozone generators has lately been such that ozone can now be produced in large quantities continuously, and the industrial application of ozone can, therefore, be carried on now at a relatively low cost and on a large scale. Impure water can be rendered wholesome and drinkable by means of ozone, which in the presence of water acts as a very powerful bactericide.

Bricks Made from Sand.

A new invention is an unburned sand brick, made of sea sand or waste sand from mines, clay works, etc., bound together by a preparation of silica, alum, muriatic acid and Portland cement, and producing, according to the claims of the inventor, "a substantial and serviceable article, imperrious to the atmosphere and suitable for every building purposes."

No Sunday Labor in Russia.

Under a new imperial ukase in Russia labor upon Sundays or on the 14 great feast days of the Greek calendar is to be severely punished. Hours of labor are restricted to eight for children and 11 for adults, and to ten hours on Saturday.

COSTERS' ENGLISH.

At Least It Is Supposed to Be English, But It Doesn't Look Like It.

English costers have a language of their own. There is nothing very remarkable about it, its chief characteristic being a palpable kind of back spelling, says Tit-Bits.

In money matters a coster will speak of a halfpenny as a "flatch," while "yen" is a shilling, but "leatch guy" is eight shillings. "Couter" means a sovereign, "net-gee" passes for half a sovereign, half a crown being given the somewhat unpronounceable term, "flatchy-mork."

A curious method of expressing multiples is shown by "erth-ewif-gens," meaning 11 shillings. "A dooghens" means "a good market;" "dabbens," a bad one. "A regular tromens" stands for "a regular bad one."

"Yes" and "no" are represented by "no" and "nay." "Tumble to your barrikin" expresses "understand you." "Flash it" signifies "show it." "Cross chap" means a thief. "Showfuls" is an equivalent for bad money.

"Do the tightner"—a very expressive term, the derivation of which is not difficult to understand—means "go to dinner." "Nommus" stands for "be off," and "tol" is a "share."

Price of Game in France.

The price of game in France is alleged to depend principally upon the state of the moon. When the moon is dark and poachers cannot see to set their snares at night game is scarce. When the moon is full there is plenty of light and the poachers get lots of game.

Will Keep the Door Open.

"The Last Stroke," at Adrian.

The new Gebert method play, "The Last Stroke," will be given at the Croswell, Adrian, Saturday, Jan. 29, in connection with a very strong New York company. Not in many years has a play created such wide interest as "The Last Stroke." The press of the state is unanimous in its praise. Interest in the fight for freedom which Cuba is now engaged in, it will have a big drawing for most play goers. The production and original cast will be given in Adrian. The story is a romance of love and adventure. The climax is filled with patriotism which is very appropriate at this time. The characters are said to be well drawn and are handled by capable hands. A company of this character has not appeared in Adrian in many years.

Vick's Garden and Floral Guide.

The annual catalogue sent out by the old reliable seed establishment of James Vick's Sons, comes to hand in a neat and tasty cover of blue, pink, yellow and orange. The Golden Lily, the Pink Daybreak Aster, a bunch of birds, and the artistic lettering in blue, green, crimson and gold, all in harmonious combinations, make a cover of exquisite design and appearance. Many of the illustrations are fine tones. Four handsome colored plates of begonias, dahlias, nasturtiums and sweet peas add to the attractions. The list of seeds and plants comprises a full and varied assortment, including nearly everything that can be desired for the garden, the lawn, the greenhouse. Valuable new varieties are described as well as the thoroughly tried and popular standard sorts. Vick's novelties are noted for their uniform excellence. In vegetables the Gradus pea is a decided advance over all other "extra early" varieties. The Jones Wax bean is an essential gain in that line. Tomato growers are offered the "Wonderful" as new variety with model qualities combining size, high quality and great productiveness. But it is impossible here to note the many valuable offerings of this firm in fruits, flowers and vegetables. If you are not a customer of this firm send for catalogue, which is free to all applicants. Address James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.

GET A TASTE OF WINTER.

A Furious Blizzard Rages for Many Hours Throughout the State.

WIND AND SNOW CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE.

Street Car Lines Completely Tied Up in Several Cities—Railway Lines Suffer Great Inconvenience—Some Trains Are Stalled in Big Snowdrifts.

Detroit, Jan. 24.—A blizzard raged throughout Michigan for more than 24 hours. Saginaw street cars were tied up Sunday morning. Trains were stalled on the Mackinaw division of the Michigan Central and on the Flint and Pere Marquette road. At Benton Harbor nearly the entire sheet-iron roofing of the courthouse was blown off. The steamer Frank Woods broke from her moorings, and several smaller boats drifted into Lake Michigan and were jammed in the floating ice. At Muskegon, Petoskey and all northern points the storm was violent.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 24.—Street car traffic was suspended until noon Sunday owing to the fierce snowstorm Saturday night. The morning trains were several hours late and freight trains were stalled. Eighteen inches of snow fell and in many places the drifts were several feet deep.

St. Joseph, Jan. 26.—A severe storm visited this city Tuesday. It was a regular northeaster, accompanied by rain, snow and hail. The Graham & Morton boats were warned to remain in port by the extremely low barometer, which foretold the storm early in the forenoon. A few miles from this place the heaviest hailstorm known in 20 years was experienced. Railway traffic is greatly hindered.

Niles, Jan. 26.—A peculiar winter storm prevailed here Tuesday Snow began falling early and was accompanied by heavy thunder. Shortly after hail fell, followed by rain. Then snow fell heavily and a regular blizzard raged for several hours. The storm affected traffic on railroads and caused damage to telephone and electric light wires. Reports from other parts of the country state that the hailstorm was terrific, and at Berrien Springs it was the worst known in 20 years. Great damage was done to fruit trees. Snow fell to one foot in depth.

Muskegon, Jan. 26.—A severe blizzard and snowstorm set in here at noon Tuesday The local street railway company was compelled to suspend operations early in the morning, and teaming and walking about the city is next to impossible, owing to the huge drifts which have accumulated in the streets. Trains running in here are blockaded at different points along their lines.

Bay City, Jan. 26.—The worst snowstorm in several years set in early Tuesday afternoon and soon assumed the proportions of a blizzard. It extends all over the northern portion of Michigan.

Detroit, Jan. 26.—Detroit and vicinity was visited Tuesday afternoon by the most furious storm of the season. Snow, rain and sleet fell intermittently, and the street railroads were badly crippled.

Ishpeming, Jan. 26.—The storm only reached Ishpeming in a mild form. The weather is turning colder than it has been, and a blizzard is predicted. Thus far the weather has been the mildest ever experienced in northern Michigan during the winter months.

TO MANUFACTURE ALKALIES.

English Capitalists Prepare to Erect a Large Plant at Bay City.

Detroit, Jan. 26.—The United Alkali company, of Liverpool, England, has purchased the big McGraw sawmill at Bay City and will immediately begin the erection of a $1,000,000 plant for the manufacture of lower grades of alkalies. This will give the company two immense plants in Michigan, the first to begin operations will be that at Detroit, the buildings of which are nearly completed. The Bay City plant will cover 90 acres, will employ 1,500 men, and will consume the entire product of one coal mine and the product of 16 big salt wells.

AMOUNT IS BIG.

Michigan People Paid $11,667,325 for Insurance Last Year.

Lansing, Jan. 22.—Insurance Commissioner Campbell has prepared a few figures showing the immense volume of business which is transacted in this state. Last year the enormous sum of $11,667,325 was paid out by the people of the state for insurance in companies authorized to do business in this state, to say nothing of the sums paid to unauthorized companies that transact business by means of correspondence. This sum is more than five times as great as the annual state tax levy; and is greater than the entire cost of the common schools.

GIVEN TO GRIGGS.

President Names New Jersey Governor for the Attorney-Generalship.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The name of Gov. Griggs, of New Jersey, was sent to the senate Saturday to take the position of attorney-general vacated by the appointment of Attorney-General McKenna to the supreme court.

A dispatch from Trenton, N. J., says Mr. Griggs will resign the office of governor as soon as he is confirmed as attorney-general, and Senator Vorrhies will become acting governor.

[John W Griggs was born in Newton, Sussex county, N. J., in 1849. His father was a farmer and an old-line whig, who finally became an ardent republican. He was graduated from Lafayette college in Easton, Pa., in the class of 1868. Three years later he was admitted to the bar of Paterson. In the campaign of 1875 Mr. Griggs first entered the political arena and was elected assemblyman. In 1882 he was unanimously chosen by his party as a candidate for state senator and was elected by a large majority. He was twice reelected. As a delegate to the national republican convention in Chicago in 1888 he nominated William Walter Phelps for vice president of the United States. He was offered a supreme court judgeship by Gov. Leon Abbett, but declined. He was elected governor of the state of New Jersey last year.]

DOLE REACHES CHICAGO.

Reception of the Hawaiian President —An Interview.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—President and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole, of Hawaii, arrived Sunday morning. A distinguished party greeted them. The federal government was represented by Judge Grosscup, United States District Attorney J. C. Black and Hon. Thomas W. B. Cridler, of the state department. Mayor Harrison represented the city. The party was driven to the Auditorium hotel.

In an interview President Dole discussed freely conditions in the republic of which he is the executive head, but refused repeatedly to talk of the Hawaiian annexation question now before congress. He stated in a most emphatic manner, however, that there was absolutely no foundation for the stories that Hawaii is being menaced by Japan. President Dole discussed at length the social and political features of the island republic, talking interestingly of tariff, Honolulu's municipal improvements and peculiarities, and similar matters. The president thought if the senate failed to ratify the annexation treaty that Hawaii was not strong enough to fight any of the great powers that might try to absorb the islands, but believed the republic would continue indefinitely as all legislation for some time past has been prepared with that end in view.

Fire Destroys Union Elevator in East St. Louis—Loss, $1,000,000.

St. Louis, Jan. 26.—The Union elevator, which is situated in East St. Louis, and owned by the United Elevator company, at St. Louis, was totally burned Tuesday night with the contents, about 3,000,000 bushels of grain. A greater part of this was corn. Eighty-five cars loaded with corn destined for Newport News, and owned by E. B. White & Co., was also consumed, as well as the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy freight house adjoining the elevator. Numerous cottages to the east of the elevator were also burned. The total loss, it is estimated, will not be far from $1,000,000.

GUNS SENT TO HAVANA.

The Battleship Maine Receives Orders to Go to the Cuban Capital.

NEW MOVE BY PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

Made After a Conference with Secretary Long and Gen. Miles—Secretary Day Explains the Meaning—Spanish Minister Not Alarmed—Another View.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The battleship Maine has been ordered to Havana.

This decision was reached at a special meeting at the white house yesterday between the president, Secretary Long, Assistant Secretary Day, Attorney General McKenna and Gen. Miles. Secretary Day made the following statement:

What It Means.

"The sending of the Maine to Havana means simply the resumption of friendly naval relations with Spain. It is customary for naval vessels of friendly nations to pass in and out of the harbors of other countries with which they are at peace, and British and German war ships have recently visited Havana. This is no new move. The president has intended to do it for some time, but heretofore something has happened to postpone it. The orders to the Maine mean nothing more than I have said, and there is nothing alarming or unfriendly in them. The Spanish minister here is fully informed of what is going on, and so far as I know has not made the slightest objection to it."

De Lome Not Alarmed.

At the Spanish legation nothing was known of the order for the Maine to proceed to Havana. Minister De Lome said that even in case it were true it portended nothing serious. It was perfectly in accord with usage for warships of two friendly powers to enter and leave each other's ports; the warships of Spain had visited American ports on complimentary missions three times in as many years, and if there had not been an American warship in Havana, in the same length of time, it was merely because the United States government had not seen fit to order one there. As to the possible consequences of the Maine's appearing at Havana at this time the minister expressed himself as not at all uneasy.

Take a Different View.

Senor Quesada, secretary of the Cuban junta, and Senor Albertini, of the Cuban staff in Washington, were about the capital during the day conferring with members concerning the Cuban status. Mr. Quesada said:

"The sending of the Maine to Cuba, whatever be the official version, is, in our opinion, proof that things are in such condition in the few Spanish strongholds that anarchy reigns and that American citizens and property, unable to find protection at the hands of the impotent Spanish government, have now the protection of their own vessels. It is a declaration to the world that the United States are not afraid of the Spanish rabble, which seems to control the Spanish officials. The attitude of the Spanish papers and officials has been that the presence of an American war ship in Havana means intervention; undoubtedly they will now say that it is the most natural thing for any nation to send its vessels to the ports of a friendly power, and Mr. De Lome will declare that his government is delighted. But we shall soon hear from Gen. Weyler's subordinates in Cuba and from Spain, that is, if the cannons of the Maine do not bring to the Spanish minds the conviction that prudence in this case is the better part of valor."

In the Harbor.

Havana, Jan. 26.—The United States battle ship Maine, commanded by Charles D. Sigsbee, which left Key West, Fla., on January 24, arrived here at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and was saluted by the forts and war vessels.

MINERS WIN THE FIGHT.

An Eight-Hour Day Will Be the Order in Five States.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Eight hours will constitute a day's work in all the bituminous coal fields of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia on and after June 1, 1898. This important provision was made Saturday afternoon at the joint convention of coal miners and mine owners. The action affects the welfare of 400,000 organized coal miners, the reduced hours of labor giving opportunity for work to 8,000 more men, estimated on the reduced output of 1896 and 1897, and to a much greater number, with the anticipated output in 1898.

Secretary Gage Speaks.

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—The seventh annual meeting of the Trades' league of Philadelphia was held Tuesday night in the Academy of Music, at which the principal speaker was Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury. W. W. Foulkrod, president of the league, introduced Secretary Gage. The secretary spoke on the subject of finance, and declared himself unequivocally in favor of the gold standard.

Big Fire in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Jan. 24.—Fire Saturday night completely destroyed the large brick building and contents of the F. A. Walsh company, manufacturers of packers' and grinders' tinware and tinners' machinery. The loss is estimated at $300,000, $225,000 of which is on stock and machinery and $75,000 on building. The insurance is $250,000.

Vidalia, La., Jan. 26.—On the Forest plantation, five miles below here, Tuesday Charles Beard, Jr. (white), aged 18, was shot through the stomach and fatally wounded by a negro. While lying mortally wounded Beard shot and killed his assailant and another negro.

THE ORANGE WORM.

Every Housekeeper Has Reason to Dread Its Appearance.

There is threat of invasion by an orange-eating worm. Not only does it menace a great fruit-producing industry in this country, but every householder has reason to dread its appearance on his table. Out in California the orange growers are fairly panic-stricken, and not a little alarm is felt in Florida and Louisiana.

The insect has its home in Mexico. It is an unpleasant looking maggot, about an inch long and in color yellowish white. The pulp of the orange is its food, and it makes its way into the fruit without leaving any outward and visible sign of its presence within.

This, indeed, is one of the worst things about it. If the infested fruit exhibited surface evidences of having been attacked, the oranges might be picked over and the bad ones rejected. But the golden sphere, fair to look upon and promising a joy to the palate, is rotten within. Cut open with a knife, half of its pulp perhaps is found to have been devoured, and maybe a dozen or more of the disgusting larvae, authors of the mischief, are seen within.

It will be easily understood that the infestation of the groves of California by this insect would be likely to cause a loss of millions of dollars annually to that state. Being a sort of next-door neighbor to Mexico, California is in special danger; and, realizing the fact, she has already established a quarantine against oranges from that country.

During the last six weeks the government bureau of entomology has been making a special investigation of the matter. It has sent an expert, Mr. C. H. T. Townsend, to Mexico, to study the worm and its work, and he has made a report on the subject. The maggot is the larvae of a fly which lays its eggs in the pores of the ripening orange on the tree. The young larvae, on being hatched, makes its way into the fruit without leaving any hole or other external sign. It bores down through the pulp, eating as it goes, and converts the juicy interior into so much rot and nastiness.

Naturally the Mexican authorities have been perturbed by this threat of excluding their oranges. They have presented arguments on the subject. They declare that the insect in question is not at all common; that it is confined to one district—namely, the state of Morelos, about 100 miles south of the City of Mexico.—N. Y. World.

MINIATURE SHADE.

How One Can Be Made at a Really Trifling Expense.

For 25 cents, or at most half a dollar, you can get a paper or thin silk lamp shade which is admirable for a miniature shade. Select the thinnest one you can find, and on one side mark out a circle the size of the picture you are going to set in the frame.

Of miniature picture frames it can be said that the prettiest ones are made from small colored pictures to be cut out of the periodicals, but if you have a photograph you prefer you can use it instead.

Cut out the circle along the line you have marked. Lightly touch the edges with glue, and when it has dried touch them with glue again. While the glue is moist press the picture upon the shade, pressing the edges firm with the fingers. You will now find that you have a pretty face through which the light falls gently upon you.

THE BABY'S BATH.

From 96 to 98 Degrees the Proper Temperature of the Water.

Carefully ascertain before the child is immersed in the bath that the water be neither too hot nor too cold. Carelessness or over-anxiety to put him in the water as quickly as possible has frequently, from his being immersed in the bath when the water was too hot, caused him great pain and suffering. From 96 to 98 degrees Fahrenheit is the proper temperature of a warm bath. If it be necessary to add fresh warm water, let him be either removed the while, or let him not be put in when very hot; for if boiling water be added to increase the heat of the bath, it naturally ascends, and may scald him. Again, let the fresh water be put in at as great a distance from him as possible. The usual time for him to remain in a bath is a quarter of an hour or 20 minutes. Let the chest and the bowels be rubbed with the hand while he is in the bath. Let him be immersed in the bath as high up as the neck, taking care that he be the while supported under the armpits, and that his head be also rested. As soon as he comes out of the bath he ought to be carefully but quickly rubbed dry; and if it be necessary to keep up the action on the skin, he should be put to bed between the blankets; or, if the desired relief has been obtained, between the sheets, which ought to have been previously warmed. He will now most likely fall into a sweet, refreshing sleep.

If the child be frightened at the sight of the bath, cover the bath with a sheet, then lay him on the sheet, and thus gently lower him into the water.—Chicago Journal.

Average Size of Children.

The average child, in its fourth year, should be three feet high and weigh more than 28 pounds; in the sixth year, 3½ feet high and weigh 42; in the eighth year, four feet in height and 56 pounds in weight; at 12 years, five feet in height and 70 pounds in weight is a fair average. Growth is very irregular in children and young people generally; perhaps two inches may be gained in two months, and for the next ten months not over an inch, even up to the age of ten or twelve years.

Nursery Essentials.

The three prime essentials in the nursery are fresh air, good food, and pure water.

PRETTY CAP FOR AN OLD LADY.

Fancy letters in the center of the cover spell "Hearts are Trumps."

HORTICULTURE

TERRACING A BANK.

How to Bring It in Harmony with Its Surroundings.

A high bank frequently presents itself and calls for some kind of treatment that shall bring it into harmony with its surroundings. Now a great many people make use of a double terrace in a case like this. To the writer's eye a double terrace is an abomination in the sight of good landscape gardening. Such work looks too much like the base of a monument to be suitable for the lawn. Two terraces may, of course, be used where a broad sweep of sward can slope between them, but, as a rule, they are to be avoided.

At a is shown a high terrace with the usual level top. Instead of making a high terrace to meet the fall of a high bank, it is better to adopt the form shown at b. This gently-sloping top gives a lower and much more attractive side slope, and is preferable to the former. Fig. c is a plan, however, that may often be used to better advantage than either of the other forms. This gently rounding form for ground that falls away suddenly is exceedingly attractive, especially if shrubs are planted upon the curving surface. Many make the mistake of a low set terrace of the angular pattern, when this gentle curving of the turf would be far more attractive.—American Gardening.

POTATO CULTIVATION.

Much Care Must Be Given to the Selection of Seed.

It is probable that a large acreage of potatoes will be grown this year, a result of last year's excellent market. The potato crop is like every other crop, years together it pays as well as anything. But there is a large acreage of potatoes grown in the west on land that is entirely unfit for potato culture. I would never plant in wet soil, even for home use. If I had to use such soil, and did not drain it, I would buy my potatoes. Potatoes ought to have good, rich ground, land that is in good condition and that does not need fertilizing at time of planting. Most of our northern land is in that condition. I would never use coarse manure on potatoes anyhow, though it is often used. If there is any one crop that needs rotation more than another it is the potato. It ought never to be grown on the same ground year after year. If we have good, well-drained land, we shall have a crop of potatoes if we keep it clear of weeds and attend to the enemies. I have a neighbor who forces his potatoes to the utmost and lets the bugs do their worst. But that is a poor plan. One good thing about rotation is that we get rid of the insects that live in the ground after the crop is taken off. There is not as much care given to the selection of seed as there should be. The potato runs out, we say. Well, it runs out partly because we do not exercise care in the selection of seed. Still, under the best of care, it is better to buy new seed occasionally. "New seed" does wonders in every department of farm industry. We frequently plant our crops too thickly and lose by it. I believe we generally plant our corn a third too thick. At least I find that I can grow more corn by planting less thickly. But I do believe that we, too, plant potatoes too far apart. If the rows were nearer to each other, we would have better crops.—John C. Henry, in Western Plowman.

Annual Rings on Trees.

In all the timber trees of the temperate portion of our country the wood of the stem is laid on in sheets or layers which, on any cross section, appears as so many concentric rings. Generally these rings are sufficiently well defined to be readily counted, and, since only one is formed each growing season, they furnish a very convenient record of the particular cross section, and, if properly chosen, of the age of the tree. Viewing a cross section of the stem of a pine, fir, cedar, etc., these concentric yearly rings appear as alternate narrow bands or lines of lighter or darker color, the dark line, or "summer wood," occupying the outer portion of any one ring and being sharply contrasted against the lightest portion of the inner, lighter, or "spring wood," part of the next ring.

Hints About Apple Trees.

Apple trees should, if convenient, be planted on land that slopes to the north and east. If the land is not very rich, the holes should be made extra large and a quantity of fine, rich soil put in both before and after the tree is placed in position, but do not use any manure when setting the trees. Tamp the soil firmly upon the roots; if left lying loose and coarse, it will dry out and the tree will often starve to death.—

PRUNING THE GRAPE.

It Should Be Done Before the Sap Starts in the Spring.

Rather more than any other kind of fruit, unless we except the peach, the grape requires annual and severe pruning. If not properly pruned a vigorous, thrifty grape vine will almost invariably set more fruit than it can mature well, and this excessive draft on the vitality of the vine so cripples it that little or no fruit is secured the next season. To this may be added the fact that with any tree or vine when too much fruit is allowed to mature the quality is almost invariably lowered.

It is necessary that the pruning be done during the winter, and it should be completed before the sap starts in the spring. Otherwise the vine will bleed, and bleeding is always injurious. The work can be done at any time during the winter that the weather will permit, and that the vine is not frozen. Generally it will be safe to cut away fully half of the previous season's growth, as it is on the last season's growth of wood that the fruit is produced. But in pruning it should be remembered that the best canes for fruit bearing are the larger ones. Hence in pruning as a rule it will be best to cut off about one-third of the growth of the larger, more thrifty canes entirely, sometimes even to the extent of cutting away some of the older wood.

Of course there are exceptions. Sometimes the weaker canes may be so situated that it will be desirable to have them for bearing wood next year, and when this is the case it will be best to cut back to the third bud, counting from the base of the cane. The third bud is usually the first perfect bud produced.

One advantage in judicious pruning in good season is that in the number of clusters at least it reduces the quantity of fruit for the vine to mature, while it improves the quality.

It should be remembered, with all plants, it is the production and maturing of seeds that is the heaviest drain on the vitality of the plants, and good pruning lessens this.—St. Louis Republic.

PINEAPPLE QUINCE.

Interesting Fruit Novelty Recently Shown in New York.

Among the interesting fruit novelties at the recent American institute fair at New York was one of Luther Burbank's newest creations, the pineapple quince. There were a number of specimens of it, directly from his place in California. This is the first time and place that this variety has ever been shown to the public. It is about four inches in diameter and of a roundish oblate shape, as shown in the accompanying illustration. The color is a clear waxen yellow, with a surface as smooth as that of a tomato. The flavor is very mild and one of the specimens was eaten raw with almost as much relish as if it were an apple. Mr. Burbank writes that it "will cook tender in three minutes," which appears to be likely so, judging from the character of the specimens examined. He says that this seems to be even better than the other quinces which he has formerly originated, and some of which are now in the nurseries for sale. He also states that it is very productive and that the tree is thrifty and healthy in character. It is doubtless well worthy of general trial, but the trees are not yet offered for sale.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

There is nothing more beautiful than good, ripe fruit.

In a market fruit the first consideration is appearance.

One advantage in dwarf peas is that they bear early and abundantly.

Covering the scions up entirely in the ground will save them from rabbits.

Use plenty of manure in the garden. There is little danger of getting the ground too rich.

In selecting varieties for planting, take those that have been tested in your own neighborhood.

The family orchard needs a good many varieties, some early, some medium and some late.

In fastening labels to trees care must be taken to have the wire very loose around the trees.

One advantage in setting out a good variety of small fruits is that they come into bearing so much earlier than tree fruits.

The older a tree gets the less adapted it becomes for transplanting, and for this reason young trees should be selected.

The life of an apple tree is often shortened because it grows in poor, exhausted soil, or a soil that is not properly drained.

Fruit trees should always be pruned so as to let the air have free circulation and give the sun a chance to shine among the branches.—St Louis Republic.

Plants in the Cellar.

Plants are placed in the cellar to rest, not to grow. Nothing is more harmful to them when thus stored away than water, and it should never be given unless to keep the soil from becoming dust dry. In early spring, if the buds on the plants are seen to be starting a little, do not give water, which would only favor their growth, but keep as dry and cool as possible until time to take them out of the cellar.—

SPILLED HER LUNCH.

Sorry Accident to a Stylish Young Woman in a Street Car.

The passengers on an early-morning train connecting with this city were treated to a thoroughly enjoyable scene the other morning, says the Brooklyn Enterprise. At one of the small stations a young lady boarded the train.

She was dressed rather stylishly, but a veil covered a rather plain face. She switched down the aisle like a queen. She barely deigned to glance at the other passengers in the car and when she did her nose rose perceptibly at the tip in a manner that spread the impression of contempt.

She carried a Boston bag and the air of a millionaire. There was but one seat vacant. This was beside a good-looking, nicely dressed young man who was reading a paper.

When she came to this seat she flopped down heavily and tossed her bag to the seat between herself and the young man. Two seconds later the young man leaped from his seat and a string of earnest words of doubtful origin fell from his lips like vipers from the lips of the young woman in the fable.

The startled passengers looked to see what had caused this outburst. They saw—and then they laughed. The nice-looking Boston bag contained an ordinary, every-day working girl's lunch.

One of its features was a jar of coffee, which had broken in the descent and flowed freely over the young man's new fall coat and trousers.

He went into the smoking car, swearing profusely. She murmured a weak apology and spent her time in mopping up the seat.

COLD IN THE KLONDIKE.

Freeze the Flames of Candles and Sell Them for Strawberries.

According to the Alaska Miner, a gentleman who has just escaped from the Klondike region gives the following account of some things that happened there: "A man told me who had wintered up there seven years that it was so cold in January that they froze the flames of their candles and sold them for strawberries. He said they kept their fires over night by putting them out in the air and letting them freeze, and then thawed them out in the morning. He said he had seen four men die of colic from eating whisky that was frozen so hard it wouldn't thaw inside of them. He said the cows all gave ice cream till they froze to death. He said he knew a clerk in a hotel on the Yukon that got rich selling the diamonds he wore, said diamonds being nothing on earth but ice crystals that didn't thaw till after the clerk had got out of the country. He said he had seen a man fall off the roof of a barn and freeze so stiff before he lit that he broke in two when he hit the ground. He said he had seen smoke freeze in a chimney till the fire wouldn't draw, and he knew of one case where the smoke froze after it got a hundred feet up and fell back on the house, knocking a hole in the roof big enough to drive a yoke of steers through. He said the reason that nights were so long in that country was that the dark got frozen so hard the daylight couldn't thaw its way through in less than six months."

TOO MUCH MONGOOSE.

Jamaica Overrun with the Destructive Animals.

In 1872 Mr. W. Bancroft Espeut imported four pairs of the Indian mongoose for the purpose of destroying the "cane-piece rat." Ten years later, says Nature, it was estimated that the saving to the colony through the work of this animal amounted to £100,000 annually. Then came a sudden change in the aspect of affairs. It was found that the mongoose destroyed all ground-nesting birds, and that the poultry, as well as the insectiverous reptiles and batrachians of the island, were being exterminated by it. Injurious insects increased in consequence a thousandfold; the temporary benefits of the introduction were speedily wiped away, and the mongoose became a pest.

Domestic animals, including young pigs, kids, lambs, newly-dropped calves, puppies and kittens, were destroyed by it, while it also ate ripe bananas, pineapples, young corn, avocado pears, sweet potatoes, cocoas, yams, peas, sugar cane, meat and salt provisions and fish. Now we are told nature has made another effort to restore the balance. With the increase of insects due to the destruction by the mongoose of their destroyers has come an increase of ticks, which are destroying the mongoose, and all Jamaicans rejoice.

Shoes for Hunting Dogs.

Dogs wearing canvas shoes startle eastern men who are hunting prairie chicken and quail on Nebraska plains. While the dogs waddle somewhat like ducks when wearing these shoes they manage to comfortably cover a lot of ground in a day after having been broken to the use of the incumbrances. Shoeing the dogs saves their feet from soreness induced by running over the stubble.

Shrinks When It Is Worn.

Concerning porpoise leather, the Shoe and Leather Reporter says that it is peculiar in this that instead of stretching it shrinks when it has been worn. It is practically waterproof, and is, therefore, as hard on the feet as rubbers would be when worn constantly. It is made up into shoes for winter wear and shoe laces, its strength and other qualities fitting it particularly well for this purpose.

Working Hours in Australia.

Shop assistants in Australia do not have a hard time of it. They work only 50 hours per week. In Ballarat every shop, excepting those of tobacconists, fishmongers and hairdressers, closes at six p. m. for the first four days of the week, on Friday at one p. m. and on Saturdays at ten p. m. The majority open at eight a. m. to be swept and dusted by the errand boys, the assistants arriving at 8:30 a. m.

HUSKING MADE EASY.

An Ingenious Device That Has Never Been Patented.

A convenient wagon attachment for husking corn in the field, where it is necessary to drive a team from one shock to the other, is illustrated herewith. A A are two pieces two by six inches and about nine feet long, and B and D are two by four inches, three feet long. Bolt B and D to A A. C is a block six by six inches, one foot long, bolted to B in the center and fits under the reach of the wagon. F E are two iron rods that go through each end of D and hook over the wagon box. F is the platform ing the corn on. H is a lever made of an old hay rake tooth that is bent to the right shape and will spring back to place. The twine is taken from ball (J) and reaches across platform to G. Throw fodder on the platform and when husked draw lever (H) over Q and hook it on G, which will press the fodder in a tight bundle; have a loop in the end of the twine, draw over and tie. The lower cut shows how it is attached to the wagon.—Farm and Fireside.

HINTS FOR FARMERS.

A good pedigree always adds to the value of a horse for any purpose.

It is an item at this time to teach the pigs to eat as soon as possible.

The most economical management of the manure is to haul out as fast as made.

When wheat is sold buy back bran and shipstuff enough to feed out the straw.

The average farm can be run a good deal better without a dog than without a pig.

Do not be in too big a hurry to wean the fall pigs. Get them well started to growing.

Hard work is not so apt to injure horses if they receive proper attention afterwards.

If pigs are to be kept through the winter be sure that they have warm, dry quarters.

There are some good butter cows in all breeds, and they are even found among scrubs.

The most clear profit in raising good horses is in the fact that you have raised them yourself.

Much depends on the nature of the soil whether the plowing should be done deep or shallow.

One decided advantage in having a good even stand of grass is the certainty of a good sod to turn under.

Under present conditions the farmer who cannot supply comfortable shelter cannot afford to winter stock.—Farmers' Union.

Cropping Without Rotation.

It is not alone because it is exhaustive that successive growing of one crop on the same land is bad practice. It is precisely the way to breed insects or fungous diseases or to extend the growth of noxious weeds. There is not much successive cropping anywhere now. The value of rotation so as to increase soil productiveness is better understood. Yet when settlers go to a new country they almost always crop soil that has virgin fertility with the crop that pays best, which is repeated until the crop begins to fail. Almost always the settlers on new land are poor. There are so many disadvantages in removing to the outskirts of civilization that only those go who have not the money to buy farms anywhere else. —American Cultivator.

Dilapidated Farmhouses.

In driving about the country one cannot help noticing many places where the owner's lack of thrift is evident in the dilapidated condition of much about the house, barn or farm. The fences may need repairing. The sheds may show signs of weakness. Gates may have lost a hinge and become useless. The evidence of habitual neglect may be seen in many ways about the place, and the aggregation of these little things which result from carelessness or thoughtlessness goes to give the farm a run-down appearance which it does not deserve and which it would not have if care was taken to keep things in a condition of good order.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Flying over a fence on the part of hens is a matter of education. A flock in a yard may be able to go over the fence, but do not know it; they are afraid to attempt it. But let one hen go over and she will be found outside every day, and will soon teach all of the others. A fence seven feet high is sufficient. If the hens go over it they will also go over a nine-foot fence, or a 14-foot fence. Like human beings, it depends on how they are raised. To keep hens from flying, make them work. Give them something to do. Idleness is the cause of all vices among poultry, such as feather pulling flying, egg eating, etc.

LEAVES ARE USEFUL.

Many Ways in Which They Can Be Used Around the Farm.

Uses made of leaves really constitute a key to a large amount of farm prosperity. These millions of pounds of humus should be left where nature scatters them for the most part. The provisions of nature in this regard are remarkable. The grass of the lawns catches and holds a warm carpet for the sod. These should be never raked off in the fall, but partly removed in the spring, where very thick. The effect of the leaves is not only to protect, but to add each year to the humus, to replace a fraction each year washed off by the rains, another portion steadily becoming food soil for plants. Then nature shoves and drives another large amount of the leaves under the hedges, and around the shrubs and into the bushes that need covering—especially of roots. Now it remains for us to gather them where not needed, and to put them to other uses. (1) I fill a big bedding bin with dry leaves for use in the stables. This saves ten dollars in time and cash for another bedding, like straw and sawdust. Forked through the stables they add greatly to the value of the manure. Slowly decomposing, they are ready to add to the humus when carted out in the spring. (2) I bank the barns with leaves. (3) I cover strawberries and tender grapes and roses with them. (4) I spread a thick covering over my barn floors of sweet, dry leaves—over the hen rooms and apple cellars. You cannot imagine how much they add to the comfort of the barns and the warmth of the cellars. (5) A fresh supply is given once a week to hens, in which they keep their feet warm. (6) All that cannot be stored in these ways are placed in the compost piles, with ashes, manure and sewage, to make compost for future use. In this way I dispose of all the leaves I can get from the streets and improvident neighbors. It is cash and comfort every time.—N. Y. Independent.

ROTATION OF CROPS.

Without It the Fertility of Soil Cannot Be Maintained.

One should always farm in such a way as to maintain the fertility of the soil. If the farmer raises and sells off the farm grain and hay to such an extent that there is not enough fertilizing material returned to the soil to preserve its fertility, he is on the road to ruin as far as the fertility of the land is concerned. The time will come when either he or those who come after him will find themselves on a poor, worn-out farm that refuses to yield them a support, and the farm will have to be abandoned. The only road to successful farming lies in keeping some kind of live stock to consume the greater part of what grows out of the soil, and carefully saving and applying the manure.

The man who thinks his soil inexhaustible is mistaken, and if he lives on it long enough will find it out. The farm is the farmer's bank, and fertility is the cash deposit which may be checked out. No man ever had so much money in a bank but that he, in time, would get to the end of it if he continually checked out more than he put in. It is advisable in all localities to raise different crops on the farm and practice a regular system of rotation, rarely having the same crop on any given field more than one year without some other crop intervening. And in this rotation clover ought to come in every third or fourth year. A crop of clover will add materially to the productiveness of the farm. Its long roots penetrate the subsoil, thus breaking it up and improving the mechanical condition and bringing up fertility from below, where it has, to some extent, been carried when there was a surplus of water descending through it. It is also one of the very few plants that has the ability to extract nitrogen from the air and deposit it in the soil.—Rural World.

A REAL SNOW PLOW.

It Does Its Work Thoroughly and at Small Expense of Labor.

This is not a wedge to push the snow to one side, but a plow that raises and delivers it above and upon the undisturbed snow at the side. Such a plow must have a strong frame, the bars reaching out in front being not less than three by three inches, and they must be six feet long, to reach back to the rear. Planks form the runners and top. The light frame above the top is for the driver to sit upon. His feet he rests upon the bars by which the plow is drawn. The front edge, the incline and the top are tinned to make the snow move up more easily. The edge is of the same width as the rear end, so there is no binding in the snow.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A REAL SNOW PLOW.

Tobacco Stems and Stocks.

The stems and stocks of tobacco, which are waste products in manufacture, are rich in potash. These stems give about 15 per cent. of ash, which may contain as high as eight per cent of potash. It is not, however, advisable to burn the tobacco waste in order to obtain its fertilizing ingredients. In combustion the nitrogenous constituents of the waste, which are also valuable fertilizers, are lost, although it is true that both the potash and phosphoric acid becomes more immediately available after incineration. In order to promote the absorption of the fertilizing ingredients of tobacco waste, it should always be finely ground before applying it to the soil or mixing it with other fertilizing materials.—Western Plowman.

There is a great deal of inexcusable carelessness in fitting harness to horses. The harness in every part should fit nicely and comfortably.

MAKING WAX LIFELIKE.

How Display Figures for Stores Are Made.

"How long does it take to make one of these?" said the manufacturer in response to an inquiry, reports the Boston Transcript. "Well, it depends entirely upon circumstances. It is not a mechanical operation, the finishing off of a wax model as true to life as this," and he pointed to the bust of a laughing child, whose rosy neck and bright eyes were framed by clustering curls. "To make these one must have studied anatomy, as well as drawing and modeling. We begin in the same way as a sculptor would to make a statue. After the wax has cooled the eyes are put in, the face is 'made up,' as theatrical folks say, and the wig is fastened on, and the wooden body is shaped. We make all our hands and feet from life, and they cost about ten dollars. If we have an order for an entire figure we always model it from life. The life-size wax figures of infants are among the finest things we manufacture, and they add much to the attractiveness of a show window, as was illustrated last winter, when a Washington street retail dealer displayed one during the holiday season. The head and shoulders, such as are seen in the milliner's windows, cost from $40 to $45. The wig makes considerable difference in the price, as we use the best hair, and it is expensive, especially the natural blond, which is scarce. The children's heads cost $20, or thereabouts.

"All the finishing off imaginable," he continued, "would not make a figure stand the test of a season behind the glare of a glass unless the wax has a natural pink tinge. The reason some of the models look so deathly is because the wax is bad and not properly colored, and flesh tints are put on in addition."

THEIRS FOR 500 YEARS.

Farm in Norway Owned by One Family Since 1381.

J. E. Sogard received a remarkably interesting document from Christiania, Norway, and one which he prizes very highly. It came from the government museum at Christiania, and is an exact copy of two deeds of very ancient date, the original deeds having been preserved and placed on exhibition in the museum. The deeds are for a certain farm which the Sogard family has possessed for centuries and upon which two of his brothers—Simon, of Webster City, and John, of Iowa City—were born. The first deed is dated July 1, 1381, or more than 500 years ago. A better realization of the age of this deed is had when it is remembered that the Sogard family was in possession of the farm more than 100 years before Columbus discovered America, and it is probable that their ownership dates much farther back than is shown by this deed. The later instrument was executed in 1548, nearly 75 years before the landing of the pilgrim fathers at Plymouth. A gentleman from a neighboring town tells the Troy Times that he has seen the ancient document alluded to, but was unable to read it, as it is written in the Norwegian language. He adds that the property is in the town of Oalen, near the town of Hamar, and that the largest city near the place is Christiania, and that the document states it is given in the reign of King Hakon, by the grace of God king of Norway and Sweden.

THE TALK OF FISHES.

Sounds Recorded by the Phonograph in the Under Water.

When you see a lot of bubbles rising to the surface of a tank in which there are a number of fish you will know that the fish are talking. It is not possible, of course, to converse with fish, but a well-known professor has succeeded in getting a sufficient number of sounds in a phonograph to prove that a fish language really exists, says London Answers.

The professor and a companion were lowered into the waters of the Mediterranean, near the little town of Brancalone, in an iron cage, taking with them electric-lighting apparatus, a phonograph and a camera. Mirrors were also taken, and by these the fish were attracted.

As each large monster came in sight a mirror was turned so as to bring the fish into full view of his own reflection. The results were astonishing. In nearly every case the fish waxed furious, and the sounds recorded in the phonograph are said to be of an astonishing nature. The shark, according to the sounds recorded, which are from fish of many species, seems to have a language quite different from all others.

THIS IS CORN.

So Thick That It Trapped Even a Hungry Coon.

The Little Rock Democrat is the authority for the kind of corn lands they have in that particularly blessed region. It says: Eight or ten years or so ago there was a lake near Morrilton covering about 10,000 acres. When the big floods came two years ago, an opening was made by the surging waters which carried off all the water of this lake when the floods subsided. The bed of the lake dried up and left the richest soil the world ever saw. It is ten feet deep, and nothing the River Nile ever produced could excel it. This year Mills & Halley have a crop of corn on about 1,000 acres of this land. They sowed the corn broadcast like wheat, and the stalks are as strong as saplings, and scores of "shoots" are also loaded down. "It is the most remarkable corn crop ever produced in the world," declared Prof. Cox, and, to make the story even more interesting, he ended it by declaring that a "coon" was caught between the stalks, and, being unable to extricate itself because they were so thick, was killed by those who came upon it.

An average of eight matches for each man, woman and child is used in the United States daily.

HE HAD NEWS FOR HER.

The Talk Went on While the House Was Burning.

"I tell you it ain't safe for a man to leave home nowadays," grumbled the man-on-the-corner to another man, according to the Detroit Free Press. "Since my wife got mixed up with so many clubs—art clubs, musical clubs, kindergarten coteries, and the like, she has so much to attend to and so much to talk about to other women that she actually forgets that she has any domestic responsibilities. My wife told me last night that she was sitting in our library early in the morning, deeply immersed in club conversation with an intimate friend, and they heard the doorbell ring. She knew that the cook was very busy, and the second maid was out on an errand, but she was so absorbed in her club talk that she decided not to answer the bell herself. Again it rang with some emphasis, so then she went to the shutters and looked out, only to see at the door the back of a roughly-dressed man. She concluded that he was only a peddler or a beggar, and went back to her profoundly intellectual friend. A third time the doorbell rang, and this time with energetic and sustained violence.

"'Goodness, hear that man,' my wife said to the other club lady; 'Nora is out, and I'll have to go and see what he wants, or he will break the bell.' So to the door she hastened, feeling very indignant with the peddler who was so persistently disturbing her peace. She opened the door prepared to discharge a volley of rebuke on the man's offending head, but forgot all about it when he said, excitedly:

"'Well, missus, yaid better be answerin' this bell—I came in to tell yer that the back part of yer house is on fire.'"

GOOD IDEA TO BORROW.

It Is That of Having an Official Drafter of Bills.

One of the minor features of the English legislative system might with propriety and profit be reproduced in the state and national legislatures of America, says the Kansas City Journal. Every measure, before it is brought before the house of commons, is submitted to the examination of the official drafter of bills. This official is a man well versed in the history of law and lawmaking, a constitutional lawyer of high rank. He examines the bill, points out anything in it that is in conflict with the constitution, elucidates obscurities and indicates omissions and redundancies. More than that, he will, on request, draft any measure which a member may desire to bring before the house.

The result of this is a wonderful economy of the time of the parliament and of the courts. Unconstitutional bills are often killed by the hand of the bill drafter, and all measures submitted to the legislative body are clear in import and full, yet concise, in form. We need something of this kind here. Excellent measures are not seldom the offspring of the brains of men who are not trained constitutional lawyers, and they fail of enactment, or of enforcement if enacted, on account of technical blemishes which might easily be removed. The records of our legislators and courts are full of the obituaries of such laws. The appointment of a capable drafter of bills to aid legislators in the preparation of prospective laws would enable each measure to stand or fall squarely on its merits, irrespective of considerations merely technical.

SHE WAS TRUSTFUL.

Never Thought of the Man's Honesty Until She Had Her Hat.

A middle-aged woman came through the gate at one of the railway stations the other afternoon with a crowd of passengers from a train which had just arrived, says the Washington Post. She wore a gray gown and she carried a small bag; a fur cape hung over her arm, but her head was bare. She did not remember the fact until she had passed the wicket. Suddenly she clapped her hand to her head.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed. "Here, hold these!" and flinging the bag and cape into the hands of an astonished young man, who happened to be standing near, she plunged through the crowd and ran back to the train. Presently she emerged, her hat on her head, a smile of perfect content on her face, a smile which failed the moment she set foot on the platform again. She fairly galloped through the gate, and looked wildly about for her fur cape and her traveling bag. The astonished-looking young man was still holding them. The middle-aged woman possessed herself of her belongings. Then she gave a sigh of relief.

"My land," she said, with feeling, "suppose you hadn't been honest!" and the crowd swallowed her up.

Leprosy in France.

At the international congress of leprosy, which has just been brought to a conclusion at Berlin, the startling fact was elicited that the disease is very prevalent in France, especially in the northern district thereof, and that it is on the increase. This discovery and the data furnished by the French medical authorities contributed in no small measure to the resolution voted by the congress to the effect that leprosy is contagious.

Where Waves Are Largest.

The largest waves are seen off Cape Horn, rising to 46 feet in height, and 765 feet long from crest to crest. Waves in the north Atlantic have been observed to rise 43 feet in height. In the German ocean their height does not exceed 13½ feet, and in the Mediterranean 14½ feet.

Roquefort Cheese.

It is estimated that over 6,000 farmers and others in France make their living by the manufacture of Roquefort cheese. Formerly the value of the product of this cheese every year was $5,000,000, but lately the demand for it has much decreased.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

In the matter of the estate of JOHN AIKEN deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the law office of Fred B. Wood in village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 19th day of February, 1898, and on the 13th day of June, 1898, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the 13th day of December, A. D. 1897, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, January 13th, 1898.

SAMUEL GIBSON, THOS. S. BOYD, Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF LENAWEE In Chancery.

In the matter of the assignment for the benefit of the creditors of the Ohio & Michigan Coal & Manufacturing Company.

Please to take notice that the undersigned has been appointed by the court, assignee in the above matter, to succeed Charles Burridge, deceased; that he has filed his final statement and petition in said court, showing that the principal amount of the money received, belonging to said estate, was deposited in the bank and lost by the failure of the bank, except the small amount received by compromise; that he has in his hands $66.38 belonging to said estate, and asks that there be allowed to him $66.38 for his services, postage printer's bill railroad fare, hotel bills and attorney fees; that he has for distribution $300.00; that claims of said estate have been proven to the amount of 1068.88 dollars; that $416.34 of said claims purport to be for labor and services, and the owners thereof claim that the same are preferred and to be paid in full; that attorneys have been employed since said Burridge filed his last report, but whether or not they have been paid he does not know. And he asks that said assignment and trust be declared to be performed and the affairs wound up and that he be discharged, and that he be instructed what disposition is to be made of the $300.00 remaining in his hands.

This petition will be brought on to be heard at the first day of the next term of said court to be held in the City of Adrian, said County, February 21st, 1898, at the opening of court, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.

With a degree of intelligence rarely shown by an Adrian paper the Times has been decently fair during Tecumseh's battle to secure the railroad shops, but the Telegram has done nothing but endeavor to hurt us in every way possible. As a matter of fact the editors of the Telegram knew absolutely nothing of the situation from the very beginning and lacked either the enterprise or brains to find out. Now read what the Telegram says:

Saturday's Daily Times contained the following:

In regard to the prospect of locating the D & L N car shops at Tecumseh, the HERALD of that place quotes the item from the Telegram, in which occurs this clause: "The whole story looks a little fishy, and D. & L. N. officials at this end of the route know nothing about it. Hon. W. O. Hunt, who is one of the pushers, places little credit in Tecumseh's claims."

In commenting the HERALD says: "To those who knew about this matter all the time, the above is very, very funny. This same Hon. W O Hunt was in Tecumseh the day before this article was printed, and knew to a certainty that the proposition had been made to Tecumseh."

The HERALD possibly has not learned what is very apparent to those who know, that whenever our local contemporary gets scooped, which it did in this instance, the Times printing the news exclusively, it has a habit of throwing a mantle of doubt over the matter.

The Telegram may know something about its evening contemporary but nothing about the railroad business. When a Detroit or Toledo paper would print something the above named paper would echo the portion most easily caught, then feel wise, then make a guess, then yell "Push Adrian," all to the disgust of any one who knew anything of the facts. The meanest thing printed by the Telegram follows:

Delray is making a fight for the D. & L. N. shops, with likely prospects of getting them. Secretary Campbell, of the Detroit Manufacturers' club, is interesting himself, and it is believed that Mr. Magrue, of the railroad management, has made them a proposition. The D & L N. owns lots of good ground at Delray, and it is more than likely it was purchased with a view to establishing the main shops of the road there.

The above was stolen from a Detroit Journal editorial only was made as much worse for Tecumseh as possible. The Journal did not state that General Manager M Grue had made a proposition, but that Mr. Campbell had asked for one. Thus the Telegram not only desires to get the shops away from Tecumseh, but goes on the old "Anything to beat Grant" plan and wish them out of old Lenawee if Adrian could not get them. When there was a prospect for Adrian to secure the D. & L N. Ry. many of her citizens came to Tecumseh and asked for assistance which was cheerfully given. We asked nothing of Adrian toward the shops only to let us alone after she had failed to secure them. Among newspaper men Adrian has the reputation of being the poorest advertising town in Michigan, and now the reason is plain. Every city is dependent on its "country" trade. Britton people come to Tecumseh, Tecumseh people would naturally go to Adrian, but the Adrian newspapers have adopted a policy for years which has driven the citizens of Tecumseh, Blissfield, Hudson, Morenci, Clayton and all the other towns away from her merchants and to such an extent that it does not pay them to advertise. Adrian puts up bonuses for facteries and remits their taxes and the county towns have them to pay, then when an outside town strives to get something to improve herself the Adrian papers would assist Delray or any otner old town rather than improve her sister city. Tecumseh has raised a bonus for the D. & L N. shops of $21,000 and within 30 days from the date the first proposition was made. The papers have been forwarded to New York. The land is ready to be deeded and material will be on the ground for use in the buildings within 30 days. Tecumseh has no hard feeling toward Adrian, but in future as in the past will be able to "Clean them up" in a race of any sort.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

A Toledo man by the name of Donahue has invented what appears to be an unscalpable mileage ticket. It is a very ingenious ticket, which is sealed when it is sold. After the mileage strip has been pulled out, it cannot be put back into the book, and the book is numbered in such a way that it is impossible to tell how much of the mileage has been used. This, it is thought, will prevent brokers from using it. A book with a broken seal would not be accepted by the conductor. There will be absolutely no way of determining how much of the ticket was used, and unless the broker has considerable confidence in the passenger, he would not buy the book, and it is doubtful whether many passengers would buy a book of a broker when he could not determine whether there was 1, 9, or 999 miles in the ticket. Again the conductors and train collectors could not be tripped by a passenger who travelled on this kind of a ticket.—Toledo Blade.

The construction of the new Detroit & Lima Northern track between Toledo and this city, says a dispatch from Detroit, will be completed by March 1, and trains will be running on the new road within ten days from that date. James Brailey, the right-of-way agent of the road, said to-day: "I am confident that when the court decides the question as to the Wyandotte injunction proceedings next Monday it will be in our favor. We have been handicapped right along at this end of the route by injunction proceedings. Inside of 15 days our general trains will be running as far as Delray. The only injunction that will then restrain us is the one concerning the Ecorse river bridge. We were held up there ostensibly because it would obstruct travel and navigation, when there are at present four bridges over that stream within a quarter of a mile of us, all of which are pile bridges."—Lima Times-Democrat.

Negotiations are in progress between the railway mail service and the Wabash railroad for the running of a new mail car out of Detroit to Peru, Ind. The postoffice authorities wish to attach the car to the limited train on the Wabash, the aim of the department being to give more rapid service in the southwest. The Wabasn people kick on having the car attached to that train, alleging it will force them to a slower time table. The new service will be started in a few weeks.—Adrian Times.

Supt. Geo. Haskell, of the D. & L. N., made an examination of the crossing gongs in operation here and the chances are that they will either be thrown out and watchmen substituted, or very material improvements made in them. The examination was made in company with Hon. W. O. Hunt, Ald. Shepherd, Ferguson and Vogt.—Messenger.

Jas. Brailey, the right of way agent of the D T. & M. railroad, yesterday stated that the work of construction on the new road will be completed by the first of March, and that trains will be running into the Union depot, at Detroit, regularly over the road within ten days of that time.—Adrian Times.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern is receiving bids on 500 drop-bottom coal cars with removable end gates, flush drop doors and steel axles. Delivery to be made in February and March. It is reported that this company will issue specifications for 500 box.—Adrian Times.

It is said that the D. & L N. road is planning to build a swing bridge over Ecorse creek. The proposed bridge will be 180 feet long and will have a draw of 75 feet. It will cost about $22,000.—Adrian Telegram.

Engineer J. W. VanEman, who was released from the service of the D. & L. N. several weeks ago on account of the collision that occurred near West Cairo, has been reinstated.—Ex.

D. & L. N. engine No. 1, which has been rebuilding from the effects of the wreck here a short time ago, was returned to service Saturday.

It is rumored that the L. S. & M. S. will construct a double track between White Pigeon and Elkhart.

Mrs C. H. Roser is up from Lima for a day or so.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Jan. 26, 1898.

The trend of wheat this week has been upward, and the foreign situation, while still a factor, is becoming secondary in importance to the condition of affairs in this country. Cash wheat, the January option, sold yesterday in this market at a dollar a bushel, and it was not necessary to buy a great deal to put the price there. Today the market was less active but January sold above $1.00 and May sold far above last night's close, and was always firm. The bulls in the wheat trade are now firmer in their position than ever before while the bears are daily becoming more cautious about increasing their short contracts.

In corn the situation of the last thirty days remains unchanged, although there is no material decline in price, but the large amount of the cereal in sight acts as a deterrent to speculation on the bull side. Provisions on the contrary, are inclined to advance on any good buying, and experts in that trade are to a man on the side of better values in the near future. The price range in wheat today was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
January	100 1-4	96 1-2	100
May	94 3-4	93 1-2--5-8	94 3 4

The Dundee canning factory was sold Tuesday afternoon at receiver's sale. It was bid of by J. O. Zibel, trustee for defendents, for $1,600. It is reported that a company will be formed among a portion of the defendant stockholders for the operation of the factory. The factory was built three years ago at a cost of about $6,000, and only operated the past season.—Reporter.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

Bicycle riders must hereafter carry lights and bells on their wheels after dusk, while riding the streets of Ann Arbor.

Five persons have been seriously injured by falling on the icy sidewalks in Ann Arbor. If you contemplate visiting in that city this winter, put brads about an inch long in your shoe soles; if in the summer, take stilts.—Plymouth Mail.

Farmers, look out for a swindler who's going through the country exhibiting an enormous ear of corn, from which he sold choice kernels at choice prices for seed. The ear was made from several smaller ears, carefully cut up and ingeniously glued together in the natural form of a big ear. What next?—Hudson News.

Two boys living on the east side got tired of home Tuesday, jumped onto a freight train and got off at Dexter to commence the luxuriant life of the tramp. They enacted the role just 24 hours, when they made up their minds that home, sweet home was sweeter than ever and returned like the prodigals on—but they hadn't been away long enough to give the calf a chance to fatten and besides their fathers wore cowhides.—Ann Arbor Democrat.

The festive veterinary who knocked up such a rumpus a while ago gets another dose of calming tonic according to the A. A. Argus. D. W. Nolan was taken to Ypsilanti Saturday morning by Deputy Cash Warner and had his trial before Justice Childs for his recent assault on Seward Cramer. He was fined $15 and $5. 72 costs which he paid. He was subsequently put under bonds for $500 to keep the peace in the future. The costs in the latter made the total amount paid by Nolan foot up to $25 40.

With beautiful sarcasm the Britton Citizen editor lowers a delinquent into oblivion thus: "It is with regret that we chronicle the taking off of one our dear delinquents. His departure was very sad. He 'busted.' At last he agreed to bring us a load of wood last Saturday or 'bust.' The wood is not in evidence, so we presume he must have done the other thing. While we hope for the best, we feel that he has gone to that place where there is only one editor, and he takes his subscriptions in brimstone."

Here is a marriage notice that appeared recently in one of our exchanges: "Married: At Flintstone, by Rev. Windstone, N. G. Whitestone to Miss Sandstone." Well, now, that's about as "rocky" as you find 'em, and there is bound to be a blasting of those "stony" hearts before many "pebbles" appear on the connubial beach. The grindstone of domestic infelicity will sharpen the ax of jealousy and discord, and sooner or later one or the other of this pair will rest beneath a tombstone. Then look out for brimstone.—Hudson News.

Two stout and healthy looking strangers, answering to the names of Joe Miller and Jas. Bell, were on the streets yesterday, begging money from people and insulting those who refused to aid them. They were run in and this morning Justice Kelly gave them 24 hours to get out of the county, adding that if they were seen here after 3 p. m he would have to deal differently with them.—Manchester Enterprise. They probably came this way too. But in the above is a suggestion to our own people, to complain of and make it so warm for the "hobo" fraternity that they'll give this burg a wide berth.

Five young men, who have taken supreme delight in creating disturbance in the gallery of the Athens Theater recently, have each received a letter from Manager Lisemer to the effect that they will be refused admission to the theater hereafter. Mr. Lisemer thinks this mode of procedure to stop kissing, whistling and cat-calling in the theater is preferable to ejecting the disturbers during a performance.—Times. The Argus is glad to see that Mr. Lisemer is making some effort to protect people who pay their money to witness a performance and not to hear pandemonium raised by a lot of noisy boys who have no respect for anybody.—Ann Arbor Argus.

Hudson people have just awoke ugly, over the expansive hat question and the Gazette says: "A number of complaints have come to us this week regarding the nuisance of ladies' high hats at the entertainment in Masonic Hall Monday evening. Said one indignant citizen: 'Why I had to 'rubber-neck' so much last night to avoid the high headgear and catch an occasional glimpse of the performers, that that part of my anatomy is really sore and lame this morning. I love the ladies, God bless 'em, but their nightmare creations in hats are enough to provoke anger and indignation in a saint. Masonic Hall is one of the handsomest and most pleasant entertainment halls in the city, but unless the ladies remove their 'lids' in the future I shall never go there again.'"

Our readers will remember that several weeks ago Thomas B. Lace, a gentleman living on Baker's Hill, was robbed of nearly all of his pension money in one of the back alleys in this city. He had been drinking and the circumstances surrounding the case all tended to show that the "touching" was a preconceived plan on the part of local talent; that his drinks had been drugged by his companions, thus rendering the old man unconscious and the job of robbing him easy of execution. Since that time officers have been at work on the case, and Saturday Charles Haynor, a well-known local character, was arrested by Officer Pease, charged with complicacy in the affair, and this was followed by the arrest of W. H. Bowser, Monday, who is also charged with having a finger in the criminal pie. Haynor was unable to furnish bail and was taken to Adrian; Bowser, however, succeeded in furnishing sureties and has been "doing business at the old stand" this week.—Hudson Gazette.

From the Gazette we find Hudson has a dose of sneak theives too. The home of A. J. Webster, on State street was entered by burglars last week Tuesday night and Mrs. Webster's nurse, Mrs. Catherine Sutton, was robbed of $10. No clue of the robber has been obtained.

LITERARY NOTES.

The complete novel in the February issue of Lippincott's is "A Trooper Galahad," by Captain Charles King. It contains some close and vivid sketches of character and life at an army post in the southwest; the warlike excitement is furnished by a prolonged pursuit of a dangerous band of outlaws. "His last Appearance," by Jean Wright, and "A Literary Success," by Willis Irwin, are very brief tales. "Outwitting a Grizzly" is one of William Thomson's true stories of western adventure in old times—as far back as 1850.

Dr. Nansen will contribute an article to the February number of McClure's Magazine giving his ideas and hopes for the future of North Polar exploration. As no other man has yet got so near the Pole, by 195 miles, as Dr. Nansen himself, with his companion, Johansen, everybody will be eager to read what he has to say on the subject. The article will be fully illustrated with photographs and drawings from life (most of them hitherto unpublished), by Nansen, Greely, Peary, the Arctic artists, William Bradford and Albert Operti, and others.

It has long been the subject of much comment that the Americans who frequent the musical schools of the Atlantic coast and of Europe are largely from the Middle West; and in the February Harper's Mr. George P. Upton, a well-known musical critic, describes the recent development of musical culture in Chicago. Since the great fire Chicago has become one of the two chief musical centers in America, has produced an orchestra which many experts consider not only the best in this country, but one of the best two or three in the world; and has developed resources of musical education that are already in some particulars unique, and that in all respects bid fair to rival the educational facilities of the Eastern centers and even of the Continent of Europe.

A young woman in journalistic work once remarked to me that she did not try to do very good work, as the paper that employed her "didn't pay much." Ah, but one can far better afford to have his work exceed his pay than to have his pay exceed his work. Let one do a week's work worth fifty dollars for ten, and he is on the road to success; let him receive fifty dollars a week for work worth only ten, and he is on the road to failure. Good work cuts its own channel and eventually controls its rate of compensation. Poor work, no matter how well salaried, cannot long sustain itself. One who always gives his best, whether well paid or ill paid, will get on, for he is entering and driving in his wedge; he is in accord with that divine law expressed by Emerson in the injunction, "Put God and the universe in your debt."—Lillian Whiting, in the Chautauquan for February.

Success in "Striking" Titles.

The value of a striking title to an article or story is understood by no American periodical so well as The Ladies' Home Journal, writes a New York correspondent. It has made its titles famous by their uniqueness, as in its "Side-Talks With Girls," "Heart to Heart Talks." Just now the title of "The Inner Experience of a Cabinet Member's Wife" is attracting attention. Julia Magruder's new love story is given the title of "A Heaven-Kissing Hill"—taken from Shakespeare, really, but who but the Journal would have thought of it? Marion Crawford's new story is called "The Dead Smile"—a title good enough to sell any story. "The Man I Never Married" is tacked to a new series. "The Man Under Thirty-Five" made the reputation of Lillian Bell in this magizine. "The Gentleman Who is Going to Die" is the caption for a forthcoming story by Ciara Morris. Talk about cleverness in titles, what magazine is such a pastmaster in the art as is The Ladies' Home Journal? And a newspaper man knows how difficult this art of title-making is. But nothing is so valuable in attracting the eye of the public.

"A Golden Era"

Is the title of an illustrated pamphlet issued by the general passenger department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on mining in Colorado, California, and other Western States.

To Whom It May Concern.

I am pleased to say that MR. E. F. KIRCHGESSNER fitted me perfectly with glasses after I had tried others without much success. Mr. Kirchgessner also fitted my daughter with glasses, and as I have paid out lots of money for her eyes and she now has the first pair of glasses which have given her entire satisfaction.

The people of Tecumseh are requested to turn out and reward the Tecumseh Star Course for their efforts in securing for Tecumseh one of the finest concert companies ever seen here. Never before has there been an opportunity in Tecumseh of hearing an orchestra of seventeen ladies in one concert company and all artists, as will be on Thursday Feb. 3rd.

There is nothing slow about Adrian to accept anything for nothing. Last evening Manager Burridge, with his usual forethought to do anything to please his subscribers, placed a telephone in the Armory and distributed band music all over town. He also treated many Adrian people who have telephones, and not one of them "kicked" even if Tecumseh did raise the bonus for the railroad shops.

The new bicycle ordinance prohibiting the use of the side walks to wheelmen at all seasons of the year, went into effect Monday morning. Now while we have no big kick coming, it is pertinent to suggest that as the sidewalks are hereafter for the use of pedestrians only, that they be kept clear of snow and ice as people dislike very much to either wear stilts or hip boots these winter days in coming and going about town. Speaking of ordinances suggests that the council pass one allowing, say six hours succeeding a storm to clean off the walks, and woe to the offender, for it is safe to say that more people are injured by icy walks in a winter than would be injured by bicyclists on the walk in a decade with just the proper amount of restriction.

THE TECUMSEH CITY BAND

While sawing lumber in Gozoline's mill at Britton Wednesday a piece of timber was thrown up striking the small saw known as the tracer breaking it in pieces. One part struck Will Larrabee inflicting a serious if not fatal wound. tearing through the ribs into one lung and penetrating the casing of the heart Dr. Hal Wyman was summoned from Detroit and sewed up the various gashes. Mr. Larrabee has not been unconscious from the first and says he is bound to recover, which will help materially. A telegram received here at eleven o'clock states that he is better than he was last evening.

The band concert and supper at the armory last evening surpassed the expectations of every one, in point of numbers, edibles, music and a general good time. The hall was fitted up into a veretable bower of plants and flowers, with mirrors, curtains and screens in profusion. Chicken pie, salad, bread and butter were the staple articles of diet, while pine apple sherbet and cake followed as a second course. Meanwhile the band from the reception room, gave one of its best concerts, which was enjoyed immensely. After supper an informal hop was given and was participated in by about twenty couples. Great credit is due the ladies who were in charge, for making the event so successful. The receipts were something like $60.

A. W. Mills and C. E. Williamson went to Adrian Wednesday morning to perfect the arrangement with Mr. C. R. Miller for the land on which to locate the railroad shops. On the same train went H. S. Lee. When the train arrived at Adrian Lee hustled to see Mr. Miller first. Failing in this regard, he stopped and telephoned and when the first named gentlemen arrived at the bank they discovered that said Lee was 'phoning all in his power to force the committee to pay the highest price for the land, saying they were bound to have this location. Mr. Miller was too much of a gentleman to pay any attention to such a man and the deal went through without trouble. So dirty a trick is beneath comment. Let every citizen of Tecumseh form his opinion of such a man.

The two fellows, who broke into Jones & Hazlett's tailor shop last week have been captured and most of the stolen clothing recovered although damaged so badly as to be almost worthless. The thieves are of the genius hobo and are quartered at the county jail awaiting examination and, as both have acknowledge the robbery, will no doubt plead guilty. It appears after securing the clothes they took what they could carry conveniently to Detroit and buried the rest in a haystack on J. D Shull's farm. Sunday they returned for the hidden booty. When between Ridgeway and Britton, they were overtaken by Mr. Packard and seeing they carried quite bundles he reported the fact to Deputy Sheriff Britton and the two men were arrested after an exciting chase, one being captured in a lime kiln east of Britton and the other getting as far as Milan on a freight car on which he left the bundle of clothes and it was returned Monday morning and the contents identified by Mr. Hazlett, except an overcoat which must have been procured elsewhere. At the jail the men were registered under the names of Smith and Paule. Smith informed Mr. Jones where they left the first lot of clothes in Detroit and most of them were secured. The ones hidden in the haystack were soaked with rain and had been eaten in places by mice or rats.

THE BATTLE IS OVER.

The Bonus of $21,000.00 Raised and Papers Sent to New York.

Tuesday noon the work of solicitation was completed. Wednesday Messrs. Mills and Williamson went to Adrian and secured 20 acres of the old race track property of C. R. Miller. Last night the papers were sent to New York and the work of building the shops will commence as soon as the material can be secured.

Tecumseh has secured the D. & L. N. Railway shops. Adrian papers please echo.

A Progressive Dinner.

Papers are telling a story about how Elliott Gray, of Tecumseh, captured and has on exhibition a snake three and a half feet long. When warm spring breezes sweep over the land, and poets rave of budding trees and little blades of grass, it is time for the snake story man to put in full time, but for a midwinter tale the Tecumseh man wiggles to the front.—Hudson Post.

Yes, Tecumseh is right on the wiggle at present, and while we can't authenticate the above we glory in the wigglers pluck in getting to the front.

A HEALTHY WIFE.

Writes of Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment.

Mrs. F. M. Badgett, 819 New street, Knoxville, Tenn., writes a letter for publication, which she desires all her suffering sisters to read. She writes: 'When I was 16 years old, I suffered with female weakness of the worst kind and spent all I had trying to get cured. I tried several of the best physicians, but they all failed to cure me. I gave up all hope of recovery. Finally Dr Hartman's treatment was recommended to me by my teacher who also lent me the money to get the medicine which Dr. Hartman prescribed. I took the treatment and it cured me. I am now a healthy woman, weighing 194 pounds, and I owe it all to Dr. Hartman's treatment. I am sure I would not be living now if it had not been for his treatment. I cannot help recommending it to all sufferers, and will answer all inquiring letters." Any woman wishing to apply for Dr. Hartman's free home treatment has only to send age, symptoms, duration of disease, when the doctor will prescribe the proper treatment. The medicine can be obtained by each patient at the nearest drug store. Each woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on the diseases peculiar to women, called "Health and Beauty." Sent free to any woman by The Pe-ru-na- Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Her Health Restored

THE misery of sleeplessness can only be realized by those who have experienced it. Nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, neuralgia and that miserable feeling of unrest, can surely be cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. So certain is Dr. Miles of this fact that all druggists are authorized to refund price paid for the first bottle tried, providing it does not benefit.

Mrs. Henry Bruns, wife of the well known blacksmith at Grand Junction, Iowa, says: "I was troubled with sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and irregular menstruation; suffering untold misery for years. I used various advertised remedies for female complaints besides being under the care of local physicians, without help. I noticed in Dr. Miles' advertisement the testimonial of a lady cured of ailments similar to mine, and I shall never cease to thank that lady. Her testimonial induced me to use Dr. Miles' Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills, which restored me to health. I cannot say enough for Dr. Miles' Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

FAVORS EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

Gov. Pingree Says That Its Adoption is Now an Actual Necessity.

Detroit, Jan 22.—More than 200 members and guests of the Alger Republican club enjoyed the ninth annual banquet of that organization in the Hotel Cadillac Friday evening. Features of the occasion were the addresses of Gov Pingree and ex-Congressman James O'Donnell, both of whom are aspirants for this year's gubernatorial nomination. Gov. Pingree remarked that as governor he had a license (not a franchise) to offer suggestions." His principal suggestion was that in view of present lack of employment, caused chiefly by the concentration of wealth and business, universal eight-hour working laws had become a necessity. As an employer he favored this, and he had written the governors of the various states, urging consideration of the question by the legislatures and asking their views.

Mr. O'Donnell, in his response, took a good-natured thrust at the governor by congratulating him upon advocating an eight-hour law. "Mr Pingree's eight-hour law idea," said he, "is a very good one. I originated it in the national house of representatives and voted for it."

In the absence of Hon. Frank O Lowden, of Chicago, Attorney General Maynard spoke upon "Our Country: What of Its Future?" "The Constitution of the United States" was responded to by Congressman Corliss, who advocated enactment of two joint resolutions presented by himself providing for election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and for extending terms of congressmen to four years. "Our Policy Toward Cuba" was responded to by Hon Frank A Durban of Ohio. He commended the present administration's policy in that regard.

TO DIG GOLD.

Michigan Preparing to Send Out Several Thousand Prospectors.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 26.—It is estimated that between 1,000 and 2,000 gold seekers will leave Michigan for the Klondike region early in the spring. They will go in small parties of from eight to twenty, and many will go as individuals. There is scarcely a town in the state that will not contribute to the rush. One of the first parties to start is made up of Grand Haven and Benton Harbor young men, who will rendezvous in Chicago February 9. A party of about 20 will leave here about the latter part of February. A Kalamazoo party is now shipping its supplies, and will follow about the middle of February. Four or five parties will start from Detroit during February and March, and Jackson, Saginaw and Lansing will also send out small parties. A large contingent will go from the upper peninsular mining district, and the lumber woods will furnish numerous gold seekers. The party from this city has regularly incorporated under the Michigan mining laws, each member contributing $500 to the capital stock. They have purchased machinery for a steamboat, which they will build at Seattle, and in which they will make the ocean voyage. They have also purchased a dredge and pump, with the view of working the larger streams for gold, instead of taking up claims. They will have a sawmill on board their boat and a full equipment of carpenters' and machinists' tools.

FURNITURE BUYERS BUSY.

Over 400 in Grand Rapids Making Their Spring Purchases.

Grand Rapids, Jan 24.—Up to Saturday night 434 furniture buyers had arrived in the city to attend the spring opening. The active season will continue for another week and many belated buyers will come in during February. By the time the last buyer registers the total number will reach 600, and this will surpass all previous seasons, even in the boom year of 1892, when the furniture trade was at high-water mark. The buyers have been placing orders with more freedom and liberality than in several years past. All report trade prospects bright, and this is especially true in the western territory. The manufacturers confidently expect enough business to keep the factories running to their capacity as late as the middle of June.

POTTER VINDICATED.

State Supreme Court Rules in the Ward Will Contest.

Lansing, Jan. 26.—Eber B. Ward died in Detroit in 1875, leaving an estate valued at $5,000,000, but incumbered to the extent of $1,250,000. A controversy ensued among the heirs over the settlement of the estate, some of them claiming that others had conspired with the executor, Orrin W. Potter, of Chicago, and thereby acquired large sums by paying unjust claims and purchasing assets at much less than their face value. The dissatisfied heirs sued Executor Potter and the others for more than $1,000,000. The supreme court on Tuesday dismissed their bill.

MASONIC GRAND LODGE.

Nearly 1,000 Delegates in Attendance at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 26.—The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Michigan grand lodge of masons opened at 9:00 Tuesday with nearly 1,000 delegates present. L. B. Winsor, the retiring grand master, made his annual address, and Grand Secretary Conover rendered his annual report. The present membership is 39,688, an increase of 1,020, and there are 388 lodges, a gain of two. The order is prosperous financially, and every lodge made returns and paid dues.

Issue in the Campaign.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 24.—In municipal politics this spring the question of Sunday theaters will cut quite a figure. The principal issue will be as to the degree of "wide openness" upon which the city shall be run. During the past year the saloons have been held down, gambling has been suppressed and Sunday theaters and baseball have been forbidden.

BANK AT MARQUETTE CLOSES.

James M. Wilkinson Assigns for the Benefit of Creditors.

Marquette, Jan. 24.—James M. Wilkinson, a private banker, assigned at nine o'clock Saturday morning. The following notice was posted on the door:

James M. Wilkinson, being dangerously ill and believing that his end is near, in order to protect the interests of his creditors, assigns with the expectancy of paying in full.

Mr. Wilkinson is expected to die at any moment. It is thought that in order not to allow the probate court to handle the bank's affairs after his death Mr. Wilkinson decided to assign in order to satisfy his creditors. The largest creditors are the city of Marquette for about $40,000 and the South Shore railway. A statement of the assets and liabilities is not yet given out. A. E. Miller and E. C. Wilkinson, his son, the assignees, are certain that all claims will be paid in full. Mr. Wilkinson is one of the best-known men in the state, having served on many different municipal and state boards and was state treasurer under Gov. Rich.

Marquette, Jan. 25.—Ex-State Treasurer J. M. Wilkinson died here late Monday afternoon of intestinal troubles. He had been in the banking business at Marquette for the last 24 years. He was 59 years of age.

COAL FEVER IN MICHIGAN.

A Rich Vein Discovered in the Bay District—Large Sales of Land.

Owosso, Jan. 22.—Bay, Saginaw and Shiawassee counties, comprising the bay district of Michigan, are in a fever of excitement over valuable coal discoveries. Small mines have been worked for years, but within the last few weeks a vein of superior quality has been discovered. Within the last 36 hours over 20,000 acres of coal land have changed hands. Bay county seems to have the best of it so far. Capitalists and experienced operators are flocking in on every train and the excitement bids fair to develop into a craze.

Had to Jump.

THE FATE OF A PROMINENT MARINE GROCERYMAN.

P. H. Monahan, one of Detroit's Oldest and Best Known Merchants Meets with a Serious Experience.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

Prominent among the business men of Detroit, Mich., is Patrick H. Monahan, who resides at 199 Baker Street.

He has been actively engaged in the grocery business for the past forty-seven years, of which forty-two years have been in Detroit. Coming here nearly half a century ago he started into business at the corner of Second and Jefferson Avenues, and for years catered to the marine trade. From Duluth to Buffalo his name as an honorable, honest boat supply man was well known to all boatmen.

No matter what time of day or night, the Monahan Marine Grocery was kept open for the convenience of the lake boats. He is the best known and oldest retail grocery dealer in Detroit. He has been successful in business by his square dealings, and is yet to be found behind the counter any day at his large store, corner of Twelfth and Baker Streets. To a reporter, he recently said:

"When we first opened the Jefferson Avenue store we had to work day and night. The vessels that needed supplies, wanted them right off and we had to jump all the time. The reason vesselmen patronized us, was because we filled their orders at once. Every hour counts with them and we had a double set of clerks that worked day and night. I have been hustling all my life. No man can succeed in business without hustling. Some people hustle too much, and I was one of them.

"About four years ago I had to give up on account of my back giving out. It had bothered me for years. For a week I sat around the house and then had to go to bed. The family physician said that I had worn myself out by hard work. I did not do much for nearly two years, and doctored for my kidneys. My friends advised me to try remedies that they had faith in, and I tried nearly all of them. I was ready for any remedy that would relieve me, but I did not receive any benefit.

"I read considerable during my sickness and in my daily paper I noticed frequently articles regarding the wonderful cures made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and how the pills contained, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. One day I read of a case like mine, in which a complete cure had been effected. That convinced me that the pills had merit, and I decided to try them as they cost only 50 cents a box (never in loose form) or six boxes for $2.50, and could be had at any druggist's, or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y. The next day I asked the druggist regarding them. He said, 'We sell large quantities of the pills and they are well recommended by the purchasers.' They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks, and effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. I bought a box and took it home, and commenced to take the pills. Before I had taken one box that intense pain which for fifteen years had nearly killed me was gone. I continued using the pills until I had taken four boxes, which made me feel as well as I had for years previous to my sickness. My friends noticed the change at once and were more than pleased to see me out again. I continued using the pills, and in less than sixty days I was so much improved that I was able to attend to business."

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it.

Mother's Friend so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a MOTHER," says a customer.

Best Papers the Best Mediums.

There is much good solid sense for every advertiser in the following paragraph from a thoughtful eastern advertiser? The daily paper is by far the safest and most certain method of reaching the public. It should not be difficult for any intelligent man who has lived for any time in a community to know just what papers will serve him as advertising mediums. It isn't at all necessary to examine the books in the newspaper's counting room or to get their affidavits of circulation. A paper that you read yourself and that your neighbors read and respect and that you know to be widely read and respected, you can safely rely on as a satisfactory medium for reaching people of your own kind.

Will Rinn has been having a serious time with neuralgia the past week and several days he was kept at home.

The services at the Christian church Sunday will be at the usual hours with practical and instructive sermons by the pastor.

Mrs. Maas, who came to attend the funeral of her niece, Miss Mame Nickerson, returned to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y Wednesday.

Wednesday evening the K. O. T. M. base team went to York and exemplified the work. They were royally entertained by their fraters.

Two Tecumseh girls were down Monday night calling on the boys. One had red hair, and the other had a red head. Guess they must have thought it leapyear.

The Master Masons of Brittonand Unity with their wives, made Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Britton a surprise visit last Friday night which proved very enjoyable affair. Between 40 and 50 participated.

Jay Kishpaugh, Will Osgood, Wallace Dunn and Al Lee, put in three days last week at Stony Lake near Springville 'fishing' through the ice. They found fish galore and secured a fair catch each.

Warren Plews, who accidently shot himself a short time ago, has been a great sufferer. A species of lockjaw developed and for a time fears were entertained for his recovery, but he is now improving slowly.

Don't fail to hear Stedman the actor, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Services Sunday at the Reformed church will be as follows: Morning at 10:30. "Christians as Lights in the World." In the evening at 7:00. "The Well Spring became a Monument." The Y. P. S. C. E service at 6 p. m. will be led by the president, Wm. E Nivison, and will be of the nature of an anniversary.

The residence of Jno. Auten in Macon township was destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. Mr. Auten, who is in poor health, was alone in the house when the fire broke out (his wife being in the barn) and it was with difficulty that he got out. An organ, some bedding and little furniture was all that was saved from the flames. He had some insurance.

Mr. Clark, day operator at the Wabash office, paid a visit Saturday to the Britton Ass'n hospital at Peru, Ind., for the purpose of having the revolver ball which he got while hunting burglars a few years ago cut out. The operation was painful, was successful. The ball was taken out near the right shoulder blade and was badly battered at one end. He will keep it as a souvenir of the affair. Expects to be able to resume work in a few days.

Hon. Isaac Stedman, the actor who was here some years ago with the assistance of home talent presented the "Contested Election" so satisfactorily to our people, returns by their assistance again, presenting next week Friday and Saturday evenings, the thrilling drama entitled "Confidential Clerk," for the benefit of the Maccabee Order. Mr. Stedman is an actor of merit whom our people like and is the author of the play to be given. He will be supported by some of the home talent. It will be entertaining.

Two tows walked in Sunday afternoon carrying large packages and when questioned that they might be the parties who broke into Jones & Hazelton's store at Tecumseh and were about to take a freight train passing through town to take long to gather a crowd together and it was amusing to see how excited every one was. One of the fellows jumped from the car where he had secreted himself and then followed an example in which all participated. By this time the train pulled out and the other fellow on it. The one left behind was finally captured in one of the buildings where he had taken refuge and was pretty much out of breath and feeling very feigned sleep and declared that he was not the fellow they were after. Deputy Sheriff Britton after securing the fellow, telegraphed to Milan for the other one and then took a train for that place to get there just as they had caught the other after a three mile dash. They proved to be the ones suspected of the stolen clothes on.

Next Wednesday, Feb. 2nd, at the Christian church parlors will occur a donation for the pastor Rev. C. I. Dayo. to which not only the member of the church are invited but all friends of the reverend gentleman and his estimable wife.

Sunday while after the burglars, Ed Bachman in climbing over a coal car his watch chain broke and his fine gold watch and charm were lost. He thought them gone for good but Monday morning the section men found them some two miles away and not far apart. The jarring of the car undoubtedly threw them off. Maybe Ed. wasn't delighted to get them again. You ought to have seen his face brighten when he beheld them. He rewarded the finder liberally.

Remember the Clara Schumann Ladies Orchestra, comprising seventeen artists, will fill the fourth number of the Tecumseh Star Course next week Thursday evening, at Sutton's opera house. Single tickets 50c. Tickets for the remainder of course $1.00

Loren Allen, who has been making his home with his son Daniel for several months, passed away Monday evening, having been in failing health for some time. The funeral services were held at the house Wednesday afternoon, Rev. D. H. Yokom officiating. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

LOREN ALLEN

Was born in Prince Edward's county, Canada, December 24th, 1816. He was united in marriage to Clarinda Henderson when quite a young man. Five children were born to them, of which three sons survive him: Daniel Allen, of Ridgeway, John Allen, of Adrian, and Ed Allen, of Ithaca.

He with his family settled in Ridgeway nearly 52 years ago, being a mason by trade. His wife died ten years ago and since her death he lived alone until last spring. On December 24, '97, he celebrated his 82nd birthday, making him 82 years and one month old at the time of his death.

HARRIET GAGE HISCOCK

Was born at Coldwater, Mich., May 23, 1864. When thirteen years of age, she with her parents moved to Pau Pau, and six years later came to Ridgeway where she has since resided. She was married March 12, 1891, to George Cox, of Ridgeway. One child was born to them, Harry who is now five years old. For more than a year she has been in failing health and during the past four months she has been gradually growing weaker, rallying at times, then sinking lower than before. At six o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 17th, her spirit took its flight. The funeral services was held at the home two miles southwest of Ridgeway, Thursday at 1 o'clock, Rev. James Wright officiating.

Aside from her husband and child, she leaves her parents, and a brother and sister to mourn her loss. The two cardinal elements of her nature were tenderness of heart and unselfishness of purpose. No task was ever to great, no sacrifice to dear to help those about her. Her trials and sufferings were borne bravely and always wrapped in her own bosom. She was a brilliant scholar, a dutiful daughter, a kind sister and friend, a faithful wife, a devoted mother. Her character was true and spotless as the snows from heaven. For this reason also she was beloved by all. Her faith was in God and his songs were always on her lips. When life was almost gone, these words became fainter and fainter, "Rock of ages cleft for me."

CARD OF THANKS.

To those friends who during the sickness and after the death of our loved one by their kind acts and sympathy, lessened our burdens, to Mrs. C. W. Culbertson for flowers, and the choir for their services, we are very grateful.

The Bachelor Girl as a "Home Maker."

The bachelor girl no longer lives an apologetic life among the well-to-do of her kin. With her unmarried brother, she goes out into the big, interesting world (upon which her timid maiden-aunt did never dare look), and learns many crafts; and, too, in the process of time, how much heroism may enter into the mere earning of one's tri-daily bread. She may never have the real home of her own (of which she has dreamed ever since she was given a set of "little dishes" and a doll), but the bachelor girl is not to be cheated out of home-making. The flat, the one room, or corner of a room, whichever is hers in name, becomes dear to her, and in the arrangement of it is bound to be evidenced her individuality. A man may love his fireside, but a woman loves her whole house, if she has one, and all that therein is. Her talent for home-making, no matter how limited her time for anything but bread-winning may be, is never allowed to rust completely out. —From "Home Art and Home Comfort," in Demorest's Family Magazine for February.

CORNERS.

BY ISABELLA M. SHAW.

"Not by appointment do we meet Delight and Joy:
They heed not our expectancy;
But round some corner in the streets of life
They, on a sudden, clasp us with a smile."

AMONG other passengers alighting from the train was a tall, dark-complexioned gentleman and a short, chubby child, holding fast his free hand, also a mite of a blue parasol. From the gentleman's other hand swung a traveling case and an umbrella. The sun was yet high and its rays burning. It had been a breathless day, and although the station sat on the outskirts of Woodville, flanked by hayfield and facing a meadow, the only odor afloat seemed that of plank and paint. A new sidewalk was being laid, also the station platform was undergoing repairs; but Bools, the village "jack-of-all-trades," lounged beneath a big chestnut tree whose leaves hung yellow and limp on dry twigs.

"Can you direct me to the Locust Nest?" the tall gentleman asked this lounger.

"You can't miss it; it hides in the locust wood; the 'bus stands around here," and scrambling to his feet the speaker led the way to a low, narrow, repellant vehicle which the child refused to enter.

"'Tis considerable loose in the joints, little miss, but 'twill carry you safe enough. Good land, no! 'tisn't a hearse!"

They rumbled over a bridge, turned another corner, rounded the village square, struck into the Rooney road, ascended a hill, halting on its shoulder before a swinging white gate through which a woman had just passed. The house was delightfully old-fashioned. Dr. Cyrus Flint and little daughter exchanged words of approval as they went up the gravelly path leading to the great door. Largeness seemed all about them—"these cramped-up city folks," and the 'bus driver who had run with a message to the back door, added, in parting: "Your nest must be getting right full; five last week and two to-night." He was addressing Cathy, the cook, whom Bools was courting.

Two front rooms off the upper hall were assigned to the doctor, one of which jutted over the side veranda and was called the balcony chamber. In at the open window the locust branches peered, and above, almost within reach, swayed an oriole's nest. A large waxen doll sat in a chair and a child's cot stood in one corner. The little girl entered the chamber to look about, laying the blue silk parasol on the table while she removed her hat and pushed back her damp, tumbled hair. The wee cot with its spotless draperies drew her instantly. "See, father, this boarding house lady must have known I was rather small. If your room is as pretty as mine is let us live here for a long time."

A few hours later, refreshed, retoned, restored, the doctor and Girlie went below and met the boarders assembling for dinner. When Mrs. Winters herself approached the doctor started slightly. Only Girlie noticed the tremor and tightened her wee warm clasp of his big hand and looked up. A lady, a very small lady, was looking down. The very tip top of this lady's comb reached her father's elbow. Bending to the child, she said, with a winning smile: "I hope that we shall become very good friends."

"Perhaps we may," replied Girlie, with her most captivating nod and smile, for she was greatly pleased with every detail of her surroundings. After dinner there followed an evening full of chat, song and music. Each of the company seemed to have forgotten how high the thermometer was running. When the doctor left the circle that evening Mrs. Winters again bent down to his little daughter and kissed her.

"Good night!" returned the child. "I shall dream of the angels all night," and her father added: "She is in love with the couch, you see."

The next day the inmates of the nest betook themselves to wood and stream, and a few went in the down 'bus to the station, where 15 fresh-air children were looked for, homes among villagers and farmers awaiting them.

Mrs. Winters also went down and sat in her phaeton with the doctor's daughter beside her when the train pulled up. The children were handed out, each with a tag attached to his or her left shoulder.

"Bools, bring me two of them, will you? Prof. Fix—Rooney road?" Bools stood at the Shetland's head, but moved off at this word toward the newcomers, returning soon with the oldest and the youngest of the group.

Pie addressed himself to the road, but just here the doctor on his new mare and his dog leaping before him rode by, wheeled and trotted back to the phaeton. "Oh, good morning!" as he lifted Girlie to his saddle, and pony and sorrel moved along together.

"I confess, doctor, I stole your daughter. These boys are tagged for my cousin, who lives a half mile above the Nest."

"Is your pony a good traveler? Those storm clouds are rolling up rapidly."

"Yes, very good; what a bark that dog has!"

"Soul-stirring, is it?" The speaker smiled, touched his hat and the sorrel darted ahead, whereat Pie shook himself and quickened his pace. By ten o'clock the storm was raging through the town. Two churches were struck by lightning, also chimneys and window glass about the square suffered considerably. Bright and early the following morning Bools was up to see Cathy, the cook. Bools generally did bring the village budgets, but this morning much turned on his tale, for had not a matter of two inches or so—the difference in the height of those two—the Presbyterian spire and the Methodist steeple, held two hearts apart for four good years or more? It was astonishing how unbridgeable, by dint of brooding over and cherishing, this trifling matter had become. But lo! the elements had arbitrated. Mr. Cook announced his finale at the breakfast table: "Thank the gods and graces, odds are even at last; faithful Bools and warm-hearted Cathy can conscientiously wed."

After this outbreak the weather resumed the even tenor of its way; charming days rolled by, one so much like the other that few called them singly to account. Locust Nest stood in the midst of a dreamy old garden and the hum of bee and the drone of insect sounded by the hour. The doctor's child, when she was not haunting the stairway and window ledges of the delightsome old nest itself, haunted this garden. She started out of nook or bypath, taking Mrs. Winters often unawares, and always with a book in hand.

Mrs. Winters, liking to pull beans herself and to "fuss" among her vegetables, stood one day under an apple tree surveying her store, when a something dropped from the gnarled branches above. "Mercy, child, where were you? Why do you always have that book?"

"It is not that book, it is another. Father and I think schools are disagreeable, so I study by myself. I learn all over just what I wish to, and every Friday evening father and I visit together and I tell him what I do not know. You see when people have not got much but each other they think a good deal of each other. Folks say I have lost my mother, but father said that I am not real well acquainted with anybody but old nurse, who looks like your Cathy, and father; we cannot stay here much longer now; I thought I would tell you. We like corners; you always find something nice around a corner; the city is full of corners, so I think we will go away soon," and blue eyes met blue eyes. At that instant the thud of hoofs was heard, and away down the drive and out into the road ran the child. Mrs. Winters hastened into her kitchen. That evening closed in early full of darkness and storm. Heaven and earth seemed to shake beneath the mighty tread of its approach. Lightning cut the air, thunder rolled; the creek a quarter mile above the Nest rose defiantly so that fording was made impossible, and the bridge might easily be missed in such a night. Girlie, who had been studying up thunderstorms of late, desired her father to neither stand nor to run if ever caught by one, "tall, pointed objects being fine marks." Several persons watched from windows the increasing gloom and fury without when dinner was called, but scarcely were they seated at table when the waitress appeared at her mistress' elbow. The school-teacher at the professor's was very ill; no doctor to be found. Would Dr. Flint accompany the messenger?

Girlie uttered an involuntary "Oh!" Mrs. Winters not a word nor even raised her eyes. Cyrus Flint rose and strode from the room. He reappeared becappéd and becloaked and opened the outer door. Bools was there with two horses and a lantern, under whose red glower glistened the coats of rider and horses. A fierce gust of wind met him, but he made his way out.

"Father!" the doctor bent from his saddle; "hold this high and sit low," and the little figure stood on its tiptoes and reached up a small sunshade—that precious blue silk parasol—sacrificed by a warm little heart to electric greed, confident that surrounding that beloved head it would be quite "tall" enough and "pointed" enough to avert attack. "Bless you, sweetheart! Take her in," he cried; but Cathy's arms were already about her and she was carried in while her father rode away into the wild night.

The chime-like stroke of the great clock was telling 11 when a violent knock came on the kitchen door and Bools' voice was heard. Cathy set the door ajar when Bools pushed it open and entered, followed by neighboring farmhands bearing a rude litter upon which was stretched a form whose garments, as did those of the other men, dripped water which trickled right and left over the polished floor. The cook wrung her hands.

"Oh, my! Oh, my! Is he killed or drowned that you fetch him on a raft, and his fatherless babe above stairs. Oh, my! Oh, my!"

"Hist! Where's the lady?" But Mrs. Winters, her eyes wide and full of alarm, already stood on a threshold beckoning. "Bring him this way into the bedroom, and do you, Bools, watch all the trains and catch the first doctor who comes." Then she and Cathy worked over the injured man until daybreak, with which came Bools and Dr. Hale.

Late in the afternoon Dr. Flint wakened, conscious and observant. An anxious face was bending over him, and before its owner could withdraw the doctor grasped two small hands. "Reta! My Reta! I see all now. Something has shadowed me persistently since the night I arrived. For two years I have dreamed of you by night and searched for you by day. Reta! my wife!"

Mrs. Winters Flint sobbed as she hid her face on his arm.

"I went directly to Paris where I came to myself and solemnly abjured my base vanity. I did indeed! Uncle Cook returned with me in the fall and we have been here ever since. I, waiting and watching for my husband, for I knew he would also return sooner or later to find me. Oh, Cyrus, it was my pride, not my heart, which went astray—my false pride, but I renounced it long ago!"

"So round this corner in their streets of life
They, on a sudden, clasped them with a smile."

AN OPERATION IN FINANCE.

The tall, thin man with gold-rimmed specs,
Who writes of stocks and bonds and shares,
And tells us when quotations vex
Men who are bulls or who are bears,
Came in and leaned against my wall
And promised me that he'd reveal
If I would listen to him, all
The secrets of a famous deal.

It was, he said, the most immense
Transaction ever known to him—
Although its dollars and its cents
(In volume) were extremely slim;
The Santa Fe and Erie sales,
The Diamond Match, the Alley L,
Were very tame and tiresome tales
Compared with this which he would tell.

And then, although I never read
His anecdotes of pork and wheat
And mining stocks, and though, indeed,
My ignorance is quite complete
Concerning rate per cent. and price
And foreign purchase and demand,
I understood him in a trice
And smiled on him and grasped his hand.

Because I, too, had felt that thrill
Of keen delight and pride and joy,
Which no man knows or feels until,
With penny tightly clutched, his boy
Of two or thereabouts has gone
As valiant as an emperor
(Though unattended and alone)
To patronize the candy store.

Leaving the Hospital.

THE nurse came in at seven o'clock and found that Mrs. Johnson had already risen and dressed herself. Her only incompleteness of toilet was the tangle of her hair. If you are a woman with a great mass of brown hair it is a sweet pleasure to wait for some other woman to come and comb it out for you of a morning. Mrs. Johnson had always "tended" her own hair before coming into the hospital, and the treat of feeling that the deft fingers of a white-capped nurse had grasped that responsibility was very comforting. It even stole away some of the soreness of the stitching to lie there quietly in the high-legged bed while the young woman talked in a soothing voice and brushed out the long strands and told her how pretty it all was, and mentioned the woman who had had typhoid fever and whose every lock and curl had fallen a sacrifice to the shears of the hospital barber. Yes, yes; there is a luxury in having somebody else "tend" your hair if you are one unused to that kind of thing.

So Mrs. Johnson, realizing that now she must go back to the seven children and to the busy life at home, waited for the nurse to come and for the last time administer this delight. To-morrow she would have to snatch time between the dressing of Hilde and the sending to school of Ernest to perform this function with her own hands, as she had done in the years before she was admitted to the hospital. It was a long time back, that day of admission. It seemed to her sometimes that she had always been an occupant of that little three-bedded room, whereas she had been a dweller therein but a space of eight weeks. But that is eight centuries in a hospital. She looked across the room and calculated that Miss Finshaw, who was in for the straightening of an instep so that she might walk on her sole like other mortals instead of on tiptoe, was the fourth person who had rested for a time in the bed with the brass knobs; while the other bed, now without a tenant, had felt the pressure of a woman with a goitre, a girl who had died on the second day after her arrival; and an old lady with a gloomy sort of ailment which defied the doctors and which caused her to weep freely and ring her bell for the nurse incessantly. The doctors at last told the old lady's son that his mother was lonesome, which was the most of her complaint. Her husband had been killed by a cable car two years before, and she had grieved for him with whom she had been yoked for 50 years, and this—this alone—was the malady from which she was suffering.

Mrs. Johnson, dressing that morning in anticipation of the coming of her husband, thought pensively of her former associates. On that day when the girl had been pushed out of the room on the ghostly white vehicle which the hardened patients called the "banana cart" Mrs. Johnson had tried to follow mentally the course of events. But she could not. Her thoughts were tractable enough until they reached the door of the cement-floored room where the white-clad doctors with their sterilized clothes and bandages and towels waited, but once across the threshold the whole thing became a matter of conjecture, for up to that time Mrs. Johnson had not of herself passed the portal. She could only wait and guess and wonder. After a long time the cart was again pushed into the room, and the white and gasping girl was placed, unconscious, on the bed from which she was not to go again in this life.

But try as she could Mrs. Johnson could not now remember her name.

The other patients all knew that Mrs. Johnson was going to be discharged this morning, and they congratulated her feebly or cheerfully, as strength and spirit dictated. She went upstairs into the wards where most of the interesting cases were and paid her respects for the last time to those whose acquaintance she had made in these two weeks of her convalescing. They were all glad to hear of what they called her luck, and asked her about her children, and wanted her to bring her husband upstairs so that they might see what manner of man this was who was going to take her away.

"Let me guess," said little Miss Hough, who thrice in her life had been upon the table, until now she was a veritable patchwork of suffering patience. "He is a tall man with a red beard and light mustache."

"And he can sing. Can't he, now?" inquired Mrs. Marshall, with a little laugh. Then, before Mrs. Johnson could tearily deny the accusation of vocal abilities, poor Mrs. Marshall drew her face up into an expression of sincere pain, for the feeble little rollicksome laugh had rippled down her neck to the stitches in her throat and had wrenched them the millionth part of an inch, which was just enough to cause them to hurt like red-hot irons. Mrs. Marshall's eyes filled with tears, and she whimpered for a moment, and Mrs. Johnson knelt beside her bed and kissed her and petted her soothingly, and said that if she would try to be patient she would tell her all about everything, especially the boy of four who was going to the kindergarten.

"In just 41 minutes," observed Mrs. Teck, peering at a little gold watch, on the case of which was engraved an impossible buffalo with a nose like a species of ant-eater, gazing fixedly at a castle which had the dimensions of height and width but no thickness whatever, "in just 41 minutes Mrs. Johnson will be gone. I wish it were my time to go."

"Have you been counting, too?" inquired Miss Hough. "So have I. And oh, don't I wish it was me."

It developed that everybody had been calculating upon the exact number of minutes which must elapse before the emancipation of the graduating one. There is so little to do in a hospital that a discharge is an event which is transcended by but one thing in all the world—an admission. An admission rises superior to a discharge because they have such a broad latitude over which to wander. You can speculate on the nature of the ailment and wonder whether it is going to call for an operation or yield to medicine. You can guess at antecedents and circumstances and as to whether or not the patient comes of a religious stock—of the kind given over to murmuring of hymns and sacred songs. And in a ward of course you will get to see her visitors, and you have a most agreeable time of it in figuring as to whether the young man with the sad face is her husband or her brother. A patient going away isn't nearly so interesting, of course. It is not to be expected.

Mrs. Johnson went upstairs and bade the little spinal meningitis boy good-by and fixed his pictures before him so that he could see them all without having to turn. The little boy was of a rueful sort, awaiting only the slightest and most fragile of excuses for melting into tears, and when Mrs. Johnson said she was not going to come in any more his eyes grew moist. Seeing this the convalescent knew better than to repeat the indiscreet statement to Winifred, the brave six-year-old, whose right leg was trussed in the air with a great weight holding it at a shipmast angle. She told the child she was going to see her own little girl that day.

"Has she got a stiff leg?" asked Winifred, and for fear of hurting the child's feelings, the woman said that her little girl was afflicted as intimated.

Mrs. Johnson kissed them all and told them of the candy she was going to send them, and then for the last time she heard their usual confessions of desire; Earl, the spinal-meningitis boy, now recovered of his tears and crying shrilly a determination to be a policeman and ride in the patrol wagon; Winifred to be a nurse and wear a white cap, and Guy sturdily content to have a shovel and dig a trench for gaspipe.

The nurses passed in the hallways with their basins and trays, but none of these paid any attention to the convalescent, for none of them knew her except in the most general way. Her own attendant upstairs had already smiled pleasantly and had congratulated her on the successful outcome and had gone away to wait upon other patients, especially the typhoid-fever man, who rang his bell persistently. Mrs. Johnson went into the room which she could no longer call hers and threw on her cape and hat and waited for the familiar step. Having already sent her extra apparel, there was nothing to take away but herself. The books should become the heritage of the next comer. She wondered who she would be and if she would like "The Pride of the World" or "Gladys Heming's Atonement" the better. Somebody was coming. She rose and hurried over to the dresser to take a final look at her hat, and her eyes for the last time rested on the "symptom sheet," whereon the nurses had carefully noted the medical story of her case. She seized the pencil and wrote good-by across the bottom and turned to meet her brown-bearded husband, whose eyes were bright with joy.

Two minutes later the rattle of the wheels of the hack died out of the street, and Mrs. Johnson was gone.—Chicago Record.

Shoe Box System.

Calfskin boots, now so much worn in cold weather, should never be blacked with liquid dressing, as the drying agent contained therein quickly cracks the leather. Instead use a brush polish, such as men use. Better still is a monthly dressing of neatsfoot oil, which at once softens the leather, makes it impervious to dampness and gives the fashionable dull black finish. To dress kid shoes rub with vaseline while the shoe is on the foot and the leather warm. Then, grasping a strip of woolen cloth firmly in either hand, rub briskly and you have accomplished an "oil shine." To remedy squeaking shoes stand the shoes in a tin plate covered with just enough turpentine to reach the line of the inner sole without touching the "upper" leather. Let it soak for a day or two and then dry for two days before wearing, when it will be found that the soles are not only noiseless, but waterproof, and will wear almost twice as long. The turpentine seems to harden the leather without stiffening it.—Chicago Times-Herald.

INSECT BORER.

Female Carries the Tools and Does All the Work.

This insect is one of the most interesting and curious creatures found in this region. It measures from 1¾ to 2½ inches long; yellowish brown in color; but the extraordinary feature is the set of two long saws and an ovidepositor it carries trailing behind. The saws, says the New York World, are about five inches long and resemble black threads. But when the insect begins boring on a hardwood tree, such as the hickory, for example, the casual observer would be apt to remark that the saws were all right. The female is the only member of the family provided with carpenter's tools, which she uses to great advantage by boring holes in the tree trunk and depositing one egg therein, which later on hatches and becomes a grub of wood-eating propensities.

After depositing the egg the orifice of the boring is closed up with pulp, and the male ichneumon, generally two or three in number, stay near and guard the entrance of the hole from the attacks of grub-hunting ants and other insects that have a particular penchant for this food.

The Military Man Servant.

The ideal man servant is the military one who has been trained to explicit obedience and never thinks. Here is the praise a man was once giving his military servant: "He's a capital fellow; always knows where you keep a thing and puts it there. Give you my word, if you were to put half a brick on your dressing table, there that brick would stay till you blessed him for leaving it. He'd dust it and replace it four-square carefully, convinced that since you put it there it answers some purpose in your eyes."

Sympathy of Dog Owners.

A woman arrested for keeping a dog without a license in London pleaded extreme poverty, and the magistrate allowed her 14 days to raise the money. The newspapers spoke of the case, and within a week the clerk of the court received $154 from British dog fan-

Labor Unions and the Negro.

A state of affairs unrealized by the majority of readers and yet one that involves a grave problem for the whole community is revealed by John Stephen Durham, formerly United States minister to Hayti, in his powerful article in the February Atlantic. A hundred or even fifty years ago, the negro artificer worked side by side with his white companion, and in the South he was the only workman, skilled or unskilled. But with the rise to power of labor unions there began a gradual system of exclusion, enforced by the compulsion and terrorism exercised upon employers, which to-day has practically driven the colored man from every sort of skilled occupation throughout the length and breadth of the land. There is nothing left for him but menial service and unskilled labor. A tenth of our people are thus forbidden to improve themselves or their condition. Mr. Durham points out the injustice of this, and the gravity of the situation as affecting the welfare of the whole nation.

Harper's Round Table for February contains, besides liberal instalments of the two serials, "Four for a Fortune," by Albert Lee, and "The Adventurers," by H. B. Marriott Watson, the following short stories: "The Carrier Pigeon's Message" a detective story by Lamar Beaumont; "The House of the Prodigal Sons," by Harold Martin; "Max, the Night City Boy," by Thomas W. Lamont, and "A Warm Corner in Soolon" by Owen Hall. There are also papers on "Baits, and Where to Find Them," by Samuel Sidney Hale; "Book-making in the Middle Ages," by G. T. Ferris; and a fully illustrated description, by Dudley D. F. Parker, of how a boy can build a "Knockabout" for cruising in shoal water.

The man is usually in the right who owns himself in the wrong.

He who casts stones at others makes of himself a target for their return.

He who always complains of the clouds recognizes little of life's sunshine, and deserves less.

MAKING WAX LIFELIKE.

How Display Figures for Stores Are Made.

"How long does it take to make one of these?" said the manufacturer in response to an inquiry, reports the Boston Transcript. "Well, it depends entirely upon circumstances. It is not a mechanical operation, the finishing off of a wax model as true to life as this," and he pointed to the bust of a laughing child, whose rosy neck and bright eyes were framed by clustering curls. "To make these one must have studied anatomy, as well as drawing and modeling. We begin in the same way as a sculptor would to make a statue. After the wax has cooled the eyes are put in, the face is 'made up,' as theatrical folks say, and the wig is fastened on, and the wooden body is shaped. We make all our hands and feet from life, and they cost about ten dollars. If we have an order for an entire figure we always model it from life. The life-size wax figures of infants are among the finest things we manufacture, and they add much to the attractiveness of a show window, as was illustrated last winter, when a Washington street retail dealer displayed one during the holiday season. The head and shoulders, such as are seen in the milliner's windows, cost from $40 to $45. The wig makes considerable difference in the price, as we use the best hair, and it is expensive, especially the natural blond, which is scarce. The children's heads cost $20, or thereabouts.

"All the finishing off imaginable," he continued, "would not make a figure stand the test of a season behind the glare of a glass unless the wax has a natural pink tinge. The reason some of the models look so deathly is because the wax is bad and not properly colored, and flesh tints are put on in addition."

THEIRS FOR 500 YEARS.

Farm in Norway Owned by One Family Since 1381.

J. E. Sogard received a remarkably interesting document from Christiania, Norway, and one which he prizes very highly. It came from the government museum at Christiania, and is an exact copy of two deeds of very ancient date, the original deeds having been preserved and placed on exhibition in the museum. The deeds are for a certain farm which the Sogard family has possessed for centuries and upon which two of his brothers—Simon, of Webster City, and John, of Iowa City—were born. The first deed is dated July 1, 1381, or more than 500 years ago. A better realization of the age of this deed is had when it is remembered that the Sogard family was in possession of the farm more than 100 years before Columbus discovered America, and it is probable that their ownership dates much farther back than is shown by this deed. The later instrument was executed in 1548, nearly 75 years before the landing of the pilgrim fathers at Plymouth. A gentleman from a neighboring town tells the Troy Times that he has seen the ancient document alluded to, but was unable to read it, as it is written in the Norwegian language. He adds that the property is in the town of Oalen, near the town of Humar, and that the largest city near the place is Christiania, and that the document states it is given in the reign of King Hakon, by the grace of God king of Norway and Sweden.

THE TALK OF FISHES.

Sounds Recorded by the Phonograph in the Under Water.

When you see a lot of bubbles rising to the surface of a tank in which there are a number of fish you will know that the fish are talking. It is not possible, of course, to converse with fish, but a well-known professor has succeeded in getting a sufficient number of sounds in a phonograph to prove that a fish language really exists, says London Answers.

The professor and a companion were lowered into the waters of the Mediterranean, near the little town of Branealone, in an iron cage, taking with them electric-lighting apparatus, a phonograph and a camera. Mirrors were also taken, and by these the fish were attracted.

As each large monster came in sight a mirror was turned so as to bring the fish into full view of his own reflection. The results were astonishing. In nearly every case the fish waxed furious, and the sounds recorded in the phonograph are said to be of an astonishing nature. The shark, according to the sounds recorded, which are from fish of many species, seems to have a language quite different from all others.

City of Duluth Abandoned.

St. Joseph, Jan. 31.—The stranded steamer City of Duluth, which went on the bar at the entrance of the harbor Wednesday, was abandoned to the insurance company Saturday night. Her cargo of flour was transferred to flat boats late Saturday night. The entire cargo of corn was washed through a large hole amidships into the lake. The steamer was stripped by the insurance company's wrecking crew.

Will Meet in Port Huron.

Port Huron, Jan. 31.—The Orangemen of Michigan and Ontario, Can., have decided to hold their annual celebration on July 12, 1898, at Port Huron. The mayor, H. W. Stevens, extends an invitation to all organizations of Orangemen to attend.

HE HAD NEWS FOR HER.

The Talk Went on While the House Was Burning.

"I tell you it ain't safe for a man to leave home nowadays," grumbled the man-on-the-corner to another man, according to the Detroit Free Press. "Since my wife got mixed up with so many clubs—art clubs, musical clubs, kindergarten coteries, and the like, she has so much to attend to and so much to talk about to other women that she actually forgets that she has any domestic responsibilities. My wife told me last night that she was sitting in our library early in the morning, deeply immersed in club conversation with an intimate friend, and they heard the doorbell ring. She knew that the cook was very busy, and the second maid was out on an errand, but she was so absorbed in her club talk that she decided not to answer the bell herself. Again it rang with some emphasis, so then she went to the shutters and looked out, only to see at the door the back of a roughly-dressed man. She concluded that he was only a peddler or a beggar, and went back to her profoundly intellectual friend. A third time the doorbell rang, and this time with energetic and sustained violence.

"'Goodness, hear that man,' my wife said to the other club lady; 'Nora is out, and I'll have to go and see what he wants, or he will break the bell.' So to the door she hastened, feeling very indignant with the peddler who was so persistently disturbing her peace. She opened the door prepared to discharge a volley of rebuke on the man's offending head, but forgot all about it when he said, excitedly:

"'Well, missus, yaid better be answerin' this bell—I came in to tell yer that the back part of yer house is on fire.'"

GOOD IDEA TO BORROW.

It Is That of Having an Official Drafter of Bills.

One of the minor features of the English legislative system might with propriety and profit be reproduced in the state and national legislatures of America, says the Kansas City Journal. Every measure, before it is brought before the house of commons, is submitted to the examination of the official drafter of bills. This official is a man well versed in the history of law and lawmaking, a constitutional lawyer of high rank. He examines the bill, points out anything in it that is in conflict with the constitution, elucidates obscurities and indicates omissions and redundancies. More than that, he will, on request, draft any measure which a member may desire to bring before the house.

The result of this is a wonderful economy of the time of the parliament and of the courts. Unconstitutional bills are often killed by the hand of the bill drafter, and all measures submitted to the legislative body are clear in import and full, yet concise, in form. We need something of this kind here. Excellent measures are not seldom the offspring of the brains of men who are not trained constitutional lawyers, and they fail of enactment, or of enforcement if enacted, on account of technical blemishes which might easily be removed. The records of our legislators and courts are full of the obituaries of such laws. The appointment of a capable drafter of bills to aid legislators in the preparation of prospective laws would enable each measure to stand or fall squarely on its merits, irrespective of considerations merely technical.

SHE WAS TRUSTFUL.

Never Thought of the Man's Honesty Until She Had Her Hat.

A middle-aged woman came through the gate at one of the railway stations the other afternoon with a crowd of passengers from a train which had just arrived, says the Washington Post. She wore a gray gown and she carried a small bag; a fur cape hung over her arm, but her head was bare. She did not remember the fact until she had passed the wicket. Suddenly she clapped her hand to her head.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed. "Here, hold these!" and flinging the bag and cape into the hands of an astonished young man, who happened to be standing near, she plunged through the crowd and ran back to the train. Presently she emerged, her hat on her head, a smile of perfect content on her face, a smile which failed the moment she set foot on the platform again. She fairly galloped through the gate, and looked wildly about for her fur cape and her traveling bag. The astonished-looking young man was still holding them. The middle-aged woman possessed herself of her belongings. Then she gave a sigh of relief.

"My land," she said, with feeling, "suppose you hadn't been honest!" and the crowd swallowed her up.

Leprosy in France.

At the international congress of leprosy, which has just been brought to a conclusion at Berlin, the startling fact was elicited that the disease is very prevalent in France, especially in the northern district thereof, and that it is on the increase. This discovery and the data furnished by the French medical authorities contributed in no small measure to the resolution voted by the congress to the effect that leprosy is contagious.

LEAVES ARE USEFUL.

Many Ways in Which They Can Be Used Around the Farm.

Uses made of leaves really constitute a key to a large amount of farm prosperity. These millions of pounds of humus should be left where nature scatters them for the most part. The provisions of nature in this regard are remarkable. The grass of the lawns catches and holds a warm carpet for the sod. These should be never raked off in the fall, but partly removed in the spring, where very thick. The effect of the leaves is not only to protect, but to add each year to the humus, to replace a fraction each year washed off by the rains, another portion steadily becoming food soil for plants. Then nature shoves and drives another large amount of the leaves under the hedges, and around the shrubs and into the bushes that need covering—especially of roots. Now it remains for us to gather them where not needed, and to put them to other uses. (1) I fill a big bedding bin with dry leaves for use in the stables. This saves ten dollars in time and cash for another bedding, like straw and sawdust. Forked through the stables they add greatly to the value of the manure. Slowly decomposing, they are ready to add to the humus when carted out in the spring. (2) I bank the barns with leaves. (3) I cover strawberries and tender grapes and roses with them. (4) I spread a thick covering over my barn floors of sweet, dry leaves—over the hen rooms and apple cellars. You cannot imagine how much they add to the comfort of the barns and the warmth of the cellars. (5) A fresh supply is given once a week to hens, in which they keep their feet warm. (6) All that cannot be stored in these ways are placed in the compost piles, with ashes, manure and sewage, to make compost for future use. In this way I dispose of all the leaves I can get from the streets and improvident neighbors. It is cash and comfort every time.—N. Y. Independent.

ROTATION OF CROPS.

Without It the Fertility of Soil Cannot Be Maintained.

One should always farm in such a way as to maintain the fertility of the soil. If the farmer raises and sells off the farm grain and hay to such an extent that there is not enough fertilizing material returned to the soil to preserve its fertility, he is on the road to ruin as far as the fertility of the land is concerned. The time will come when either he or those who come after him will find themselves on a poor, worn-out farm that refuses to yield them a support, and the farm will have to be abandoned. The only road to successful farming lies in keeping some kind of live stock to consume the greater part of what grows out of the soil, and carefully saving and applying the manure.

The man who thinks his soil inexhaustible is mistaken, and if he lives on it long enough will find it out. The farm is the farmer's bank, and fertility is the cash deposit which may be checked out. No man ever had so much money in a bank but that he, in time, would get to the end of it if he continually checked out more than he put in. It is advisable in all localities to raise different crops on the farm and practice a regular system of rotation, rarely having the same crop on any given field more than one year without some other crop intervening. And in this rotation clover ought to come in every third or fourth year. A crop of clover will add materially to the productiveness of the farm. Its long roots penetrate the subsoil, thus breaking it up and improving the mechanical condition and bringing up fertility from below, where it has, to some extent, been carried when there was a surplus of water descending through it. It is also one of the very few plants that has the ability to extract nitrogen from the air and deposit it in the soil.—Rural World.

STOMACH DISEASES.

Medical Science has Produced a Positive Cure at Last.

The increasing prevalence of dyspepsia has been a matter of the gravest concern to the medical profession, and for years leading scientists have been experimenting to produce a remedy. Constant efforts in this direction have led to the introduction of many preparations which affords only temporary relief to those suffering with stomach diseases. It remained for a chemist of many years experience, who resides in Marshall, Mich., to produce a preparation which has proven to be a positive cure for the disease in all of its manifold forms, and is known as Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. The firm of Drake & Rhodes, manufacturers, are putting in the hands of a limited number of druggists this first positive cure for dyspepsia that has ever been offered to the public. The importance of this discovery has created a great deal of comment in the medical world, and the leading medical and clinical journals are devoting more space to this discovery than that given to any medical achievement in recent years. If you are troubled with indigestion, sour stomach, acid fermentation, sleeplessness, or any form of nervous dyspepsia, call on John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich., and ask for Drake Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer, a combined method treatment. A valuable treatise on stomach and nerve troubles sent free by addressing the manufacturers. Read the following testimonial from Chas. H. Houghtaling, ex-druggist, of Quincy, Mich.: To all whom it may concern:

Having been a druggist for thirty years, and a sufferer from dyspepsia and nerve troubles, I have tried many of the highly advertised preparations for this terrible disease, as well as treatment by physicians. Recently I was induced to try Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer and am proud to say that I have realized more benefit in the two weeks I have used it than anything I have heretofore taken.

Respectfully to the afflicted,

C. H. HOUGHTALING.

EARLY STRAWBERRIES.

How One Woman Manages to Have Shortcake in February.

If you have a conservatory or a little corner which you can devote to conservatory purposes, you will find it much more satisfactory to raise early vegetables there than to attempt delicate winter flowers which are so seldom a success. A Philadelphia woman tried these last winter and got along so well that she is making extensive preparations for this season's work.

The scene of her operations is a small hall bedroom which she devotes to plants. In the window are boxes, five shelves deep, and in these boxes she has placed strawberry plants such as you can get of any farmer now for the asking. The strawberry plants are set a few inches apart and the earth is enriched with the very best fertilizer.

As soon as November sets in she waters the plants twice a day and encourages their growth by heat and all the sunlight she can get. As soon as the buds are set, which will be early in January, she will "force" the berries until they ripen in February or March.

FOR FEBRUARY SHORT CAKE.

Early lettuce, radishes and cucumbers can be raised in the same way without the slightest difficulty, and the woman who once tries her hand at these home vegetables will not give them up for the uncertain rose and the disappointing geranium.

WHAT HE CALLED HER.

The Maiden's Answer Was Not to Mamma's Liking.

They are very fond of each other and almost everybody knows it except her mother, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The other day she and her mother were talking, and she accidentally called him by his first name. "My child," gasped the astonished mother, "how can you be so free with any gentleman friend as to call him by his given name? You surprise me. Now, I'll warrant he takes no such liberties with you," and her mother settled herself in an easy and confident attitude as she awaited the reply.

There was a merry little twinkle in the maiden's eye as she answered: "Sometimes he calls me 'Marie' (her mother looked shocked), sometimes he calls me 'Dearest' (her mother straightened up in the chair), sometimes he calls me 'Dear Heart' (her mother sat bolt upright), and sometimes he calls me 'Darling.'"

Then it was that her mother fell in a faint. She is sorry now that she was so mischievously communicative, for her mother has a mind of her own, and she doesn't approve of modern ideas.

DUNS DELINQUENTS.

Silent Monitor Used by a Methodist Church in Oregon.

After careful consideration the Centenary Methodist church of Portland, Ore., has decided upon a novel plan for raising funds necessary in conducting the affairs of the congregation, reports the Chicago Chronicle. It was suggested by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Waters, who has determined to run his church as a democracy, giving everybody opportunity and inducement to contribute. At a meeting of influential members he explained his plan. He showed a large roster with all the members of the church on it. Opposite each name are 52 spaces for credit marks. The roster is placed in the vestibule of the church, where it remains, and is in plain view of everyone entering the church. At the close of every month the roster is taken down and all who have contributed anything to the current expenses of the church are checked up in the spaces opposite the names. The amount paid is not given, but the check indicates that something, however small, has been paid toward the support of the church. The contributions come into the hands of the clerk by means of envelopes, and the amount and name are obtained in this way. The roster will show just who has paid anything and who has not. It is claimed for the system that th delinquents get tired after awhile seeing the row of blanks after their names and begin to pay something in order to fill up the blank spaces. It is a sort of ever-present dunning board. It looks down with significant silence on every member who enters the church door. the delinquent cannot escape its all-seeing eye. Whether present or absent, he knows it is there, and the blank spaces seem constantly to say: "Pay something." The meeting adopted the plan unanimously.

AFTER SEVENTEEN YEARS.

California Miner Loved a Wife Well Enough to Wait for Her.

Here is a California romance of poverty and riches. Seventeen years ago, reports an exchange, Mrs. Cecelia Nougues, then only 19 years old, went to the Pacific coast with her husband on their honeymoon trip. There for the first time they met John R. Hite, one of the pioneers of the gold days, who had made a fortune of $3,000,000. They were his guests at dinner once or twice, and then parted from him to meet no more for years. In their brief acquaintance, however, the millionaire gold miner had learned to love pretty Mrs. Nougues, and though she already had a young and healthy husband, he vowed he would never marry until he could make her his bride. Through years of waiting, when he had lost all traces of her, he kept his vow. Recently he became ill. His doctor ordered a nurse, and Mrs. Nougues, now a widow earning her own living as a nurse, was sent to attend him. Each was unaware of the identity of the other until they met in the sickroom. Imagine, if you can, their surprise. Mrs. Nougues was a capital nurse, and Mr. Hite became such an excellent patient that health soon returned. Then the millionaire, now 67 years old, avowed the love that had survived 17 years of doubt and waiting. Mrs. Nougues accepted, and they were married in Oakland on October 14 by Rev. Charles W. Wendte.

Blood Poisoned.

FEARFUL RESULT OF IMPROPERLY TREATING AN ABSCESS

Mrs. L. E. Browning, of Pueblo, Painfully Afflicted from a Complication of Diseases—Her Remarkable Fortitude.

From the Chieftain, Pueblo, Col.

The hurry and bustle of the housewife is extremely wearing upon the delicate organism of womanhood. Her intense earnestness in whatever she undertakes, tempts her constantly to go beyond her strength.

Read the story of a Colorado woman as told to our reporter: "Eight years ago," said she, "my husband died, and I was left with three children to care for and educate. About two years ago I was very sick with blood poisoning, caused by an abscess that had not received proper treatment. The disease for a time settled in my throat, causing me intense agony. Then inflammatory rheumatism set in. For four months and a half I was a prisoner in my room, most of the time confined to my bed. My hands were swollen so that I could not feed myself, and the swelling in my feet and ankles would have made walking impossible if I had been strong enough.

"One day, after considerable treatment, my physician brought me a box of pills.

"'You need a tonic,' he said, 'and something that will act at once, and this is the best medicine I know of for that purpose.'

"'Pills,' I exclaimed in surprise as he opened the box and showed me the little pink globes. 'These are Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.'

"'Yes,' he replied, 'but you need not be alarmed, they are not physic, and my word for it, they'll do you good.'

"Before I had been taking them a week I noticed a great improvement in my condition. Soon my rheumatism was gone, I grew stronger each day and now am in the best of health.

The lady was Mrs. L. E. Browning, of 1154 East 4th St., Pueblo, Colorado.

"I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," she continued, "the best tonic I have ever known."

"A friend not long ago was telling me of her mother who is at a critical period in her life. She had been subject to terrible fainting spells, and the whole family would worry over her. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not only stopped the fainting spells, but given her so much strength that she is able to take up life's duties again.

"I recommended the pills also to a young lady whose pale face made one pity her. She looked as if there wasn't a drop of blood in her body. She was so weak that she was not able to attend school, but after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for awhile she has gone back to school, and, with her rosy cheeks and bright eyes, she looks like another girl.

(Signed) "MRS. L. E. BROWNING."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of May, A. D., 1897.

GEORGE W. GILL, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

FACTS ABOUT SHOES.

Some Things That Must Not Be Done in Any Circumstances.

Don't wear a shoe that is tight anywhere.

Don't wear a shoe so large that it slips at the heel.

Don't shut up an array of shoes in an air-tight closet.

Don't place shoes against a heater after coming in from the rain.

Don't fail to wipe shoes with soft dressing at least once a week.

Don't wear shoes that will not permit the great toe to lie in a straight line.

Don't put away shoes in a dirty condition; wipe them, dress them and store them in an airy closet.

Don't wear one pair of shoes steadily. Two pairs worn alternately will do the work of three pairs worn consecutively.

Don't wear a shoe with a sole narrower than the outline of the foot traced with a pencil drawn close under the rounding edge.

Don't wear the top of a boot tight, as it interferes with the action of the calf-muscles, makes one walk awkwardly and causes the ankle to swell.

Don't wear a shoe that has commenced to run over. Have the heel straightened at once and finished on the worn edge with a row of tiny nails.

Don't economize on footwear; a good shoe is a cheap shoe.—Demorest's Magazine.

CHARMING NOVELTY.

A Muff of Silk Decorated with Beautiful Artificial Roses.

Entered at the postoffice at Tecumseh, Michigan as second class matter

And now comes the Adrian Times with a full compliment of officers for next fall's county campaign. Paste this in your hat and find out, after the nominations are made, how near the Times editor is to being correct. Such early predictions are not always the surest.

Republican candidates for county offices are already shying their castors into the ring. Prosecuting Attorney Bird will not be a candidate for renomination, and Assistant Prosecutor Sampson will probably have no opposition for that place on the ticket. County Clerk Mills will also drop out, and probably go back to his farm in Franklin township. For this office two aspirants have already come into view, viz: John H. Combs, of Rome, and Chas. E. Gallup, of Medina. Treasurer Jacklin will have reached his limit of two years, and for this nomination Frank Pratt, of Deerfield, and Frank Bradish, of Madison, will be contestants. Sheriff Ferguson and Register of Deeds Mills will undoubtedly be renominated.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

The material for the iron building and one of the brick buildings has been ordered and both buildings will be staked out next Monday. We wonder if the Adrian papers still think "Tecumseh in earnest about securing the railroad shops." Before another month rolls around the D. & L. N. and the D. T. & M. roads will be able to store 25 locomotives under cover in Tecumseh.

Adamson Bros. have put a large electric clock in Supt. Haskell's office Wednesday of the most accurate pattern. This clock will hereafter furnish the official time for the D. & L. N. system and the watches of all the employees will be set and regulated in accordance with it. No watch varying more than 30 seconds per week will be accepted for use or given a certificate.

Freight train No. 99, west bound on the Lake Shore railway, ran into an open switch at Clayton one day last week, and two cars were derailed.

Mrs. VanVleet, of Addison, has been visiting her son and daughter, Fred VanVleet and Mrs. Sam Gibbs, returned home Saturday.

Thurman Wilson is learning telegraphy at the D. & L. N. depot.

C. H. Roser was in Detroit Friday.

His 91st Birthday.

Jan. 27th. was the occasion of a pleasant gathering at the home of Lyman Gilmore, it being his 91st birthday. Two children, six grandchildren and four great grandchildren were present besides other relatives. A short program was rendered by the young people and the older ones did their part in preparing a bountiful dinner.

Lyman Gilmore came to Michigan in November, 1831, and took up land from the government on the ridge road in the township of York, where now the T. & A. railroad crosses the ridge two miles northeast of Mooreville. The whole country from Ypsilanti to Ridgeway was then one vast wilderness. There was no feeling of envy between neighbors then for they were miles apart and all struggling to keep the wolf from the door.

Soon after coming to Michigan, Mr. Gilmore was married to Almeda Herendeen and commenced life in a shanty among bears, wolves, deer and many other wild animals and labored together on that farm until they had cleared away forests and erected comfortable buildings. In 1857 he sold out and came to Macon buying another farm where he lived until '81 then moved to a smaller place on the Ridge road near Ridgeway.

Mr. Gilmore's first wife died in 1872. A few years later he married again, this wife living but a few years. He was the father of four children. The oldest daughter married W. W. Ambrose and died in 1859, leaving a son, Dr. A. L. Ambrose, of Hanover. One son died in 1864. The remaining children are: Mrs. N. A. Darling and J. F. Gilmore.

Mr. Gilmore is the oldest person in Macon and one of two of the only living settlers, who took up land from the government between Ypsilanti and Ridgeway, the other being Mrs. Harriet Hand. Mr. G's health is still good but he is blind and is cared for by his daughter and adopted niece, Miss Abbie Carey. J. F. G.

Cuba, Hawaii and China furnish the principal topics discussed editorially in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February. There are also a few paragraphs of pointed comment on domestic politics—the factional differences among Ohio Republicans and the swelling tide of Crokerism in the Democrat party. The editor gives his views on Tammany's attitude toward the New York rapid-transit problem and on the reckless expenditure of canal-improvement funds by the Republican bosses of the State.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

Adrian has a mad dog scare on in full blast at present and is talking of putting all the canines under bonds to keep the peace.

"Cashier," the beautiful horse owned by Mr. Carpenter, of Blissfield, which made a 2:12 record in last seasons races, died Monday night of lock-jaw at the Cosmopolitan barns. Fred Teachout, who had charge of him from a colt, and excellent training which made him what he was, is justified in feeling pretty sore over the loss. Mr. Carpenter was offered a large sum for him at the close of last season's races.

Hudson's entertainment course has been financially successful according to the Post: Before the speaker was introduced at the lecture last Monday evening, the statement was made by Rev. Putnam that there was a surplus of about $100 in the treasury of the course, and submitted the manner of its disposal to the meeting. It was voted to use about half of it for an extra number in the course, and leave the balance in the treasury, as a nucleus for a lecture course fund next year.

There are people in this world so narrow between the eyes that they never use but one spectacle and it serves every purpose for which two are generally used. Their range of vision is so narrow that they can look through a small keyhole with both eyes at once, and we are sorry to say that some of these individuals live in Britton. Their principal occupation just now is poking fun at our new lamps, and grunting like Arkansaw razorback swine because the street lamps are not arc lights. Probably the Bartholdi statue could have been bought for a dollar.—Britton Citizen.

It was ever thus, brother. Should you have arcs these same people would declare the old "ile lamps" were much superior.

People in Ann Arbor were struck dumb with astonishment when it became known that apparently William Judson, the strong and mighty pillar of the Pingree republican party in Washtenaw county, had turned democrat, and proofs were shown which seemed to verify the statement. Just before the Jackson Day banquet, Judson was talking to a prominent democrat, when Sid Millard stepped up and sold the democrat a ticket for the banquet. Turning to Judson he said: "I suppose you want one, Billy," Billy bought a ticket and signed his name to the list of buyers without suspecting anything wrong. Great was the amusement when his attention was called to what he had signed upon the list, which was headed, "We, the undersigned democrats,—, William Judson."—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Resolutions

Passed at a Session held at residence of W. E. Doty. Elders present, Geo. R. Holloway, R. M. Boyd, J. L. Richard, W. E. Doty, Rev. DeSpelder.

In view of the recent decease of our fellow member, Samuel R. Rogers, we, the session of Raisin Presbyterian church, desire to put on record

FIRST, Our very deep sense of the loss sustained by each one of us, his brethren in office, and by the entire church.

SECOND, Our gratitude to the adorable Head of the Church for the great gift bestowed upon us in granting us the services and the example of our brother during so many years.

THIRD, Our appreciation of the character, the counsel, the ready helpfulness of Elder Rogers and of his regular attendance on the means of grace as well as his consecrated zeal in behalf of all the interest of Christ's cause.

FOURTH, Our desire to emulate his excellent example and conduct and to express for the comfort of our hearts and of the hearts of his bereaved kindred, our assurance that, because of his faith in Christ and his obedience of his commandments, he has gone to his glorious reward and received the Master's encomium, "Well done, good and faithful servant." BY ORDER OF SESSION.

The American Girl and Domestic Service.

No wonder the American girl who goes out to service is as nearly extinct as the buffalo! The American girl has the disadvantage of brains. She sees things clearly, directly, without reference to tradition or twaddle. She knows that domestic service, although the best paid, is the most undesirable work she can undertake, because it brings with it none of the human rewards that are better than money. Not one of the considerations which impel girls to choose shop work, comes in to make her work dignified and in conformity with the laws of human nature. As things are now, if I were a working-girl, as I am an American, I would never go out to service; never, never, never! And neither would you, if you were to tell the honest truth.—From "The Unquiet Sex—The Case of Maria," by Helen Watterson Moody, in the February Scribner's.

The current number of Harper's contains a story by Martha McCulloch Williams, entitled "When the Cattle kneilt;" a more than usually long department devoted to Women's Clubs; letters from London and Paris; hints upon spring fabrics, and an array of fashions of evening, reception, street and calling gowns.

"KINE TO EVRYBUDDIE."

The Odd Inscription on a Kentucky Tombstone.

"I saw a rude, roughly hewn stone above a grave on an eastern Kentucky hillside a few weeks since," said a state insurance solicitor to a reporter for the Louisville Evening Post, "that was placed there before monument makers flourished in that part of Kentucky. There were but two graves in the little, unfenced spot, and they were in the center of a sassafras thicket. This old stone, over which the ivy had crept, well nigh blotting out the inscription, bore these words, which seemed to have been chiseled by a trembling fingered novice: 'Jane Laler, ded Agus, 1849. She wuz allus kine to evrybuddie.' I thought as I stood there by the weed-crested mound of what a world of meaning there was in those few simple words: 'She wuz allus kine to evrybuddie.' When I shall have composed my weary limbs for the last sleep I would ask no greater boon than that such a compliment might truthfully be placed on the tomb above my silent form. It was no different from any of the chiseled platitudes one sees in large cemeteries. I wondered what loving heart could have inspired it, and stopped to ask about the woman whose gentle life could merit so tender a tribute. Nobody on either side of the mountains knew much of the Lawler family, but one old mountaineer said he had been told the woman was the wife of an old woodsman who lived and hunted on Mount Elkhorn in the first half of the present century. The palsied hand of the loving husband doubtless traced the last testimonial of reverence."

WENT TO JAIL FOR LOVE.

Woman Takes All the Blame for a Murder Her Fiance Committed.

The supreme court of Mexico has asked President Diaz to pardon Maria Montesillos, who, some time ago, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment in Belem jail for a murder she never committed. The crime for which she is suffering punishment was the killing of Pascaul Montafio, in a family quarrel. Miss Montesillos' lover, Piquinto Torres, was the real murderer, but because she loved him Maria was willing to take the penalty. She took all the blame for the murder and during the preliminary inquiry by the third criminal judge, and afterward at the trial by jury, stoutly maintained that she, and she alone, was responsible for the death of Montafio, whom she had killed, she said, to free herself from his constant courtship and dishonorable propositions. Torres, therefore, got off scot free, and the woman, as the murder was considered to have been committed under aggravated circumstances, was sentenced to 20 years in prison, a sentence which she cheerfully accepted. But Torres, when he got out, was unfaithful, and jealousy then proved too much for Maria when she learned of this. She presented the clearest proof that she was innocent and Torres guilty, and showed letters from him to that effect. Her first attempt to secure relief was made before the superior tribunal and was unsuccessful, but the supreme court has just set aside that decision and asked President Diaz to grant her freedom.

SHED THEIR TEETH.

A Peculiarity About the Muskellunge Fish.

A few weeks ago I advanced what was to me the curious information regarding the shedding of its teeth by the muskellunge during the summer months, says a writer in Forest and Stream. I now have confirmation on the matter advanced at that by Mr. H. L. Stanton, of Chicago, and I believe the phenomenon properly to be regarded as established. Mr. Stanton's observations were made in Wisconsin, and his original informant had seen the prenomenon in Canada. Now comes Mr. H. G. McCartney, of Chicago, who has observed the same thing in the waters of Cass and Itasca counties of Minnesota. Mr. McCartney says that last spring in May and June the teeth of all the muskellunge taken in Woman lake and adjacent waters were sound and normal. On July 10 he examined fish which showed jaws red and inflamed, and with some of the teeth missing. In August still more teeth were found to be absent in specimens examined. In late August and in September it was the rule that no teeth at all would be found in the mouths of the muskellunge taken. The muskellunge taken in October all showed perfect teeth. Mr. McCartney intends to keep a record on this matter next year. He does not know whether the teeth are shed yearly or not, but knows that they are shed sometimes.

Production of Ozone.

The progress in the construction and working of ozone generators has lately been such that ozone can now be produced in large quantities continuously, and the industrial application of ozone can, therefore, be carried on now at a relatively low cost and on a large scale. Impure water can be rendered wholesome and drinkable by means of ozone, which in the presence of water acts as a very powerful bactericide.

Bricks Made from Sand.

A new invention is an unburned sand brick, made of sea sand or waste sand from mines, clay works, etc., bound together by a preparation of silica, alum, muriatic acid and Portland cement, and producing, according to the claims of the inventor, "a substantial and serviceable article, impervious to the atmosphere and suitable for every building purposes."

Under a new imperial ukase in Russia labor upon Sundays or on the 14 great feast days of the Greek calendar is to be severely punished. Hours of labor are restricted to eight for children and 11 for adults, and to ten hours on Saturday.

A Waifless City.

There are no "waifs" in San Francisco, says the Post of that city. Occasionally a family is discovered struggling with dire poverty, but as soon as their condition is known they are cared for. If any of the members of the family are capable of self-support they are put in a way of earning a livelihood; and if they are too young to work or the natural bread-winners are incapacitated by sickness or other affliction ample provision is made for their necessities. There are hundreds of boys and girls in San Francisco, children of parents who are poor, earning money with which they assist to support their families, but there is not one of these who would answer the description of "waif."

Trees Root in a Tomb.

Meehan's Monthly has recorded trees growing from the mortar of stone walls and on church steeples. It is said that a horse chestnut several years old is still growing from a tomb inside an old church at Kempsey, near Worcester, England. The monument built in the church is to the memory of Sir Edmund Wylde, who died in 1620. The tree is now several years old, having sprouted in the crevice of the mortar on the back of the tomb, spreads toward the light and forms a leafy canopy over the stone form of the old knight as out on the surface.

Make Many Acquaintances.

It has been calculated that a gold coin passes from one person to another 2,000,000,000 times before the stamp or impression upon it becomes obliterated by friction, while a silver coin changes about 3,250,000,000 times before it becomes entirely effaced.

The forms of sea life in the upper portion of the ocean waters may descend to a depth of 1,200 feet or so from the surface, but then succeeds a barren zone, which continues to within 360 feet to 300 feet from the bottom, where the deep sea creatures begin to appear.

Opera House Attractions at Adrian this week.

The good attractions come in a bunch at the Croswell opera house, Adrian, this week. On Friday night, Feb. 4, Digby Bell and his talented wife Laura Joyce Bell will appear in Augustus Thomas' new and successful play, "The Hoosier Doctor." This is accounted one of the best plays to be seen there this year. On Saturday night, Feb. 5, the old-time favorite fun makers, Murray and Mack, will be seen in their latest play, "Fennigans."

The Arena for February is brilliant and aggressive. The number opens with two vigorous papers on "The Politico-Financial Controversy." The first of these, "Our Party Leaders and the Finances," is a strong exposition of the subject by Hon. George W. Julian, who debates the question from the point of view of the Monetary Commission and the advocates of the gold standard. The reply, "The Finances and our Party Leaders, by the Editor of The Arena, takes the diametrically opposite view. The controversy does not lack in sharpness and cogency. A most valuable number is the article by Mrs. J. B. Montgomery-M'Govern on "An Important Phase of Gutter Journalism: Faking." The evil discussed by the author is so crying and universal that her protest will call forth a hearty response. The story of the number, by Zoe Anderson Norris, is entitled, "A Government Rat" the sketch being a keen satire on the distribution of favors in the Department service at Washington.

With the February issue the Forum completes its twenty-fourth volume, which shows a manifest advance when compared with many of its predecessors. The leading article in the current number is contributed by the president of the International Geographical Congress, Sir Clements R. Markham, K. C. B., on "Antarctic Exploration and its Importance." While numerous North-Polar expeditions have been undertaken during the past quarter century, with the result of large additions to our knowledge of Artic lands, it is more than fifty years since any organized attempt was made to solve the South-Polar problem. Sir Clements pertinently quotes a remark of the Duke of Argyll, to the effect that it is almost a reproach to civilization that, while we are able to analyze the substance and distinguish the chemical composition of the most distant objects in space, we have arrived at the close of the nineteenth century without knowing the whole superficial appearance of our own little planet. The urgent need of a magnetic survey, it is claimed, is a sufficient reason for despatching an expedition to Antarctic seas.

The fourth number of the entertainment course, the Clara Shumann Ladies Orchestra, was well patronized last evening and seemed to give general satisfaction. The members of the company showed remarkable training in concert work and reflected great credit on the director, Mr. F. W. McKee, while Miss Rudolph's trombone solo, Miss Becket's flute solo and the cornet solo played by request by Miss Burroughs were well received.

It has just dawned upon us why the TECUMSEH HERALD cannot forgive the Times for something of which it is not guilty. Editor Stacy was zealously guarding the news of the location of the shops till he could spring it in his own paper, but the Times came in ahead.—Adrian Times.

Yes, the Times came in ahead. That paper, with its six issues a week, manages to scoop some weekly in the county almost everymonth.

When you go into a store about supper time and find every one busy, get a chance at the proprietor if you can and say "Where's all your clerks, I'm in a hurry." Clerks never eat and have no business being any where but at your service. If it happens to be a grocery store drop in often, sit down on the top of the cracker barrels, or knock down a pile of soap while you tell a long winded story; go behind the counter and help yourself to cheese and crackers, take a big chew of tobacco out of the numerous pails and spit the extract on the store, or pass by several clerks and go behind the store from which post of vantage you can pop out at the busiest moment and shout "When ye goin' to wait on me?" We assure you the tradesmen like all these things and appreciate you highly.

The original "Shore Acres" company will be at the New Croswell, Adrian, Thursday, Feb. 10. The plot of this, the most popular of American rural plays is laid in New England and is told in that simple and impressive manner which carries the listener right to the homestead by the Atlantic, into the joys and sorrows of its possessor, the reverses which threaten all and the benefactor who brings ultimate happiness. Should be missed by none.

A gentleman speaking of town improvements yesterday said: "Now that we are taking the airs of a city, why not display the names of the streets at their intersections." Why not indeed. The cost would be only a nominal one and the convenience would be great. Already fifty new families have been added to our population since the advent of the Lima, many of them having names either alike or very similar to other residents already here, so that as a matter of identification, it would be a great scheme to familiarize every one with our street names, and how better than by having them posted conspicuously upon each corner. Let the agitator agitate

Last fall Harris & Hiteshu found that their store was becoming too small to accommodate the large stock necessary to their largely increasing trade, so they rebuilt the staircase, tore out the shoe repair shop and thereby enlarged the lower floor materially, at the same time giving more shelf space in the one room which they used as a stock room on the second floor. Of late, however, the necessity for still more room made itself manifest and so last week a new carpet room was opened on the second floor in the room just north of the stock room which has also been converted into a salesroom. This arrangement gives the firm all of the second story with the exception of the two offices in front. In the room just opened are displayed the new designs in carpets, mattings, oilcloths and other floor coverings, also window shades, portieres and curtains, while in the room back are footwear, rubber goods, trunks, satchels, etc. The growth of this firm has been steadily progressing from the first and the boys are always on the lookout for innovations in their line.

Abner Wilson has been quite indisposed for several days. He is some better today.

Little Klondike does a wholesale as well as a retail business in confections and bonbons of all kinds.

Don't forget that Sousa's big band will give a matinee at the Croswell, Adrian, Saturday, Feb 26,

Miss Allie Warren, of Detroit, is making her old Tecumseh friends a visit. She came last evening.

Rev. W. R. Blachford, of Clinton, took his Sunday school class of twelve young ladies for a sleighride Monday evening, coming down here and spending a very pleasant evening with S. W. Temple's family.

THE CHURCHES.

Free seats at the Baptist church.

There will be no services at the Friends' church next Sunday on account of quarterly meeting, which will be held at Raisin Center.

At the Baptist church Sunday. Morning: "The Intolerance of Christianity," Matt. 12:30; evening, "The Tolerance of Christianity," Luke 9:50.

The services at St. Peter's Episcopal church for February will be in the morning. Next Sunday at 10.30 a. m. Holy Communion will be celebrated.

The W. F. M. S. held their quarterly tea meeting Thursday with their president, Mrs. Barnes. A brief and excellent program is worthy of public remark.

The Sunday evening subject is "The Testimony of Conscience." Is conscience a royal guide to righteous deeds? Some fallible and some infallible testimony.

A Statement.

Adrian, Mich., Jan. 29, 1898.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I have been shown the item published in the HERALD regarding Mr. H. S. Lee's telephonic message to me the day Messrs Williamson and Mills came to see me about closing the deal for the race track.

It is fair to say that I had requested Mr. Lee to inform me when the shop location was determined. His message so informed me. So far from this message injuring the Tecumseh people in any degree, my interview with the committee, ended in my giving $250 to the shop fund by taking that sum from the price I had agreed to take.

Mr. Lee has always urged me to make my price low enough to secure the shops on my land.

C. R. MILLER.

High School Happenings.

There are a large number of absences this week.

The German class are studying Wilhelm Tell.

Fred Waring has been absent from the eighth grade this week.

The geometry class are studying on the final problems in plane geometry.

Mr. Smith and Mr. McKinnon have been calling on the different rooms in the high school this week.

Mr. Tyson, of Adrian, has entered the junior class, having come from that class in the Adrian high school.

Miss Floy Freeman has returned to her place in the ninth grade after a two weeks' absence on account of tonsilitis.

Last Friday evening the junior and senior classes were invited to spend the evening with H. A. Hoag's family three miles out of town. They all went out in one big sleigh load and didn't get back till about three o'clock.

The editor of the TECUMSEH HERALD says: "With a degree of intelligence rarely shown by an Adrian paper, the Times has been decently fair during Tecumseh's battle to secure the railroad shops." Then it goes on to score the Telegram for the position it took, and again it bunches the Adrian papers together and accuses them of being perfectly willing to hurt the county if all good things did not come to Adrian. Funny how different people look at the same thing. The Telegram accused the Times of working for Tecumseh against the interests of its own city, and now comes the HERALD accusing it of the very opposite. Of course Adrian and Adrian papers desire the prosperity of the city, and so far as the Times is concerned it is perfectly free to confess it would have been very glad to have seen the shops come to Adrian, but it was a foregone conclusion from the first that they would not be located here, and, as the Times has before remarked about our neighbor, it was glad it was so fortunate believing that whatever helps one town in a county helps all. But such inane drivel as the HERALD editor gets off makes one very, very weary.—Times.

This "inane drivel" is what is commonly called, outside of the Times office, wholesome truth. That is an old trick of the Times, never to refute a statement of any kind, but simply yell "Fool, fool," but in this instance any thing it might say is refreshing. To stir the old Times up to make any remark is indeed a commendable piece of work.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

"First buy the best coffee, and then—put plenty in."—Old Saying.

To have your coffee strong and good,
Some things must first be understood.
For if you slight one single rule,
Neglect the pot or make too full,
Omit to stir it when you ought,
Or use the coffee cheaply bought—
Then be quite sure you'll not succeed
Who as he runs may often read.

Hot water now,
One cup allow
To each and ev'ry drinker.
And still one more,
Completes the score
For e'en a tariff tinker.

Cleanse well your pot,
With water hot,
Then use the coffee which is best,
For each a spoon,
Night, morn or noon,
Ten minutes' boil will do the rest.
But if, oh man, the strength be not,
Add still a spoon for coffee pot.

SELECTING GLOVES.

A Task Upon Which Too Much Care Cannot Be Bestowed.

The French woman's idea of dress is, of course, to accomplish perfection in all its details, but if she must practice economy she never neglects her shoes and her gloves. Her gloves are proverbial. She chooses them with art, she puts them on with art, she carries them with art, and she mends them with art.

She always puts on her gloves in the house and buttons them as carefully as any other article of dress. She never would be guilty of putting on her gloves rudely in the street or in a street car, or of squeezing her hands into gloves several sizes too small and buttoning them with a hairpin. This would be considered a great impropriety. Many people cram their hands into gloves which are so small that the gloves look stuffed, and a yellow kid on a pudgy hand reminds one of nothing more poetic than a ham in its yellow bag. People, especially girls, with large hands ought to buy gloves which are larger than seems necessary, for tight gloves always make the hands swell and increase in size by years of such injudicious treatment.

Now, after choosing gloves—nice, stout, loose ones for street wear and others a little closer in fit for calling and for evening wear—there is a way to put them on. If there is anything that mars a woman's appearance it is a glove with the seams twisted and all the fingers awry.

The first trying on of a glove is the most important, because this gives the glove its set. First shake some powder into each finger of the glove. Then place your elbow firmly on a table, with the hand upright and the thumb extended toward the palm. Draw the body of the glove over the fingers, and after seeing that each seam of the glove is straight with the line of the finger, coax each finger into the finger of the glove. Be sure in the meantime that the stitching on the back of the glove is also straight. Now insert the thumb, and look once again to see if the seams are all straight. If not, pull the glove off and begin again. The seam at the tip of the thumb should be in line with the middle of the thumb nail. Smooth the wrist neatly and fasten the second button before the top one, for then the top one will not suddenly burst off.

A man who was a real dandy of the old school declared that women should put on their gloves the first time, in not less than three-quarters of an hour.—Philadelphia Record.

To Clean a Wool Shawl.

To clean a Shetland wool shawl make a lather of lukewarm soapsuds and dip the shawl into it, rubbing and squeezing gently with the hands. Even the rinsing water should be softened with a little soap, and particularly is it essential that the water whenever it is changed should be exactly the same temperature.

Finger Marks on Paint.

Finger marks can be removed from paint with powdered chalk sprinkled upon a flannel cloth. Many people think it inadvisable to use soap on white or light paint, but use it on hard wood, being careful to wipe off the soap with a flannel rinsed out in the water and wiping dry with another cloth.

A FATAL FIRE.

Six Persons Perish in a Burning Hotel in Gloversville, N. Y.

Gloversville, N. Y., Feb. 2.—The Alvord house, a five-story brick building, was totally destroyed by fire between seven and eight o'clock Tuesday morning. Six persons perished in the flames and a dozen others were more or less injured in making their escape. The dead are: E. C. Kimball, of Indianapolis, and his wife and daughter; Benjamin F. Strickland, Henry C. Day, Charles Ruppert. Mr. Kimball was an agent for a glove factory of this city and Mr. Strickland and Mr. Day were business men. Ruppert was a bell boy in the hotel.

The total loss on building, furniture and property of guests will probably amount to $100,000, partially insured.

MAN AND WIFE KILLED.

Joliet (Ill.) Couple the Victims of a Grade Crossing Accident.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 31.—Alderman Christopher Byrne and his wife met sudden death Saturday in a grade crossing accident. Mr. Byrne and his wife and baby, the latter two years old, were out sleigh riding in the country and started toward the city. When one mile southwest of the city they were struck by an east-bound train on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road at 11:15 o'clock. The train was running about 45 miles an hour. The horse was instantly killed and the cutter was smashed to pieces. Mr. Byrne and Mrs. Byrne were badly cut and bruised and both died Saturday afternoon. The baby was thrown into a snowdrift and was only slightly hurt.

FARM & GARDEN.

HANDY LOW WAGON.

Every Man Owning a Fair Set of Tools Can Build One.

The accompanying illustrations represent a farmer's wagon, which can be made at home. The wheels are from a binder truck. In Fig. 1 a a are beams 12 feet long and 2x½ inches, b b 4 feet long and 2x6½ inches; the axles are 2 feet from each end. The middle crosspiece d is 2 feet back of the front bolster. The front axle is 4x4 inches and is 2½ feet long measured inside the wheel. The height of the frame resting on the bolsters is 15 inches. The king bolt is 20½ inches long and goes through the bolster and axle at e and is kept in place by means of a key. The short piece of iron h is bolted to the crosspiece d and attached to the iron g. The side boards can be taken off at will, which leaves the top perfectly flat. These are 10 feet 7 inches long on the sides, and 12 inches high. The end boards are 4 feet 4 inches long, with 2-inch slats nailed on to keep them upright. In Fig. 2, e is the sideboard, f the end board, g the side beam, d the cross beam, h the back axle and c the tongue. This wagon cost me $3, besides my own work, and I did all of it except the blacksmithing. Every man who has a fair set of tools can build this. It is very useful in hauling corn fodder, manure, stone or almost anything on the farm. The front axle is made short so that there is less difficulty in turning.—Orange Judd Farmer.

UNDER PART OF WAGON.

SIDE VIEW OF WAGON.

VEGETABLE MOULD.

Commonly Its Value as a Fertilizer Is Overestimated.

The value of vegetable matter in the soil is very commonly overestimated. If it is extra abundant in virgin soils freshly cleared from forest it is a sign that the subsoil is wet and cold. Such soils when first cleared are generally less productive than they are after one or two years of cultivation, which has not only opened them to light and air, but has also decomposed some of the mold and converted it into carbonic acid gas. There is, besides, a difference in the quality of mold dependent on what vegetation it is made from. That in swamps is mostly from leaves of trees and mosses which have little except carbon. Such soils are often made very productive by applying to them potash, so as to cause more active decomposition. The slow decomposition of carbonaceous matter in water generates what is known as humic acid, and which is very poisonous to the roots of plants.

Vegetable matter, which is highly nitrogenous, heats rapidly, and its carbon is so quickly burned out that it makes very little vegetable mold, and that on further exposure to air quickly disappears. Hence on the richest land there is often less vegetable matter in the soil than there is on land which is black with it only because it is cold and wet. The application of nitrogenous manures hastens the decomposition of vegetable matter in the soil, while coarse, strawy manures turn to a mold that has comparatively little fertility, but which makes the soil look much richer than it really is. Farmers have too long been deceived by the idea that it is the black soil that is always the most productive, and especially if it is black to great depth. Most such soils lack potash or phosphate, and often lack both of these before they can be made profitably productive.—American Cultivator.

The Importance of Lime.

Lime for the animal and lime for the land go hand in hand. When corn is selected as the principal food for young stock the bones cannot be produced therefrom and the animal will succumb, as there is but very little lime in grain. This may be obviated by feeding clover and bran, but after the pigs are taken off the pasture they are fed mostly on corn which is insufficient when used exclusively. To make the young animals grow rapidly they should have foods rich in lime, which is best secured by allowing a variety.

About Moisture on Walls.

This difficulty is frequently met with. Old buildings do not seem to have as much moisture on the walls, thus becoming white with frost, as buildings constructed of new lumber. When lumber is seasoned the grain is closer and less moisture penetrates, but new lumber, especially that containing much sap, will show moisture on the walls. This is mentioned because damp walls have been a source of annoyance to some. When tarred paper is used apply it on the outside instead of on the inside of the walls.—Farm and Fireside.

MANAGING ON SHARES.

The Equitable System Adopted by a Wisconsin Farmer.

Of late much has been printed on the above subject, but none seems to hit the mark or the plan that will always warrant success. Here in this very fertile district the farm manager gets one-half the proceeds of the farm for his salary. He owns one-half of all the live stock kept or raised on the farm. He has house and outbuildings, free of rent; he furnishes teams and all the tools, does all the work, and is required in a written contract to do all the work in season, and in a good workmanlike manner; he is allowed to keep a team on the undivided grass and hay, but must feed his own grain.

He can sell his crops at any time he sees fit, and must sell the proprietor's half at the pleasure of the owner of the farm, and gets one cent per bushel for hauling the grain not to exceed four miles; all other proceeds he must take to market free of charges.

He must work the highway; he must repair all fences and make light repairs on the outbuildings, the owner furnishing all material. The proprietor must pay all cash taxes and one-half of the thrashing bill, and has one-half of all the proceeds of the farm of every nature, except the proceeds of one-fourth acre, which is assigned to the tenant for a garden. The owner must be advised as to the crops to be raised and the different fields in which they must be grown. The manuer must be drawn out every fall and put where it is most needed.

The man on my farm commenced the first of November last on his fourth year, and as yet there has not been dissatisfaction between us. The tenant gets his pay as he goes along, and is satisfied in all things; one-half of the products of the farm is his salary. Most of the farms in this vicinity are managed on the above terms, which are considered advantageous for the tenant, especially in a dry and unproductive season, for he has no rent-money to raise.—E. Reynolds, in Country Gentleman.

UNEVEN WOOD PILES.

How They Can Be Measured with Some Sort of Accuracy.

It is often desired to measure a tier of wood that is irregularly piled up. Select a portion of the tier that has the top gradually sloping. Measure the height at each end of the slope, add together and divide by two. This will give the average height of the portion taken. Multiply this height by its length, and then by the breadth and you have the cubic contents. Now take another section and proceed as before. In the cut we measure the height at a and e. The half of these two heights will give the average height. Next take the section from c to d. This maintains an even height, so the length, breadth and thickness can be multiplied together. In the slope from d to b, proceed as in the first slope. Add the cubic contents of the three sections together and divide by 128. This will give the number of cords. Tiers vary in their regularity, but the principle here illustrated can be used with any of them.—Orange Judd Farmer.

MEASURING WOOD PILES.

TIMELY FARM HINTS.

Clover hay is the best for the milk cows and the ewes with lambs.

Plan this winter to reduce the number of waste places on the farm.

Manure can often be hauled out when there is snow on the ground.

One of the best places to apply wood ashes is on the patch intended for potatoes.

Especially fattening foods should be excluded from that supplied to the growing colts.

Generally the more compact in form the farm produce is sold the better the profit.

It is the amount of fat that creaming and churning will get out that determines the value of milk.

There is no surer destruction to a herd, however good, than that of breeding to an inferior sire.

Keep well up with the manure hauling; it will save much time in the spring when work is pressing.

There is nothing like a good supply of milk to make the work of the lambing season light and pleasant.

Rye starts earliest and grows faster than the grasses on the farm and is well adapted for early pasturage.

High feeding, drying up prematurely or milking irregularly, weeds out, clogs and contracts the milk of cows.

It is not always the question of immediate returns which should govern us but the question of permanent gain. —Farmers' Union.

Squirrels in Corn Cribs.

Wherever squirrels are prevalent, care should be taken to prevent them from getting at the seed corn. It is not a good plan to hang the seed corn in the crib, as the open slatted sides to allow ventilation the squirrel can easily enter, and his agility makes it impossible to keep seed corn from him, no matter how carefully it is braided and hung where neither rats nor mice can get at it. The squirrel does not care for the bulk of corn in the crib. He is very dainty in his food, and is sure to take that which is hung up and carefully dried for seed. The provoking part of it is that he destroys far more corn than he eats. He cares only for the chit or germ, leaving all the rest as only fit for hog feed.—American Cultivator.

WORST STORM IN YEARS.

New England and New York in the Grasp of a Blizzard.

Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 2.—The most violent storm known here since 1851 swept over the shores of Cape Ann Monday night and early Tuesday morning, causing heavy loss of life and about $200,000 damage. More than a dozen vessels are ashore near here, at least four more are lost and many others damaged. Eighteen lives are said to have been lost, and there may be 12 more which have gone down on missing vessels.

Boston, Feb. 2.—A northeast snowstorm which set in Monday and raged until yesterday afternoon completely paralyzed all branches of business and street car and street railroad traffic, and for a time shut off the city from communication by wire with all places outside the limits of Boston. The storm was the most severe this city has experienced in 25 years, and caused the loss of several lives, besides doing a money damage of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

New York, Feb. 2.—Northern New York is snow bound, and the extent of damage cannot be approximated. Business has been at a standstill, wires all over the country are down, roads are blockaded and railway traffic greatly impeded. At Albany, Troy, Saratoga and many other places as much as two and three feet of snow has fallen, and reports are to the effect that the blizzard is still raging, the worst storm since the memorable one of 1888.

A FIENDISH CRIME.

A Widow and Her Daughter Murdered Near Burlington, Ia.

Burlington, Ia., Jan. 31.—The dead and frozen bodies of Mrs. Fanny Rathburn and her 12-year-old daughter Mary, were found Saturday afternoon in pools of blood in their lonely home west of the city. The woman was struck in the head with an ax, which leaned against a near-by wall. Her head was split open. The body of the child was found in a bedroom off the kitchen with her throat cut from ear to ear. Evidence of a horrible struggle for life was seen on all sides. It is evident the young girl had been brutally assaulted by the murderer, although her torn clothing indicated she had fought desperately for her honor. Having accomplished the deed, the villain cut her throat. This was not accomplished without a great struggle.

Burlington, Ia., Feb. 1.—Abe Storms has confessed to the murder of Mrs. Fanny Rathburn and her 12-year-old daughter Mary, with all the sickening details of the crime. The confession was made to Chief of Police Greiner and the county attorney. He says he committed the crime on Sunday night, January 23. He killed the mother first in the cellar, then he enticed the little girl into the bedroom above. After a terrible struggle to outrage her, he cut her throat.

HEAVY FAILURE.

Firm of Illinois Dairymen Forced to Suspend Business.

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 1.—The failure of Oatman Bros., dairymen, with headquarters at Dundee, seems very complete. About midnight Saturday executions were issued by the First national bank of Elgin and the Elgin Butter Tub company for $38,000. The Oatmans conducted ten creameries in Illinois and seven in Wisconsin, and were among the largest operators on the Elgin board of trade. They also conducted a caramel business in Chicago, and owned fruit ranches in California. The patrons at all the factories had received no pay for milk for two months. Assets are estimated at $175,000, with liabilities exceeding this amount.

Anson Is Out.

New York, Jan. 29.—With the return of A. G. Spalding, the former president of the Chicago baseball club, to the city Friday from the west the announcement that the Chicago club would not renew its contract with Adrian C. Anson and that "Tom" Burns, formerly a member of the Chicago team, would be the new manager of the colts was confirmed.

Wages Increased.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 2.—The Carnegie-Oliver Mining company, operating four of the largest iron mines on the Gogebic range and employing 1,500 men, have announced an increase of ten per cent. in the wages of all their employes. From expressions of other mine owners it is probable an increase in wages will shortly be made by other companies.

Coinage Statistics.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows the total coinage at the United States mints during January, 1898, was $5,129,010, as follows: Gold, $3,340,000; silver, $1,624,000; minor coins, $850,015. The coinage of standard silver dollars during the month amounted to $1,250,000.

Purses Made of Cloth.

An eastern newspaper avers that the very, very latest thing is to have a purse made of the same material as the street dress. And, not only that, but the purse must be mounted with a gold clasp, and have the initials of the owner in gold letters upon it. Another possibility which it is whispered may descend upon us in fact is to have walking shoes made of dyed leather to match the walking costume. This is a pretty fancy, at all events, and has probably come about from the tremendous and universal success of the tan shoe, which is so much softer and prettier than black, and threatens to be worn in winter as well as for outing and summer wear.

Jeweled Buttonholes.

A notion just shown in Paris is a jeweled buttonhole, sold in graduated sizes, for the front of bodices. Some are of paste, others in gold; steel and amethysts and steel and strass are put together. These sometimes resemble old drop earrings placed horizontally on the dress; others are of a lozenge shape, but all are novel.

HAS FAITH IN THE FUTURE.

President M'Kinley Speaks at the Manufacturers' Banquet Given in New York City.

STRONGLY FAVORS CURRENCY REFORM.

Declares That the Republican Party Must Stand by Its Platform—National Policies Should Encourage Industry and Commerce—The People Will Do the Rest.

New York, Jan. 28.—The third annual banquet of the National Association of Manufacturers of the United States, which took place Thursday night at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, was one of the largest and most elaborate affairs of the kind ever given in this city.

The wildest enthusiasm prevailed when President McKinley was introduced. He spoke slowly and was plainly heard in every portion of the great hall by the 1,000 guests present. President McKinley said in part:

The President's Address.

"National policies can encourage industry and commerce, but it remains for the people to project and carry them on. If these policies stimulate industrial development and energy, the people can be safely trusted to do the rest. The government, however, is restricted in its power to promote industry. It can aid commerce, but not create it. It can widen and deepen its rivers, improve its harbors and develop its great national waterways, but the ships to sail and the traffic to carry the people must supply.

Must Know the Wants of Others.

"Much profitable trade is still unenjoyed by our people because of their present insufficient facilities for reaching desirable markets. Much of it is lost because of a lack of information and ignorance of the conditions and needs of other nations. We must know just what other people want before we can supply their wants. We must understand exactly how to reach them with least expense if we would enter into the most advantageous business relations with them. The ship requires the shipper; but the shipper must have assured promise that his goods will have a sale when they reach their destination. It is a good rule, if buyers will not come to us, for us to go to them. It is our duty to make American enterprise and industrial ambition, as well as achievement, terms of respect and praise, not only at home, but among the family of nations, the world over.

Our Money Must Be Unassailable.

"There is another duty resting upon the national government—'to coin and regulate the value thereof.' This duty requires that our government shall regulate the value of its money by the highest standards of commercial honesty and national honor. The money of the United States is and must forever be unquestioned and unassailable. If doubts remain they must be removed. If weak places are discovered they must be strengthened. Nothing should ever tempt us—nothing ever will tempt us—to scale down the sacred debt of the nation through a legal technicality. Whatever may be the language of the contract, the United States will discharge all its obligations in the currency recognized as the best throughout the civilized world at the times of payment. Nor will we ever consent that the wages of labor or its frugal savings shall be scaled down by permitting payment in dollars of less value than the dollars accepted as the best in every enlightened nation of the earth.

Question Must Be Settled Now.

"Under existing conditions our citizens cannot be excused if they do not redouble their efforts to secure such financial legislation as will place their honorable intentions beyond dispute. All those who represent, as you do, the great conservative and the progressive business interests of the country, owe it not only to themselves but to the people, to insist upon the settlement of this great question now, or else to face the alternative that it must be again submitted for arbitration at the polls. This is our plain duty to more than 7,000,000 voters who 15 months ago won a great political battle on the issue, among others, that the United States government would not permit a doubt to exist anywhere concerning the stability and integrity of its currency or the inviolability of its obligations of every kind. That is my interpretation of that victory.

Still of Binding Force.

"For us to attempt nothing in the face of the present fallacies and the constant effort to spread them is to lose valuable ground already won and practically to weaken the forces of sound money for their battles of the future. The financial plank of the St. Louis platform is still as commanding upon republicans and those who served with them in the last campaign as on the day it was adopted and promulgated. Happily the tariff part of the platform has already been engrafted into public statute. But that other plank, not already builded into our constitution, is of binding force upon all of us. What is it?

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States, and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth."

Faith in the Future.

"I have no fear of the future of our beloved country. While I discern in its present condition the necessity that always exists for the faithful devotion of its citizens, the history of its past is assurance to me that this will be as it always has been through every struggle and emergency, still onward and upward. It has never suffered from any trial or been unequal to any test. Founded upon right principles, we have nothing to fear from the vicissitudes which may lie across our pathway. The nation founded by the fathers upon principles of virtue, education, freedom and human rights; molded by the great discussions which established its sovereignty, tried in the crucible of civil war, its integrity confirmed by the results of a reconstruction, with a union stronger and better than ever before, stands to-day not upon shifting sands, but upon immovable foundations.

"Let us resolve by our laws and by our administration of them to maintain the rights of the citizens, to cement the union by still closer bonds, to exalt the standards of American civilization, encourage the promotion of thrift, industry and economy and the homely virtues which have ennobled our people, uphold the stability of our currency and credit and illustrate the purity of our national and municipal government, and though the rain descends and the floods come and the winds blow, the nation will stand, for it is founded upon a rock."

The Yellow Dragon.

HE was a quaint old yellow dragon, with a pointed tail and big wings and time-worn claws, and a ferocious expression which the designer's clumsiness or the wear and tear of 50 winters, had made perilously near a grin. Yet, after all, perhaps he had cause to smile, since he had seen the third generation of foolish lovers sitting on the marble rim of the idle fountain, or whispering nonsense as they walked, with arms entwined, along its grassy borders.

This afternoon, when pretty Violet Newman came tripping down the mossy path, in her new, white gown with its favor of pink roses, and her saucy little hat half falling from her chestnut curls; when she greeted him with a kiss of the hand from afar, and dropped him a mocking courtesy as she reached his precincts—why, even a stone monster was bound to smile. Indeed, when she tiptoed to reach down his capacious throat with her small, white hand, a casual observer would have sworn that he winked—though really it was an affection of the eyes for which a boy of two generations back (now a portly dean) was responsible. The dragon was, in truth, of very hard material, and his command of countenance was limited. But he looked at Violet as sweetly as he could, and no one who knew her would blame him.

When she drew a paper from between his threatening jaws and glanced at it, she gave a harmless little frown, and contorted her red lips into a pout. "Bother!" she said. "You nasty old dragon!" But he laughed all the same, and swallowed the paper without a murmur, when she replaced it. Then she seated herself daintily upon the marble rim, leaning against an old urn full of scarlet flowers, and opened a book; but something seemed to distract her. "I wonder," she said, absently, resting her round chin upon one hand and looking inquiringly at the dragon. But he only smiled, and winked with his injured eye. "I wonder," she repeated a few minutes later, listening intently. It looked as though she might be attending to the paean of the lark who was swimming up towards the sun, or the bleating of the young lambs in the meadow beyond the trees. But the dragon, who had seen the three generations of lovers, knew better than that. He would have chuckled, if his structural limitations had been less stringent, when a well-built young fellow vaulted the fence, just by the warning to tresspassers, and came lightly towards the fountain; and Violet's absorption in her book became profound.

As he reached the monster he paused, and she looked up. Their eyes met and changed together from expectation, through doubt and disappointment, to mutual approval; as though each had expected some one else, but had found a tolerable substitute.

"I beg your pardon. I am tresspassing, I fear?" he apologized, raising his hat.

"Well—yes; unless you are going to Mr. Newman's I'm afraid you are." It was dull at Ducksworth, and she wasn't quite sure that she didn't know him. That was how she came to smile upon him—ever such a little smile. So he stopped, with his hat in his hand, leaning against the pedestal of the old yellow dragon.

"I don't know Mr. Newman very well," he explained, studying her very carefully, "but his niece, Violet Newman, and I were playmates when we were youngsters."

"Indeed!" said she, with a start and a bright flash of her eyes. "Do you mean very long ago?"

"Why, yes. It is over seven years." He sighed; which was absurd, because they had been very good years to him.

"She has altered very much since then," she observed, thoughtfully.

"You know her?"

"Of course. You see I am a niece of Mr. Newman, too. He has about 40—all different!"

"You are certainly very different from my little friend Violet, as I remember her," said he, looking admiringly at her pretty face and slim figure. Man is an inconsistent animal. "Though for a moment I thought perhaps you were she."

"Ah!" said she, with a laugh, "you would find her quite changed—almost as different from what she was as I am."

"Yes," he observed, thoughtfully, "that's the worst of it." She bit her lip angrily.

"Are you so much attached to her memory?"

"Well—I was." He looked very pleasant as he laughed.

"Flattery is nearly as bad as inconstancy," she remarked sternly. "But I suppose you want to get me to talk about her?"

"Yes," assented he; "or anything."

"You are Mr. Mostyn, then, I suppose?"

"Richard Mostyn, at your service."

"Vi told me about you once."

"Did she, by Jove! What did she say?"

"Well, I scarcely remember; it's such a long time ago. I think she took your boy-and-girl affair rather seriously, you know."

There was a far-away look in her big dark eyes, and she laid her book on the grass beside her.

"O," said he, eagerly, "so did I. We used to meet here nearly every morning till I went away. We made this old dragon's mouth"—he patted its head familiarly—"a post office when one of us couldn't turn up. Did she tell you that?"

"Yes, she told me—a long time ago."

"Probably she has forgotten now."

"Most likely. But she is a strange girl; rather loyal, you know."

"She was an awfully nice youngster," said he, musingly, with an undecided look at his companion.

"She wasn't very good-looking, was she?" She took up her book again and turned the pages absently.

"Well—er—I don't know," said he, critically. "She was quite a youngster, you see, and growing. Why, she wasn't more than 13!"

"Scraggy, you mean?" She nearly tore a leaf in turning it over.

"Ye-es—at least, no. She wanted filling out rather, but—"

"Not pretty?"

"Well, not exactly. But still—"

"Too pale, if I remember rightly?"

"She was rather pale, but—"

"Clumsy and awkward, wasn't she?"

"Not so bad as I." He leaned back and laughed aloud. "I suppose she didn't tell you about the time when we went bird's-nesting and fell in the ditch?"

"No, she didn't." The emphatic tone seemed to rouse some recollection in him, and he studied her profile very carefully as she looked at her book.

"I daresay she's forgotten me," he suggested, with a sigh, still watching her.

"I wonder you remember since you rated her charms so lightly," said she, shutting her book with a snap and standing up against the urn.

"By Jove, I didn't!" said he, sturdily. "I thought her the jolliest girl that ever was, though she was three years younger than I."

"Yet you haven't troubled to seek her out?"

"Well, you see, I was abroad with my dad for six years."

"You could have written."

"What do you think her uncle would have said to her if he'd found her out? She told me not to."

"Of course," said she, scornfully. "But do you suppose she meant it? And why didn't you go and see her when you came back?"

"It seemed such a long time. I didn't expect she'd remember."

"Did you?"

"Not so well as now," he admitted, shamefacedly.

"Someone else, I suppose?"

"A mere passing affair."

"And a stream of passing affairs since, no doubt. Men are so faithful!" She tossed her dainty head scornfully.

"They were only very little ones," he pleaded. "And I did think about her."

"Without trying to find her?"

"Well—not quite."

"Did you try, really?"

"Yes," said he, rather awkwardly, "I did."

"How?" The dragon seemed positively to smirk; but it was probably some effect of the sunlight.

He waved his hand to the stony monster.

"O!" said she, "I see. A letter! How romantic! Didn't she answer?"

"No," said he, shaking his head. "I put in something three months ago, and I've been half a dozen times since."

"Perhaps she didn't consider the letter satisfactory," she suggested, demurely; but there was a dimple on each cheek. "Was it very touching?"

"Verses!" he confessed, with a deprecatory shrug of the shoulders.

"O!" said she. "They ought to have mollified her. But she hasn't been here for some time, as a matter of fact. You'd better let me send them to her."

"I hardly know," said he, doubtfully; "you see, we mightn't care for each other now."

"Just as you please," said she, tossing her head. There was something in the toss which brought a flood of recollection into his eyes. He plunged his arm into the dragon's jaws, and brought out a piece of paper from far inside.

"If I give you this will you bring her answer?"

"Yes," said she, gravely; "or she will. But I warn you I shall read them."

He nodded and twirled his moustache uneasily, as she pretended to read the verses—although she knew them by heart.

TO A MEMORY.

Changed the place we called our own,
Weeds and moss have overgrown
Ev'n the rugged path of stone
Where we met;
Only on the fountain's rim
Scowls untouched the dragon grim,
Naught are seven years to him—
Violet!

What are seven years to me?
Years of hot blood coursing free;
Quite as much as there should be
To regret;
Here and there a little fall,
Now and then an eyelash wet;
But one hallowed thought through all—
Violet!

What are seven years to you,
Little playmate? Would I knew
If you recollect me too,
Or forget.
Be you free from harm and cares,
With your heart a child-heart yet;
And my name among your prayers,
Violet!

R. M.

"There seems to be an answer," she said, faintly, after a minute or two; and he looked over her shoulder and read:

"Dear Dick: If you really want to see me, I am often here in the afternoon. Yours truly, VI.

P. S.—I am afraid you have been very bad.

"P. P. S.—I shall expect to know all about it.

"P. P. P. S.—I haven't grown up very nice, so don't be disappointed."

"Disappointed!" said he, with a fine scorn. "Why, you are splendid, Vi. Do you think I don't know you?" He slipped his arm through hers, and she hung her head in vain, because he saw her blushing face in the fountain. It was such a radiant, sweet face, that he ventured just to touch her hair with his lips.

"I am very happy, Dick," said she, half an hour later, and she suddenly pressed her velvety lips upon the claws of the yellow dragon—from which moment his smile has been unvaried and unmistakable.—Black and White.

SWEPT BY A BIG STORM.

Another Furious Blizzard Rages in Western and Northern Michigan.

GREAT INCONVENIENCE IS CAUSED.

Passenger Trains Stalled in Deep Drifts Near Greenville — Business Practically Suspended at Many Points — High Winds Prevail — Worst Storm of the Season.

Detroit, Feb. 1. — The most severe snowstorm that has visited western and northern Michigan this season began Sunday night. Two passenger trains and one freight train on the Toledo, Saginaw & Muskegon railroad are now snowbound at Miller's station, near Greenville. All the trains on the Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western are canceled. At Rogers City all business is suspended and the railroads are blocked. No trains arrived at Paw Paw all day and the court was adjourned, as members of the grand jury could not arrive. The Ann Arbor passenger train is tied up at a small flag station near Owosso, and the cuts on that road are said to be filled with ten or fifteen feet of snow. The Mackinaw division of the Michigan Central is helplessly tied up. At Muskegon trains are moving several hours late, with double-headers, street cars are tied up and no vessels have ventured out of the harbor. It is reported that two feet of snow has fallen at Newberry, in the upper peninsula. High winds prevailed over the state all day. Relief trains have been sent to the aid of the imprisoned passengers and crews, as it is feared that the extreme cold may cause suffering. This is the second severe storm over Michigan in less than a week.

Lansing, Feb. 2.—All trains in Michigan have been generally behind time owing to the drifting snow, the east and west roads being particularly unfortunate. Traffic is seriously impeded throughout the state, the storm being the worst of the season.

PINGREE OFFERS PRIZES.

Wants University Men to Answer Some Hard Questions.

Detroit, Feb. 1. — Gov. Pingree has sent the following communication to President Hutchins of the University of Michigan:

"I would like to know what the difference would have been to the union soldiers if they had been paid in gold, or the best money, or 'honest money,' as some call it.

"I enlisted in August, 1862, and served, say, three years. I received a bounty of $50 from the town and $13 a month in currency, payable every two months. What difference did it make to me? And what difference did it make to the whole union army? How much would it take now to pay the difference, with three per cent. interest payable semi-annually and compounded?

"I will give $50 to the first student of the university who gives me a correct answer, $25 to the second and $10 to the third. All answers will be sent to Adjt. Gen. Irish, Lansing, who will mark the date of their receipt and judge of the correctness of the answers given. Mark all answers across the envelopes: 'Answers to questions as to pay of soldiers.' Answers will be opened March 1, 1898.

"H. S. PINGREE."

LAW TO BE ATTACKED.

Methodists of Michigan Will Assail the Validity of a Recent Act.

Lansing, Feb. 1. — The Methodists, the strongest denomination in Michigan, appear to have been left unprovided for when the last legislature repealed all special laws for the incorporation of religious societies, and enacted a general law covering this subject. It was developed that no provision was made in the new statute for churches having a connectional policy, only those with a congregational policy being included. The Methodists are therefore left without means for legally incorporating and have attacked the constitutionality of the statute in the supreme court.

INSANITY INCREASES.

Condition of Affairs in Houghton County Grows Alarming.

Lansing, Jan. 31. — The increase of insanity in Houghton county is said to be little short of alarming, a local officer having been recently advised by the officials of Newberry asylum that in this respect the county is equaled only by Wayne, the largest in the state. For some time past insane patients have been received at Houghton jail at the rate of one or more a week. In a few cases dementia has been traced to religion, but most of it is attributed to lack of success in business.

Centenarian Celebrates.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 31.—Laadan Winchester, of Byron township, celebrated his centennial birthday last week with a family reunion. He was born in New York and came to Michigan in 1854 and since has lived on his farm in Byron. His wife, with whom he had lived 72 years, died in 1890. The family reunion was attended by five sons, 15 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

City of Duluth Abandoned.

St. Joseph, Jan. 31.—The stranded steamer City of Duluth, which went on the bar at the entrance of the harbor Wednesday, was abandoned to the insurance company Saturday night. Her cargo of flour was transferred to flat boats late Saturday night. The entire cargo of corn was washed through a large hole amidships into the lake. The steamer was stripped by the insurance company's wrecking crew.

Will Meet in Port Huron.

Port Huron, Jan. 31.—The Orangemen of Michigan and Ontario, Can., have decided to hold their annual celebration on July 12, 1898, at Port Huron. The mayor, H. W. Stevens, extends an invitation to all organizations of Orangemen to attend.

REFUSED TO TAKE SILVER.

Important Suit Filed at Pontiac—To Be Made a Test Case.

Lansing, Feb. 1. — Stephen Baldwin, a Detroit capitalist, began a suit Monday in the Oakland circuit court at Pontiac against Chairman Fred A. Baker of the democratic state committee. It involves the constitutionality of the Bland-Allison silver act of 1878. It was brought expressly to determine the validity of that act and some other decrees bearing on silver as a currency. Both Chairman Baker and ex-Congressman Tarsney, who is Baldwin's attorney, say the case will be carried to the supreme court of the United States. Mr. Baldwin a few months ago bought a piece of farming land in Oakland county. Chairman Baker held a mortgage on the land, which became due December 13. The amount of it on that day was $364. December 13 Baldwin went to Chairman Baker's law office with 364 silver dollars. Chairman Baker, although a silver man, declined to surrender the mortgage for 364 silver dollars. He insisted that the particular mortgage must be paid in gold or paper money. He would accept silver dollars on one condition: That enough of them should be tendered to equal the bullion equivalent in silver of 364 gold dollars. Mr. Baldwin refused to agree to this and commenced proceedings in equity to compel Baker to cancel the mortgage in view of the tender made.

SEELY HAS EIGHT WIVES.

Mrs. Lucy Killan Accuses Him of Bigamy—In Jail at Kalamazoo.

Lansing, Jan. 31.—David Seely, who is 68 years old, and who is in jail at Kalamazoo on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Mrs. Lucy Killan, of that city, has eight wives if the charge is true. Mrs. Killan says Seely married her in October last and in a few days deserted her at Battle Creek. She declares Seely was married first about 1865, the name of the woman being unknown. Next came Margaret McComb, of Leroy, N. Y., whom it is alleged he deserted at Mishawaka, Ind., in 1888, leaving her with nine children. The names of the other wives, she says, are Mrs. Brown, of Berrien county, Mich.; Mrs. Vrooman, of Mishawaka; Mrs. William Clark, of Elkhart, Ind.; Mrs. Lablanche, of Jonesville; Mrs. Killan and Mrs. Clara Davidson, of Granville, Mich. He married Mrs. Davidson, it is charged, in November last, and deserted her January 20. In 1874 Seely was sentenced to Jackson prison for two years from here, for getting money on false pretenses, and he has served two other terms, once from Milwaukee. He says that he has but one wife, but that he cannot prevent women chasing after him and asking him to marry them.

REFORMS ARE DEMANDED.

Convention of County Supervisors of Michigan at Lansing.

Lansing, Jan. 2.—Delegates from the boards of supervisors of 20 counties are in convention here for the purpose of recommending legislation that will tend to decrease county expenses, which have increased alarmingly in almost every county in the state during the last decade. The evil is generally attributed to the fee system. The opinion is that the remedy lies principally in paying a salary to every official and providing that all fees shall be covered into the county treasury. Other reforms contemplated are the wiping out of all exemption of property from taxation, establishing uniform witness fees, reducing the number of justices of the peace and requiring parties to civil suits to pay all costs in connection therewith.

REDUCE INTEREST RATES.

Detroit Savings Banks Vote to Pay Only Three Per Cent. on Deposits.

Detroit, Jan. 29.—At a secret meeting held in the directors' room of the People's savings bank the representatives of the following banks signed an agreement to reduce the rate of interest on savings deposits to three per cent. beginning on April 1 on new deposits and on June 1 on old deposits: Wayne county, People's, Peninsular, Dime, Citizens', Home and Michigan. The German-American, Central savings and Mechanics' bank were not represented, but it is expected that all will sign The Detroit, McLellan & Anderson and River savings banks will continue on a four per cent. basis.

Affairs of a Defunct Bank.

Marquette, Feb. 2.—A statement of the private bank of J. M. Williamson which recently closed its doors shows nominal assets as $205,193.76 and the appraised assets, $146,223.70, and liabilities $132,973.28. The cash on hand at the date of the assignment was $28,973.68. The amount which has been paid in since is $11,263.92. The stocks and bonds, notes, secured and unsecured, real estate and miscellaneous items make up the rest. The balance due depositors and due on certificates of account is $116,611.80.

Rules Against the State.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—In accordance with the recent decision of the supreme court in the case of the Michigan Land and Lumber company against Rust, the secretary of the interior has declined to issue patent to the state of Michigan to certain lands in the Marquette land district certified by the land office in 1853 as swamp lands and afterwards declared by the same authorities not to be of such character.

Mason to Speak.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Senator Mason will leave Washington on the eve of February 10 and will go to Kalamazoo, Mich., where on February 11 he will deliver an address at the banquet of the Lincoln Birthday club. The next day he will run over to Grand Rapids, where he will deliver another speech at a similar banquet in that city.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest exution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

In the matter of the estate of JOHN AIKEN deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the law office of Fred B. Wood in village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 19th day of February, 1898, and on the 19th day of June, 1898, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the 13th day of December, A. D. 1897, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, January 12th, 1898.

SAMUEL GIBSON, THOS. S. BOYD, Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF LENAWEE In Chancery.

In the matter of the assignment for the benefit of the creditors of the Ohio & Michigan Coal & Manufacturing Company.

Please to take notice that the undersigned has been appointed by the court, assignee in the above matter, to succeed Charles Burridge, deceased; that he has filed his final statement and petition in said court, showing that the principal amount of the money received, belonging to said estate, was deposited in the bank and lost by the failure of the bank, except the small amount received by compromise; that he has in his hands $366.38 belonging to said estate, and asks hat there be allowed to him $66.38 for his services, postage, printer's bill, railroad fare, hotel bills and attorney fees; that he has for distribution $300.00; that claims of said estate have been proven to the amount of 10638.88 dollars; that $816.34 of said claims purport to be for labor and services, and the owners thereof claim that the same are preferred, and to be paid in full; that attorneys have been employed since said Burridge filed his last report, but whether or not they have been paid he does not know,

And he asks that said assignment and trust be declared to be performed and the affairs wound up and that he be discharged, and that he be instructed what disposition is to be made of the $300.00 remaining in his hands.

This petition will be brought on to be heard at the first day of the next term of said court to be held in the City of Adrian, said County, February 21st, 1898, at the opening of court, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.

APPALLING STATISTICS.

Rapid Growth of Crime Among American Youth.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 15.—The eighth annual meeting of the boys and girls' national home convention began here Tuesday morning in the hall of the Young Men's Christian association, 50 delegates, including many from cities in other states being present.

The secretary of the convention had a mass of tabulated statistics from chiefs of police of many cities, relating to crime among youth, and showing the effects of curfew laws in restraint of crime. The report from St. Louis showed a reduction under the curfew law of 50 per cent. in the commitments to the reform school, and Lincoln, Neb., reported a falling off of 75 per cent.

The reports further showed that in 1895 and 1896 over 197,000 boys were arrested; from something over 100 towns heard from there were 371 bands of boy robbers; nearly one-third of Boston's arrests were boys; 33,000 youngsters were incarcerated in Chicago in two years. The reports from all of the big cities shows that the number of boys who start every year on the road to the penitentiary is astounding.

GET HIGHER PRICES.

Farmers Reap the Benefit of an Advance in Cereals.

Washington, Dec. 11. — The agricultural department has issued the following, signed by John Hyde:

"The department's final estimates of the production of the principal crops are based largely on the December returns. The only information now available relates to the average farm price of certain products on the first day of the present month. The farm price of corn, as indicated, averages 26.5 cents per bushel, against 21.5 cents last year; that of oats, 21.5 cents, against 18.7 cents last year; that of barley, 37.7 cents, against 32.3 cents last year; that of rye, 44.7 cents, against 40.8 cents last year; that of buckwheat, 42.1 cents, against 39.2 cents last year; that of hay, $6.65 per ton, against $6.55 last year. The averages for the products not given are withheld for revision as are also the estimates of the acreage of winter wheat and rye and the condition of these products."

WEYLER IS FOR WAR.

He Offers to Lead an Expedition Against the United States.

Madrid, Dec. 13.—Gen. Weyler said Saturday at Barcelona that, considering Spain's military and naval strength and the courage of her soldiers, she had nothing to fear from a war with the United States. Gen. Weyler continued:

"If such a war becomes necessary, I will consider it my greatest military glory to take command of a military expedition against the United States. I approve the language of the papers hostile to McKinley's message, but I think that even they are too cold in their censures. Never have such insults as those of McKinley against the representative of an army of a friendly nation remained unpunished."

LYNCHED.

Brace of Negroes Fall Into the Hands of a Louisiana Mob.

New Orleans, Dec. 14.—Two negroes arrested for the murder of a storekeeper named Babin at St. Gabriel, La., were lynched Monday night. The proof of their guilt was conclusive and popular indignation was great. Sheriff Brown, fearing a jail delivery put the blacks on the Texas & Pacific train to be taken to New Orleans for safe keeping. The people stopped the train six miles below Plaquemine, locked up the conductor and the deputy sheriff, took the negroes off and hanged them in the woods.

Noted Architect Dead.

New York, Dec. 11.—Charles Mettam, the architect and civil engineer whose death at Bayonne, N. J., is announced, was the first to suggest elevated railroads in city streets. He designed and built the funeral car which carried the remains of President Lincoln. He served under the late Gen. Delafield in constructing the fortifications of New York harbor, and many notable buildings in New York were erected by him.

Held Up the Entire Village.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 14.—The little town of Argusville, ten miles from Fargo, was the scene of a desperate robbery Monday night. Three masked men walked into the town, armed to the teeth, and ordered the merchants and business men to stand in line. Then one man went through nearly every store in the town, securing money and valuables amounting to $1,000. None of the desperadoes were captured.

Champion Quail Eater.

Springfield, O., Dec. 13.—C. B. Buckley, now champion quail eater of the world, finished his sixtieth quail here. They were eaten at the rate of two a day for 30 consecutive days. Of the 36 who started in the race only ten were in at the finish.

Over a Century Old.

Portsmouth, N. H., Dec. 10.—James Wood celebrated his one hundred and first birthday anniversary at his home here in company with his wife, who is 80, two sisters who are over 80, and two sons and one daughter.

Button Factory Burned.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 11.—The Cedar Rapids button factory, about three miles out from the city, caught fire at one o'clock this morning and is a total loss. Two men, employes, were badly burned and may die.

Gen. Rivera Released.

Havana, Nov. 11.—Gen. Ruis Rivera, the insurgent leader who was captured in March in the province of Pinar del Rio by Spanish troops, has been released and sent to Cadiz, Spain.

Made an Assignment.

Cincinnati, Dec. 14.—Henry Probasco, one of the most prominent men in this city, who retired from business 30 years ago, made an assignment with liabilities of $100,000.

A Young Lawyer.

Atchison, Kan., Dec. 15.—Byron Gilbert, the seven-year-old son of Judge W. D. Gilbert, of this city, was given a certificate to practice law by the Kansas supreme court.

Charleston, Ill., Dec. 14.—W. A. Whittenore was found dead in a manger in his barn, where he had gone to feed his horses. Heart failure was the cause.

abilities, poor Mrs. Marshall drew her face up into an expression of sincere pain, for the feeble little rollicksome laugh had rippled down her neck to the stitches in her throat and had wrenched them the millionth part of an inch, which was just enough to cause them to hurt like red-hot irons. Mrs. Marshall's eyes filled with tears, and she whimpered for a moment, and Mrs. Johnson knelt beside her bed and kissed her and petted her soothingly, and said that if she would try to be patient she would tell her all about everything, especially the boy of four who was going to the kindergarten.

"In just 41 minutes," observed Mrs. Teck, peering at a little gold watch, on the case of which was engraved an impossible buffalo with a nose like a species of ant-eater, gazing fixedly at a castle which had the dimensions of height and width but no thickness whatever, "in just 41 minutes Mrs. Johnson will be gone. I wish it were my time to go."

"Have you been counting, too?" inquired Miss Hough. "So have I. And oh, don't I wish it was me."

It developed that everybody had been calculating upon the exact number of minutes which must elapse before the emancipation of the graduating one. There is so little to do in a hospital that a discharge is an event which is transcended by but one thing in all the world—an admission. An admission rises superior to a discharge because they have such a broad latitude over which to wander. You can speculate on the nature of the ailment and wonder whether it is going to call for an operation or yield to medicine. You can guess at antecedents and circumstances and as to whether or not the patient comes of a religious stock—of the kind given over to murmuring of hymns and sacred songs. And in a ward of course you will get to see her visitors, and you have a most agreeable time of it in figuring as to whether the young man with the sad face is her husband or her brother. A patient going away isn't nearly so interesting, of course. It is not to be expected.

Mrs. Johnson went upstairs and bade the little spinal meningitis boy good-by and fixed his pictures before him so that he could see them all without having to turn. The little boy was of a rueful sort, awaiting only the slightest and most fragile of excuses for melting into tears, and when Mrs. Johnson said she was not going to come in any more his eyes grew moist. Seeing this the convalescent knew better than to repeat the indiscreet statement to Winifred, the brave six-year-old, whose right leg was trussed in the air with a great weight holding it at a shipmast angle. She told the child she was going to see her own little girl that day.

"Has she got a stiff leg?" asked Winifred, and for fear of hurting the child's feelings, the woman said that her little girl was afflicted as intimated.

Mrs. Johnson kissed them all and told them of the candy she was going to send them, and then for the last time she heard their usual confessions of desire; Earl, the spinal-meningitis boy, now recovered of his tears and crying shrilly a determination to be a policeman and ride in the patrol wagon; Winifred to be a nurse and wear a white cap, and Guy sturdily content to have a shovel and dig a trench for gaspipe.

The nurses passed in the hallways with their basins and trays, but none of these paid any attention to the convalescent, for none of them knew her except in the most general way. Her own attendant upstairs had already smiled pleasantly and had congratulated her on the successful outcome and had gone away to wait upon other patients, especially the typhoid-fever man, who rang his bell persistently. Mrs. Johnson went into the room which she could no longer call hers and threw on her cape and hat and waited for the familiar step. Having already sent her extra apparel, there was nothing to take away but herself. The books should become the heritage of the next comer. She wondered who she would be and if she would like "The Pride of the World" or "Gladys Heming's Atonement" the better. Somebody was coming. She rose and hurried over to the dresser to take a final look at her hat, and her eyes for the last time rested on the "symptom sheet," whereon the nurses had carefully noted the medical story of her case. She seized the pencil and wrote good-by across the bottom and turned to meet her brown-bearded husband, whose eyes were bright with joy.

Two minutes later the rattle of the wheels of the hack died out of the street, and Mrs. Johnson was gone.—Chicago Record.

Shoe Box System.

Calfskin boots, now so much worn in cold weather, should never be blacked with liquid dressing, as the drying agent contained therein quickly cracks the leather. Instead use a brush polish, such as men use. Better still is a monthly dressing of neatsfoot oil, which at once softens the leather, makes it impervious to dampness and gives the fashionable dull black finish. To dress kid shoes rub with vaseline while the shoe is on the foot and the leather warm. Then, grasping a strip of woolen cloth firmly in either hand, rub briskly and you have accomplished an "oil shine." To remedy squeaking shoes stand the shoes in a tin plate covered with just enough turpentine to reach the line of the inner sole without touching the "upper" leather. Let it soak for a day or two and then dry for two days before wearing, when it will be found that the soles are not only noiseless, but waterproof, and will wear almost twice as long. The turpentine seems to harden the leather without stiffening it.—Chicago Times-Herald.

AN OPERATION IN FINANCE.

The tall, thin man with gold-rimmed specs,
Who writes of stocks and bonds and shares,
And tells us when quotations vex
Men who are bulls or who are bears,
Came in and leaned against my wall
And promised me that he'd reveal
If I would listen to him, all
The secrets of a famous deal.

It was, he said, the most immense
Transaction ever known to him—
Although its dollars and its cents
(In volume) were extremely slim;
The Santa Fe and Erie sales,
The Diamond Match, the Alley L,
Were very tame and tiresome tales
Compared with this which he would tell.

And then, although I never read
His anecdotes of pork and wheat
And mining stocks, and though, indeed,
My ignorance is quite complete
Concerning rate per cent. and price
And foreign purchase and demand,
I understood him in a trice
And smiled on him and grasped his hand.

Because I, too, had felt that thrill
Of keen delight and pride and joy,
Which no man knows or feels until,
With penny tightly clutched, his boy
Of two or thereabouts has gone
As valiant as an emperor
(Though unattended and alone)
To patronize the candy store.

Leaving the Hospital.

THE nurse came in at seven o'clock and found that Mrs. Johnson had already risen and dressed herself. Her only incompleteness of toilet was the tangle of her hair. If you are a woman with a great mass of brown hair it is a sweet pleasure to wait for some other woman to come and comb it out for you of a morning. Mrs. Johnson had always "tended" her own hair before coming into the hospital, and the treat of feeling that the deft fingers of a white-capped nurse had grasped that responsibility was very comforting. It even stole away some of the soreness of the stitching to lie there quietly in the high-legged bed while the young woman talked in a soothing voice and brushed out the long strands and told her how pretty it all was, and mentioned the woman who had had typhoid fever and whose every lock and curl had fallen a sacrifice to the shears of the hospital barber. Yes, yes; there is a luxury in having somebody else "tend" your hair if you are one unused to that kind of thing.

So Mrs. Johnson, realizing that now she must go back to the seven children and to the busy life at home, waited for the nurse to come and for the last time administer this delight. To-morrow she would have to snatch time between the dressing of Hilde and the sending to school of Ernest to perform this function with her own hands, as she had done in the years before she was admitted to the hospital. It was a long time back, that day of admission. It seemed to her sometimes that she had always been an occupant of that little three-bedded room, whereas she had been a dweller therein but a space of eight weeks. But that is eight centuries in a hospital. She looked across the room and calculated that Miss Finshaw, who was in for the straightening of an instep so that she might walk on her sole like other mortals instead of on tiptoe, was the fourth person who had rested for a time in the bed with the brass knobs; while the other bed, now without a tenant, had felt the pressure of a woman with a goitre, a girl who had died on the second day after her arrival, and an old lady with a gloomy sort of ailment which defied the doctors and which caused her to weep freely and ring her bell for the nurse incessantly. The doctors at last told the old lady's son that his mother was lonesome, which was the most of her complaint. Her husband had been killed by a cable car two years before, and she had grieved for him with whom she had been yoked for 50 years, and this—this alone—was the malady from which she was suffering.

Mrs. Johnson, dressing that morning in anticipation of the coming of her husband, thought pensively of her former associates. On that day when the girl had been pushed out of the room on the ghostly white vehicle which the hardened patients called the "banana cart" Mrs. Johnson had tried to follow mentally the course of events. But she could not. Her thoughts were tractable enough until they reached the door of the cement-floored room where the white-clad doctors with their sterilized clothes and bandages and towels waited, but once across the threshold the whole thing became a matter of conjecture, for up to that time Mrs. Johnson had not of herself passed the portal. She could only wait and guess and wonder. After a long time the cart was again pushed into the room, and the white and gasping girl was placed, unconscious, on the bed from which she was not to go again in this life.

But try as she could Mrs. Johnson could not now remember her name.

The other patients all knew that Mrs. Johnson was going to be discharged this morning, and they congratulated her feebly or cheerfully, as strength and spirit dictated. She went upstairs into the wards where most of the interesting cases were and paid her respects for the last time to those whose acquaintance she had made in these two weeks of her convalescing. They were all glad to hear of what they called her luck, and asked her about her children, and wanted her to bring her husband upstairs so that they might see what manner of man this was who was going to take her away.

"Let me guess," said little Miss Hough, who thrice in her life had been upon the table, until now she was a veritable patchwork of suffering patience. "He is a tall man with a red beard and light mustache."

"And he can sing. Can't he, now?" inquired Mrs. Marshall, with a little laugh. Then, before Mrs. Johnson could merrily deny the accusation of vocal

LATEST NOTE TO SPAIN.

In Presenting It Minister Woodford Only Carried Out Instructions Previously Given.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS REPORTED.

Dr. C. N. Thomas, of Illinois, Just Returned from Cuba, Declares the War Will Last a Long Time and That Spain Will Never Grant Liberty to the Island.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Inquiry at the state department develops the fact that no instructions additional to those under which he was acting, in relation to the termination of the war in Cuba, have been sent to Minister Woodford, and when he presented an additional note to the Spanish foreign office last Saturday, he was simply carrying out the instructions from the president of which the latter gave an abstract in his annual message to congress when it assembled in December last.

Sagasta's Response.

London, Feb. 7.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: Senor Sagasta's response to the official note presented by Gen. Woodford, the United States minister, complains of filibustering expeditions, and declares that Spain cannot entertain the suggestion for fixing a date for her completion of the pacification of Cuba.

WILL NEVER GIVE THEM LIBERTY.

Dr. C. N. Thomas' Opinion of the Situation in Cuba.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 8.—Dr. C. N. Thomas, of Illinois, who has just returned from Cuba, where he has been studying the existing conditions on the island for several months past, is now in Cleveland, and in speaking of the war said:

"The situation from present indications is that the war will continue for a long time to come. The Spanish will never grant the Cubans their liberty as long as they can possibly help it. The Spanish are not only a proud, but very patriotic people. They realize that 400 years ago they were the greatest and most powerful nation and ruled one-tenth of the land on the globe.

"The treaty between the Cubans and Spanish is absolutely out of the question. The hatred between them was strong before the war, and such terrible suffering as both sides have endured since the war has commenced has intensified this feeling. The talk of Cubans accepting home rule is simply ridiculous. Equally absurd is the idea of Spain granting Cubans home rule as we Americans understand home rule.

"The policy of the Cubans is not to fight important battles. They justly say yellow fever is destroying the Spanish army fast enough. Their plan is to wear out Spain financially and the Spanish nation is so weak financially that she finds it impossible to raise the necessary $36,000,000 annually to carry on the Cuban war and an additional $25,000,000 each year to pay the interest of her great debt.

"The reports about the awful suffering among Cuban women and children are to some extent correct. In the large cities the suffering is not so great as in the interior of Cuba. In some towns the suffering is beyond description and awful enough to make a strong man's heart ache, and the longer the war continues the greater is the suffering."

Dynamite a Train.

Havana, Feb. 8.—The insurgents have dynamited a train between Boniato and San Vicente, province of Santiago de Cuba, destroying a first-class passenger car and another car loaded with cattle. Five passengers were killed and 27 wounded. The Spanish version of the affair adds that the insurgents afterwards attacked the train, but were repulsed by the fire of the escort until the arrival of reenforcements.

MR. BOIES' PLAN.

Iowa's Ex-Governor Has a New Currency Scheme.

Fairfield, Ia., Feb. 9.—Horace Boies addressed a large audience at the Library hall Tuesday evening on the subject: "A National Currency Is a National Duty: What Should It Be?" Mr. Boies freely discussed his views upon the monetary question, and stated that while he disclaimed any ability to teach others upon this important question yet he believed that there was a middle ground, based upon the laws underlying finance, upon which men of all parties and creeds might unite for the establishment of a national currency, which would settle the difficulties now existing and would make the money of the nation sound in every particular. The plan which he outlined in his address proposed to redeem all notes on demand with gold or silver at their market values, and that such notes might then be reissued.

FOR THE GOLD FIELDS.

Five Western States to Send 25,000 Men to Alaska.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—The Times-Herald says: Klondike fever is the raging epidemic in the middle western states. It is estimated on an absolutely accurate basis that at least 25,000 men in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana and Michigan are planning to go to the Yukon this spring. The estimate is built upon reports that 2,114 have actually bought tickets and secured their implements and outfits. This company of argonauts is ready to start this week or next, and certainly before the month is up. Iowa heads the list with 10,000 men. The quota to be furnished by the other states is as follows: Illinois, 5,000; Wisconsin, 4,000; Indiana, 4,000; Michigan, 2,000.

FIGHTING FOR CUBA.

Senator Mason, of Illinois, Introduces a Resolution in the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 9.—In the senate yesterday the following resolution and preamble was introduced by Senator Mason, of Illinois:

"Resolved, That the president of the United States be and he is hereby requested to notify Spain and the insurgents of Cuba that the war (so-called) must at once cease and be discontinued and that the United States of America hereby declare and will maintain peace on the island of Cuba."

The resolution was preceded by a long preamble which declares that the war between Spain and the insurgents of Cuban has continued until all Christendom is shocked by its barbarities. Pretended autonomy has been offered by Spain and refused by the Cubans in arms. The preamble then reviews the horrible barbarities practiced by Spain, the ruin being wrought in the island and the terrible sufferings of the people. It refers to the fact that the people of the United States are sending money, food and clothing to Cuba to aid the dying Cubans which ought to be furnished by Spain, for the reason that the concentradoes are the legitimate wards of Spain, having been put in their present starving condition as a Spanish war measure and their care would devolve upon Spain and would so be regarded by every civilized nation in the world. All parties, it declares, stood before the last presidential election in favor of the independence of Cuba, and it then goes on to quote the Cuban plank in the republican platform adopted by the republican national convention at St. Louis June 16, 1896.

The preamble closes as follows:

"The people of the United States do not seek to acquire title to Cuba, nor do they seek to gain advantage in any way directly or indirectly of any nation by reason of this barbarism called war. They do not complain of our loss of trade with Cuba and have patiently borne the assault on the health of the people by the filth of Spanish rule in Cuba. They seek no redress for loss of business or health or money. They have patiently waited, not wishing (even indirectly) to interfere with the affairs of other nations, until the stench on our very borders has passed endurance and the barbarious situation in Cuba has become a stain upon our continent and a blot upon our Christian civilization. The people of the United States, demanding no personal profit, having no fear and seeking no favor, clear and conscious as to the justice of our position, do in the presence of the civilized nations of the world and in the name of justice and liberty demand that the so-called war in Cuba must cease."

SECURED A FORTUNE.

Miss Nancy Fix, of Delaware, O., Robbed of $15,000.

Delaware, O., Feb. 8.—A startling statement was made Monday night by Miss Nancy Fix, who was tortured and robbed of a fortune on Tuesday night last, and who is in a dying condition from the effects of her injuries. She recovered sufficiently to describe her assailants, four in number, two of whom were mere boys. She said that after binding and torturing her the men compelled her to reveal the hiding place of her money and that they secured $15,000 in cash from a jar where she kept it.

The jewels stolen were collected during years of travel in all parts of the world and could not be duplicated for many times their purchase price.

Small Pox Not Raging.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 9.—Special telegrams from Chattanooga appearing in a number of metropolitan papers to the effect that there are 1,000 cases of small pox in and around Chattanooga are without foundation in fact. During the last several months there have been two cases of small pox in this immediate section and these were at once isolated at a remote pest house.

Zola at the Bar.

Paris, Feb. 8.—The trial of M. Emile Zola, who is being prosecuted by the government as a result of the letter which he wrote last December to the Aurore, strongly reflecting upon high officials connected with the Dreyfus case, opened Monday in the assize court of the Seine. The most keen public interest was manifested in the case.

Careless Police Dismissed.

Victor, Col., Feb. 9.—The city council has dismissed the entire police force and appointed new officers. This is the result of a mass meeting of citizens held to consider the fatal burning of four inmates of the city jail Saturday morning. It is claimed the fatalities were due to official negligence.

Three Persons Drowned.

Burlington, N. J., Feb. 5.—Three lives were lost in the Delaware river opposite this place Friday night by the breaking of the ice under a sledding party. The dead are: Nellie Fields, Richard Severns and Mark Laumaster. Bertha Fields, a sister of Nellie, was rescued with great difficulty.

A REMEDY FOR THE Effects of Tobacco.

THE excessive use of tobacco, especially by young men is always injurious and undoubtedly shortens life materially. Mr. Ed. C. Ebsen, compositor on the Contra-Costa News, Martinez, Cal., writes; "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and received much benefit from it. I was troubled with nervousness, dizzy spells and sleeplessness, caused by the use of tobacco and stimulants. I took Dr. Miles' Nervine with marvelously good results, allaying the dizziness, quieting the nerves, and enabling me to sleep and rest, proving in my case a very beneficial remedy." Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is especially adapted to restoring the nervous system to its normal condition under such circumstances. It soothes, heals and strengthens.

Fire Brings Distress to Pokagon, the Aged Pottawatomie Chief.

Niles, Feb. 9.—Chief Simon Pokagon, the aged ruler of the last remnants of the famous Pottawatomie tribe of Indians, has lost his home at Lee, Allegan county, [illegible]re. The flames also destroyed a[illegible]papers and other evidence that he had accumulated to assist him in securing the remaining amount due the members of his tribe from the United States government for the purchase of their lands. The loss has fallen heavily on the aged warrior, and he has called upon his white brethren to assist him.

Preferred Death to Custody.

Vandalia, Feb. 9.—Cora Wagner was sent to the girls' industrial school three years ago, but was paroled and went to live with a Jackson family, broke her pledge and escaped. Monday officers found her in the house of John Hildebridge. The girl asked permission to go into another room to arrange her toilet and shot herself. The bullet, aimed at her heart, struck a rib, and it is thought the girl will recover. She is 17 years old.

Prison Contract for Cigars.

Lansing, Feb. 9.—The five-year contract for 100 convicts to make cigars at Marquette prison was approved by the joint prison board Tuesday. The men make about 40 cents a day each. The ten-year contract for 300 Ionia prison men at shirtmaking will be disposed of March 1.

A VICTORY FOR PINGREE.

The Governor Successful in His Suit Against Michigan Central Railroad.

A TEST CASE IS DECIDED AT DETROIT.

Judge Donovan Rules That the Road Is Subject to Police Regulations and Must Sell a 1,000-Mileage Book, Good for Any Member of a Family, for Twenty Dollars.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—Judge Donovan, of the circuit court, has ordered the issuance of a mandamus against the Michigan Central railway in the suit brought by Gov. Pingree to compel the railway company to sell him a 1,000 mileage book, good not only for himself, but for any member of his family, for $20.

Judge Donovan quoted several decisions of the United States supreme court, under which the right to regulate fares and charges was reserved to the state. He concluded that the Michigan Central is still under police power, reserved to the state, and that the "company cannot fix rates by by-laws repugnant to the laws of the state."

"It is clearly settled law that the company's whole system is under state law and state control. It cannot escape state statutes by its by-laws, which conflict with the constitutional requirements.

"The company cannot even tender to the state what it purchased in 1846, and which the state could buy back in 1867. The holdings are so vast that eventually either the company will control the state railway system or that function must remain in the state. In case of doubt the state is entitled to the doubt.

"The mandamus will issue."

Six posts, with 116 members, failed to report, and 2,984 members are on the suspended list. Eight new posts were organized and six were disbanded; 640 new members were mustered, 711 were reinstated, 338 died, and 109 were honorably discharged. During the year a total of $19,990.99 was expended by posts for reliefs and incidentals; the total balance in the hands of the post quartermasters is $11,823.96; the aggregate value of real estate owned by posts is $32,167.33, and the total value of all post property is $85,235.42. A total of $30,442.63 was paid into the various post funds during the year.

MRS. J. J. BAGLEY IS DEAD.

Wife of Michigan's Ex-Governor Expires at Colorado Springs.

Detroit, Feb. 8.—Mrs. J. J. Bagley, widow of ex-Gov. Bagley, is dead at Colorado Springs, Col. Mrs. Bagley was well known, not only in Michigan, but throughout the United States, having held, among other prominent positions, that of vice-president of the board of lady managers of the World's Columbian exposition. She was also one of the regents of the Mount Vernon association, a member of the revolutionary societies of women and vice-president of the Women's National council. The societies of which she was a member in Detroit were many and she was especially prominent in those devoted to women's welfare.

To Study Finance in Mexico.

Lansing, Feb. 5.—Perry F. Powers, editor of the Cadillac News and Express, will leave this month for Mexico to study the effect of free coinage of silver upon the business of the country. He will go as the special envoy of the Michigan Republican Editorial association, and the results of his observations will be widely published as campaign material. Mr. Powers is a keen student of affairs, and is well qualified to ascertain and describe the conditions which prevail in Mexico.

Death of Moses Buck.

Cheboygan, Feb. 6.—Moses Buck died on his homestead here Saturday, aged 75. Deceased was a character of other days, a member of the Maine senate away back in the stirring times when Maine went for Gov. Kent and Tippecanoe and Tyler too. Forty years ago he was a rich lawyer, timberman and politician, but disaster overtook him, and years ago he settled on a homestead in the backwoods and had lived there ever since alone most of the time.

Child Shot.

Benton Harbor, Feb. 7.—At a German wedding and dance held Saturday night at the home of John Bawkers, near this city, a ten-year-old girl was shot through the left breast. Physicians were summoned, and every effort is being made to save the girl's life. The affair was reported to the officers as accidental, but arrests have been made, and the matter is being thoroughly investigated.

Secretary Alger Better.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—Secretary Alger's condition has so far improved that he has been indulged in his desire to give some attention to the business of the war department. Friday morning he signed 70 commissions which have been awaiting his signature for some time. It has been decided to take him to Fortress Monroe.

Mine to Be Reopened.

Houghton, Feb. 7. — Capt. John Thomas, who had charge of the Swanzey mine when closed down three years ago, has received orders from the new owners, Stambaugh & Co., of Cleveland to start up at once with as many miners as can be worked continuously. It is believed the season's output will reach 100,000 tons.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 8.—The past commanders of the Michigan Grand Army held a reunion here Monday with a banquet at night; 15 attended.

Prostrated.

Overcome with Heart Disease While on the Street—Mrs. Wamsley, Wife of Rev. C. E. Wamsley, Seriously Affected—Has Been in a Precarious Condition.

From the New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

Mrs. Wamsley, wife of Rev. C. E. Wamsley, who lives on West Sheridan Street, Greensburg, Ind., has recently been cured of a very serious case of neuralgia of the heart and nervous prostration. A New Era reporter recently called on Mrs. Wamsley to learn the facts regarding her experience. Mrs. Wamsley said:

"I am 43 years old, and have been quite well until about six years ago, which was the time my youngest son was born. I began to lose my health then, and until recently never entirely recovered from my sickness of that occasion. My heart became affected, and there was continually a gradual sharp pain, and frequently it was so severe that I would involuntarily give vent to my agony in screams. These pains kept getting worse and caused nervousness. For years afterward, for a considerable period at a time, I would be confined to the house, and often to my bed. I could not endure excitement as I would become painfully nervous, and this would seriously affect my heart. Sudden pains would come on at any time of the day or night. Sometimes these would come on suddenly, causing me to involuntarily scream and fall down. It made no matter where I was, at home or down town, I would become helpless when thus attacked. I could not sleep nights, and my appetite was very poor.

"I had different physicians, and my husband did everything he could for me. The doctors all said my trouble was neuralgia of the heart, resulting from nervous prostration, but none of them seemed to be able to do anything for it, except to afford temporary relief. I tried different proprietary medicines said to be good for this disease, but none of them benefited me. Finally I noticed an item in the New Era stating that Mrs. Evans, who lives in the West End, had been cured of a similar trouble by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, so I decided to try them. My husband bought a box, and I began using them. This was last fall. I felt considerable better after taking the first box, and kept on improving with the second. So we bought six more boxes, and I used them strictly according to directions, determined to give them a fair trial. I improved gradually as I continued taking the medicine. When I had finished seven boxes I felt perfectly well, but I kept on till I used nearly all of the eighth box, when I felt that it was useless to take them any longer as the doctor said I was cured. I used the last about three months ago, and I am perfectly well and in as good health to-day as ever. I feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People relieved me of a lifetime of sickness and sorrow, and I can cheerfully recommend them."

In confirmation of this story Mrs. Wamsley furnished the following affidavit:

(Signed) MRS. C. E. WAMSLEY.

Subscribed to and sworn before me, a Notary Public in and for the county of Decatur, State of Indiana, this 14th day of July, 1897.

JOHN F. RUSSELL, Notary Public.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

We clip the following from the Lima Republican-Gazette under the heading "Only a bluff."

It is said that the D. & L. N. is staking out the twenty acres of land recently purchased at Tecumseh as a site for its shops. It is further stated that the work of erecting the first brick building, 75x135 feet, will be commenced in a few days.

Work has already begun, neighbor, so come up and we'll convince you that prosperity has struck Tecmseh.

The plans have been completed for the car shops, the engineers have surveyed and staked them out, ground was broken for the foundation Tuesday and at present fifteen men are busily engaged in preparing the old race track property for its new career of usefulness. The material for two of the buildings has already been ordered and the shops will be rapidly pushed to completion. We note with pleasure that only Tecumseh labor is being employed and that as far as it is possible to do so, the materials are being purchased here.

C. R. Wilson opened his new railroad restaurant just west of the D. & L. N. station last evening. Mr. Wilson was formerly a conductor on the D. T. & M. and his wide acquaintance in railroad circles is a guarantee of liberal patronage. The restaurant is one of the neatest and most complete in southern Michigan and is the first of several which Mr. Wilson will build along the two roads. It is fitted with electric lights and waterworks, and it is convenient in every particular.

It is rumored in railroad circles that F. B. Drake, receiver for the old C. J. & M., and late manager of the Cincinnati Northern, has resigned. He is a railroad man of much experience, having worked his way up from the position of clerk for the Pullman Palace Car Co. It is intimated that he has been offered the presidency of the Nickel Plate Road.—Adrian Telegram.

AMERICAN ART DAY.

The Monday Club gave the third of a series of four special afternoons, at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Shull on Monday last. The topic, "American Art" certainly had faithful exponents in the ladies who had the details of the entertainment in charge. The parlors, halls and stair case were draped with United States flags of all sizes, and arranged in so many festoons of red, white and blue as to transport one immediately out of the ordinary world into a veritable bower of patriotism.

Small tables were placed about the rooms and upon these besides the usual compliment of tableware, were the souvenirs, consisting of the guests name and upon the same card a beautiful little sketch in water color. These were executed by Mrs. Howland and Miss DeWolf and will be highly prized not only as a souvenir of the occasion but also for their artistic beauty. Two larger tables were also arranged one for the club officers the other for those who rendered the program, which was very interestingly given as follows:

Instrumental Music.—Mrs. Hayden.
Paper, "Cochran Art Gallery"—Mrs. Hicks.
Paper, "Lace Lore."—Mrs. Tribou.
Singing by the club.
Paper, "Walters' Gallery"—Mrs. Garlinghouse.
Original Poem—Mrs. Bramble.
Vocal Solo—Miss Thorpe.
Roll Call, responded to by quotations from Longfellow.
Singing by the club.

Light refreshments were seryed and the national color idea was carried out even in the menu as red and white cream was served in red, white and blue chrysanthemum cups making a dainty and pleasing finale.

The committee having the house decorations and menu in charge were: Mrs. M. E. Corey, Mrs. J. F. Hicks, Mrs. L. VanTyne, Mrs. Theo. Harris, Mrs. Henry Wilson, Mrs. O. B. Finch, Mrs. W. W. Whiting, Mrs. M. A. Zimmerman, Mrs. O. P. Bills, Miss Bertine Belding, Miss Jennie Root and Miss Lizzie Smith.

Two of the papers, Mrs. Tribou's and Mrs. Garlinghouse's and the poem by Mrs. C. B. Bramble are published in this issue of the HERALD, and the paper by Mrs. Hicks will be published next week.

AN ORIGINAL POEM.

MRS. CLEM BRAMBLE.

Today as ever we search for the truth;
Man's highest endeavor, his life, his might
Is spent in the search; in age, in youth,
From the heart goes the cry for light, more light.

More light! 'Twas for this in days long past
Monks led their solitary lives so drear,
Hoping by penance, fasting, prayer, at last
To bring the looked-for light more near.

In mines of knowledge the student delves deep,
Seeking the truths their depths may bear,
Counting the years but as sentinels that keep Watch and guard o'er the gems hidden there.

And light is found, man's endeavor is not lost,
That which is earnestly sought, though hopes grow dim,
At the last shall be found, and be prized by him
The more for being gained at such a cost.

Who would remember the toil or endeavor
When the treasure is gained or scaled been the height,
For endeavor is upward, its influence forever;
The treasure is truth and truth is true light.

LACE LORE.

MRS. TRIBOU.

We are far indeed from the luxuries of the art of the old countries and of past centuries.

A study of this kind of work in former times ought to inspire the women of our day, now that the needle is being elevated to an instrument of art. The first meaning of the word lace is simply a string and out of this string they made a lace called Macrame, which seems to be the very beginning of the manufacture of lace. No precise date [illegible] assigned to the first appearance like [illegible] because the art of lace making some fa[illegible] arts, grew gradually. Of we now call [illegible] sure that the fabric fifteenth centu[illegible] first made in the varieties of stitches [illegible] then there were

Point de Venice [illegible] methods. known lace seemingly wro[illegible] earliest fingers out of mists and co[illegible] fairy most out of nothing.

There is a pretty legend connected with that fine patternless-ginpurr, point de Venice.

The story is that a sailor youth from the Indian seas, brought home to his betrothed a worker in needle-points, a bunch of delicate coraline, telling her that it was lace woven by the mermaids in their coral caves under the waters of the Indian Ocean. I will make something far prettier with my needle said the girl, my bridal Veil shall be of mermaid lace. For months the lace maker werked with her needle and thread, forming knots and tiny stars, until an exquisite long scarf of ginpurr was produced, which became the admiration of all Venice, when she wore it for a bridal veil. The two most perfect productions of this kind of work belong to Venice: the point coupe and the Venetian point in relief. About the very sound of the words "Venetian lace," there is a sumptuousness, an old world glory and magnificance, suggestive of the Rennaissance.

The rose Venetian point is highly prized and extensively used for collar[illegible]s and costly decorations: it is [illegible]d on parchment, all the patterns [illegible]uted in relief and formed by [illegible]n placed inside to raise [illegible]of beautiful stitches [illegible] flowers, which with [illegible] threads called brides: they are called ties in England, brides in France, and legs in Italy.

The general outline was traced or designed on a white or green parchment, the fancy stitches roughly sketched in: the parchment was then tacked firmly to coarse linen folded double, and the outline of the design finally marked out by guiding a strand of two or more threads along the tracery and well securing it by small stitches at equal intervals of from 1-4 to 1-8 of an inch in length. In modern work, Arghitect's linen is used instead of parchment.

Venetian point laces are practically endless in variety and are treated with such delicacy and beauty, as to baffle description. The industry of making these beautiful laces is practically obsolete, although as late as 1867, Signor Fambri, of the Second College of Venice, proposed the revival of the lace trade in the little Island of Buram, about twelve miles from Venice. He found there old Cencia Scarpariola, then between seventy and eighty years of age, who still continued to make the beautiful Burano lace, and under her tuition the industry was revived.

She started with eight pupils and in a short time, numbered three hundred and twenty. The nobility interested themselves in this work; they hunted up fine old patterns and wore the laces, and in every possible way, brought the lace into notice. They found that greater perfection was attained if each woman kept to a certain stitch or set of stitches. It used to take eighteen persons to make one piece of lace. There is as much division of labor in making lace as silk or calico. First there is the spinning of the thread, a work too delicate to be trusted to machinery.

The very finest is made in Brussels in underground cellars, because the the light and dryness of the air above the surface, would make it brittle. The work is unhealthy, for it confines the spinner to a dark, damp room, and requires great care and attention and consequently it commands high prices. The thread is carefully watched as it comes from the distaff, being held against a dark blue background, that any unevenness may be the more readily noticed.

At every imperfection it is broken, the fragments being saved for other uses. The regular list of the Brabant spinners contains thread valued according to its fineness at from sixty to fifteen hundred francs per pound, but a pound of spun flax has been known to bring ten thousand francs. The invention of lace is claimed by Flanders, but that is disputed by Italy.

At one time lace was smuggled into France from Belgium by means of dogs trained for the purpose. A dog was raised and petted at home, fed on the fat of the land, and then after a season, sent across the frontier, where he was tied up half starved and ill-treated. The skin of a large dog was then put on his body and in the intervening space was packed as much lace as possible. The dog was then allowed to escape and make his way home where to be sure he was heartily welcomed.

The custom's authorities put an end to this practice. In the seventeenth century, furniture especially beds, were draped in lace, the interiors of carriages were hung with these lacy fabrics.

Henry IV issued edicts intended to lessen the use of laces. He said "You want iron and soldiers, not lace and silk to trick out fops." This decree produced consternation among the lace makers, as they depended upon their hand work for a livelihood. They appealed to the great preacher of that day, Jean Francois Regis, who procured a revocation of the edict, and when he was cannonized, he became the patron Saint of lace.

From the fourteenth to the eighteenth centuries, the art of lace making continued to increase in all the countries of Europe, although the extention of trade in luxuries like lace, was frustrated by the incessant wars, and for fifty years Argenten and Venice produced no more lace.

It would be impossible to enumerate all the different points that are spoken of in the histories of lace, that have from time to time been written or that accede in the inventories and wardrobes and presents of kings and queens, priests [illegible]

Every coun[illegible] in those five centuries. section of the [illegible] of Europe, nay every particular point[illegible] countries, had its present time. The[illegible]is the case at the Europe, form no small ite[illegible] in the revenues of those nations.

In spite of the inventions in the way of machineries that weave imitations of every old or new point, thousands of women and children earn their livelihood by the manufacture of needle or pillow lace. It is estimated that there are 500,000 lace workers, mostly women and children in Europe, of whom nearly one half are employed by France.

In Belgium where there are nine hundred lace schools, there are no less than 150,000 women engaged in lace making.

England produces a large quantity of pillow lace. The principal lace producing town of England, is Honiton in Devonshire. This lace was brought into modern notice and made fashionable by Queen Victoria, who commiserating the condition of the lace workers of Devonshire, and wishing to bring their work into demand, ordered her wedding dress of it, which has made it fashionable and expensive ever since. The only attempt to introduce the art of lace [illegible] into this country was made by [illegible] Honiton lace maker Madame Esther, who opened a small school of design for [illegible] New York in 1874, which was [illegible] successful for want of [illegible]he enterprise.

[illegible]duced pillow [illegible]d is con[illegible] of which belongs to Venice, was not appreciated by the natives who brought it on board the steamers and sold it black with age and unpleasant to the senses.

This is not to be wondered at when it is known that it was taken from the tombs, where for centuries it had adorned the grave clothes of the dead Ionian.

Hunting in the catacombs has become a regular trade. Much coarse lace of the same kind, is still made in the islands, steeped in coffee and sold as from the tombs. The nuns of Odivales, were famous for their lace, fabricated from the fibers of the Aloe. A few suggestions may help you to identify a piece of real old lace when you see one. The Medieval style: The original pattern is composed of symbolical groups, with figures, emblems, mis-shapen monsters, sacred and other animals, trees, leaves, wreaths and scrollwork. This formed the prevailing style until about 1550. Geometrical style 1550—1620. A combination of squares, triangles wheels and segments of circles.

Rennaissance style 1620—1720, very artistic and elaborate, fanciful flowering and underlaping wreaths, garlands of flowers, leaves and scrollwork, first in close patterns, afterwards more open and connected by buttonholed net ground.

Rococo style 1720—1770: Designs stiff, rigid and disconnected, angular leaves, flowers and bunches of flowers crowded together.

Dotted style 1770—1810, very small patterns, consisting of tiny boquets, the ground dotted with rosettes, tares, bees etc.

The study of lace is fascinating and will enlage one's sympathies with the humble and skillful workmen, who eke out a meager living with their needles and bobbins

Yon cottager who weaves at her own door,
Pillow and bobbins all her little store,
Content, though mean, and cheerful if not gay,
Shuttling her threads all the live long day;
Just earn a scanty pittance, and at night,
Lies down secure, her heart and pocket light.

WALTERS' GALLERY.

MRS. GARLINGHOUSE.

Baltimore possesses an institution, the W. T. Walters' private art gallery, of which any city might well be proud. There is no art collection in this country, either public or private, where so many real treasures may be enjoyed, and no private art collection in any quarter of the world, of such munificent proportions and genuine value. The history of this gallery is unique and suggestive.

Mr. Walters was a young man of Scotch-Irish ancestry, who had been educated for a practical engineer. When in his twenty-first year, he resolved to gratify a taste for art, by devoting a portion of his earnings each year to the purchase of fine pictures. He was then in the beginning of his remarkable businesscareer. He was truly the architect of his own fortunes and from his early laborious engineering service to the time when he found ways and means for opening Southern railroads and organizing into a system the great net work of lines between the lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, he displayed the same inflexible spirit and untiring energy, which made every undertaking of his life a success. Had this young man chosen for himself the profession of artist, he would have been undoubtedly a successful one. In his character were united a great love for the beautiful, poetic sentiment, characteristic of the true artist, together with a genius for great undertakings and the faculty for leadership and control. But he was destined for a broader field of action than the life of an artist affords.

His first step in carrying out his resolutions to become possessed of artistic treasures, was to apply himself during his leisure moments to the study of various branches of art. He made the acquaintance of the best artists of the period. And when his means and business permitted he visited Europe frequently and became acquainted with every art collection of value. He did not at any time confine to the great works of the old masters but aimed to inspire living artists in the production of masterpieces. He bought their paintings but if later they attained to greater success, the more valuable painting took the place of the first purchase.

The first picture that he ever bought was an engraving costing five dollars As his income increased, he proceeded to add art objects from every age and country to his collection, until now it would almost seem that one might learn a complete history of the world from these wonderful treasures.

This gallery is in Mr. Walters' mansion located under the shadow of one of the finest monuments in America to the memory of Washington. Upon entering, the first object of interest is the grand picture gallery in the rear of the mansion. The gallery is in itself a

The program represented one district school visiting another on "last day" and consisted of essays, recitations and songs, ending up with a basket picnic. Every one enjoyed themselves as in the old days at the little red schoolhouse.

Lost! Lost! A small boy about the size of a six foot man, with his father's hat on. He wore a peanut crisp coat with chocolate lining. He was cross-eyed in the back of his neck and had his mouth full of Saratoga chips. When last seen he was filling up on salted kisses and caramels, which he got at the Little Klonkike. No reward will be given for them as they are gone forever.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council Chamber, Village of Tecumseh.

Regular session of Feb. 7, 1898.

Present, the president, Trustees H. Heesen, Orr, Eldridge, Wright and the clerk. Absent, Lowry and J. Heesen.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Sexton's report for month of January presented, showing 1 adult interment and $25 collected as interment fees, and showing treasurer's receipt for same.

Street commissioner's report for January presented, showing hired hand labor, 8 hours; sidewalk built for E. H. Avery, showing treasurer's receipt for the same.

Clerk reported the interest on the bonded indebtedness paid to Jan. 1, 1898, also bond No. 3 for $1000 taken up. Clerk was thereupon instructed to destroy canceled bond and coupons.

The following bills were reported by the clerk and referred to finance committee: Tecumseh Electric Co., $222.23; Temple, McClure & Co., lumber, $1.20; A. James, insurance, $58.20; Thacker Coal & Coke Co., coal, $16; D. & L. N. R'y Co., freight, $37.70; Wm. Brighton, hand labor, $1.00. Finance committee made favorable report on all of above bills as read and clerk was instructed to issue his order upon the treasurer for the several amounts.

A special meeting of the council was called for February 21st, 1898.

Council then adjourned.

THE TEA COSY UP TO DATE.

Something Neat and Pretty to Keep the Pot Warm for the Last Cup of Tea.

The prettiest teapot loses its beauty if it gives forth a cold, insipid fluid, and the best tea becomes neveless if it is allowed to cool. A tea cosy dresses up a teapot and at the same time keeps it hot.

To make such a tea cosy, combine two triangles of velvet or heavy satin. In either case you will need to line it with cotton and to interline it with soft warm material.

The object of a tea cosy is warmth, and when our grandmothers made them half an inch thick they made no mistake.

Decorate the outside with a design in gold thread and sew on a border of velvet cut on a bias.

For the handle cut a long, slender piece like the pattern and fit into the opening.

CHOCOLATE CREAMS.

Not as Hard to Make Them as Is Generally Supposed.

It is not at all difficult to prepare chocolate creams, though it is a somewhat tiresome process when a large amount is prepared. Prepare some soft fondant by melting a pound of sugar in a quarter of a cup of water, boiling it until it is a very soft, creamy ball, but not at all sticky when a drop is rolled between the finger and thumb. Let this fondant cool until you can put your finger in it, and then stir it with a spoon until it is about the consistency and flexibility of lard. Knead it on a marble board or lightly buttered platter until it is even and firm. It takes a strong hand to do this, and men often succeed better than women in doing this part of the work, as they do in many other culinary processes where strength is required. Let the fondant be flavored with a little vanilla when it is beaten up. Let it stand for an hour or longer, and then put the bowl or dish holding it into a dish of hot water and melt it out enough to form it into little balls the proper size for the interior of a chocolate cream. Melt a small cake of sweet chocolate by putting it in a pan and setting the pan in hot water until it is melted. Dip the balls of soft fondant, which should be somewhat hardened by this time, into the melted chocolate one by one, holding them on the point of a trussing needle or long hat pin. Slip them one by one as soon as they are dipped on a buttered paper or paraffine paper, if convenient, and let them dry over night.—N. Y. Tribune.

How to Keep Youthful.

The ever youthful appearance of the members of the dramatic profession is a constant source of surprise to the public at large, says What to Eat. The reason for this is not so much in the material necessarily used in making up, which obliterates to a certain extent the natural wrinkles of the skin, while it lubricates and nourishes it; but it is due to the change in the expression of the various emotions which every part of impersonation demands. This causes the actor to bring into play all the muscles of the face. By using them equally, they all maintain their firm consistency and strength, and none wastes away from disuse. The result is that the skin is kept stretched and tense over the face, and does not fall into hollows.

Fricassee of Beans.

Steep one pint of haricot beans for a night in cold water, then remove them, drain and put on the fire with two quarts of soft water. When boiling allow the beans to simmer for another two hours. While they are cooking thus put on in another saucepan two ounces of butter, an ounce of parsley (chopped) and the juice of one lemon, and when the butter has quite melted throw in the beans and stir them round for a few minutes. To be served in a casserole of rice.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A JAPANESE LAWN.

New and Beautiful Material for Tea Gown or Wrapper.

The tea gown, contrary to its sound, is not worn in the afternoon when tea is poured in the drawing-room. On the other hand, it is a wrapper to be worn mornings in one's own room or when entertaining informal callers. It is loose and not at all a company gown.

For these tea gowns there comes a Japanese lawn which is very wide and very bright in color. It is soft and silky and looks and feels not unlike

THE NEW JAPANESE LAWN.

India silk, though much cheaper on account of its width.

These lawn dresses can be made in quite stately fashions. Their coloring is so good that they can take dark trimmings nicely and even carry off strips of fur and ruffles of real lace. The latest way of cutting them is in imitation of the empire designs, and long cloak-like effects are obtained by trimming them in long pointed shapes. A coat effect is given the front by the introduction of a lace vest.

Night Robes.

To insure restful slumber, all night dresses should be softly trimmed, and, above all things, never starched. The most restful and sensible gown is of plain China or India silk, simply trimmed. For those who do not like the sensation imparted by silk—and there are many such—there are combinations of silk and linen and silk and wool.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Mustard for Deodorizing.

A successful method of purifying the hands is the putting of a mixture of flour and mustard into the bath, when washing, the rubbing to be discontinued as soon as the smarting of the skin is felt. This very efficacious method of sterilization of the hands also radically deodorizes them. Iodoform, even, is quite removed by the soaping in combination with flour and mustard.

HORTICULTURE

THE EGG FRUIT TREE.

It Produces a Fruit Evidently Very Rich in Nourishment.

This fruit, the botanical name of which is Lucuma rivicosa, var. Augustifolia, is known by a variety of popular names. In Key West it is locally called Tiess, but I am informed more correctly Canitel. It is known as Canista, or Canistel in Cuba, and as Tomot and Cancilla on the west coast. The tree is a native of tropical America, and perhaps its introduction from different points and at different times may account for the remarkable diversity of names. While the fruit is quite common in the Key West market it has been so far little cultivated in Florida, and is really little known outside the tropics. Only occasional trees are yet to be seen on the keys or on the main land of Florida. Repeated efforts have been made to introduce the tree north of the limits to which its tropical character manifestly assigns it, with little success. Like the sapodilla and the mammeesapota it will not endure frost, and under favorable conditions, also like the sapodilla and cerimam (Monstera deliciosa) it is everbearing, being frequently loaded with three successive crops at the same time. This everbearing quality must always mark the limits of its profitable culture. In its endurance of drought, hot sun and dry soil, it strangely resembles the mango. The tree is much smaller than the mango while the leaves have a marked family resemblance to the mammeesapota, of which the fruit has been called "small edition." The pulp of the fruit resembles the yolk of a hard-boiled egg, tasting as one might imagine the egg would taste if well sweetened. The fruit is evidently very rich in nourishment. One caution should be observed by those investigating this fruit for the first time, that is, that in an unripe state the fruit is unpleasantly bitter. The taste of some people—not all—will need cultivation in the use of the Canitel, as is true of many other valuable fruits of the tropics. This fruit always sells well in the Key West market. It will always be in demand with those who know what it is.

FRUIT AND FOLIAGE OF EGG FRUIT TREE.

The tree fruits at three or four years old, and is manifestly at home in dry and sandy soil, growing with little care and fruiting abundantly, without irrigation, and surrounded on all sides by fruiting pineapples. The fruit is as yet so little known that few people outside of the tropics have learned its real value. Its intrinsic merit as a nourishing food, its firmness and reasonable keeping qualities and the ease with which it can be grown, all conspire to encourage its more general introduction and culture wherever the mango, avocado pear and the sapodilla can be successfully grown. Its introduction and general use is only a question of time. The ingenious and enterprising housekeeper, as soon as the fruit can be furnished in sufficient quantities to her hand, will find many ways to profitably dispose of its rich and buttery pulp.

The foliage is large, glossy, dark green, and the entire tree is very beautiful and ornamental. As a greenhouse and conservatory plant, for colder climates, it presents a highly pleasing appearance.—Elbridge Gale, in American Agriculturist.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

To prevent mildew in apple trees, trim out well.

Thoroughly cultivate all newly-planted trees.

Keeping a tree thrifty tends materially to lessen the liability to disease.

Seed bearing is the heaviest draft on the vitality and tends to exhaust the plant.

Now is a good time to apply the poultry manure around the strawberry plants.

After a tree is pruned it is more important to have it heal well than quickly.

In taking up a tree it is an item to take with it all of the healthy roots possible.

Weak, spindling fruit trees should have good, stout stakes put beside them when planted.

If there are any bones on the farm gather them up and bury them near the grape vines.

Try new varieties on a small scale until their value is more fully determined in your locality.

In planting most varieties of small fruits the mistake is often made of planting too closely together.

An easy way to keep up the fertility of the orchard is to seed it down to clover and use it as a pasture for hogs.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

It Takes Its Cue from the Lady of the White House.

An Epitome of the Social Life of the Executive Mansion—Dolly Madison's Long and Successful Reign.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THE history of social life in the white house is recalled by passing events, and should be elaborated.

Mrs. George Washington, after her husband's inauguration, set up the "first republican court" at No. 3 Franklin square, New York. Its etiquette was copied after that of foreign courts. The rules were very strict, and persons were excluded unless they wore the required dress. Access was not easy, and dignified stateliness reigned. In the second year of that administration the seat of government was removed to Philadelphia, where Washington took a house on Market street, between Fifth and Sixth streets. Mrs. Washington held her drawing-rooms on Friday evenings of each week, the company assembling early and retiring before 10:30 p. m. The lady of the mansion always sat. The president had his hair powdered and did not shake hands with anyone.

Although all these things have undergone a great change, the regulations which Martha Washington adopted are to a great extent in force to-day. Though she was not, probably, a woman of remarkable intellect, her social influence and wealth were a great help to the Father of His Country, and it is not surprising that David Burns, when Washington was bargaining with him for a piece of land south of the white house, should have remarked derisively: "Where would you be if it had not been for the Widow Custis?"

Abigail, the wife of President John Adams, lived in Washington only four months, preferring to reside at Quincy, Mass., where she could take care of her husband's estate. She complained that there was no comfort to be had in the white house, because it was "on such a grand and superb scale, requiring at least 30 servants to attend to it." While occupying it, she could not get wood enough to keep the mansion warm, and the most convenient use she found for the East room, then unfurnished, was to hang her clothes to dry in it. She was by all odds the most heroic figure of the revolution, and her letters to Jefferson were so admirable that they have become historic.

Jefferson had no liking for social ceremonial, but, becoming convinced that it was necessary for him to bestow some attention on such matters,

THE FIRST RECEPTION.

he asked Mrs. Madison, the wife of his secretary of state, to act as mistress of the executive mansion, assisted by his daughter. He was a widower. Thus the never-to-be-forgotten "Dolly Madison" took the place of "first lady in the land," which position she continued to occupy for 16 years, her husband succeeding Jefferson. Under her regime, the formal etiquette which had made the drawing-rooms of Mrs. Washington and Mrs. Adams dull and tedious was laid aside, and no stiffness was permitted. For all this a cheerful Virginia hospitality was substituted. On one occasion, the abundance and size of Mrs. Madison's dishes were made subjects of ridicule by a foreign minister, but she was indifferent to such criticism. She used rouge to some extent and was very fond of snuff. At the first inauguration of her husband she wore a dress of buff velvet, a Paris turban with a bird-of-paradise plume, and pearls on her neck and arms. With all she was the most popular woman in the United States, and she never forgot the name of a person who had been introduced to her. The senate granted her a seat on the floor of that body—an honor which has never been accorded to any other person of her sex.

It is generally regretted in our social circles that Mrs. McKinley cannot entertain at the white house as her predecessors have done. The little lady has been an invalid nearly all of her life, and her physical strength is very meager.

During the past 20 years the giving of ladies' luncheons has become an important part of entertaining at the executive mansion. Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Cleveland gave many such "spreads." Both women made numerous calls on friends, though etiquette did not oblige them to do so, for the president's wife need never return a visit, and she is not even required to send a card instead.

President McKinley is a poor man. His business reverses were so serious a few years ago that he was practically impoverished. But he will be able to bear the burdens imposed by his official position, and yet can probably save something out of his salary of $50,000 per annum.

If Mrs. McKinley had been ...

SHIPYARD RESUMES.

The Wheeler Plant at Bay City Opens with Nonunion Men.

Bay City, Feb. 8.—The Wheeler & Co. shipyard, which has been shut down for two weeks on account of a strike of riveters, resumed operations Monday. A few nonunion riveters were put to work. The striking riveters will stay out at least until after a meeting of the state court of meditation, which is expected to take the question up here this week. Every man applying for work was obliged to sign the agreement promulgated January 29 at which time an advance of 25 per cent. was granted to laborers and an advance of seven per cent. to the riveting gangs. The agreement provides that the company may withdraw this increase at any time business makes it necessary, but it shall not be withdrawn so far as it affects the wages to be paid while constructing the three Bessemer boats now under way. Upwards of 200 men sought work, but the riveters were conspicuous for their absence.

KILLED AT A CROSSING.

Three Saginaw People Are Slain by a Central Fast Train.

Saginaw, Feb. 6.—Just before five o'clock Saturday evening a Michigan Central passenger train from Detroit ran down a sleigh containing a man and three women at the Sheridan avenue crossing. The man and two of the women were killed and the third woman was badly injured. The dead:

Stewart, Thomas, groceryman, of this city, aged 35; neck broken and skull crushed.

Mosner, Mrs. Mathias, aged 65, a widow, residing near Frankenmuth, this county; found dead on the cow catcher when the train stopped.

Mosner, Miss Barbara, aged 25, daughter of the widow; neck broken.

The injured:

Moncke, Mrs. William, another daughter of Mrs. Mosner, who resides here; knee broken and internal injuries; not necessarily fatal.

There was no gate or flagman at the crossing. Stewart saw the train, but was unable to cross before being caught.

MICHIGAN JAILS.

It Cost Over $135,000 for Their Maintenance Last Year.

Lansing, Feb. 8.—The cost of maintaining the county jail of Michigan last year was $135,681, of which $114,985 was paid to sheriffs for boarding and keeping prisoners. During the year 21,000 prisoners were received at the county jail, 2,142 being committed for high crimes, and the rest for minor offenses. Of these, 4,215 were convicted and sent to the various penal and reformatory institutions of the state, 316 being committed to the state's prison. Since 1873 the average number of prisoners per year has increased 110 per cent., while the population of the state has increased only 68 per cent.

CHILDREN FIGHT A DUEL.

Detroit Lads Not Yet in Their Teens Settle Differences with Knives.

Detroit, Feb. 8.—Two boys, Stephen Rutowski, aged 8, and Stephen Luewzski, aged 10, fought a duel with knives Monday night. The lads quarreled over some trival matter, and decided to settle the difficulty with weapons in genuine western fashion. The fight lasted some time before their cries of rage and pain attracted the attention of neighbors. Young Luewzski was taken to the hospital, with a gash in his right lung and a dangerous wound in his left side. He will probably die.

DIE ON THE SAME DAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gilbert, of Kalamazoo, Not Long Separated.

Kalamazoo, Feb. 5.—Death claimed two pioneers here Friday—Henry Gilbert, aged 87, dying in the morning, and his wife, aged 67, dying soon after noon. Mr. Gilbert was an early settler in this section and was the first editor in western Michigan. He bought the Michigan Statesman, published at White Pigeon, in 1834, and moved it here in 1835. One year later he changed it to the Kalamazoo Gazette. The Free Press and a paper at Monroe were the only papers published then in the territory.

Catholic Church Burned.

Saginaw, Feb. 7.—At an early hour Sunday morning St. John's Catholic church at Carrollton was burned, entailing a loss of $20,000, with no insurance. The church was built ten years ago and was the best church in the village. The flames seemed to have broken out in two places, which gives rise to the theory of incendiarism.

Sell Farms to Go to Alaska.

New Carlisle, Ind., Feb. 8.—About 100 Berrien county, Mich., farmers will leave Monday for Alaska. Frank Phiscator, the Klondike king of Baroda, who started a few days ago, has made the fruit farmers of that vicinity wild with stories of great findings, and they have sold their farms to get to the land of yellow metal.

Factory Burned.

Three Rivers, Feb. 4.—The large factory building formerly occupied by the Aspinwall Manufacturing company, but of late used by R. N. Francis as a repair shop for steam threshers and separators, burned Thursday morning. Loss, about $3,500.

Released.

Charlotte, Feb. 5.—Christina Bigley, who has been in jail for several months, charged with the death of her child, has been released, the prosecuting attorney believing that the evidence was insufficient to convict her.

SETTING PEACH TREES.

An Ohio Fruit-Grower Tells How and When to Do It.

One year ago last May we set 100 peach trees. Having often heard the advice given to set small trees instead of the large, first-class ones we felt that possibly we had made a mistake when giving the order. Wishing to save the time of one or two years' growth, if possible, we ordered the best two-year-old trees. They were shipped in good condition and were set as soon as received. They were well set, allowing all roots their natural position. We cut any roots off that would otherwise be cramped or bent up and cut off all injured or mangled portions of roots. Did not dig all the holes before beginning to set the trees as some do, but set stakes for the trees and then brought the trees out to a convenient place in the orchard, covering the roots with a quantity of wet straw and moss with blankets over this.

It takes very little hot sun and still less of drying wind directly on plant or tree roots to affect their growth. The spot selected for the trees had been plowed very deep and thoroughly fitted before the trees came. Each hole was dug for the particular root that was to be planted in it. After the hole was dug the tree was placed in position, when man No. 1 held it there and tramped the fine soil about the roots as man No. 2 shoveled the dirt in. After the trees were planted we cut them back or pruned them until they had the appearance of a whipstock, and that about 3½ feet in length.

It seems almost a waste of growth and the wrong thing to do to prune a nice shaped tree so severely, but our limited experience in this line has taught us that it is the thing to do, and that the tree will soon more than make up in growth for this "setback." Out of the 100 we have lost one tree.

They have made a remarkable growth and we have not regretted setting large trees. The above trees are now well filled with fruit buds, but buds on a peach tree this time of year cannot always be considered buds of promise.

We did not consider it necessary to lose the use of the ground while the trees were getting large enough to fruit. We set strawberries for plants in the rows of trees and three feet from this row on each side just half way between the tree rows one way we set raspberries. Trees, berry plants and all were mulched with stable manure one year ago, and all expressed their thanks for it in growth the past summer.—A. D. Olin, in National Stockman.

PLANTS AND FLOWERS.

Starting Cuttings in Sand the Best Method of Propagation.

What is called the mud system of rooting cuttings is often used for small quantities. A shallow dish of any kind which will hold two or three inches of sand is selected. The sand is entirely covered with water, which is renewed as evaporation takes place. Cuttings or slips are set in this mud bath, which is placed in the warmest window of the house. Being surrounded by moisture they can stand the sun without wilting. Root the hardier kinds first, such as geraniums, verbenas and fuchsias; coleus, heliotropes, etc., can be left until later. This method is well adapted for small house conservatories; as this is sometimes obtained by heating ten or fifteen degrees above the air in the room it causes the quickest growth, as well as the window. A bottom heat, an inclosed space with a common oil lamp placed below it. Young seedling plants are very apt to "damp off" in their young stages. It is found that this occurs simply from exposure. If the young plants, just as soon as they can be handled, are lifted and reset in the soil deep enough to expose only the seed leaves, this damping off is completely checked and it rarely occurs again.—Farm and Home.

STARTING CUTTINGS IN SAND.

When to Trim Apple Trees.

It does not pay to doctor up old neglected trees, except to get a supply of fruit, until young trees become bearable. Apple trees are very cheap. If some old trees are desired to be kept, prune, during mild weather, before April 1. Don't trim trees during hard frost. Prune to admit air and sunshine, also to remove limbs that cross each other or chafe. If the pruning knife is used with discretion from the time the tree is young, a much better tree is secured. If the ground is poor, tree scabby, or of weak growth, give good dressing of barnyard manure, but if the wood is vigorous, and soil fairly rich, I would give each tree about one peck acid phosphate or bone dust, and one bushel unleached wood ashes, scattered evenly over and beyond the roots. —American Gardening.

Cause of Some Failures.

It is an easy matter to set a few currants and gooseberry plants along the fence row, and then leave them to the mercy of weeds and worms without fertilization or cultivation. Then the owner wonders why it is his fruit is so much inferior to that of his more thrifty neighbor. No wonder that he comes to the conclusion that "there is only now and then one who is calculated to raise fruit anyhow." Plants, like animals, need a well-balanced ration and a large per cent. of brains is one of the principal ingredients. Currants and gooseberries are no exception to this rule. These plants will bear some fruit without care, though it will be smaller in size, poorer in quality and the yield less than when liberally treated.—Farm and Home.

Coffee grounds make a good fertilizer for house plants in winter.

DOROTHY P. MADISON.
(For 16 Years She Was Mistress of the White House.)

remember with regret the illness of Mrs. Harrison and the cerements of mourning which enshrouded the executive mansion when that sweet lady closed her social and earthly career.

There was another administration which lacked the social influence of the wife of the president. Mrs. McKinley is an invalid. Mrs. Johnson was an invalid. The wife of President Franklin Pierce was in mourning because of the death of her little boy, an only child, who was killed in an accident on the railway. Mrs. Fillmore was a woman of literary tastes. She formed the beginning of the white house library, and it was in the library room that she used commonly to receive her friends.

Franklin Pierce was one of the most popular of all presidents, and his treatment of his friends was always royal. President Arthur alone, of all our chief magistrates, could compare with genial "Frank Purse," as he was called by his intimates.

James K. Polk was a typical southern gentleman who was always noted for his hospitality and good fellowship. It was his sunny disposition which won for him friendships as strong and true as ever man was blest withal. But his wife was a Yankee, and one of the strictest of Puritans in everything. She was her husband's private secretary, and had entire charge of his correspondence. No other woman so dominated the business end of the white house. She was as cold socially as Benjamin Harrison was politically. Our society folk were glad when Mrs. Polk invited the beautiful and lovable daughter-in-law of John Tyler to assume the social duties of the executive mansion. That lovely woman continued to be the center of the social world during the Tyler administration, because Mrs. Tyler was an invalid.

The play of Hamlet could not well be staged, without the appearance of Hamlet in the scenes. The history of Rome could not be written without mention of Caesar, the greatest man of his age, a soldier and a statesman whose life was taken by fanatics and fools. The history of France would be incomplete without an account of the life of Napoleon.

Who could write the social history of the executive mansion with mere mention of "Dolly Madison?" She was the only woman that ever reigned a social queen in a republic for a term of sixteen consecutive years. Her husband was secretary of state for eight years, and during that time Dolly Madison was the social leader. She, of course, continued her life work and pleasure while her husband was president, and hence her history marks more than one-tenth of the history of society in the national capital.

The importance of society in Washington, the influence of ladies upon legislation, the ability of the wife of a public man to enhance her husband's popularity, the strength or weakness of an administration because of the standing of a president's wife, all these things are enigmatical to many people remote from the capital city of the republic.

It may be said briefly, however, that the influence of women in national affairs has always been greater than the people suppose, and that influence has grown with the passing years.

Modern women come high, but we must have them. They cannot shine in the national capital without gowns and jewels, costly and brilliant. But, after all, it is the woman herself who is the jewel. The woman with brains, ability, tact, and, above all, ambition for her husband's advancement, can work wonders in the political world. Her gowns and jewels are but settings of the stage of life, and the woman herself is the central figure.

THE WORLD'S SONG.

It's a great old world, for all its cares—
Sighs and sorrows, and pangs and prayers,
Under the heavens, glad or gray,
It rolls along to the Judgment Day,
And sings in the light of the Unseen's face:
"I bear the burdens of race on race
And whirl the dust of the dead through space!"

It's a great old world, with its hopes and fears—
Pleasures, treasures and scalding tears;
It careth naught for darkened skies—
If its sun shall set, or its sun at all rise—
If stars sink blind from the Unseen's face—
"Forever—forever—O fading race,
I whirl the dust of your dead through space!"

It's a great old world—Draw near, O sweet!
There is rain on the roses at your feet;
What shall earth care for the pangs you bear?
Lean your lips to the roses, dear!
Let the light kiss the night of tears from your face:
Hark to the singing: "O fading race,
I am bearing your beautiful dust through space!"

It's a great old world! Let us live, and trust
That life is more than a rose in dust;
That the lowliest flower at our feet,
Even with the thorn, is sweet—is sweet!
There's the red o' the rose, sweetheart, in your face,
And the morn's in your eyes!—(O fading race
I am bearing your beautiful dust through space!")

—Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

PULLED HIS ROYAL NOSE.

Dr. McGillicuddy's Encounter with Chief Red Cloud.

OLD RED CLOUD, the noted Sioux Indian, is dying in his shack on the Ogallala reservation at Pine Ridge, Neb., writes a correspondent of the Chicago Chronicle.

Red Cloud is the single survivor of that famous coterie of Sioux Indian leaders of which Old-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses, Spotted Tail and Sitting Bull helped to make history on the western prairies. It cannot be truthfully said, however, that "Old Red," as he is familiarly known, was as powerful in war or debate as the three great chieftains who have been mentioned. He possessed all their craftiness, and it cannot be denied that he enjoyed certain elements of personal magnetism which marked him as a leader among his tribesmen. He was preeminent in planning mischief, but he was, as a rule, mysteriously absent when his plans were carried out according to his mapping.

Perhaps the most atrocious piece of work in which he took a hand was the Fort McKinney massacre, in which over a score of United States soldiers were led into ambush and slaughtered. That was when he was a vigorous young buck. Before this lamentable tragedy "Old Red" was a common marauder, full of devilment, and it is probable that he took many a scalp from the wagon trains then on their way to Utah and the land of gold beyond the Rockies.

But for the last 30 years Red Cloud has led a comparatively peaceful life. While his crafty counsel was often sought by his tribesmen, and his rank among them was that of a leader, the government did not clothe him with the dignity of chieftain, but reckoned him only as Red Cloud, powerful enough without a title, and yet too dangerous to be its possessor.

When the Sioux and Cheyennes rebelled against the invasion of gold seekers in the Black hills in 1876 Red Cloud did not go on the war path, although many of his band cast their fortunes with Sitting Bull, Gall, Grass and Rain-in-the-Face, and were finally forced to sue for peace on the British line. But while Red Cloud was to all appearances a friendly Indian, his heart was with the hostiles, who were crimsoning the grass along the Little Big Horn with the blood of the Seventh's troopers. Red Cloud, however, was too cunning to leave his agency for war. While the Sioux had the benefits of the workings of the red leader's wily brain, Red Cloud himself knew too well what would be the ultimate outcome of the uprising, and therefore held aloof.

It was in consideration of "Old Red's" absence from the theater of conflict that the government built the warrior a substantial two-story frame house at Pine Ridge and painted it white. It is to-day the most pretentious dwelling on the great Ogallala reservation. The building stands near White Clay creek, rifle shot distance from the agency buildings, and at the foot of a long range of buttes.

Red Cloud watched the construction of his house with satisfied curiosity. He figured that it was a sort of payment for his ponies which the government confiscated during a time when the soldiers were at war with the Sioux, and for which he had never received a penny. This bit of robbery, for it amounted to little else, rankled and still rankles in the breast of the old fellow. Always a bitter enemy of the whites, this wholesale swoop on his herd forever sealed his hatred. When the house was finished, the carpenters erected a pole in front of the house and hoisted the American flag. The spectacle of the emblem flying above his own abode so angered Red Cloud that he cut the halyards and tore the flag into strips as soon as it fell fluttering to the ground. The staff still stands in front of the house, but no one again tried to float the emblem from its towering peak.

Red Cloud was a vain and exclusive Indian. He seldom offered counsel. It was always sought. He was too pompous to mingle in dances unless they were held in the round omaha to the east of his house. He was conscious of his power and fame. If the agent was lax or vacillating "Old Red" ran the reservation to suit himself. Some roaming Indian reservations were held in contempt by him unless there was a strong, firm hand administering them. In that case Red Cloud, although cowed, would stalk past the agent's office with a meek and lowly air, but one could rest assured that his old red heart was in rebellion.

One day several years ago "Old Red" was missing from his reservation. Not one of his wives or followers knew whither he had gone. At least they said so. Runners were sent here and there, but no trace of the old fellow could be found. Days passed, when finally the agent received a telegram from Washington to the effect that Red Cloud, dressed in a ready-made suit of clothes, had called at the white house to see the president on his own hook. Later it was learned that the aggrieved traveler informed the executive that the agent was a baby, that his people were getting pickaxes instead of beans for rations and that, above all other things, he had not yet been paid for the ponies the troops had taken from him. A week later Red Cloud appeared on the reservation as unexpectedly as he had disappeared. He had made the long trip without escort or permit, and had made his appeal single-handed and without the presence of a delegation of his tribesmen, a custom which he held in contempt.

Of all the agents at Pine Ridge Red Cloud held but one in respect. This was Dr. McGillicuddy, who now lives in Rapid City, S. D., and who studied medicine in Detroit. When Dr. McGillicuddy took charge of the reservation Red Cloud at once attempted to hold the officers in contempt. He even went so far as to laugh at the doctor's slender physique and to pooh-pooh the way affairs were being conducted in the agency office.

One day Red Cloud was particularly offensive. McGillicuddy, who was not courting trouble, but who is not afraid of the devil himself, took the pompous, conceited leader of the Ogallalas and pulled his big Roman nose and swatted him hip and thigh. As Red Cloud emerged from the office door he was kicked and sent sprawling upon the walk. From that time until McGillicuddy left the agency he and Red Cloud were the best of friends. So much did the Indian think of the doctor in fact, that he bestowed upon him the name of Thunder-in-His-Neck, observing, it is supposed, the hoarse voice of the doctor. One night Red Cloud was sorely troubled with an obdurate liver. He called at the agency pharmacy and told McGillicuddy by means of signs and an interpreter that he was ill. Two doses of calomel were given the red man, who swallowed the powders and proceeded to make payment. When he was told that the medicine was free he demanded two more doses, which he tossed into his mouth. Later that night there were wild howls and grunts from the white house by the creek and it was nearly a week before "Old Red" appeared for duty. His face then looked like an old russet apple, so wrinkled and shriveled was it. So profoundly weak was he that he could smile but feebly to Dr McGillicuddy, who found the old man squatting on a knoll above the agency and gazing wistfully at the setting sun.

Red Cloud was a very old man when the Sioux war of 1890 filled the west with alarm. Those who were in that campaign well remember him as bent and tottering, wrapped in a long, faded purple overcoat and baggy trousers, the legs of which fell upon a pair of poorly decorated moccasins. His face, deeply creased with age and woefully shrunken, was made doubly repulsive by a huge pair of blue goggles, which he wore because of his fast failing sight. Red Cloud wore neither paint nor feathers. He looked like the veriest "coffee cooler" of the agency—a red gnome, a dessicated, ill-smelling savage, who seemed ready to be crunched by the hand of death any time. That was over seven years ago. There is now little left of the Indian who for over three generations has been a bloody, crafty, yet interesting character of the Sioux nation. Counties, towns and horses bear his name, but the savage himself will soon be no more. The last of the really great leaders of his tribe is now passing over the divide, where doubtless his untutored ears hear the chant of those who have gone before. But when Red Cloud dies it will be with a heart still steeled against the whites and a protest against the injustice of their government. He will die an irreconcilable, as did Sitting Bull. He will leave a daredevil of a son, Jack Red Cloud, for the troops to subdue at some future time.

Caper Sauce.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan; add one fine cut onion, eight whole peppers, half bay leaf. Cook three minutes without browning, then add one heaping teaspoonful of flour. Stir and cook two minutes. Add one pint of veal or chicken broth, season with half teaspoonful of salt, a quarter teaspoonful grated nutmeg, then boil 15 minutes. Strain through a sieve into a clean saucepan. Mix the yolks of two eggs with one teaspoonful lemon juice. Add a little sauce first to the yolks. Mix well and add the yolks to the sauce. Place the saucepan on the side of stove, add half teaspooonful of butter in small portions, stir five minutes over the fire without letting it boil again. Add two tablespoonfuls capers and serve.—Boston Herald.

Mushroom Sauce.

Clean and wash about half a pound of mushrooms, put them into a saucepan with half a pint of rich sauce, white or brown, with or without cream, a dust of pepper, salt and a blade of mace, and one ounce of butter rubbed into a tablespoonful of flour. Stir all well together, and put over a clear fire to stew until the mushrooms are tender, then skin and strain. This sauce is very good served with grilled steak. Mushrooms require slow simmering, and should always be well cooked before putting into ragouts, omelets or sauces. —Woman's Home Companion.

STOP IT NOW!

Stop It Quickly, Just the Same as Did Mr. Charles H. Hoffman, of 132 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson.

If you have a pain in your back, stop it! A lame back, stop it! An aching back, stop it! Do you want to know how? Let us tell you! In the first place, never try to rid yourself of pain without knowing the cause. If pain or ache exist there is reason for it. Find out this reason and get after it. Strike cause a stiff blow with the right weapon, and its allies, pain and ache, will flee like chaff before the wind. To get right down to it, backache is indicative of kidney disorders, a spy placed there by nature; listen to his warnings and take up the weapon, strike before disease is reinforced with allies that can not be routed by hand of man, such as Bright's disease. Let us introduce to you this weapon! Let us prove its superiority to all others! Here is a blow it struck:

Mr. Charles H. Hoffman is a fireman on the M. C. R R., and resides at 132 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson, Mich. He says: "I have suffered for a long time from a kidney and bladder disorder which has at times rendered me incapable of work; have been at the hospital for my complaint and discharged from there as cured, but the old complaint has invariably come back again. Some time ago I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I began taking them, with most gratifying results. Urinary complaints which bothered me greatly are very much improved, and the pain I suffered in my back has entirely left me, my general condition is much improved. I would not like to be without Doan's Kidney Pills, I think others should know what a valuable remedy it is."

In Chancery.
In the matter of the assignment for the benefit of the creditors of the Ohio & Michigan Coal & Manufacturing Company.
Please to take notice that the undersigned has been appointed by the court, assignee in the above matter, to succeed Charles Burridge, deceased; that he has filed his final statement and petition in said court, showing that the principal amount of the money received, belonging to said estate, was deposited in the bank and lost by the failure of the bank, except the small amount received by compromise; that he has in his hands $366.38 belonging to said estate, and asks that there be allowed to him $66.38 for his services, postage, printer's bill, railroad fare, hotel bills and attorney fees; that he has for distribution $300.00; that claims of said estate have been proven to the amount of 1098.88 dollars; that $416.34 of said claims purport to be for labor and services, and the owners thereof claim that the same are preferred, and to be paid in full; that attorneys have been employed since said Burridge filed his last report, but whether or not they have been paid he does not know, and he asks that said assignment and trust be declared to be performed and the affairs wound up and that he be discharged, and that he be instructed what disposition is to be made of the $300.00 remaining in his hands.
This petition will be brought on to be heard at the first day of the next term of said court to be held in the City of Adrian, said County, February 21st, 1898, at the opening of court, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.
Probate Court for the County of Lenawee.
At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on the 8th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight.
Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of EDMUND HALL, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Jennie Hall, a legatee under the will of said deceased, praying that administration de bonis non with the will annexed of said Estate may be granted to George Holloway or to some other suitable person.
It is ordered that Monday, the seventh day of March next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.
And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

work of art, poetical in effect, with nothing to distract the mind from the exhibit. In such a paper as this it would be difficult to describe all the pictures, therefore I have chosen those which seemed to be the representative pictures of the gallery.

Almost the first picture that attracts attention is Turner's well known "Grand Canal in Venice," the best work of that master in America.

Near the Turner occupying a place of honor on the wall is the "Edict of Chas. V.," by Baron Leys, one of the finest historical paintings of modern times, which was awarded one of the eight grand medals of honor at the Paris Exhibition in 1867. It shows a crowd of people in the market place of an old Netherland city, listening to the fatal decree of the emperior, that all persons convicted of heresy should be burned alive, buried alive or beheaded. These terrible penalties were also incurred by those who should deal in heretical books. The quaint Dutch town in the background shows that the painter tried to reproduce the actual life of the period. The portraiture is excellent, and in the foreground is a book-seller's shop, to emphathize the tyranny in relation to painters. This masterpiece has never been copied.

In the collection are six examples of the work of Alma Tadema, the clever pupil of Baron Leys, of which "Sappho" is perhaps the finest. The subjects of two of these pictures, "Xantha and Phaon" and "The Triumph of Titus" were suggested to the artist by Mr. Walters himself.

At one end of the gallery hangs the famous "Hemicycle" by Delaroche and at the other Corot's celebrated religous picture, "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian." The Hemicycle is a work of great historic interest, depicting a group of seventy-five distinguished painters, sculptors and architects of the world from the time of Pericles to that of Louis XIV, met together on the occasion of the distribution of prizes for the successful talent. Every figure is distinct and a portrait in accordance with the best known authorities. The St. Sebastian is the largest picture in the gallery being eight feet high by four feet wide. It somewhat resembles the Peter Martyr of Titian. Corot was several years in painting this and it regarded as his best.

There are seven Millet's in the gallery and it is a source of pride that Americans were the first to recognize the genius of this accomplished pupil of Delaroche. Among them are the exquisite little masterpieces, "The Sheepfold by Moonlight," the "Potato Harvest" and "Summer Landscape."

The two greatest landscape of Rosseau are here, "The Early Summer Afternoon" and "Winter Solitude."

There are five Van Marches, of which the "Approach of the Storm" occupies a place of honor above the "Hemicycle." It presents a striking group of cattle, standing out from a luminous background of green foliage. Another of Van Marche's is the study of a cow rubbing its head upon a fence running down a flowery hillside, and still another of a white cow in full sunlight. These are among the best examples of his style.

There is the beautiful masterpiece of Meissonier, representing Napoleon on his favorite white horse, viewing the battlefield of the morrow.

Munkascy, best known to the world by his "Christ before Pilate" is represented by "The Story of the Battle." A young soldier has returned to his native village and is recounting to a group of attentive listeners the danger thro' which he has passed.

We find a half dozen beautiful studies of child life by Eduoard Frere, among them "The Little Dressmaker," "Going to School," "Preparing Dinner" and "The Little Housekeeper" are full of tender sentiment and sure to interest children of all ages.

One the most interesting pictures in the gallery is Merle's "Scarlet Letter," representing the heroine of Hawthorne's story Hester Pryme with little Pearl in her arms has just been conducted from prison by the town beadle to the platform of the pillory for punishment. Hawthorne, when he saw this picture, said it realized his idea of the character he wished to portray, and gave it his unqualified approval.

Celebrated pictures by every American artist of note, as well as many more by the old masters are seen here, but as the pictures are not the only objects of interest in this exhibit, we will pass on to other features of the collection.

Mr. Walters early recognized the educational importance of beautiful examples of porcelain and Japenese art objects and it is almost impossible to give any idea of the beauty of his extraordinary accumulations, which are contained in the front and rear parlors of his mansion. Even the parlors are worthy of description, for one cannot help but be impressed with the simplicity and richness of their appointments. The ceiling is frescoed in Pompeian style, the woodwork ebony relieved with gold, the furniture of Louis XVI style covered with Persian silk, embroidered with unique designs an i colors. In the front parlor is a carved table of great beauty, doubly interesting from its association with Marie Antoinette and in the rear parlor is a curious old mahogany sideboard, dating back a hundred years and once in the possession of the English bishop of Westminster. Three historic cabinets occupy central positions, one of which is decorated with paintings by Angelica Kaufman. Another exhibits the most exquisite metal work of the Louis XVI period. Upon the walls hang family portraits by celebrated American painters and fine busts of Mr. Walters, his wife and daughter by Rinehart hold places of honor. Every available receptacle and scrap of space is occupied by art-gems gathered from all periods and all nations of the earth. There are examples of Venetian gold and enamel work, curious spoons, showing the handicraft of Russia, Sweden and Norway, articles in crystal, pearl, onyx and Egyptian jasper, mounted in gold.

The collection of European porcelain is very beautiful and complete. The work of the famous French Solon is perhaps the most dainty and beautiful of any to be seen here. The Solon vases upon which are delicate figures of women in flowing drapery, white on a soft gray ground, are especially noticeable. Solon worked in the factory Sevres and married the daughter of Haviland.

The Serves and Dresden examples are of marvelous beauty. Some of the Sevres plates bear decorations by Van Marche and a dainty little Dresden cup has a copy of Holbein's Madonna.

Famous European jewelers are represented, among them Castellani, who once refused to make a watch-chain after a Grecian pattern, because the Greeks never wore watches.

In silverware the ages seem to have contributed all their wonders, America being represented by the work of Moore and Tiffany.

In the dining room are many art objects of interest, such as a wonderful clock, magnificent vases, placques and pictures.

On the third floor are Marie Antoinette and Dutch bed-chambers, in which everything conforms to the period represented. The Marie Antoinette room is a reproduction of the queen's sleeping apartment at Versailles. Hangings of blue silk stamped with the royal fleur de lis in silver, conceal the doors and a canopy of the same material lined with delicate lace hangs above and at one side of the bed. The wall is lined with Chinese silk in blue and crimson, wall-paper not having then been invented.

In the Dutch chamber, Mr. Walters had paper made to imitate the leather wall decorations of the Dutch. The massive furniture in this room displays old Dutch wood-carving art to great advantage and old Dutch paintings look down from the walls.

One room is set apart for the works in bronze of the famous French sculptor Barye, who gave the best years of his life to the study of animals; and its walls are hung with designs in water-colors of his great artistic masterpieces. This room contains the best collection of Barye's works on the globe. The most celebrated are the bronze table service, which was made for the Duke of Orleans and the "Walking Lion" wrought in solid silver.

There is a magnificent assortment of tapestries and historic embroideries. Those of the Chinese embrace some beautiful things made for the old emperors. The Japanese exhibits display genuine art, and some hand-cut velvets are seen, which are rarely if ever found in this country. The Persian embroideries are almost beyond price.

In the gallery between the entrance hall and grand picture gallery is a collection of Oriental treasure the like of which is found nowhere else in the world. Apart from its beauty, is is of immense historic importance. It begins with Chinese dishes made by its earliest monarchs and follows down to the present time. It commences in the same manner with the earliest art efforts of Japan and Corea and follows thro' centuries, finally giving an entire cabinet of porcelain made for the successive rulers of Japan when at the height of its culture and power.

The cabinet of jades is particularly interesting. This precious stone, standing next to the diamond in hardness, is found only in Tartary and wrought only by the Japanese, who value it above all other gems. It can only be cut by drilling with diamond pointed needles in lines, and then cracking off the piece. When the work on a piece is started, relays of workmen labor on it night and day until it is finished—and even then it takes years to finish a single piece. There are two of these stones here, which are famous for having been the property of the Chinese emperor, captured by the rebels in the Tae Ping rebellion and sold to the Dutch. One of these is the largest known polished piece of jade and is mounted on silver; the other is mounted on gold studded with turquois.

In the same cabinet with the jades are some magnificent Japanese crystals one a ball which reflects everything in the room, giving it the effect of the kaleidoscope; also a tea crystal in the shape of a sugar bowl.

There is one small cabinet containing objects known as peach-blows; the quality of this ware has never been approached and the origin and art of the work is still a mystery, it having been lost and possibly never known to more than two or three persons.

These Chinese and Japanese exhibits cover a period of more than 800 years. There is one case of genuine Satsuma, whose creamy yellow and pale chocolate hues are known to us chiefly thro' imitations.

Beneath these cabinets are drawers containing not less than 150 swords. They were objects of much honor in Japan and the richness and variety of their ornamentation is amazing. The names of the famous sword-makers are graven on their work. It is said that one man wrought a blade so keen that when held upright in a stream, it would cut a sheet of paper that floated against it by the current.

The lacquer work of Japan dates 150 years before the Christian era. Five hundred or more of the choicest lacquers are arranged in glass cases and illustrate the artistic magnificence of the old lacquer artists.

I do not feel that I have done justice even in the slightest degree to this magnificent gallery of art treasures but I hope that I may have aroused your interest to the extent that, if you have the opportunity you will be anxious to see with your own eyes these wonders. In that way only can we fully appreciate their beauty and value.

Mr. Walters is a progressive collector, never allowing a year to pass without adding to his gallery, consequently with each year public interest increases. Occasionally he sends out invitations to a general reception of the most learned and famous of America's art connoisseurs, when the guests eagerly journey from all parts of the country to be present.

During three months of every year, Mr. Walters allows the poor association of Baltimore to sell tickets of admission at fifty cents each. A worthy charity is thus enriched and an opportunity given to thousands of art lovers to visit the gallery.

At all times he allows students in the art schools, specialists and serious-minded people to examine the collection in all its details.

A widower since August and a marriageable young lady, both of Deerfield, tasted of the Klondike air Monday morning by making an overland trip to the county seat. Their mission, considering the circumstance, is easy to guess—and though the storm came down, and the wind blew and beat upon that couple, they cared not, for they were "warm numbers in a cold place."

A sudden death: Mrs. Will Lockwood, of Summerfield, died very suddenly Monday afternoon, from heart affection. She was about her home in the most cheerful manner, singing and attending her work, apparently in the best of health but an instant before falling and expiring. Her husband and brother were in the room at the time. She was aged about 25, married about two years ago. Leaves no children. Funeral Wednesday afternoon. Her maiden name was McCarty and lived near Petersburg.—Dundee Reporter.

Norvell: About 4 o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in the building owned by Chas. Kreitner, which soon burned down, as did also the blacksmith shop adjoining, owned by Mr. Calkins, who lost all his blacksmith tools. There was no insurance on either building. Fred Green occupied the upper story of the Kreitner building as a barber shop. Several lights of glass in Schofields & Son's store across the street were cracked by the heat. Fortunately the night was very still or the loss would no doubt have been greater.—Manchester Enterprise.

Just as a drummer was writing his name on the register of a hotel in Ovid the other day, a bedbug appeared and meandered slowly over the pages. The man of many grips paused in open wonder, and in a voice shaking with emotion said: "Well, by the eternal gods of war! I have been bled by Ionia fleas, bitten by Owosso spiders, driven almost to insanity by Saginaw jiggers, crawled over by Bay City razzlejacks and interviewed by Lansing graybacks, but I'll be 'dod gasted' if this isn't the first place I was ever in where bedbugs looked over the register to find out the number of my room."—Clayton Record.

WESTERN BEAUTY IN COMPOSITE

Trans-Mississippi Fair Ones to Be Reproduced on Bronze Medals.

The committee in charge of selecting a suitable memorial souvenir medal for the Trans-Mississippi and International exposition, to be held in Omaha from June 1 to November 1 of the current year, have decided upon a very unique and entirely original design for the purpose, and one of the members of this committee called recently at the mint, where he submitted it to the engraver. It being a practicable one, work will at once begin on the dies, reports the Philadelphia Telegraph.

The obverse of the medal shows a wild, half-naked Indian, astride an equally wild broncho, in hot pursuit of a buffalo which has been wounded by a shaft from the bow and the unerring aim of the redskin. It is a splendid picture, and shows life as it was on the plains before the progressive advent of the white man.

The reverse of this souvenir will show just the opposite. It is nothing less than a composite likeness of the best results of highest civilization—the combined picture of far western beauty. Two of the prettiest girls from each state west of the Mississippi river have been photographed, and a composite picture of them has been made. There will be but one face on the medal, but it will show occidental beauty and culture at its best. It is needless to say that this souvenir will be eagerly sought and sacredly kept by all who are fortunate enough to secure one. This will be especially so on the part of the young men who are admirers of the belles whose likeness will adorn the medal. The government has decided to issue these medals, and the work will be done in this city.

NEW YORK MILESTONES.

Four of Them Still Standing, Though Defaced by Age.

Although it is many years since milestones were first placed in position in this city for the guidance of the wayfarer, there are still a few remaining to remind the observer that the city was not always as great as it is to-day, says the New York Journal. One of the nearest of these stones to the city hall is located in front of No. 214 Bowery, directly opposite Rivington street. You might pass it a thousand times, however, without noting the fact that the stone is an old-time milestone. The inscription on its face is much weather-beaten, and nearly always covered by a theatrical poster. The age and wear that the stone has been subjected to in its time has resulted in the figures and letters it bears becoming so indistinct that it is necessary to run the fingers over its face to decipher them at all.

Besides this stone, there are three others within the city limits. The second one is just above Sixteenth street, and in front of No. 178 Third avenue. This stone stands a little nearer the curb than the first, and has been badly defaced by the hubs of trucks and wagons. One corner of it has entirely disappeared.

The third stone stands in front of No. 952 Third avenue. Its inscription is not more legible than that of the others, but its general condition is better. The fourth is just above Seventy-seventh street, in front of Nos. 1356-1358 Third avenue. It stands straighter than any of the others, and its inscription is more easily read. All of the stones are located on the west side of the street, and unless a person were looking for one, notice would not be given them at all.

THE LANGUAGE OF EDEN.

Said by Highlanders to Have Been Gaelic.

The Scottish Highlanders have always been firmly convinced that Adam and Eve used "is Gaelic;" and it is gratifying to find that philologists, as they grow wiser, are coming round to the same opinion, says the Scottish American. It is true that they have made no express admission to this effect as yet, but there is evidence that we are on the eve of an acknowledgment that Gaelic was the original language of the human race.

The latest deliverance on the subject, if it does not altogether silence these skeptics and scoffers who derided this article of Highland faith, ought to at least make them give pause. Dr. Leitner, a distidguished German orientalist and philologist, has declared Gaelic to be a "contemporary or derivative of the Prakit, closely allied to the spoken language and out of which Sanscrit became a written language." He even goes so far as to assert that there seem to be in the Gaelic "certain survivals of a prehistoric language."

Clearly this point in the direction of the Highland contention, and the present acknowledgment, therefore, although tardy, and not, perhaps, quite so full as might be desired, will no doubt be welcome.

But Gaelic has another distinction. It is, as even the Sassenach knows, the language to swear in. The distinction, however, is that one does not quite harmonize with the theory of its Paradisaical origin.

TWO BROTHERS.

A Touching Instance of True Brotherly Love.

Here is the story of two brothers who stuck to one another through life, and in death were not divided, says Leslie's Weekly. They were past 60 years of age, and, being reported ill and destitute in the old house where they lived alone, were removed to Bellevue hospital. Each, though helpless, was anxious to take care of the other. When asked if they had any friends, both gave the same reply: "The best friend I have in the world is my brother here."

On their cots side by side they lay dying, yet neither appeared to have any thought of his own suffering, but asked continually that something be done for his brother. The elder one died first, saying: "Good-by, John, dear. God bless you!" Less than four hours after this farewell John breathed his last. The next day—it was the day after Christmas—the two brothers lay side by side in the morgue, where an aged woman, who had been their friend, came and identified the bodies, promising to notify relatives who would see that they were buried together.

Such is a real incident from the great epic of daily life in the metropolis, and it points its moral better than some fiction.

EXIT THE ARCTIC WHALE.

Pursuit by Man Has Virtually Extinguished the Deep-Sea Monster.

Whalers, and especially the man with the harpoon, have always been popular characters, and, indeed, the perils and exploits of their trade form not the least stirring chapter in the romance of commerce, says the London Graphic. It will, therefore, touch most of us with some slight sense of loss to learn—as a correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette assures us—that, as far as the arctic seas are concerned, that chapter is closed. This is a prosaic age, and the results of that famous corporation of whalers, the Dundee Arctic Fisheries company, limited, for the last two years have, it is said, not only not satisfied the shareholders, but have resulted in a heavy loss. The right whale, which provides the famous bone, has become so scarce that a ship is nowadays lucky if it be rewarded by even one small one as the reward of a whole season's struggle with arctic fog and ice. A parallel might be drawn between the pursuit of the arctic leviathan and the African behemoth, the elephant. Modern improvements in weapons of destruction have so thinned both their tribes that, as objects of profit, they have almost ceased to be worth the seeking.

Solved the Mystery.

A man in Paris has been making a good deal of money exhibiting a curious animal in the cafes chantant and such places. It was a very queer little animal, and the alert Parisians were willing enough to drop the petit sou for a sight of it. Still, look as they would, none could determine the creature's species. It was interesting, but it was baffling, and the exhibitor coined money. One day, however, a dog chanced to follow a curious beholder into the cafe chantant. Immediately the wondrous animal humped its back like a diminutive camel, and began to hiss and spit! The mystery was solved! It was a shaved cat!

Aerial Trolleys.

Chilkat's aerial trolley road, eight miles long, is not an experiment, as the system has been tested in other parts of the world. The cars, holding two passengers and a gripman, travel under der two ropes suspended in the air, with another cable underneath to conduct the power, the capacity of the line will be 120 tons daily, equivalent to 200 miners and their outfits. The construction of the road is simple, and it will probably be running by April.

Bumble Bees and Clover.

Australia has furnished a fresh illustration of Darwin's theory as to the important part played by bumble bees in fertilizing clover by carrying pollen from one plant to another. Clover never flourished in that continent until recently, when bumblebees had been imported from Europe.

French Population.

It is only in France that the French population does not increase. In Canada, Algeria and Tunis it increases rapidly.

OPPOSED TO AN APOLOGY

Spanish People Prefer War with Uncle Sam and Profess to Be Greatly Enraged.

SENOR DE LOME LEAVES FOR SPAIN.

A Disavowal of the Sentiments He Expressed in His Letter Expected from Madrid — Spanish Cabinet Is Aggrieved and Calls the Former Minister a Fool.

Madrid, Feb. 15. — The cabinet met yesterday and decided to publish a decree accepting the resignation of Senor Dupuy De Lome as minister at Washington and appointed Senor Louis Polo Bernabe as his successor. It was also decided to reply to Minister Woodford that Senor De Lome's spontaneous resignation and the terms of the decree accepting it were considered sufficient satisfaction.

Cabinet Aggrieved.

One of the ministers present said at the close of the council:

"You may say openly, as coming from Senor Sagasta and from each of us, that we entirely condemn, in the most absolute manner, Senor De Lome's letter. We are ashamed, grieved, and sorry thereat. The ministers feel more aggrieved than President McKinley can possibly be. We are honest men, who have been placed in a false position by a fool."

They Prefer War.

London, Feb. 16—A special from Madrid says the populace of that city is greatly enraged owing to the belief that the Spanish cabinet has apologized to the United States. The populace, the dispatch adds, is bitterly opposed to such a course as exceedingly hostile to the government and may make a demonstration.

In conclusion the dispatch says:

"The people prefer war to an apology, thinking that Spain will suffer the least thereby, as war would be exceedingly disastrous to the large commerce of the United States."

De Lome Leaves.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Senor Dupuy de Lome, late Spanish minister, left Washington at four o'clock in the afternoon on the congressional limited for New York. When asked if he had anything to say on the eve of his departure he answered only with a final "good-by."

Up to a late hour the state department had no additional word from Minister Woodford. While there had been an impression all day that a dispatch might be received at any hour, the absence of a message was not looked upon as an indication of any change in the status of the incident, which is now considered practically closed. As matters stand, the only further action to be expected from Spain is a disavowal of the sentiments expressed by Dupuy De Lome concerning President McKinley, but this, if made, will come as a voluntary courtesy. A definite announcement that this has or has not been made is in the ordinary course of events the next move expected from Madrid.

WOULD SLAUGHTER JEWS.

Sensational Prediction Made by Count Esterhazy at Paris.

Paris, Feb. 15.—Count Esterhazy said Monday that Dreyfus was guilty and that there were more than 150 incriminating documents in evidence at his trial. In his opinion no new trial will ever be ordered. Moreover, if Dreyfus were ever to appear in France again there would be 100,000 Jews slaughtered. If Zola should be acquitted there would be a revolution in Paris. He, Esterhazy, would be put at the head of a merciless crusade against the Jews by the people.

Inheritance Tax Void.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Feb. 14.—In the district court Judge Thornell declared the Iowa collateral inheritance tax law unconstitutional because it fails to provide for legal notice and therefore takes property without due process of law.

A Ruler to Quit.

Vienna, Feb. 12.—Emperor Francis Joseph will celebrate this year the fiftieth anniversary of his succession to the crown and he has decided to signalize the event by resigning in favor of his eldest nephew.

Woman's Suffrage Convention.

Washington, Feb. 15. — Susan B. Anthony called the thirteenth annual convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage association to order at the Columbia theater yesterday.

Draw the Color Line.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 16.—A bill has passed the legislature requiring railroads to furnish separate but identical accommodations for white and colored passengers.

Russia's Grip Felt.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 20.—It is announced that a Russian squadron under Rear Admiral Reounow has entered Port Arthur, on the Chinese coast, with the entire acquiescence of the Chinese government.

Sport in Mexico.

Guadalajara, Mexico, Dec. 20. — In a bull fight here three persons were killed and nine others seriously injured, and in a similar performance in the City of Mexico ten horses and six bulls were killed.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

It Is Appropriately Observed in a Number of Cities.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—The banquet of the Marquette club on Saturday evening was the leading event in this city in honor of Lincoln's eighty-ninth birthday. More than 1,200 persons listened to the addresses of ex-President Harrison, Justice David J. Brewer, Secretary Gage, Bishop Potter and the other distinguished guests.

Boston, Feb. 14.—The Middlesex club, of Massachusetts, on Saturday observed Lincoln's birthday with a great banquet at Young's hotel. Two hundred and fifty of the leading republicans of the state and New England were present. The principal speakers were ex-Gov. J. Q. A. Brackett, Lieut. Gov. T. L. Woodruff, of New York; Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, of New York; Congressman C. B. Landis, of Indiana, and Gov. Hastings, of Pennsylvania.

New York, Feb. 14.—For the third time the birthday of Abraham Lincoln was celebrated in this city Saturday as a public holiday. All banks and public institutions were closed, as were also the majority of stores.

The chief event of the day was the annual Lincoln dinner, at the Republican club, which was presided over by Chauncey M. Depew, who, with Congressman Charles A. Boutelle, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and others, spoke. Senator John M. Thurston addressed the Union League club of Brooklyn at night.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 14.—In Minnesota, which first of all the states legislated Lincoln's birthday into a legal holiday, Saturday was generally observed, banks and public offices being closed all day and general business much curtailed.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Scope of the Annual Report of the Commission.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The annual report of the civil service commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1897, has been presented to the president. It begins with a statement to show that after an experience of nearly 15 years, the hopes of the advocates of the civil service law have been largely realized. In practice the law has proved to be a constantly exerted and effective force in the direction of economy.

Considering the few changes in the service under the merit system and the wholesale removals under the patronage system, the economy and efficiency of the one stand in striking contrast to the extravagance and inefficiency of the other.

The whole number of positions examined during the year was 49,145, of whom 28,593 passed. The number of appointments was 4,136. The commission, the report says, has been steadily making its examination more practical.

Millionaire Dead.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16.—A dispatch conveys the information that Baron Ludwig von Erlanger died Tuesday at his home in Frankfort, Germany. He was the head of the great banking house of Erlanger, with branches in London, Paris, Frankfort and elsewhere. He left an estate valued at nearly $80,000,000, and he was the principal owner of the Queen & Crescent railroad, the Alabama & Great Southern railroad, and was largely interested in the New Orleans & Northeastern railroad.

Reckless Man with a Gun.

Marion, O., Feb. 14.—A shooting affray occurred here Saturday night among colored people in which James Woods was killed, Lizzie Hines Johnson mortally wounded, and a number of others received wounds which were not serious. Winfield Lewis, better known as "Bad Eye," formerly of Columbus, O., did the shooting. After killing Woods he recklessly shot at every colored person in sight and then escaped.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The national congress of mothers will hold its second convention in Washington the first week in May, and the prospects are that the attendance will be even larger than last year. The names of many notable men and women will appear upon the programme. The sessions will continue for six days.

Seeking Ice-Bound Men.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 14.—The United States relief expedition to the whalers and whaling vessels now in the icepack off Point Barrow has been landed at Cape Vancouver, and is now started away across the bleak stretch of snow and ice, 1,440 miles. When it will arrive at its destination, if ever, is merely conjectural.

Heavy Receipts.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The treasury department has issued a statement to the effect that the average receipts from all sources for the first ten days in February was $1,057,890, or at the rate of $386,130,580 per annum, which is $36,000,000 in excess of the average annual expenditures for the past nine years.

Says It's Unlawful.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 14.—Attorney-General Crow says it is unlawful for a teacher to require pupils to repeat the Lord's Prayer in the public schools of the state, and that to read the Bible at the opening of school is also contrary to law.

Broke the Record.

Trinidad, Col., Feb. 16.—Richard Powers, a member of the Trinidad Rifle club, broke the world's record for target shooting offhand, 200 yards' distance. His score was 96 out of a possible 100.

WAR SHIP MAINE WRECKED

American Naval Vessel Blown Up in Havana Harbor by a Terrific Explosion.

CAUSE OF THE DISASTER IS UNKNOWN.

Scores on Board Are Killed or Injured—The Sight an Awful One—Spanish Officials Render Assistance—Capt. Sigsbee Sends Report to Washington.

Havana, Feb. 16.—At 9:45 Tuesday evening a terrible explosion took place on board the United States cruiser Maine in Havana harbor. Many were killed or wounded. All of the boats of the Spanish cruiser Alfonso XII. are assisting.

The wildest demonstration prevails in Havana. The wharves are crowded with thousands of people. It is believed the explosion occurred in a small powder magazine. At midnight what remains of the Maine is still burning.

Over 100 Killed.

Capt. Sigsbee and the other officers have been saved. It is estimated that over 100 of the crew were killed, but it is impossible as yet to give exact details.

Admiral Manterola has ordered that boats of all kinds should go to the assistance of the Maine and her wounded. The Havana firemen are giving aid, tending carefully to the wounded as they are brought on shore.

Sight an Awful One.

It is a terrible sight. Gen. Solano and the other generals have been ordered by Capt. Gen. Blanco to take steps to help the Maine's crew in every way possible. The correspondent of the Associated Press has been near the Maine in one of the boats of the cruiser Alfonso XII. and seen others of the wounded who corroborate the statement of those first interviewed that they were already asleep when the explosion occurred.

May Have Been Designed.

No explanation of the explosion has been obtainable up to this time. It is assumed that one of the ship's magazines blew up or bombs were placed beside her and set off by Spaniards.

Troops Ordered to Quarters.

The excitement is so intense that the military authorities have ordered troops to quarters, and the streets are filled with crowds of excited citizens and soldiers jostling each other.

At this hour (two a. m.) the hull of the Maine is burning and the flames illuminate the entire harbor. Thousands have gathered at the water front to witness the unusual spectacle.

It is clear to those on shore that the vessel is sinking and will soon be at the bottom of the bay. The whole city seems on the verge of a panic.

Occurred in the Bow.

Capt. Sigsbee says the explosion occurred in the bow of the vessel. He received a wound in the head. Orders were given to the other officers to save themselves as best they could. The latter, who were literally thrown from their bunks in their night clothing, gave the necessary orders with great self-possession and bravery.

Capt. Sigsbee's Report.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The secretary of the navy received the following telegram from Capt. Sigsbee:

"Maine blown up in Havana harbor 9:40 and destroyed. Many wounded and doubtless more killed and drowned. Wounded and others on board Spanish man-of-war and Ward line steamer. Send lighthouse tenders from Key West for crew and few pieces of equipment still above (water). No one had other clothes than those upon him.

"Public opinion should be suspended until further report. All officers believed to be saved. Jenkins and Merritt not yet accounted for. Many Spanish officers, including representatives of Gen. Blanco, now with me and express sympathy.

"SIGSBEE."

The secretary of the navy received another dispatch from Key West at the same time with the above, but its contents were not made public.

The orders for the lighthouse tenders were at once sent to Key West in plain language.

The Maine and Her Commander.

The Maine is a battle ship of the second class and is regarded as one of the best ships in the new navy. She was built at the Brooklyn navy yard and is 318 feet long, 75 feet broad, 21.6 mean draught and 6,682 tons displacement. She carries four ten-inch and six six-inch breech-loading guns in her main battery and seven six-pounder and eight one-pounder rapid-fire guns and four Gatlings in her secondary battery, and four Whitehead torpedoes.

The commander of the Maine, Capt. Sigsbee, is a favorite in the navy department. For four years he was chief of the hydrographic office, and by his energy brought the office up to a high standard. He was lucky to get so important a ship as the Maine, considering his actual rank, which is that of a commander, but immediately he justified the department's judgment in the selection by running his ship straight into a dock in New York harbor to avoid running down a packed excursion boat. This was a display of quick judgment, nerve and pluck that pleased the department so highly that the captain was sent a complimentary letter.

Bloody Deed in Iowa.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Ida J. Seipel, while getting breakfast Friday morning at her home in Persia, was fatally shot by her divorced husband, Michael Seipel. Seipel ran from the house to a barn, climbed into the hay-mow and shot himself through the heart, dying instantly. Mrs. Seipel was shot three times, and there is little chance for her recovery.

The Mission at St. John's Episcopal church, which closes this evening, has been a successful one. Rev. R. T. Webb, the Missioner, is peculiarly qualified for work of this character. He is a plain, practical and powerful preacher and, not only holds the attention of his hearers, but incites them to greater zeal and activity in religious work. He has been ably assisted by Rev. H. P. Vicborn.

The concert given by the Tecumseh band Friday evening was, considering the inclement weather, well attended, and gave universal satisfaction. The program was not only choice but varied in character and the members collectively as well as soloists won new honors. Our neighboring town has every reason to be proud of their band and should encourage in every way the maintenance of this fine organization. We hope they will visit us again.

The drama "Forgiven" as presented by Mr. Williams assisted by local talent at Town Hall, Thursday and Saturday evenings, was indeed a surprise to those who witnessed it. Mr. Williams is himself a finished actor and his instructions to those aiding him, produced results that astounded the most sanguine. Should Mr. Williams again visit us, he will be cordially welcomed. He and his estimable wife have made many friends during their stay here.

Selecting Young Trees.

In selecting young trees for the orchard or for shade, Michigan grown varieties, from stock inured to this climate, are the only plants from which success may be confidently expected. Messrs. I. E. Ilgenfritz's Sons, Monroe Nursery, Monroe, Mich., have one of the largest nurseries in the country, thus affording a very wide range of selection. Their trees are peculiarly adapted to thrive in this climate and are all tested stock.

STOMACH DISEASES.

Medical Science has Produced a Positive Cure at Last.

The increasing prevalence of dyspepsia has been a matter of the gravest concern to the medical profession, and for years leading scientists have been experimenting to produce a remedy. Constant efforts in this direction have led to the introduction of many preparations which affords only temporary relief to those suffering with stomach diseases. It remained for a chemist of many years experience, who resides in Marshall, Mich., to produce a preparation which has proven to be a positive cure for the disease in all of its manifold forms, and is known as Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. The firm of Drake & Rhodes, manufacturers, are putting in the hands of a limited number of druggists this first positive cure for dyspepsia that has ever been offered to the public. The importance of this discovery has created a great deal of comment in the medical world, and the leading medical and clinical journals are devoting more space to this discovery than that given to any medical achievement in recent years. If you are troubled with indigestion, sour stomach, acid fermentation, sleeplessness, or any form of nervous dyspepsia, call on John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich., and ask for Drake Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer, a combined method treatment. A valuable treatise on stomach and nerve troubles sent free by addressing the manufacturers. Read the following testimonial from Chas. H. Houghtaling, ex-druggist, of Quincy, Mich.:

To all whom it may concern:

Having been a druggist for thirty years, and a sufferer from dyspepsia and nerve troubles, I have tried many of the highly advertised preparations for this terrible disease, as well as treatment by physicians. Recently I was induced to try Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer and am proud to say that I have realized more benefit in the two weeks I have used it than anything I have heretofore taken.

Respectfully to the afflicted,

C. H. HOUGHTALING.

"Saved Her Life."

MRS. JOHN WALLET, of Jefferson, Wis., than whom none is more highly esteemed or widely known, writes. "In 1890 I had a severe attack of LaGrippe and at the end of four months, in spite of all physicians, friends and good nursing could do, my lungs heart and nervous system were so completely wrecked, my life was despaired of, my friends giving me up. I could only sleep by the use of opiates. My lungs and heart pained me terribly and my cough was most aggravating. I could not lie in one position but a short time and not on my left side at all. My husband brought me Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I began taking them. When I had taken a half bottle of each I was much better and continuing persistently I took about a dozen bottles and was completely restored to health to the surprise of all."

MAKING OVER A MUFF.

How to Reconstruct One on the Most Fashionable Lines.

If you have an old, ill-shaped muff, here are directions for reconstructing it. If you follow them you will have as fine a muff as you want.

Purchase first a head and a tail. You can be either economical or extravagant here. Heads come from $1 upward, and the same with tails. For an old muff you should suit yourself with $1 each for head and tail, and maybe less, if you find one on a bargain day.

Take your old muff, and if it is out of shape remove the interior, ripping the lining out as carefully as though it were of fine lace. Now take an old muff-box and sew your lining around it. Over this sew two thicknesses of stiff crinoline, then several thicknesses of other stiffening. Finally, when firm, tack your wool wadding around all. When you have brought your muff to the right size, slip the fur covering over all. Draw the muff box out and carefully fasten the lining in place.

When completed sew your head upon one side of the muff and tack the tail in one end.

MUSKMELON MUFF.

Green and Black Shaded Silk with Tan Lace Festoons.

A muskmelon muff is one of the season's pretty things. To make it you select a heavy quality of shaded green silk that shows a touch of black in certain lights and the coarsest tan lace you can find.

Make the foundation of the muff over a small old muff box such as children's muffs come in. Use cotton wadding, but not a particle of crinoline. The outside is made of the shaded silk laid in small folds. The ends are cut pointed and hemmed.

A MELON MUFF.

Tan lace is draped down the front and loops of it are wired so as to stand up straight above the muff.

The back may be of the same material or entirely of black. When the muff is completed give it a gentle fold with the hands to obtain for it a flat shape. Now wire the edges into which the hands slip so that the muff will keep its shape.

Really Wonderful Shawl.

The duchess of Northumberland owns a shawl which formerly belonged to Charles X. of France, and was manufactured from the fur of Persian cats. Many thousands of cats' skins were utilized, and the weaving occupied some years. The shawl measures eight yards square, but it is so fine that it can be compressed into the space of a large coffee cup.

ABOUT BLACKHEADS.

Cure for Them Consists Entirely in Thorough Bathing.

So many letters relative to blackheads have been received during the last two months that a few words about these disagreeable disfigurements would seem especially helpful.

The skin is continually giving off a perspiration which is acid. This acid coming in contact with the oily substance thrown off by the sebaceous glands forms a substance which, if not removed by proper bathing, chokes the pores. Dust settling in these pores, blackheads are formed. The pores are enlarged, the skin becomes irritated, and inflammation results in pimples or small-sized boils. The reason these appear more frequently on the face and neck than any other portion of the body is quite evident. Next to the hands, they are more exposed, and being washed less frequently than the hands, are more liable to retain deposits of dust.

As to the cure, it consists entirely in thorough bathing. Many persons never thoroughly wash their faces. This may seem a broad assertion, but it is nevertheless true, and a fault of which women are, as a rule, more often guilty than their less particular but more sensible brothers, husbands and fathers. The reason appears to be the dread women have of ruining their skins by the use of soap. Now soap is absolutely essential for properly cleansing the face, and should be used at least once every 24 hours. When soap is used, warm water is better, providing, of course, that the face is thoroughly washed afterwards with cold water to counteract the relaxing effect of the warm water on the skin. Of course, where persons are very much exposed to dust the face should be washed with soap more than [illegible] always being taken to thorou[illegible] off the soap. This is one poin[illegible] remembered. It is the improper [illegible] of the face and not the use of soap that injures the skin. In instances where blackheads have already formed and appear hard to remove by the use of soap and warm water, it is well to supplement a soft flesh brush. This should be used on the parts affected, but on no account should the skin be scrubbed harshly. Persistent use of warm water and soap will cure and prevent the worst cases of blackheads. A thorough rinsing will remove the ill effects of soap, and the after application of cold water will always counteract the relaxing influence of warm.—American Queen.

Borax in the Laundry.

Half a pound of borax is sufficient to soften ten gallons of warm water. It not only saves labor, but it saves soap. Dissolve the borax in the water. If the water is soft, use only half the quantity of borax given. Shake out the soiled garments loosely, rub soap on the specially soiled parts, and immerse them in the borax and water. After stirring them thoroughly let them lie over night. In the morning lift the pieces out one by one and rub them on the board. Throw them into a boiler of cold water, in which half a pound of dissolved soap has been stirred. Let the clothes boil at once in the boiler, then lift them out and rinse them in cold water. Add a teaspoonful of borax to every gallon of water used in the rinsing.

Scarf to Match the Gown.

A new fancy is to have a scarf or necktie made of a piece of the material of the waist with which it is worn. This is prettier in the case of silk waists of a light color. A pale blue brocade, for example, has a linen collar with a small bow tie of the blue silk—its edges being carefully hemmed.

A Cure for Headache.

If one is troubled with frequent headaches or hot and feverish sensations, before retiring for the night wash the feet with cold water and thoroughly heat them before the fire before getting into bed. This is particularly beneficial to a nervous, irritable child.

Over Studied.

A YOUNG LADY'S HEALTH RUINED PREPARING FOR GRADUATION.

Was Over-ambitious and Went Beyond Her Strength. Constant Pain and Misery—Her Critical Condition.

From the Democrat, Shelbyville, Ind.

In one of the main streets of Shelbyville, Indiana, resides Mrs. Emily Edwards and her seventeen year old daughter, Cora. The young lady is one of the charming misses of the city, she being known for her beauty, and perfect health.

"Although enjoying good health now," said her mother to a reporter recently, "she has not always been so fortunate. I suppose Cora, until two years ago last March, was as healthy and strong as any girl of her age. She was attending school and was studying hard. Perhaps she was too studious, for we noticed that the healthy color in her cheek was rapidly disappearing, and she was becoming pale and sallow. Dark, swollen circles began to appear under her eyes, and she rapidly became worse. We were living in Franklin, Indiana, at the time, and Cora would have graduated that Spring. She stopped attending school and endeavored to get a rest, but her health kept failing. Her blood was colorless and impure. She would also have sick headache, could scarcely eat or sleep, and was almost continually in pain. Nothing which we did for her seemed to do any good.

"Different physicians treated and prescribed for her, but she kept getting worse. She had formerly weighed 109 pounds, but during her illness her weight had dwindled down to 79 pounds. We began to think there was nothing we could do for her benefit, when I happened to notice an article in a paper regarding the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I thought that if there was ever a pale person it was certainly Cora, so I decided to buy a box of the pills and let her try them. It was the first of last May when she began, and near the middle of June when she stopped using the pills. The first dose helped her, and after the first box had been taken, she was a different girl. She continued with this medicine and when she had taken eight boxes a complete cure had been effected.

She is now stronger, can eat more, sleeps better, and weighs more than she did before she was taken sick. I am sure too much cannot be said about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in her case, as they undoubtedly saved her life. We have recommended them to a number of sufferers."

The young lady, said a word of approval, and that she felt very grateful for the benefit received through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. "I agree with my mother," said she, "that I would not be living to-day had I not used these pills."

To leave no doubt as to the truthfulness of her story Mrs. Edwards cheerfully made the following affidavit:

SHELBYVILLE, IND., May 13, 1897.

This is to certify that the above story concerning the illness and subsequent recovery of my daughter, Cora, is an exact and truthful representation of the facts in her case.

BRITTON.

Miss Letta Gifford is visiting S. Boyd's family.

Lyman A. Curtis went to Ann Arbor Tuesday.

Will Britton and Chas DuBois were in Dundee Monday.

Mrs. Ellis and Miss Auten are the guests of Mrs. Drake this week.

Jas. Exelby and wife have been spending the week with relatives in Detroit.

Jas. Pilbeam, of Traverse City, is visiting his brother Jeff and other relatives.

Geo. Oliver was called to Battle Creek Tuesday to attend the funeral of an uncle.

Ernest DuBois has taken to playing the clarinet and the neighbors have taken to the woods.

The K. O. T. M. are booming along finely here, seven candidates presenting application Tuesday evening.

At the council meeting next Monday night bids will be entertained for attending to the new street lamps.

Burt Nichols sold his house and lot in this village to Tom Lee Tuesday. Mr. N. is undecided as to future plans.

Geo. Clark looks rather solemn this week which can only be explained by the almost impassible condition of Macon roads.

The lecture by Rev. Nickerson at the Reformed church last Sunday evening was very entertaining. As noted elsewhere he will continue the series.

Geo. Clark has resumed his place in the Wabash telegraph office after several weeks' lay-off, nursing his burglar shoulder, from which he recently had a bullet removed.

A. O. Maynard, car repairer, who was relieved at this station last week, has, we understand, taken a job at Toledo. Fred Rupp, of Tecumseh, is at present doing the work here as well as there.

In the labor and farm settlement difficulty between Heman and Jos. Van-Valkenburg, the matter was referred to a board of arbitration consisting of F. E. Morrell, Geo. Smith and Sam Kniffin.

Maynard Hatch, Wabash supply operator, who has been filling vacancy in the office here during the sickness of Will and Geo Clark, has been relieved and will spend a few days at his home in Macon.

C. R. Mabee has contracted the photography fever and purchased a folding snap shot camera. We may expect to see people vainly dodging in every direction to avoid being caught in embarrassing positions.

The K. O. T. M. boys feel under extreme obligations to Sam W. McClure, of Tecumseh, who furnished the music for their entertainment the other evening gratis. Mr. McClure will be remembered here when good music is needed.

At the Reformed church next Sunday the pastor will preach at 10:30 a. m. on "Knowing Christ" and at 7 p. m. will deliver the second of his series of lectures. "Glimpses by the Wayside," taking for his subject "The New York World Building and its Lessons."

The annual donation and supper of the Reformed church society for their pastor's benefit will be given next Wednesday evening in Exelby Hall. A beautiful slumber robe of silk crazy quilt design will be awarded to the lady receiving the largest number of votes for it.

Prof. Will Stedman will return here soon and, with the aid of local talent, put on the popular play, "The Confederate Spy." With Darius Smith as "Sockery, the dutchman," we feel assured that everyone around will take in the show and laugh to their heart's content.

A musicale will be given at Exelby Hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 19, for the benefit of the Ladies' quartet.

Everybody come. Admission 5 and 10c. Doors open at 7; program at 8.

EDGAR R. WELLS

Was born at Petersburg, Monroe county, Jan. 28, 1840. His mother dying when he was but two years of age, he was placed in the care of an aunt with whom he lived until able to do for himself. He was married Aug. 12, 1863, to Miss Sarah Exelby and 35 years they traveled life's pathway together, 22 years being spent upon the farm and the remaining time in the village of Britton where Mr. Wells embarked in the merchantile trade and was for a number of years one of the leading business men. He also held the office of township clerk at one time with great credit. Failing health necessitated his withdrawal from active business the last three years of his life, being attended with great suffering, yet he bore all patiently, putting his trust in Christ and awaiting the call of the Master, which came Jan. 6, 1898. The funeral was held at the Ridgeway M. E. church January 8th, being conducted by Rev. Yokom. The remains were taken in charge by the Masons and committed to their final resting place with impressive ceremonies. Wr. Wells leaves a loving wife and a host of friends to mourn his death.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my heartfelt thanks to my many friends, the choir and the F & A. M. for their assistance and kind attentions during my recent bereavement. SARAH WELLS.

Sunday Disturbance.

Every one was sorry for those people in church last Sunday, who were suffering with a distressing cough. A full dose of Downs' Elixir on going to bed at night and small doses during the day will cure the most persistent cough. Whenever there is a tickling sensation in the throat take a few drops of the Elixir on the tongue and let it run slowly down the throat and immediate relief will be the result. We guarantee it to cure any cough, cold, croup or lung trouble or money refunded.

The blowing up of the U. S. warship Maine in Havanna harbor is in every way a horror, 250 seaman destroyed either by wanton carelessness or malicious intent. At the present time no one knows what was the cause of this explosion, but no matter what the cause it shows conclusively that Uncle Sam has fooled with this nasty piece of Spanish butchery called "War" long enough. It is high time for President McKinley to say to Spain, "Stop this nonsense and give the Cubans the liberty which they should have had years ago." The foreign policy of the present administration is weak in the extreme and devoid of anything resembling good statesmanship in this regard.

THE CHICKEN SHOW.

Second Annual Meeting of the Poultry and Pet Stock Breeders and Fanciers.

Although the weather presented a regular blizzard Tuesday our local chicken men were out in force to celebrate their annual exhibit at Sutton's opera house. A great many breeders from surrounding towns, who had promised to be present, were forced to remain away on account of the inclement weather, which no doubt cut down the number of entries at least one-third. However, the affair was a great success and a large number of very fine displays were made, 70 coops being filled with a total of 204 chickens, 10 hares and rabbits, 8 ducks and a dozen doves and pigeons of different varieties. Many sales and exchanges were made in stock during the day. The exhibitors and kind of stock shown are as follows:

Geo. Adamson—Pigeons.

Miles Baldwin—S. C B. Leghorns, B. P. Rocks.

G. W. Bly—Brown breasted game Bantams.

Matt Boyd—S. C. B. Leghorns.

Guy Belding—White P. Rocks.

H. D. Cutting—B. P. Rocks, S. C. B. Leghorns, White Rocks, Partridge Cochins, black breasted game Bantams, 5 white rabbits.

Floyd Elliott—Rabbits, black Henne games, doves, muff and tassel Shenandoke games.

C. A. Hooten—Pekin ducks, S. C. B. Leghorns.

Willard Hunt—S. C. B. Leghorns.

Wm. Kyle—Partridge Cochins, Buff P. Rocks, Buff Leghorns, white crested black Polish, black Polan.

Chas. Kemp—White Minorica.

Chas. Lowry—Indian games.

Geo. Mattison—B. P. Rocks, Buff Leghorns.

Chas. McNeil—Silver-lace Wyandottes.

Forrest Macham—B. P. Rocks.

Bert O'Hara—White Pile Games.

Geo. Stacy—White P. Rocks.

John Shurtz—White Rocks.

Chas. Tefft—Black Minoricas.

H. B. Tallman—B. P. Rocks.

Jas. VanAntwerp—S. L. Wyandottes.

Leonard Vecelius—2 white rabbits.

Lawrence VanTyne—B. P. Rocks.

Chas. Waldron—S. C. brown Leghorns, B. P. Rocks.

Jas. Waldron—Pekin Bantams.

Clara M. Waldron—S. C. B. Leghorns, white P. Rocks.

L. M. Waldron—Houdans, black Minorica.

W. G. Waldron—Pekin ducks.

Mrs. W. J. Waldron—W. P. Rocks.

Chas. White—S. C. White Leghorns.

Dan Wiggins—Buff Leghorns.

Don F. Wright—Doves, Pekin Bantams, Derbeshire Games.

Wm. Witherell—Rose comb white Leghorns.

All day long a busy crowd of people thronged in and out of the doors, up and down the aisles in front of the cages, jostled each other good naturedly and commented upon chickens of all degrees and kind, ages and sizes. At six o'clock owners began removing their coops, the big center coop was removed and the chairs were replaced to accommodate the evening crowd which filled the house full a couple of hours later to enjoy the literary and musical end of the program which, owing to the absence of some of the participants, was slightly modified, but was, nevertheless, worthy and interesting, the papers being full of good suggestions, while the reader [illegible] musicians were obliged to respond [illegible] Tanral encores.

We append the program as rendered:

Cornet Medley—Chas. Skinner and Claire Cateburn.

Opening Address—J. D. Shull.

Response—A. P. Coddington.

Inst. music—Clarence Witherell, Mrs. Witherell and Miss Edith Elliott.

Paper, "Farmer's Busy Wife and Her Hens"—Mrs. Andrew Wilson.

Guitar trio—Austin Bros. and Bowen.

Cornet solo—Chas. Skinner.

"Poultry for Pleasure and Profit"—Mrs. J. L. White.

Rec., "How Sockery Set a Hen"—F. P. Kennedy.

Inst. music—Clarence and Mrs. Witherell, Miss Elliott.

Cornet duet—Skinner and Camburn.

Guitar trio—Austin Bros. and Bowen.

L. M. Waldron had on exhibition a bone cutter for which he is agent and its operations interested the people all day.

Willard Hunt is a hustling young man who proposes to educate himself by poultry raising and is depending on his fine brown leghorns to do the job. He has eggs to sell.

Advertising Agent Munsell, of the Michigan Farmer, visited the show.

C. A. Slayton had an exhibition of poultry foods, ground bone, oyster shells and other delicacies for the feathered tribe.

The ladies on the program braved the storm better than the male contingent and gave decidedly interesting papers.

Perhaps Dame Nature will be kinder to us next year when exhibition time comes again.

Dr. Waldron and Bert Cutting proved themselves artists at coop building, and will be found very reliable if you have any work of that kind to do.

Next to a county fair or a circus, there is no place on earth at which everybody rubs elbows with everybody else and has such an unalloyed good time as at the annual chicken show.

One of the most interesting portions of the poultry show program was the letter read by John D. Shull, purporting to have been written by Geo. N. Stacy. Up to this date Stacy has enjoyed the reputation of being the champion liar of the village, but he is now obliged to surrender the belt to Shull and the territory east of the railroad. As a matter of fact our friend Shull was both writer and reader of the letter. Although it was a mean trick to attack a man at home sick with the croup, the writer fully enjoys and appreciates the joke, only waiting an opportunity to get even.

Rev. W. Q. Burnett.

On Sunday morning about three o'clock with scarcely any warning, the life of Rev. William Quarton Burnett was translated from the earthly to the heavenly realm. He had lived so long as one about ready to depart, as waiting for the summons, that the change of scene came as the opening of the beautiful morning of that eternal day.

Mr. Burnett became well known to this community on his appointment as pastor of the M. E. church, of Tecumseh, in 1874. He served a three years' pastorate and linked himself inseparably to the deep Christian love of many souls.

He came of English descent with a trace of Scotch in the ancestry. He was born at Newton near York, England, August 22, 1824. The language of his youth, which was ever a familiar speech with him, partook greatly of the Scotch. He came to America with his father's family in 1850 settling in Macon. Six years later he yielded himself to the calling of the ministry and joined the Detroit conference on probation. He was appointed as junior preacher on the Bedford circuit and his post-office in the conference minutes of 1856 is Erie, Monroe county.

Bedford circuit at that time covered territory of what later became the first appointment of his youngest son. In accordance with the custom of the itinerant plan of that day he was appointed to a new field the following year and was sent to Dover. Just before the session of the conference of this year, 1857, he was married to Mary Elizabeth Darling, the eldest daughter of the Hon. Henry Darling. To this union were given seven children. Following the appointments above named, and for twenty-five years succeeding, he was pastor of the following charges: Palmyra, Dundee, Napoleon, Brooklyn, Flint—Garland Street, West Bay City, Tecumseh, Detroit—Fort Street and Flint.

His work was everywhere well done. While he was known as a preacher of much quality, his eminence was that of a soul-winner. His preaching was clear pointed, evidencing much thought, and much secret prayer. At the conclusion of twenty-seven years of service, at the age of fifty-nine, he was compelled through seriously broken health to cease preaching for but a brief time until restoration of health. As it proved however, his wife and physician knew better than he the true state of his health. This was in 1883. Then he came to Tecumseh and here he has since resided. While he ceased the active ministry he never for a day, up to his departure, ceased to be mindful of the interests of the local church. His wife died in 1892. She was devoted to his every interest at all times, having even uppermost in her thought to make her husband's last days most happy, peaceful and restful. Little did she think that she should be called first.

For some months past it has been apparent that the end of life was approaching. He waited the end with steadfast faith. Unmoved by suffering he complained little of the severe pain. At the last there came no premonitions of death and the end was so like sleep that the faithful daughter's watching but that one night, knew not the time when his spirit left the earthly house of this tabernacle.

Six children, four sons and two daughters survive their father: Arthur W. and Robert U. are engaged in publishing and news interests in New York City; Henry D. is connected with Canadian General Electric Co. and located at Peterboro, Ontario; Walter F. joined the Detroit conference in 1897 and is pastor of the M. E. church at Weston, Mich.; and Grace D. and Eugenia A. reside at the homestead.

The funeral services were held at the M. E. church on Thursday afternoon under the direction of the pastor, Rev. W. B. Pope. Rev. C. L. Adams offered prayer, Rev. John Bettis read the scripture lesson, Rev. L. Barnes, M. D., a particular friend and co-laborer in the Gospel for twenty years made a brief address. He was followed by Rev. W. J. Balmer and Rev. W. B. Pope, his pastor. Interment followed in the Tecumseh cemetery. Nine members of the conference were present, four acting as pall bearers with two members of the official board of the local church, C. E. Williamson, and G. W. Jackson. The ministers present from abroad were: Rev. C. L. Adams, Adrian; W. J. Balfner, Morenci; John Bettes, Blissfield; H. Canfield, Dundee; H. J. B. Marsh, Tipton; E. M. Moore, Clinton; D. H. Yokom, Ridgeway.

RESOLUTIONS.

At a special meeting of the official board called by the pastor, W. B. Pope, Feb 6th, 1898, the following resolutions on the death of Rev. Wm. Q. Burnett were adopted:

WHEREAS, we are bereaved today, an honored and beloved member of our board has departed this life, one who was always present at our meetings when his health would permit, and upon whom we could always rely for counsel and help. After a long and painful illness death came, came at the end of a consecrated and useful life, came so quietly and peacefully that ever his devoted daughter watching over him in the small hours of the night knew not the moment of his departure. Blessed sleep to "Awake in the likeness of Christ."

RESOLVED: That in the death of our beloved brother, Rev. W. Q. Burnett, we mourn the loss from our board, a wise counseler, from our church, a true and loyal friend and liberal supporter, and from the Detroit conference, superannuated minister, who has been a most successful soul winner. No work was too hard no sacrifice too great for him where there were souls to be saved; and that the community in which he lived so long, has lost a kind neighbor and a good citizen.

And be it further RESOLVED that the heartfelt sympathy of this board be extended to the bereaved family, who mourn the loss of a kind beloved and devoted father, praying that the Comforter may come to bless and keep them in this trying hour, that the tender ties severed and the broken hearts now bleeding may be healed in the blessed reunion in heaven above.

A copy of the above was ordered to be spread in the records of the church and also a copy presented to the bereaved family.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

The contract for the erection of the brick engine house has been let to Michael A. Steinhauser and David Pike. The foundation trenches have been completed. It will require 5 carloads of stone, 125,000 brick, 1 carload of lime, 1 carload of cement, 10 carloads of lumber, 1 2 carload of roofing and 5 tons of iron to build the engine house which will have seven stalls, in one of which there will be a drop pit for the convenient handling of the driving wheels. A track has been laid to this building which will form the west part of a "Y" for the convenient turning of engines as they come out of the engine house. In addition to this building a corrugated iron car building 75x175 feet will be erected to the west of it. The material for this building has all been ordered and is now on the way to Tecumseh, and as soon as it arrives the work of its erection will begin. Both these buildings will be completed within fifteen days after the arrival of the material. It already begins to look quite busy around the site of the proposed shops.

A. O. Maynard received his installment of prosperity Tuesday. The Wabash company notified him that his services were no longer required, not because of any short comings on his part, but because they thought the Adrian man could fix cars at this point. Mr. Maynard still works for the Lima Northern, but of course his pay is cut in two.—Britton Citizen.

Twenty laborers and a gang of masons are at work on the car shops today. Don't let a cold snap and a Detroit paper scare you into thinking the shops won't go up for they will.

BORN, SEPT. 7, 1897. DIED, FEB. 8, 1898.

Our darling babe has passed away,
With us on earth, no more to stay;
She's gone to her bright beautiful home,
To heaven prepared on God's high throne.

Put by her playthings and little toys;
Fold up the garments she used to wear;
Leave her with Jesus where all is joy,
When we too shall soon be there.

But, how we miss her, how sad our home,
No dear little darling we can call our own,
But we know dear Jesus doeth all things right;
Our darling in his arms doth sleep tonight.

CARD OF THANKS.

A grim memento of lawlessness and retribution, was brought to this office by Mrs. Nettie Crossman the first of the week. A bit of blood stained hemp rope and the cross section of an elm tree limb, upon which five Indians of the Levi gang of outlaws, were lynched in last September at Versailles, Ind. The case is now before the grand jury, and has attracted widespread attention from the fact that about 400 men with money and brains, have organized to defend the lynchers against prosecution, and it is predicted that nothing will come of the governor's investigation.

Died in Detroit, Feb. 10, at the age of 49 years, Mrs. Salome Keiller. Mrs. Keiller, who is a sister of Wm. Smalledge, was married in this village in 1870 to Jas. Wentworth and since that time has resided in Detroit. For the past five years she has been a great invalid suffering intensely from heart trouble, from which she died. The remains, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wentworth and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reynolds, of Detroit, were brought here Saturday and placed in the vault. The profusion of splendid floral pieces attested the esteem and affection in which the diseased was held. She is survived by an only son, H. W. Wentworth, her husband having died in 1874. Today her remains were laid beside her husband in the cemetary here.

St. Valentine.

One of the most unique of the Hogan Alley parties was that at Miss DeWolf's Monday evening. It was a Valentine heart party in every sense of the word. There was a post office, Valentines by the hundreds, hearts for score cards, hearts were played and hearts were everywhere. Cupid was there with his bows and arrows. St. Valentine reigned supreme and the guests one and all were indebted to the hostesses, Miss DeWolf, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Newburn and Miss Anderson for a most delightful evening.

A drayman's horse, while standing on North Main street this morning reached over into a feed store delivery wagon, just ahead of him, took a whole bale of hay between his teeth and lifted it bodily out of the wagon, depositing it on the pavement, where he was quietly munching away when discovered by the proprietor of the hay and driven off. That horse will do to go war.—Adrian Messenger.

Residents of Lime Creek recently determined to have a rat hunt, and endeavor to thin out some of these pestiferous rodents, as well as to enjoy a wholesome bit of fun. They chose sides—14 being on a side—and had ten days in which to hunt them. The side that got beat was to furnish an oyster supper, served in the grange hall, at that place, last Thursday evening. Clif Southerland's side won, by bringing 411 rats, while Ira Cramer and his supporters came along with 375. From under Will Gallup's hogpen 231 were secured, while a large number escaped. One man secured from one rat-hole, at "one setting," 34 rats.—Hudson News.

WORN-OUT FARM SOIL.

It Can Be Improved by Plowing Under Green Crops.

Soils that have been in long culture, without having been in clover or the grasses, or received periodical dressings of barn-yard manure, have been deprived of the greater portions of their mold. And, as is also an admitted truth, that mold is an indispensable ingredient in every productive soil, it stands to reason that, when in the course of improvident culture, it has been extracted, it is essential that it be restored. The question, then, how shall this restoration be brought about, is one of full interest to every farmer. Those who have ample resources, who have full supplies of animal and mineral and vegetable manures, who have the materials on their land to form composts, comprising the elements in question, need look no further for the means of restoring the needed constituents to the soil. But those who are differently situated, who have but little manure and are but ill-supplied with the raw material to make compost, must turn their attention to the best means of placing such matters in the soil as will form mold. The growing and plowing in of green crops is often advised, and we here repeat that advice. No soil can be truly productive unless both organic and inorganic plant foods are present. The air can supply a portion of the organic food, as clover roots can by their tubercle bacilli convert the unavailable nitrogen of the air into available plant food, This can be done only while the plant is growing.

What kinds of crops should be cultivated and plowed in? This question must be solved by circumstances. The facility with which seed may be obtained, the facility with which plants selected can be grown on these poor lands, their cost, etc., will determine to a great extent which shall be used. Chief is red clover, valuable for pasturage and equally so as a fertilizer. Clover is first and no doubt the best mortgage raiser there is, for it surely does restore the fertility of the land. As mentioned before, it supplies the nitrogen supply as none other can. I know farms that would raise scarcely anything, which in course of four or five years' treatment with clover, and with proper rotation, have become very valuable as crop-producing farm. Clover is a good crop for green manuring. Rye and rape are likewise recommended, but clover undoubtedly stands first.—Charles W. Burkett, in Farm and Fireside.

WIRE FENCE REEL.

It Does Not Require Much Skill to Make One at Home.

For a homemade wire fence reel simply convert an empty barrel into a hand roller. Across the open end, two pieces are nailed at right angles and in the center of this, as well as the bottom, a hole is bored to admit an iron rod. The push frame can be made of light pieces of hard wood braced across and on the under side a staple or hook is inserted to carry a can or paint bucket with tools, staples, etc. This may be suspended from the rod just inside the open end of the barrel by means of an S-shaped wire, but is not quite so convenient. In removing wire, one end is stapled to the barrel and then it is a simple matter to push the contrivance before you. In this way the wire is not dragged through the dirt and so does not gather much litter. If it is a temporary fence, it is frequently necessary to move it but a short distance and then it can be pushed all the way, but if the removal is to a greater distance, the rod can be taken out and the barrel, with its coil of wire, lifted into a wagon.—J. M. Shull, in Orange Judd Farmer.

WIRE FENCE REEL.

Steam Engines for Farms.

Because farmers always have horse power on the farm it does not follow that it must be used for every purpose where additional power is required. There are many kinds of jobs where a small engine, which any farmer can easily learn to run, will give better satisfaction and be far less expensive than keeping a horse. With the proper connections so as to furnish the power such an engine will do the churning or run the milk separator. It will do the washing and turn the grindstone in the summer, a job that has disgusted more boys with farming than any other. One of the best uses of the engine is to make it turn a lathe where the young people can cut out various kinds of wooden utensils and learn skill in handicraft that will be useful to them all their lives.—American Cultivator.

The Use of Fertilizers.

You cannot, by the use of commercial fertilizers alone, make your land rich. Indeed, if they are ignorantly applied, the result will be the impoverishment of the soil. If you add ten dollars to your bank account and check ma$20, you know the result. In like tity or when you use a small quanous plant fertilizer, it grows a vigor fertility from which enables it to gather of the materials of soil largely in excess Judiciously used, they by the fertilizer, to the farmer. But, I re[illegible] a great boon method of using the phosph[illegible]s and potash salts is on the pea and [illegible]ver crops. It insures, as a rule, a h[illegible] crop of these renovators.—Southern States Farm Magazine.

Now that it is established that shredded corn fodder is about as valuable as hay, stalks standing in the field looks something like a sin.

FARM & GARDEN.

RUBBER AND EVENER.

Good Implement for Preparing Land for Seeding.

In preparing land for corn culture, the land rubber illustrated herewith may be made at home at but small cost and will prove to be an effective implement. It consists of six pieces of four by four scantling, seven feet long, loosely bolted by the corners. Three bolts are in each piece, an eye in each end of the bolts and so connected as not to hold each piece of scantling rigid. One bolt is placed in the center; the others one foot from each end. Chains from the outer bolts of the front scantling are brought together and serve as a place of attachment for the whiffletree. The front cutting edges of each scantling are protected and their efficiency aided by having them bound with flat iron two inches wide and one-quarter inch thick. This size rubber is found to be heavy enough and well adapted for ordinary work, but if made of pine or any light wood it will require weighting.—S. N. Cox, in Farm and Home.

FOR PREPARING LAND FOR SEEDING.

TANNING FUR SKINS.

An Operation Requiring Some Care and Experience.

Soak the skins until soft, remove superfluous flesh and soak in tepid soft water one hour. For each skin make a solution of one-half ounce of borax, three-quarters ounce saltpeter and one-half ounce globular salt. Dissolve or moisten with soft water sufficient to spread on the flesh side of the skin. Put on with a brush, taking into consideration the varying thicknesses of skin and apply accordingly. Keep in a moderately cool place for 24 hours, when the skin is to be washed clean. Then take one ounce sal soda, one-half ounce borax and two ounces hard soap, melt together, taking care not to bring to a boil. Apply the heated mixture to the flesh side and keep in a warm place for 24 hours. Wash the skins clean and apply two ounces saleratus, three quarts hot soft water, four ounces alum and eight ounces salt. Dissolve in water. When sufficiently cool to allow handling without scalding the bare hand allow the skin to remain in this mixture for 12 hours. Afterward wring out the moisture and allow 12 hours to dry. Finish by pulling and working and finally by rubbing the flesh with sandpaper or pumice stone.—G. H. Hapgood, in Farm and Home.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

Cultivate the corn before it is up.

Get the implements ready for spring work.

Clover will run out the common weeds.

Alfalfa is not satisfactory in the middle west.

On poor soil sow wheat a little thicker than on good.

Orchard, timothy, blue grass and clover make a good pasture.

Wire fencing is so cheap that there is no excuse for lack of fences.

Fermenting and heating in the mow are what make clover hay dusty.

Black loam earth, in a dry state, is just as good an absorbent as plaster.

If the land is level three inches of fine pulverization of the soil is believed to be best for conservation of moisture.

There is a very general opinion among corn growers with whom we talk that we plant too thickly for best results.

Old straw stacks may be spread on the pastures in spring to advantage. It is a mulch and prevents too close cropping.

If cattle are turned on topped dressed pasture before the grass gets a good start and before there has been a good rain, it will be offensive to them.—Western Plowman.

Ashes with Stable Manure.

It may seem strange to advise applying wood ashes unleached to stable manure just before it is plowed under. Yet this is often a good thing to do. While exposed to the air, especially if the manure be wet so as to leach the ashes, there will be some loss of ammonia. But so fast as the manure and ashes are turned under this waste of ammonia ceases. The ashes cause the manure to ferment rapidly, and in contact with the soil none of the ammonia will be lost. In fact, much of it will combine with the potash in the ashes, forming a nitrate of potash, which is the most effective manure known.—American Cultivator.

Modern Agricultural Training.

Education in all branches of farming will in the future be universal. Europe has dairy schools, and short courses in agriculture are being given at nearly all of the experiment stations in this country. The Rhode Island station now has a poultry department, in which pupils are taught the merits and characteristics of the breeds, fowl anatomy, diseases, artificial incubation and the brooding of chicks, chemistry as applied to the foods of fowls, construction of poultry houses, growing green foods for poultry, etc.

IONIA PRISON.

Some Interesting Figures for the Warden's Report.

Ionia, Feb. 14.—Warden Fuller, of the Ionia prison, reports that the convicts at work in the furniture shop during the year 1897 earned the state 39 cents per day each. Furniture is manufactured at Ionia on state account and $21,184.57 was cleared during the year. The cane shop earned $2,996 for the state, or 16½ cents per day for each convict. The state receives 40 cents per day for convicts working on the Michigan Knitting company's contract, and 25 cents per day on another knitting contract. The farm and garden raised $4,124 worth of produce, the expenses for seeds, etc., being $1,[illegible], a net gain of $2,196.

Dr. Kendall Brooks Dead.

Alma, Feb. 16.—Rev. Kendall Brooks, D. D., dean of Alma college, is dead. He was graduated from Brown university in 1831 and was a tutor in the Columbia university near Washington. After graduating from Newton theological seminary he accepted a pastorate at Eastport, Me. In 1868 Dr. Brooks came to Michigan, where he became president of Kalamazoo college. In 1887 he came to Alma.

Pingree's Case Appealed.

Lansing, Feb. 13.—Gov. Pingree's suit against the Michigan Central Railroad company to compel the defendant to sell family 1,000-mile tickets for $20, in accordance with the law of 1891, has been appealed to the supreme court, a writ of certiorari having been granted by Justice Montgomery. The governor won the case in the lower court.

Michigan A. O. U. W.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 16.—The annual report of the Michigan grand lodge of Ancient Order of United Workmen shows 19,999 members in the state, a decrease of 2,280. Disbursements from the beneficiary fund amount to $466,000, from the general fund, $21,189, and from the relief fund, $46,471, leaving a balance on hand of $36,731.

Death of Dr. Manley Miles.

Lansing, Feb. 16.—Dr. Manley Miles died Tuesday of fatty degeneration of the heart. He was aged 72 years. He was the first professor of agriculture at the Michigan agricultural college. Subsequently he filled a similar chair at Amherst and at the University of Illinois. In 1859 he was appointed State geologist of Michigan.

Fruit Trees Not Injured.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 16.—Peach and other fruit trees in this vicinity have not suffered injury from the winter thus far, and the present prospects for a large crop next season are all that could be desired. This is the opinion of 200 western Michigan fruit growers here attending the fruit growers' institute.

Damaged by High Water.

Benton Harbor, Feb. 12.—The ice in the St. Joseph river went out Friday morning, and when it reached the highway bridge formed a jam, which caused water to overflow the low land nearly to the business portion of the town. The bridge was badly damaged. When the jam broke ice piled up ten feet high.

Fine Vein of Coal.

Owosso, Feb. 16.—The Owosso Coal & Mining company, which has just struck a 90-foot shaft here, has struck a vein of coal seven feet thick, which is of superior quality.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

It Is Held in Jackson with 150 Delegates in Attendance.

Jackson, Feb. 12.—The delegates to the state Y. M. C. A. convention elected officers Friday as follows: President, George L. Moody, of Detroit; vice presidents, F. S. Goodrich, of Albion; C. Stuart, of Owosso; E. L. Briggs, of Charlotte; secretary, G. F. Fleming, of Saginaw; assistants, D. S. Carmichael, of Albion; C. N. Dinsmore, of Kalamazoo. Field reports from 25 associations were received, all reporting increases in membership. Rev. R. A. Torrey, of Chicago, gave a series of sermons during the day on the subjects: "The Crucified Christ," "The Arisen Christ" and the "Coming of Christ." Dr. Otis F. Smith, of Bay City, read a paper giving statistics relative to young men and the association. It showed 250,000 young men in Michigan not affiliated with any church. Committees were appointed for the year. There were 250 delegates present.

Jackson, Feb. 14.—The features of the closing day of the Y. M. C. A. convention were meetings at the churches in the city. Sunday afternoon there were separate men's, boys' and women's meetings. The farewell meeting was a union one, held at the Methodist church. Many of the delegates say this was the largest and most successful meeting ever held in the state by the Y. M. C. A., both as regards the kind of work done and the great good accomplished. It was the twenty-sixth annual convention of the body and 150 delegates attended the session. State Secretary Copeland's report showed an increase in Y. M. C. A. work.

There are 21 city associations, one railroad association and ten college associations. Eighteen associations report active and associate membership of 6,388. Fourteen associations have junior departments with a membership of 781; 18 associations report 1,771 contributors; ten college associations report membership of 797; 18 associations report reading rooms; 15 associations have libraries with 5,551 volumes; 16 report gymnasiums; 17 associations report average daily attendance of 2,940; nine associations report buildings and lots valued at $370,300. Seven associations have building funds amounting to $50,258; 18 associations report 329 professed conversions; of these 114 have united with churches; 13 associations report 64 educational classes; 19 associations report 146 lectures and entertainments; 26 associations report 185 socials and receptions; 14 associations report ladies' auxiliaries.

Certain homestead entries which were temporarily suspended pending final division are thereby relieved.

MURDERED FOR MONEY.

A Young Man of Tough Associations Is Brutally Slain in Lansing.

HORRIBLY MANGLED BODY IS FOUND.

The Discovery Not Made, However, Until Several Hours After the Crime Had Been Committed—The Motive of the Deed Was Evidently Robbery.

Lansing, Feb. 11. — Roderigue C. Lauzun, a somewhat dissolute Frenchman about 25 years of age, was found murdered in his room over a feed store Thursday afternoon. The walls of the room were spattered and the floor over which the murderer had dragged his victim was saturated with the latter's blood. The skull had been crushed with a hatchet or sharp piece of wood and the head was beaten almost to a pulp. Young Lauzun was known as a circus fakir. He had quarreled with his father, and seldom visited him, although he was at his father's house early Wednesday evening. Deceased was last seen going to his room early Thursday morning. The proprietor of the feed store heard a pounding noise upstairs about seven o'clock, but thought nothing of the incident. The murdered man had exhibited a roll of bills not long ago, but nothing was found excepting an empty bloody pocketbook lying on the floor.

WHEAT NOT DAMAGED.

Special Crop Report Shows Little Injury in January.

Lansing, Feb. 12. — The Michigan crop report for February says the prevailing opinion of correspondents is that wheat has not been damaged. In reply to the question: "Has wheat during January suffered injury from any cause?" 71 correspondents in the southern counties answer "yes" and 373 "no," and in the northern counties one answers "yes" and 73 "no." The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in January is 1,229,810, and in the six months August-January 10,263,864. The amount marketed in the six months August-January is more than two-fifths of the crop of 1897, and is 3,958,089 bushels more than reported marketed in the same months last year. Live stock throughout the state is in good condition.

A SMUGGLER'S LAST TRIP.

The Turning Point for a Young Man on the Border.

IN THE smoking compartment of a Montreal sleeper bound for New York one night were half a dozen men discussing politics, the service of the road, and the possible annexation of Canada. As the train ran across the line into the United States one of the men looked out of the window with the interest of a man seeking familiar scenes. There was just light enough for him to see that the long ditch-marked farms of Canada, with their stone houses, had been left behind, and that the less picturesque farms of the states stretched out from the track. Settling himself back in his seat and including the other smokers in his audience, he said:

"This country hasn't changed in 25 years, except for the introduction of this railroad. I was born in this neighborhood, and although it sounds like a queer admission, up to the time I was 22 years old I spent much of my time in smuggling whisky, brandy and alcohol across the line. For various reasons there isn't much of this sort of thing done now. Probably the chief reason is that it doesn't pay, and then again, it is not looked upon as respectable. My father was engaged in the same business before me, and several of our neighbors, good churchmen, were in it up to their eyes, and it is not strange that my conscience did not begin to work on this subject until one of the respected citizens of a near-by town was convicted and sent to prison for smuggling. The government made an example of him, and although all of his acquaintances regretted it at the time, it has proved a good thing.

"Didn't the customs officers interfere? Well, some of them did conscientiously when they got a chance, and there were plenty of them all along this line who only made a bluff of interfering that deceived no one except the government. I knew one officer who was in the business himself. As a young man I thought that smuggling was all right, and it never occurred to me that I was a thief. I haven't done any of it since. Coming through this region has brought back some of the old experiences. There were then, and I have heard that there are now, many stores built along the line, so that one-half should be in Canada and the other in New York state. This made it easy to smuggle in small articles, but at the same time the customs officers had to watch these stores closely or lose their jobs.

"I worked a better scheme than that. When I was 16 years old my father, whose farm was in the neighborhood, gave me a fast mare. She was very fast for those days, though she wouldn't be worth talking about now. I built a light two-wheeled gig for her, and I defied every officer along the line to catch me. They all knew that I was smuggling, but none of them could get the proof. My method was simple. I would leave home about dusk in my gig and drive leisurely across the line to a little stone hotel, where I received my liquor. The place was known to be a depot for smugglers, and suspicion was always directed toward any man who frequented it. The proprietor was a French-Canadian and as shifty as an Indian. On the ground floor of his house was a dingy dining-room and opening into it a very respectable barroom for Lower Canada. The bar itself was of mahogany, and back of it stood an imposing array of ale kegs. The proprietor's name was Dumas, and his imagination was as fertile as that of his illustrious namesake. It pleased him to fool the customs officers, and he did it in many different ways. Dumas kept the liquors in long, oval-shaped kegs in his cellar. There was no reason why he shouldn't have as big a stock on hand as he chose, and whenever inquisitive customs officers came over the line in spying expeditions Dumas was ready to take them into his cellar and exhibit his stock. Not until five years after I had left the smuggling business did the officers discover that one big cask in Dumas' cellar was simply a blind that concealed the entrance to a tunnel that ran to the barn 30 or 40 feet back from the house.

"That was the keynote of the smuggling scheme. Time and again I have sat in Dumas' barroom drinking ale with fellows whom I knew to be spotters sent to keep tab on me, while Dumas' man, Madore, has softly rolled my keg of liquor through the tunnel and into the barn. My gig was fitted up with three heavy straps, so arranged that a keg could be held by them close up under the seat. By slipping the straps clear to one side I could easily drop the keg if I were closely pressed. When everything had been arranged Madore would come into the barroom whistling. That was my cue to order my horse hitched up. When that was done I would saunter out to the barn, get into my gig and drive out by a back road. Once started I knew that no customs officer could catch me. The customs spotters who knew that Dumas kept his liquors in his cellar, and who had watched me all the time and had seen nothing taken from the cellar, concluded that I had been bluffed out. Time and again I worked that game and many a long dark ride I had taken to land my stuff safely. If the officers decided to guard a certain road I had good friends who would tip me off, and sometimes I have been forced to drive ten or fifteen miles out of my way to evade them. One night when two of them got after me and my horse was tired out, I saw that I was bound to be overhauled. I drove into the ditch, slipped my straps and dropped the keg, and then I jogged along waiting to be overtaken. On came the two officers with their horse blowing heavily.

"'Halt, now,' shouted one of them, 'or we will shoot. We've got you this time.'

"'What do you mean?' I answered, stopping my horse.

"The officers drew up alongside, examined my gig and pockets, and then the spokesman said:

"'That's all right. You can go ahead. We were just fooling.'

"I told them that they could go ahead and I would follow when I got good and ready. Off they drove swearing at themselves and at me, and as soon as they were out of hearing I drove back, picked up my keg and lapded it safely.

"The government knew well enough that there was smuggling going on up here, and they sent along a special agent to spy it out. He was a smooth one, and he nearly got me. This fellow—his name was Dart—went direct to Dumas' place and said that he had got into a little trouble in the states, and he wanted Dumas to take care of him until it blew over. That flattered Dumas' pride, and the old man took him in and made much of him. Dart and Dumas became great chums. They went duck hunting together, they fished and drank together. As soon as I saw Dart I suspected him, and he wasn't slow in guessing what brought me to see Dumas so regularly. Dart tried to pump me by being hail fellow and by cursing the customs officers. I was only a boy, but I wasn't so easily caught as all that. I defended the customs men and condemned smuggling. Dart just winked his left eye in a knowing sort of way. Fortunately, as it turned out, Dumas didn't give away his tunnel. He admitted to Dart that his place was a headquarters for smugglers, but he didn't commit himself any further.

"I had made three successful trips while Dart was staying with Dumas, and I guess that my success had made me a bit careless. My fourth trip was the last smuggling expedition that I ever engaged in, and it came so near being my finish in all ways that it thoroughly frightened me. It was a cold, nasty night in October, and I reached Dumas' place about eight o'clock. Dart was sitting in the barroom, and I joined him. We drank more than the usual quantity of ale, and when Madore came in whistling to indicate that my keg was strapped on the gig I said:

"'Well, Dart, I'm going just as soon as Madore can hitch up.'

"'I think I'll take a little horseback ride myself,' he answered, 'and see if I can't clear my head of this ale.'

"This disturbed me, for I couldn't say anything for fear he might get on to the right track and suspect my gig. I have since thought that Dart suspected that I picked up my goods somewhere along the road, and he expected to detect me in the act. I hurried out to the barn and drove out just as Dart came out of the barroom to get his horse saddled.

"Three miles down the road and just after I had crossed the line I heard a horse galloping behind me. I knew it was Dart, and that he would overhaul me unless I could reach a fork a mile ahead and confuse him as to which road I had taken. I whipped up my mare and we flew. As I looked over her head into the darkness I saw a light that was evidently a lantern just about where the forks of the road were. Dart had cornered me. I knew it. As soon as I saw that lantern I knew that revenue officers were with it. I couldn't slip my keg because the straps were tangled up. In an instant I had made up my mind what to do. There was a fairly level field on my left with no fence on the road. Without stopping my mare's speed I turned into it. My gig bumped clean off the ground. It was rough riding, but I realized that it was my only chance. The noise that I made going across that field warned Dart and the other officers what had happened, and they yelled to me to stop. I didn't, and then followed a dozen or more shots from their revolvers. The balls whistled over my head. I don't know how I got to the woods. I found a score of old wood roads, and selecting one of them, I walked my horse in and waited. I heard those fellows beating the bush around me for two hours. I had slipped the keg out and concealed it, but I didn't want to be captured, even though they had no evidence against me. The officers gave it up, and I drove home at daylight minus the keg. My mare was used up, and a friend of mine tipped me off that the game was up. Dart was a special agent, and he was going to dog me until he got evidence enough to arrest me. I thought it all over, and I concluded that if I stayed so near the Canadian line the temptation to smuggle a bit would be so strong that I should weaken, and probably end by being captured. I had saved a snug little sum, and with it I went to New York. I have lived there since, and I am heartily ashamed of my early smuggling.

"Dart is connected with the secret service, and a few years ago I met him in the Hoffman house in New York. Dumas' place had been closed, and Dart, after we had a drink together in remembrance of Dumas' old ale, said:

"'Were you smugglin or not the night we chased you into the fields?'

"'That question is outlawed,' I answered, 'and you didn't catch me. Let's talk about something else.'

"Coming over this railroad, where I once drove with my smuggled goods, has brought it all back to me. That's all."—N. Y. Sun.

An Invaluable Assistant.

"I must say," remarked Stayathome, "that I cannot understand why you took your wife with you to the Klondike. I should have thought that in a place like that a woman would be simply in the way."

"Not on your life!" said the miner who had just returned with $100,000. "In fact, it was through her that I made my pile in such a short time."

"How so?"

"Why, in this way: Whenever I discovered a pooket, I'd point it out to Maria, and in less than five minutes she'd have extracted every grain of gold that it contained."—N. Y. Journal.

THE VOICES OF THE PAST.

From the vale of the past, thro' the mist of years,
Voices of the long ago
Come dreamily, soothingly to my ears,
As the sun of my life sinks low.

In the whispering breeze, in the pattering rain,
As I sit by the fireside glow,
I hear in faint echoes the tones again
Of the friends I used to know.

When around the eaves the storm-wind howls,
I am, as of yore, at school,
And hear with trembling the master's growls,
As he glares from his three-legged stool.

All in fancy, forsooth, when the south wind sighs,
As the evening shadows grow,
I hear once more a fair maiden's replies
In the twilight long ago.

And the merry brook, as it softly purls
Its song in the summer air,
Calls up from the past the boys and girls
At play in the meadows fair.

As I list to these low, sweet voices of yore,
What joy awakes in my heart!
For their music delights and charms me far more
Than the best musician's art.

THE COBBLER'S STORY.

By Lawrence Bertram.

TOM DEVINE, the cobbler, pushed up his spectacles and gave me a whimsical glance.

"It's cur'us," he remarked, "it's cur'us what a difference it makes to a man's fam'ly how he is put out of the world! Hang him, and his folks feel disgraced forever; cut off his head with a guillotine, and—"

The old man made a flourish with his head, as though the matter were one for serious congratulation.

"Leastways," he added, returning to his mending again, "that's the way some folks think. Lord! how set up M. Lafitte was about it, to be sure, and all on account of an ancestor of his who happened to lose his head on the scaffold with Louis XVI!

"Who was M. Lafitte? Well, he was a Frenchman who once took lodgin's on the upper floor of this house, an old ramshackle affair now, but once a mansion, as you can see, and as fashionable a street as there was in London."

"So I have heard," I assented.

"The Frenchman," he continued, "was a man somewhere about 60 years of age, tall and stiff in his bearing; and though his clothes were worn and shabby-lookin', his linen, I noticed, was neat and tidy, and as white as snow."

"'Bloomsbury,' said he, when I had showed him the room—I'm the caretaker of the building, you see, sir—'ees a—a respectable quataire of the city, ees it not so, Meester Concierge?'

"'More than respectable, mossoo,' said I, a trifle tartly. 'It was once a fashionable part of London.'

"He sighed as he looked about the room.

"'Eet will do, Meester Concierge'—he would always call me that, sir, though I told him time and again it wasn't my name—'eet will do for the praisant,' with a flourish of his white hand, as though the next month would find him in Park Lane; and so he engaged the room, and paid for it in advance.

"In a few hours they moved in—him, his sick wife, his daughter, Mlle. Justine, and Polly, as cunning a parrot as I ever see.

"Purty? Well, I don't know. For a foreigner ma'm'selle might hev been called purty. She was a slight little thing, with great big eyes, and long eyelashes throwing deep shadders into 'em like grasses into a brook."

He cleared his throat and spread his hands, as though the matter of looks was of no consequence.

"But, Lord!" he exclaimed with sudden animation, "how she could sing! Gay songs, too, in French and Eyetalian, with sometimes an English ballad or so. Why, sir," giving the boot a tremendous whack, "there was a fortin' in her voice, a fortin' as big as Patti's; and only for the fact of that precious ancestor of hers a-losin' of his head on the scaffold with Louis XVI. she'd a made it, too, as easy as—that!" giving the boot another whack.

"But the mossoo! How stiff he did draw himself up, to be sure, at the very mention of it.

"Understand me," the cobbler explained, "it wasn't out of any officious meddlecomeness that I first suggested the thing to him. No; it wasn't till he was behindhand in his rent, and his poor eyes—he was a diamond cutter, you see, sir, and sat all day with his eye glued to a glass—was giving out, that I thought of some way in which ma'm'selle could help him better than by embroidering.

"The day the diamond got lost, my, how they did go on! I thought the house was a-fire; and when I run up to see, there was the old lady 'moaning, and ma'm'selle and mossoo a-turnin' everything topsy-turvy in the room.

"'What diamond?' says I, wonderin' if they all had gone crazy, and then between the old lady and her husband, I found that she had been more ailing than usual that day, and in one of his journeys from his bench to the bed, a-waitin' on her, he had lost the diamond he was cuttin', an extry large and fine one.

"High and low we searched for it in every crack and corner. The bedding, the old rug, everything was shook out.

"'Twas no use, though, and finally we give it up; and what was worse, of course the poor gentleman had to make it up. It was tough; I can tell you, for at the best of times they only about made ends meet.

"I thought of ma'm'selle's voice, rare enough to bring a guinea for every note, but thanks to that aristocrat whose head had tumbled on the same plank with Louis XVI.'s, I daren't mention it.

"But," with a flourish of his hammer, "ma'm'selle's voice did make their fortin', sir, after all, though in a way you'd little think.

"The days were getting short now," he continued, "and what with the prospect of winter before 'em, and the diamond not half paid for, and the old lady moanin' and cryin' to go back to Paree, ma'm'selle began to lose heart. 'Twas seldom she sung a note now, but one day, just as the sun was about to set, her voice came floating down to me in a song I shall never forget.

"'Madre d'amor! Odi tu—il mio dolor!'".

"'Schubert's Prayer to the Virgin,'" I said, smiling a little as the old man stumbled through the words.

"The same," he assented, "so ma'm'selle told me afterward, when she writ down the words for me. Ah, sir, her voice brought me to my knees; leastways," he corrected, "that's the way I felt like doing.

"'Madre d'amor! Odi tu—il moi dolor!'

"Ma'm'selle's voice broke at the end, as though she was sobbing, and a young man who had stopped on the pavement to listen, reverently took off his hat.

"'Heavenly!' I heard him say; then catching sight of me through the window, he put it on again and entered the shop.

"There was no beating about the bush with that young man, and, somehow, I liked him for it.

"'Who is the singer?' he asked at once.

"'Little French girl,' says I, 'named Mlle. Justine.'

"'Justine what?'

"'Lafitte.'

"'Lafitte,' he repeated, as though the name seemed familiar to him somehow. 'How old is she?'

"'About 17,' says I, making a rough guess.

"The front door clanged to just at that minute, and a light footstep was heard.

"I peeped out.

"'There she is now,' says I, 'Mlle. Justine herself.'

"Like a shot he was out of the shop, but in a few minutes returned.

"'Exquisite,' he said, his voice trembling a little. 'Her face is as exquisite as her voice.'

"Well, to make a long story short," broke off the cobbler, "that young man had fallen desperately in love with ma'm'selle, but how to make her acquaintance was a problem that was troubling him.

"'Ef you was only poor, now,' says I, 'you might get a chance, but—'

"The young man did not wait for me to finish.

"'I'll come to-morrow in my plainest suit of clothes,' said he. 'Thank you, Mr. Devine, for solving the riddle. You can send me up to do a little repairing, you know—a friend of yours, a steady fellow, looking for a job, and so forth.'

"Well, the plan worked, and bless me, sir, if Edward Pendleton, rich and well connected, didn't spend about half his time looking at ma'm'selle, and talking to the old man.

"And so the days passed on; ma'm'selle in spite of her shabby dress and skimpy fare, growing rosier and prettier every day.

"It was the night before Christmas, and mossoo left his bench and sat silently down by Ned.

"Presently mossoo's thin white hand moved toward the pocket of his worsted jacket; and then, as the lapel of a pocket flew up, Ned caught a gleam of something which brought him to his feet with a cry.

"'What is it?' cried mossoo, scared out of his senses. 'My poor Ned, what hast thou?'

"'A diamond!' shouted Ned, grasping the old worsted jacket, and tearing a piece of it away. 'See, see, the jewel has been hidden within the lining of your jacket all this time.'

"'Twas ze will of God,' said the old Frenchman, a little later. 'Ah! sometimes my heart was like to burst. To die thus—to leave my wife, my little Justine. Who would care for them?'

"'I, sir,' said the young man, 'your son.'

"A little warm hand at that moment crept into his own.

"'Hast heard, dost know?' said the old man.

"'I know,' she answered, soft like, a happy smile lighting up her face."

"Well," I prompted, as he sat silent for awhile, "there is something more to tell."

"Well. Mossoo lit the lamp, and Ned was about to ask him for his daughter, when the old lady's voice was heard from the corner.

"'And now,' says she, 'we'll give it all up and go back to France.'

"'We will, ma mie,' said mossoo, kneeling by her bedside. 'We will no longer strive for ze eempossible. Ze documents—'

"'Documents?' said Ned.

"'I think I have told you before,' said mossoo, 'of ze Marquis de Lafitte, who was martyred upon ze scaffold with—'

"'Louis XVI,' said Ned, who had heard it 50 times. 'Yes, sir, I think you have.'

"'But that which I have not told you,' went on mossoo, 'is that one of his remaining family fled to America, and became the proprietor of a large estate. He died unmarried. The property is in alien hands. I thought—I had hoped—'

"'Lafitte,' said Ned—'Lafitte! Singular that it never occurred to me before!' And then he told the family how and why he had deceived 'em, confessing himself to be Edward Pendleton, the junior partner of the great law firm of Pendleton & Pendleton, who for some time had been looking for the heirs to the Lafitte estate, but up to the present had found no clew.

"And soon after that I lost my lodgers; but bless you, sir, they don't forget me. Mr. Pendleton, he always will think that but for me he would never have got acquainted with ma'm'selle."—Carter's Monthly, Chicago.

TOO MUCH WORK

for a Healthy Existence.—That's Why the Kidneys so often Fail.

Nature has provided a certain amount of work for every organ of the human body; overtax them and disease eventually follows. There is not one portion of our organism that is so overworked as the kidneys; on them is placed the important function of filtering the blood of the impurities which naturally form in the regular action of life and digestion. The kidneys are consequently termed the sewerage of the system; clog up this sewer, and the blood becomes tainted with poisonous uric acid, which brings on disease in many forms. The back is the first to show this stoppage. From there comes the warning note; it should be heeded, and the kidneys receive prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills will right the action of the kidneys quickly, relieve the back of pains and aches, and cure all troubles of kidneys and bladder. Read the following:

Mr. Wm. Nelson is a well-known business man of Kalamazoo, he resides at 832 Portage Street, and his business is that of a grain buyer. He says:

"For five years I have suffered from an inability to urinate, which resulted from what was said to be a stoppage of the bladder. During these years I have taken mineral and electric baths and used other means in expectancy of getting better, but they all proved unavailing. Some months ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which I had heard highly recommended, and I can now say that the flattering reports were not greater than they deserved. I got better right along, and I am free from any trouble now. I feel better than I have done for three years past. If Doan's Kidney Pills were well known all over they would do an immense amount of good."

THE CORCORAN ART GALLERY.

As Read by Mrs. J. F. Hicks at the American Art Day Meeting of the Monday Club.

Many of our great cities have been recipients of magnificant gifts of money and art treasures for the establishment and maintaining of Art Galleries.

They are not only a source of pleasure and profit to that city where its given, but to the whole public. In these days of travel, many people all over the country are instructed and have their artistic tastes gratified by these generous gifts.

The Corcoran Art Gallery, including grounds, building, its contents, a private collection of paintings and statuary, and endowment fund, was the gift of Mr. Wm. Wilson Corcoran to the city of Washington and the great public, May 10, 1869. It was designed for the encouragement of painting, sculpture, and the fine arts generally, with the condition that it should be opened to visitors without any pecuniary charge whatever, at least two days in the week, and authority to charge for admission at other times, a moderate and reasonable fee, the proceeds to be used in the current expenses of the institution.

It was chartered by an act of congress, May 24, 1870. By that act the building and its contents were declared exempt from all taxation.

In 1874, the picture galleries, halls of sculpture and of bronzes, were thrown open to the public.

After the collection of eighteen years, it was found that their treasures were more than the space for them, and in June 1892, the new gallery was commenced and completed in January 1897. It is about three times the size of the old gallery building. The basement is of pink granite, the main structure of white Georgian marble, and the interior stone work is of Indiana limestone. It is vastly superior to the old gallery in every way. The Art school accomodations are far more spacious and equipped in the most perfect manner. The building has a magnificent lecture hall, capable of seating three hundred persons, to be used for art lectures, exhibitions, etc. The whole center of the building is occupied by two enormous halls, one on the first and one on the second floor, both of which are adorned with forty magnificently fluted column's of Indiana lime stone. The first floor is surrounded by galleries, which are used for the exhibition of statuary, casts and bronzes, and the second floor by well lighted galleries for the exhibition of paintings.

On first entering its spacious hall, I am sure the "Monday Club" would recognize at once many of its subjects of study during the past few years, particularly the years we spent with Greek and Roman art, for you can find yourself at once in the midst of the works of Phidias, Michael Angelo and many other of our old friends. We find the western and eastern pediments of the Parthenon and Fortyfive Tablets, 180 feet in length, forming the frieze of the Parthenon. Standing near is Olympus, commonly called Theseus, Venus of Melos, Discobolos, Venus de Medici, Minerva, group of Taocoon and his sons, Apollo, the lizard killer, by Praxiteles. Daughter of Niobe, the dying Gladiator, Apollo Belvedere, bust of Trajan, the Wrestler, Hermes with the infant Deonysos. Waldstein says this is the only Greek statue in existence of which we can say without hesitation, that it comes direct from the hand of the great master Praxiteles. In the casts of the Rennaissance, we find the casts from the west bronze gate of the Babtistery of Florence, the colossal bust of David by Michael Angelo, also his prisoners, the original marble in the Louvre. The casts from modern sculptors as well as all others, are fine, but too numerous to mention here.

Of the marbles, I will mention a fine bust of Mr. Corcoran, by Ulric Dunbar, of London, Ont., and the last days of Napoleon by Vela, a native of Switzerland. It is a life size seated statue of the great, but fallen general, and tells the story so plainly that his days are nearly over. It stands at the entrance of the second or upper hall, at the head of the grand stair case.

Prominent as the work of Canova, is a colossal head of Napoleon I., a replica by Canova of his head of the colossel statue of Napoleon I., modeled from the emperor at Paris.

Of our American sculptures, which should have a prominent place to day, I will name a bust of Henry Clay by Joel F. Hart, and the beautiful Greek slave by Hiram Powers and three busts by him. Our country may well be proud of his work and his name. Three works of Wm. H. Rinehart are much admired. To me his "Sleeping Children," were touchingly beautiful.

Another artist, Thomas Crawford, of New York, completes the list of American sculptors. His work is "The Peri at the Gates of Paradise," a statue embodied the poem, "Lalla Rookh," by Thomas Moore.

The halls of bronzes, Cloisonne, specimens of the 16th century rich and rare, Parcelaina, glass, electrotype, reproductions of which there is so much, I must pass by. Already I have said enough, but must speak in a general way at least, of the paintings in the gallery.

One is impressed at once in going through the different galleries of the prominence that is given to our American artists, and the beautiful work we find among them. In one room that is almost entirely given to the portraits of the presidents of the United States, sixteen are by George P. A. Healy, of Boston, born July 15, 1808 and died in Chicago, June 24, 1895. A picture of Martha Washington by him, hangs by her illustrious husband, and there are seven other portraits in the gallery by him. The other portraits of the presidents are done by E. F. Andrews, Wm. T. Mathews, Jerome Uhl and Henry Ulke, all Americans but the latter, who is a German, and the painter of Mr. Grant's portrait.

Rembranth Peal has two prominent portraits, but his most noted work is a portrait of Washington, life sized, purchased by the U. S. Senate in 1832, and hangs in the President's room at the Capitol. I have read some severe criticisms for their keeping it in so obscure a place, only a chosen few can ever see it.

We find the works of our well known American artists, Church, Thomas Cole, Harrison, Geo. Inniss, Gifford Grayson's. Daniel Huntington, Pres. of the National Academy, of Design, New York, from 1862 until 1889, has a large picture, (Mercy's Dream,) that has a prominent place in the grand hall on second floor, near a picture of Raphiel Mengs, a Bohemian artist, the "Adoration of the Shepards." The light of this picture seems to come from the Christ child.

An Autumn scene on the Hudson, by Thomas Daughty, fills one with delight. Durand Eastmnn, Richard, Morris Brooke, all hold a deserved place with the artists of the old world.

Our great American actor, Joe Jefferson, is also an artist of much ability. A picture of his, "Forest and Stream," presented by himself to the gallery, is of fine merit.

Of the French and German artists there are many, and their works worthy of more mention than I can give. The sweet sad face of Charlotte Corday, looking through the bars of her prison window, by Charles Muller, will ever remain in my mind.

Hernner's face of Joan of Arc, The Foresters Home, by Ludwig Knaus, an interior with such a wonderful effect of light from an open fire. Wood Gatherers, by Carot, Lost Dogs by Otto Von Thoren; one can almost hear the wail of their misery. The Helping Hand, by Emile Renouf, were pictures that impressed me. Bierstadt's Mt. Corcoran, Southern Siera Nevada, the peak rising 14,000 feet, is a grand picture, as is also one by Carl Becker, of Berlin; "Pope Julius II. with Raphael M. Angelo, Vittoria Colonna and Bramante, viewing the exhumed statue of the Apollo Belvedere.

A fine picture of Pope Leo XIII, that was at the World's Fair, now has a place in this gallery.

There are no works of the old masters, only one, "Virgin and Child," attributed to Murillo and "Christ bound" attributed to Van Dyck.

I have spoken of some of the pictures that were particularly pleasing to me, others may have equal or more attraction to others I only judge a picture by the pleasure it gives me.

There were 119 suits brought for divorce in this county last year, of which 44 were granted, and 72 are still pending. Chicago will have to hustle to hold her reputation.

Geo. J. Nisley, the Saline incubator man, went out to split kindlings the other day and a stick flew up and banged him in the eye, bruising the eye ball and nearly destroying the sight. Probably the women will split the kindling hereafter.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

Rev. W. J. Balmer went to Tecumseh Thursday to assist in the funeral service of the father of Rev. Walter Burnett, of Weston. The elder Burnett was a superannuate of the Detroit conference and was one of the early circuit riders through this section.—Morenci Observer.

The suit, which was to have been tried on Tuesday, and which was brought by W. W. McKibbon against Noah Brown, was withdrawn by the plaintiff. As near as the story can be told out of court, Mr. Brown was driving from the M. E. church sheds, as McKibbon was backing his horse, and there was a collision. The damage was slight, but for several days before the time of the trial it seemed as if there would be a clash between church and state which might compel Noah to fly to the ark for refuge.—Hudson Post.

A printer over in Branch county, in "making up" his paper, recently got a wedding notice and an advertisement mixed; and the following rather startling announcement was the result: "John Wilbur and Hanuah Mapes were united in the holy bonds of saeurkraut, which will be sold by the quart or barrel. Mr. Wilbur is the esteemed codfish at ten cents; while the bride has nice pigs' feet for display." The error is about as startling as one made by a Gazette compositor a few years ago. An obituary notice was headed "From Dust to Dust," and the intelligent typo set it up "From Durt to Durt." It was "set up" just before going to press and was not noticed until after the entire edition had been printed. Another very unfortunate mistake occurred a few weeks later when the stereotyped headings "Married" and "Died" were transposed, and the reader confronted with something like the following: "Married—of heart disease, in Rollin, last Tuesday, Mr. Jno. Wolfe. The untimely taking away of the young man is a serious loss to his parents, who are very old and dependent upon him for support." The other notice was equally as ridiculous and read: Died—Stone-Gleason, at the residence of the bride's mother, on Grove street, Wednesday evening. After the ceremony the guests were regailed with a sumptuous banquet."—Hudson Gazette.

SURGEON'S DILEMMA.

A Lewiston physician tells a story about a surgical operation and an electric light, says the Journal of that city.

"It was 12 o'clock at night," says he, "when I heard a thunderous knocking at my door, and going to it I found a man walking up and down the steps in pain. He had an abscess under his left arm and was suffering intensely. It needed lancing, and we proceeded to do it. I got my instruments ready, placed the man in a chair under the electric light and made an incision. The armpit is a very dangerous place, as many large and small arteries gather there. I had just time to see that I had lanced it, and had also severed a good-sized blood vessel, when the electric light went out. I had no kerosene lamp or gaslight in the room. I could hear the blood falling in a little pool on the floor, and my patient was terribly excited. I was scared. I seized a towel, made a wad of it, and, chucking it under the man's arm, told him to hold it down at his side. Then I ran to the telephone and called up the power station. 'It'll be an hour before we can get the light on again. A belt has broken,' they said. 'But I have just cut a man and he is bleeding to death in the dark here.' 'Sorry, but I can't help it,' came the answer. I then remembered a kerosene stove, and, lighting this, I caught up the blood vessel with thread and dressed the wound by its failing light. It was the most startling and precarious operation I ever performed."

NAVAL COURT OF INQUIRY.

Searching Investigation of Cause of the Disaster to the War Ship Maine to Be Made.

STATEMENT FROM PRESIDENT M'KINLEY.

Secretary Long Denies Sensational Reports—Capt. Sigsbee Inspects the Wreck—The Loss of Life—Divers Find the Magazine Keys — Latest News from the Scene.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Shortly after midnight President McKinley decided to make the following statement regarding the Maine, which was given by his secretary: "Based upon information now in his possession, the president believes that the Maine was blown up as the result of an accident, and he expects the court of inquiry will develop that fact. If it is found that the disaster was not an accident, prompt and decisive steps will be taken in the premises. The finding of the naval court will develop the cause, and until that is submitted nothing will be done."

Most Searching Investigation.

Admiral Sicard's board has ample authority to make the most searching investigation into the causes of the disaster. The Fern and Mangrove, reported arrived at Havana Wednesday evening, are provided with diving apparatus, and as every warship's company includes at least several expert divers there will be no lack of men to make the necessary search. These men can be depended upon to report the exact facts.

Stories Are Denied.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Owing to the large number of rumors of a warlike tendency which poured in upon the department officials Friday Secretary of the Navy Long issued a statement in which he positively asserted that no information had been received by the government that added anything to the knowledge of the disaster to the Maine beyond that contained in Capt. Sigsbee's first dispatch. The secretary continued:

"You may say absolutely that there has been no secret cabinet meeting; that nothing has taken place in cabinet that the public have not been informed about; that the whole policy of this department has been to give the public all the dispatches; that the department has no more knowledge on the subject of the cause of the disaster or even of the circumstances attending it than have the public, and that the report which was to the effect that Capt. Sigsbee had warned the department that the Maine was in danger from submarine mines or torpedoes is utterly without foundation, no such report ever having been received from him or anybody else."

The Wreck Inspected.

Cable advices from Sylvester Scovel at Havana state that Capt. Sigsbee has inspected the wreck of the Maine. All evidence seems to point to the fact that the magazines of the big war ship are still intact. It has been found that its gun cotton is unexploded, as is also its ten-inch ammunition. The explosion on the Maine evidently took place amidships on the port or left-hand side of the vessel.

Results of the Disaster.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The navy department has compiled a summary showing the total results of the Maine disaster, from all available official information up to date, which shows that 246 men and two officers were lost. Up to this time 135 bodies have been recovered.

Divers in the Wreck.

Havana, Feb. 21.—The American divers began work yesterday. Early in the morning they descended into the Maine, but they were not able to make more than three trips. From the stateroom of Capt. Sigsbee they brought a drawer which contained his official correspondence, secret telegraphic and letter code of the American navy, official accounts and important documents.

To the great relief of the captain they brought up the keys of all the powder magazines which, as previously cabled, the captain declared had been duly delivered to him at eight o'clock on the night of the explosion, two hours before the catastrophe occurred. The fact is of very great importance to show that there was no carelessness on the part of captain and crew.

Unfriendly Feeling in Havana.

Havana, Feb. 21.—The Bache the United States survey steamer, with a plethora of diving appliances and submarine electric lights, is here, and the secret that is hidden under the bay will soon be made clear.

Latest About the Maine.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—From Sunday night's dispatches the following condensation regarding the Maine disaster is made:

Spain has been officially notified that the United States will conduct the inquiry independently.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new torpedo boats.

Commander Barnett, of the navy, says after a scrutiny of the Maine wreck that he believes the ship was blown up from the outside.

Lieut. Catlin throws light on the catastrophe. He says there were two distinct explosions.

Spaniards are exultant over the Maine disaster. In private circles there is little or no effort to conceal the satisfaction which is felt.

Americans in Havana are convinced that the Maine was blown up purposely by means of a submarine mine.

INVESTIGATION BEGUN.

Board of Inquiry Into the Maine Disaster Taking Testimony.

Havana, Feb. 22.— The board of inquiry was busy yesterday taking evidence of the Maine disaster. The evidence was kept secret and will be held so until it is all in, as the rules of the board require. Capt. Sigsbee was the first witness. His testimony was confined to his own experience. In the afternoon members of the court made a personal investigation of so much of the Maine as shows above the water.

Spain has no official part in the investigation, but its representatives were present by invitation. The divers were at work all day, but they are not permitted to tell outside the court what they have learned nor to communicate with one another They are under the immediate charge of Charles Morgan, gunner of the cruiser New York.

Another Day of Inquiry.

Havana, Feb. 23.—The court of inquiry opened at half-past ten and took a recess at 12:30. Lieut. G. F. W. Holman, navigator and ordnance officer of the Maine, was examined at the morning session. The court met for the afternoon session at half-past one, and Lieutenant Commander R. Wainwright, executive officer of the Maine, was called to the witness stand. Lieutenant Commander Wainwright has been in immediate charge of the wreck since the explosion.

UNITED STATES CRUISER MAINE.

Warned by Gen. Lee.

Havana, Feb. 23.—Americans in Havana have been quietly notified by Consul-General Lee that it might be well for them to send their families to a place of safety. These precautions were taken in view of the fact that there is strong suspicion that the volunteers, anti-American and anti-autonomy, have been inspired to make trouble in case the Maine inquiry proves that the catastrophe was due to design.

KILLED BY COWARDS.

A Band of Assassins Murder a Postmaster and His Child.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 23.—A special from Columbia, S. C., to the Constitution says: The most revolting crime ever perpetrated by white men in South Carolina was committed at Lake City, Williamsburg county, at one o'clock Tuesday morning when Postmaster Baker, a negro, and his family were burned out of their home, the postmaster and a babe in arms killed, his wife and three daughters shot and maimed for life. Baker was appointed postmaster three months ago. Lake City is a town of 500 inhabitants and the negro population in the vicinity is large. There was a protest at Baker's appointment, but it was not a very vigorous one. Three months ago as the postmaster was leaving the office at night in company with several colored men he was fired on from ambush, but it was not known that the would-be assassin was prompted by other than personal malice. Since that Baker moved his family into a house on the outskirts of the town, where he also established the post office.

Foes of Suffrage Organize.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23.—At a meeting here Tuesday 35 prominent women of this city formed the Iowa Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. The association will be state wide and is formed to work against the passage of a woman-suffrage amendment in Iowa.

Building Big Gun Carriages.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 23.—Work on the big government contract is now under rapid headway at the Otis steel works. Five enormous gun carriages are being constructed there. They are for 13-inch guns, to be used on United States battle ships.

DEATH OF MISS WILLARD.

President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Passes Away in New York.

SHE HAD BEEN ILL FOR A LONG TIME.

For Years Frances E. Willard Was the Recognized Leader in Temperance Work—Friends Surround Her Bedside at the Last—Brief Sketch of Her Noble Career.

New York, Feb. 18.—Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, died shortly after midnight this morning, at the Hotel Empire, this city. At the bedside of Miss Willard at the time of her death were her niece, Mrs. W. W. Baldwin; Mrs. L. M. M. Stevens, vice president of the W. C. T. U.; Miss Anna M. Gordon, Miss Willard's secretary, and Dr. Alfred K. Hill. Miss Willard had been ill for about three weeks. Dr. Hill made the following statement:

"Miss Willard had suffered some years with profound anemia, and on several occasions had been given up to die. Last summer she seemed to take on a new lease of life and gained in weight and strength so that she went through her convention work at Toronto and Buffalo, which was most arduous, and came out much better than was expected, but on her arrival, five weeks ago, she was much prostrated and readily took the grippe, which attacked the stomach, liver, intestines, and later the nervous system. The disease progressed favorably, and in many respects she had greatly improved when the fatal issue came and overwhelmed the nerve centers. There was no cancerous degradation of any organ, as has been stated."

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

Brief Biographical Sketch.

"Frances Elizabeth Willard was born in Churchville, N. Y., September 28, 1839. She was graduated at Northwestern Female college, Evanston, Ill., in 1859, became professor of natural science there in 1862, and was principal of Genesee Wesleyan seminary in 1866-67. The following two years she spent in foreign travel, giving a part of the time to study in Paris and contributing to periodicals. In 1871-74 she was professor of aesthetics in Northwestern university and dean of the Woman's college, where she developed her system of self government, which had been adopted by other educators. Miss Willard left her profession in 1874 to identify herself with the Woman's Christian Temperance union, serving as corresponding secretary of the national organization till 1879, and since that date as president. As secretary she organized the home protection movement and sent an appeal from nearly 200,000 persons to the legislature of Illinois, asking for the temperance ballot for women. On the death of her brother, Oliver A. Willard, in 1879, she succeeded him as editor of the Chicago Evening Post. In 1880 she accepted the leadership of the White Cross movement in her own unions, which had obtained through her influence enactments in 12 states for the protection of women. In 1888 she was made president of the American branch of the International Council of Women and of the World's Christian Temperance Union, which she had founded five years before, and she was repeatedly reelected. Besides many pamphlets and contributions to magazines and the press, Miss Willard has published several volumes relating to temperance and other reforms."

Paid the Last Tribute.

New York, Feb. 21.—The funeral service over the remains of Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the World's and National Woman's Christian Temperance union, took place in the Broadway tabernacle yesterday. The final services will be held at Evanston, Ill., on Thursday.

Indiana Populists.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 23.—The populists in convention here yesterday nominated a state ticket headed by H. H. Morrison, of Greencastle, for secretary of state, and adopted resolutions against fusion and government by injunction, and for free silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, female suffrage, prohibition and the abolition of the issue of money to national banks.

Clearing House Exchanges.

New York, Feb. 19.—The exchanges at the leading clearing houses in the United States during the week ended yesterday aggregated $1,356,703,203, against $1,434,975,984 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week of 1897 was 52.3.

Struck by Lightning.

Newark, O., Feb. 22.—During Sunday's storm lightning struck a tree near Z. McKnight's house near Hanover, breaking every window. McKnight and wife were both knocked down.

Tate & Stoner shipped 7 decks of stock last week and Wednesday Richmond, Gadd & Hogan made a large shipment of sheep and hogs.

The banquet served Tuesdayevening by the members of the Eastern Star to those outside, who are eligible to membership, was an elegant affair.

Chas. Embler, who thought himself improving from rheumatism, had a more severe attack Tuesday morning and is a great sufferer in consequence.

The law suit over some onions between Jno. Keusler, of Manchester, and Geo. Reattoire, of Tecumseh, which came off here Wednesday, drew quite a number from each place.

Mrs. D. Tucker, of New York City, and Mrs. John Sterling, of Buffalo, N. Y., after a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Smith, left Saturday to visit friends at other points before returning home.

Miss Carrie Hand, of Tecumseh, whose death occurred in Detroit Saturday night, had many friends here whose deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved family, who are thus bereft of a dutiful daughter and loving sister.

Next Monday evening, the Supreme Commander of the Columbian League, W. Waner Miller, of Detroit, will visit Pinzon Lodge No. 15. After degree work, an address will be given by Mr. Miller, followed by a banquet. A full attendance of the members is desired.

Mrs. T. C. Adam is having a serious attack of the grip.

Wednesday evening, at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Blatchford, occurred the marriage of their daughter Mabel, to Mr. Chauncy Ogden. The ceremony was performed at 9 p. m. by Rev. E. M. Moore of the M. E. church. Only relatives and most intimate friends were present. The young couple will for a time make their home with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ogden.

Last Friday evening the last of the club parties for the season was held at the Town Hall. The music by the Jackson orchestra of Adrian, was fine, and over forty couples were present. Those from out of town were: Fred Freeman and Miss Fenn, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kies, Mr and Mrs. Fred Hall, and Miss Blanche Stark, of Manchester, Miss Emma Koernig, of Norvell and Miss Stella Palmer, of Jackson.

What is termed the "Kid Party" came off Monday night closed the season for dancing and it was a pretty finale. Forty-two couples participated. The music by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Embler and Miss Kittie Noone gave perfect satisfaction. The following were present from Tecumseh: The Misses Ida Hunt, Florence Marsh, Florence Jenkins, Minnie Grey, Metta McKinney, Mattie McClure, Lena and Clarence Witherell.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Embler was the scene of a very pretty though simple house wedding, Tuesday evening when Mr. Will Stevenson, of Tecumseh, and Miss Rose Lane (sister of Mrs Embler) in the presence of one hundred relatives and friends were married by Rev. E. M. Moore. At 9 o'clock the contracting parties unattended took their places to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Chas. Judge and were, after a brief ceremony, pronounced man and wife. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stevenson and Lafayette, parents and brother of the groom, Ed. Holdway and Florence Marsh, an uncle and cousin, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Harding, Mr and Mrs. Guy Belding, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Sisson, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Merritt, Sr., Willis Merritt, Jr., Harry Chilson, John Riley, and the Misses Mary Riley, Metta McKinney and Minnie and Maggie Glasgow of Tecumseh, and Jacob Raiser and sister Minnie, of Bridgewater.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Restores Health

UNCLE EZEKIEL OBEAR, assessor and tax collector, Beverly, Mass., who has passed the 80th life mile stone, says: "Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has done a great deal of good. I suffered for years from sleeplessness and nervous heart trouble. Would feel weary and used up in the morning, had no ambition and my work seemed a burden. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I purchased a bottle under protest as I had tried so many remedies unsuccessfully, I thought it no use. But it gave me restful sleep, a good appetite and restored me to energetic health. It is a grand good medicine, and I will gladly write anyone inquiring, full particulars of my satisfactory experience."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

STOMACH DISEASES.

Medical Science has Produced a Positive Cure at Last.

The increasing prevalence of dyspepsia has been a matter of the gravest concern to the medical profession, and for years leading scientists have been experimenting to produce a remedy. Constant efforts in this direction have led to the introduction of many preparations which affords only temporary relief to those suffering with stomach diseases. It remained for a chemist of many years experience, who resides in Marshall, Mich., to produce a preparation which has proven to be a positive cure for the disease in all of its manifold forms, and is known as Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. The firm of Drake & Rhodes, manufacturers, are putting in the hands of a limited number of druggists this first positive cure for dyspepsia that has ever been offered to the public. The importance of this discovery has created a great deal of comment in the medical world, and the leading medical and clinical journals are devoting more space to this discovery than that given to any medical achievement in recent years. If you are troubled with indigestion, sour stomach, acid fermentation, sleeplessness, or any form of nervous dyspepsia, call on John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich., and ask for Drake Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer, a combined method treatment. A valuable treatise on stomach and nerve troubles sent free by addressing the manufacturers. Read the following testimonial from Chas. H. Houghtaling, ex-druggist, of Quincy, Mich.:

To all whom it may concern:

Having been a druggist for thirty years, and a sufferer from dyspepsia and nerve troubles, I have tried many of the highly advertised preparations for this terrible disease, as well as treatment by physicians. Recently I was induced to try Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer and am proud to say that I have realized more benefit in the two weeks I have used it than anything I have heretofore taken.

Respectfully to the afflicted,

C. H. HOUGHTALING.

BLACK-TAILED GRUNTS IN LUCK.

How They Managed to Get Their Fill of Shrimps Daily.

The varieties of fishes at the Aquarium number more than the tanks there, so it is necessary to double up some of them, putting more than one variety in a tank. One of the tanks thus stocked contains three moonfish from Gravesend bay, and four black-tailed or blue-striped, grunts from the Bermudas, says the New York Sun.

One of the regular articles of food on the Aquarium bill of fare is shrimps; pretty much all fishes are fond of them. In summer, when shrimps are plentiful and easily obtained, they are fed more or less freely to all; in winter, when shrimps are scarce and difficult to obtain, they are fed only to such fishes as need them for their well being, or that must be pampered along to keep them. Of this last class are the moonfish; they must have shrimps, and shrimps are fed to them.

The moonfish are lively and quick, but the black-tailed grunts in the same tank are livelier and quicker still. The grunts, if they couldn't get anything better, would eat cut-up herring and pieces of clam, and do well on it; but they don't eat such coarse food when they can get shrimps, as they can here. At feeding time they snap up food intended for the moonfish as fast as the shrimps are put into the water, giving the moonfish next to no show at all.

Thus the black-tailed grunts are in great luck. They get their fill of shrimps daily, and not until they are satisfied do the moonfishes come in for their daily meal.

WASPS IN THE PULPIT.

Nest of the Fiery Insects Made in the Minister's Pocket.

A well-known Pittsburgh preacher tells an amusing incident of his early career, when he was serving a country church. The time was midsummer. One Sunday morning he was unable to find his conventional black frock, and at the last moment his wife persuaded him to wear an ordinary coat which had been lying on a porch for several days. A large family of wasps had taken shelter in one of the roomy pockets, but in his hurry to get to the pulpit the young minister did not have time to examine the contents of the coat.

When he arrived at the country chapel the congregation was waiting. The services had already commenced by singing. As the aspiring preacher walked up the aisle a peculiar buzz was heard coming from the minister's person. Entering the pulpit he began his sermon by reading a passage of Scripture. Then he started in on his sermon. He had not gone far with the discourse until he began to find something decidely wrong. It annoyed him. Soon the sprightly wasps began to crawl out of their nest and flew about the minister's head. He stood the ordeal as long as he could with any degree of peace of mind. Then the sermon was brought to a speedy close and with a fling the coat was cast out of a window.

MOCCASINS FOR KLONDIKERS.

A Large Demand for Them Has Been Created.

As a result of the movement toward Alaska, the leather dealers report great activity in the manufacture and sale of the "yellow-legged moccasins." The government, says the Milwaukee Wisconsin, has recently ordered large supplies of these articles for troops who are to be sent to the gold fields of Alaska. It is declared that no other footgear would suit the soldiers so well, because the moccasin is the warmest clothing for the foot in the world, and easier than a silken sandal. The manufacture of moccasins in shoe factories began away back in 1851, and the business grew rapidly, until at one time soon after the war there were four large factories and several smaller ones, employing about 600 hands and turning out hundreds of thousands of pairs of moccasins every year. The moccasin is made of common leather, as a rule, tanned in a peculiar way. Salt and alum are used in the process. This makes the leather soft and pliable, and there is a way in which, at some additional expense, it may be made waterproof. The secret of the process is known to only a few, and the tanning is carried on for the most part in Rhode Island. Leather thus tanned was first used for mill belting, and it was years before it was discovered that it was good for boots and shoes of the easy and bulgy kind fit for lumbermen, who like to wear two or three pairs of stockings when they go into the woods and start on a three months' campaign with snow. The original moccasin was a baggy and unsightly thing, but now they have some pretense to symmetry and style.

SAID BAD THINGS OF BARNEY.

Barnato Hired a Man to Make Clippings About Him from Newspapers.

It is said that when Mr. Barney Barnato gave a picnic at the opening of the Johannesburg waterworks he related an incident that had happened to him in London some time before. A seedy-looking man, describing himself as a journalist, called on him one day, says the Westminster Budget, and offered to cut out from papers, etc., all the complimentary things said about Mr. Barnato. The genial man of millions saw that the man was "down on his luck," and engaged him on the spot at a salary of £15 per month. This was quite characteristic of "Barney's" sudden and irresponsible freaks. At the end of six months the man, who had been paid monthly, again called on Mr. Barnato and presnted a huge bundle of clippings from newspapers, asking whether he should continue the work. "No," replied Barney, "but I will engage you for six months at the same salary to cut out all the nasty things you can find said about me." Another six months elapsed, and once more the indefatigable paper-clipper turned up and reported his work to be finished. "Well," asked Barney, "where are the results of your work?" Here Barney assumed his gravest aspect as he repeated the man's reply: "I have not been able to bring them in; there are two cart-loads outside!"

TRYING A PEW.

Some Women Make a Practice of This and Keep It Up.

"One of the things we have to contend with," said a trustee of a prominent church, "is the woman who wants to 'try' a pew before renting it. Now, we have no desire to force anyone to sit where she does not want to, or still more to sit in an undesirable pew, and we are always willing that a newcomer should test for herself the desirability of any pew before she decides to rent it. But when it comes to half a dozen 'tests' of the same pew, only to declare that she doesn't like it, and followed by a half dozen more 'tests,' each of half a dozen different locations, it is tiresome, to say the least, and one becomes suspicious of the woman's intentions. Yet that is what, well—more women than I should care to name make a practice of doing. They will come here, and with the greatest show of interest and enthusiasm will consult with one in authority about taking a pew. Before deciding upon one they wish to 'try' it, however, and by the process above described they go on and 'try' others. Such women sometimes succeed in thus getting a free sitting in the church for a whole year."

An Impractical Scientist.

A new story is going the rounds at the expense of a well-known scientist of Philadelphia, says the Record, who has made a specialty of the study of physics, and whose inventions are known from one end of the country to the other. It seems that he recently purchased a barrel of pippin cider, and had it sent up to his residence, where he proceeded to tap it. The spigot used was in good working order, but for some reason unknown to the scientific man the cider refused to flow. He tilted the barrel up, poked wires through the open spigot to make sure it was all right, and pottered around for a couple of hours without satisfactory results. Then he gave up the job in disgust and sent for the man from whom he had bought the apple juice. "This infernal cider must be as thick as paste," he said, when the expert arrived. "I can't get a drop of it to run out." The visitor examined the barrel for a moment, and quietly smiled. "Of course you can't, professor," he said. "You've forgotten to make an air-hole in the bung so that the air can get in as the cider flows out."

Foggier Than London.

Esquimalt, in British North America, is the only place in the British empire, according to a recent climatological report, that exceeds London in cloudiness. Esquimalt is also the dampest place in the empire, while Adelaide, in Australia, is the dryest. Ceylon is the hottest and northwest Canada the coldest possession that the flag of England floats over.

A HISTORIC HOTEL

The Favorite Hostelry in Ante-Bellum Days—Often Patronized by Abraham Lincoln—From Its Veranda Stephen A. Douglas Delivered a Great Speech—Again the Scene of an Important Event.

From the Tri-County Scribe, Plymouth, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Thompson run the historic Cuyler House at Plymouth, Ill., a hostelry where Abraham Lincoln often slept, where "Dick" Yates, Lyman Trumbell and Richard Oglesby bought refreshments for the inner man in ante-bellum days, and from the veranda of which Stephen A. Douglas delivered one of his great speeches.

This article has not so much to do, however, with this historic hotel, as it has with the landlord's, thirteen-year-old laughing, bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked daughter Ollie.

As one sees her to-day, the picture of perfect health, it is hard to believe that nearly nine of the thirteen years of her life were spent on the bed of invalidism, that for months she never walked, and for years suffered the pain, misery and distress of inflammatory rheumatism in its worst form.

Able physicians were employed but no permanent benefit resulted.

Mrs. Thompson heard of a wonderful cure which had been effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and was influenced by it to purchase some of the pills for her daughter.

Before she had taken half a box, there was marked improvement in her condition; when she had taken two boxes she was completely restored to health. To-day, there is not a healthier child than Ollie Thompson.

The case came to the attention of the editor of the Tri-County Scribe, and a reporter was detailed to learn the story of this remarkable cure from Mrs. Thompson's own lips. She said:

"Ollie was a hearty, well-developed child from the time she was born until she was three years old. In 1887 she was taken down with inflammatory rheumatism. For nine years she was never entirely free from the disease, and much of the time was in an alarming condition. At times, she could not walk, and her spine was drawn out of shape so that she could not stand straight. One of the doctors said if she became well she would be a cripple for life.

"Dr. Grigran, of Augusta, was the first doctor who had her case. He doctored her through two serious times of the disease, and finally told us he could not cure her. We doctored her most all the time, but when she was ten years old she had an unusually severe attack, and we called in Dr. Kreider, of Prairie City, where we were then living. He tried hard to cure her but finally gave it up. He said, 'I can do nothing further, the case is the worst I have witnessed.'

"We nearly gave up hope then, but called Dr. McDaniel who doctored her after we came to Plymouth, but no benefit was derived.

"Then I heard how Uncle Wesley Walton had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Knowing the condition he had been in, I thought if the pills cured him they might help Ollie. Consequently I bought a box for her, and before she had finished it a box for her, and before she had finished it she was much better. She continued taking them, and when the second box had been used she was well, and has never had rheumatism since.

"I cannot say too much for the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for I believe Ollie would have been dead long ago, if she had not taken them."

GETTING READY

Every expectant mother has a trying ordeal to face. If she does not get ready for it, there is no telling what may happen. Child-birth is full of uncertainties if Nature is not given proper assistance.

Mother's Friend

is the best help you can use at this time. It is a liniment, and when regularly applied several months before baby comes, it makes the advent easy and nearly painless. It relieves and prevents "morning sickness," relaxes the overstrained muscles, relieves the distended feeling, shortens labor, makes recovery rapid and certain without any dangerous after-effects.

Mother's Friend is good for only one purpose, viz.: to relieve motherhood of danger and pain.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Gripton were Tecumseh visitors Tuesday.

Remember the Confederate Spy tonight and tomorrow night.

Dr. Wood and Geo. Smith went to Adrian on business Monday.

The Wabash pay car gladdened the hearts of he trailway boys Tuesday.

Miss Mary Cheever has recovered from her illness so as to be up again.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hause were guests of Clinton relatives from Saturday until Monday.

S. H. Linn secured the position of looking after the street lamps for the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Maynard left last Saturday for Toledo, to visit their daughter, Mrs. Wood.

Ed. Weaver has opened the Brown store with a full line of boots, shoes, and gents furnishing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith left Tuesday for Lansing, to attend the Farmers' Institute held there this week.

Elder Wright, of Ridgeway, occupied the pulpit at the Christian church Sunday, Rev. Deyo being too ill to preach.

The Y. P. S. meeting at the Reformed church Sunday evening at 6 p. m., will be led by the president, Wm. E Nivison. Topic, "Getting close to Christ."

A club has been organized which will occupy the "Ranch" hereafter. Lawyer Westerman was over from Adrian Monday and fixed the organization up so as to exist under the law for the government of club houses.

The "Confederate Spy" will be given at Britton opera house tonight and tomorrow night, by Will E. Steadman, assisted by twenty two ladies and gentleman selected from our best local talent. The play needs no introduction, being familiar to our people and will draw a big house.

Maynard and Will Hatch were guests of the depot force from Monday until Tuesday. Will returned to his home at Macon, and Maynard left for Cone to relieve the Wabash agent for a day. From Cone he goes to Milan to work nights for awhile. He must keep off from the Cone sidewalks.

At the Reformed church Sunday at 10:30 a. m., the pastor will take for his subject "Loving the Brotherhood." and 7 p. m. will deliver the third lecture of "Glimpses by the Wayside," taking as a subject "The Liberty Bell and its Lessons." Some remarks will also be introduced regarding Washington.

Dr. Wood had a funny experience last Saturday while at Cone. It seems the doctor and his mustang got upon a strip of ground which had been sacredly consecrated to be used as a sidewalk by the brainy village dads, and they did not do a thing but serve a criminal sammons and take him to Milan, accompanied by some of our citizens who went along as sureties. Then the fun began, for like the fool with the elephant, they didn't know what to do with the doctor and the tang, and sent 'em home again. Now the laugh is on the other side of the plate, for Doc proposes to have pay for his time, trouble and patients, and make things so lively for the sidewalk plaintiff, that he'll wish he'd stuck to Cone mud.

Sunday Disturbance.

Every one was sorry for those people in church last Sunday, who were suffering with a distressing cough. A full dose of Downs' Elixir on going to bed at night and small doses during the day will cure the most persistent cough. Whenever there is a tickling sensation in the throat take a few drops of the Elixir on the tongue and let it run slowly down the throat and immediate relief will be the result. We guarantee it to cure any cough, cold, croup or lung trouble or money refunded.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The indications now are that the facilities for reaching the Klondike gold region in Alaska in a comparatively short time will be ample to meet all reasonable demands. Reliable information has reached here from London to to the effect that a syndicate of English and American capitalists has perfected arrangements for the construction of a road from the head of Lynn canal over White Pass and thence by a route already located to a point on the Yukon river below the rapids, and all other obstructions to clear and safe navigation. The road will be about 350 miles in length, and from the point where it meets the Yukon there is said to be amply sufficient water at all times, making the trip to Dawson the shortest yet proposed.

This company holds a Canadian charter which was granted previous to the one granted the Canadian company, and must be given the prior right over it. The people of the United States will no doubt welcome any properly conducted road which will facilitate travel in the increasing demand for transportation from the states to the Klondike.

The twenty-five new locomotives for the Wabash, which will be delivered in the near future, will be the largest engines that have ever been in the service of the road. In measuring the monsters, it has been discovered that fifteen of them will be too large to enter the company's round-houses. They are compound engines of the Mogul type. The new engines will be put in service on this side of the lake, while ten of the best locomotives now in service will be sent to the Buffalo division. Ten new freight cabooses are now being constructed in the Toledo shops for the Buffalo division.—Toledo Blade.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The interstate commerce commission has suspended the operation of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act in favor of railroad lines in the United States in competition with the Canadian Pacific road, as to passenger business between points in the province of Manitoba and contiguous territory and points upon the Detroit and St. Clair rivers and easterly thereof in the Dominion of Canada, and in that portion of the New England states reached directly by the rails of the Grand Trunk railway.

Frank Haggart, inventor of the automatic railroad switch, an account of which appeared in last week's Hudson Centre Budget, wishes us to state that he solicits the correspondence of syndicates or any company dealing in patents. We trust that the young man's efforts will yield him success.—Hudson News.

It is stated by the Chicago Outlook that the railroads are charging the government seven times as much for carrying printed matter as they charge the express companies. The annual deficit of $11,000,000 in the postoffice should be kept under the searchlight.—A. A. Argus.

The Detroit & Lima Northern company has purchased 800 box cars and 500 gondolas from the Ohio Southern. There are over 500 cars of coal in the yards of the two companies at Toledo, unable to be moved because of scarcity of engines.—Ex.

Coldwater Star: Railroads know their business The Lake Shore has told its men that it would be "better" for them to board where there is no bar in the house. The men are wise enough to know what is expected of them.

The president of the Illinois Central has notified employees to refrain from making presents to officers of the company.

De Witt Richmond, of Lima, a brother of A. L. Richmond, began working in the auditor's office Monday.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, Feb. 23, 1898.

In spite of all talk to the contrary and in spite of the efforts of professional bears to sell the market down, wheat not only continues firm in price but each week sees a substantial advance.

To-day May easily sold above 106, and it is a significant fact that in these days of political excitement over the Spanish question when the stock market is adversely affected thereby, grain holds every inch of the ground it has steadily gained since the advance from 65 cents began last summer. It is also a fact that corn, in spite of the immense amount of that cereal in sight, does not recede in price, and with these staples and provisions commanding high figures for export the material prosperity of the country is well assured. How much higher wheat may sell is to some extent a matter of conjecture, but it cannot be successfully disputed that the conditions are all in favor of a further enhancement of values. Schwartz, Dupee & Co's advices from Europe continue to be of a character which indicates that the present demand from there is not an ephemeral one, while in this country the grain bins have certainly been well cleaned up for sales at the good prices that have prevailed for several months. The price range today was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
May wheat,	106 1-4	105	106
July wheat,	92 1-2	91	91 3-8

Anti-Saloon League.

This new organization, which has seen but three years of life, has proven a mighty conjunction of temperence workers. The third American Anti-Saloon convention held in Columbus, O., last month marked most surprising progress in this most practical prohibitory movement of the closing years of the century. The League's work in Michigan is steadily progressing. Rev. Jno. Brant, the state superintendent, and Rev. D. F. Barnes, D. D., a fellow workman, will speak next Sunday. In the morning Mr. Brant will speak at the Baptist church and Mr. Barnes at the Presbyterian church. At three o'clock at the M. E. church an open parliament will be held. A union mass temperance meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church in the evening at which both of the gentlemen above named will deliver addresses. No community anywhere, scarce any family and no church in our great country that has not felt the curse of the drink traffic. The solution of this gigantic problem is being sought by men and women of every class. Is this Anti-Saloon League on the right track? The Ohio saloon-keepers association declare it to be the greatest power the temperance people have brought to bear against the drink business. It has already united all the churches, Protestant and Catholic, and the workman of all temperance organizations are enlisted to do battle under the Anti-Saloon flag.

Horace Greeley's Eccentric Ideas.

Even his eccentric ideas were made plausible by his treatment. I heard him say once that what was then thought to be the Great American Desert ought to be planted with Canada thistles, so as to give nature some sort of a green start, when other vegetation might be made to follow. But the trouble is, Canada thistles, like any other thing inspired by "pure cussedness," will only grow and thrive where they ought not to. Find a place where their presence would do some good, and, as in the Humpty Dumpty case, "all the king's horses and all the king's men" could not fasten them there. This perverseness suggests, in a certain way, the small boys's conception of good and bad—his enchiridion of nature and life.

"What's fun," he said, "is always wicked; what we want to do is pious."

Mr. Greeley would cut down his alders in the spring. When I mildly suggested to him that our agricultural authorities preferred the autumn for that work, when nature could not so well aid their struggle for existence, he thought this reason was a mere excuse for not cutting them at all.—From "Reminiscences of Eminent Lecturers," by Joel Benton, in Harper's magazine for March.

To Denver In Less Than 28 Hours.—Only One Night En Route.—"The Colorado Special."

Beginning Sunday, February 6th, a a new train will be placed in service between Chicago and Denver via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line, which will make the fastest schedule ever maintained between Chicago and Colorado's Capital City.

This train will be known as "The Colorado Special" and will leave Chicago via the Chicago & North-Western R'y at 10:00 A. M. every day and reach Denver at 1:30 the following afternoon. Eastbound, this train will leave Denver daily at 3:50 P. M. and reach Chicago 8:45 the next evening, and as connections will be made in the Union Depot at Denver to and from trains of all the Colorado lines, passengers will be afforded the very best opportunities for quick transit between Chicago and all points in Colorado and the west.

Train will be vestibuled throughout, lighted with Pintsch gas, and will consist of Drawing Room, Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, coaches and Dining Cars serving all meals en route. A feature in connection with the service of this train, which will be appreciated by tourists, that it will afford an opportunity for a daylight ride through the progressive and thickly settled portions of Illinois and Iowa, which has been impossible heretofore, as all trains for Denver have left Chicago in the evening.

Daily service to Denver via The Pacific Limited leaving Chicago 10:30 P M. will be continued.

"What is to be done with the tramp?" is one of the most important questions of the day. How the German nation is solving it is told in a scholarly manner by A. F. Weber in the March Chautauquan. He writes with authority, and the workmen's shelters, labor exchanges, and farm colonies he describes are well worth study if not imitation.

A. W. Mills new hotel on Evans street is now in the hands of the painters, the carpenters having completed their work. The interior arrangement was planned and executed by Geo. J. Kempf, and is extremely pleasant and convenient, reflecting great credit on the builder. It contains two large halls and twenty-nine rooms, including office, parlors, and bath room, heated by furnace and fitted with electric lights and water works. The location is a splendid one, being only a block from the D. & L. N. depot, and will no doubt do a good business if properly managed.

Karner Bros. had a peculiar caller the other day. For several days they had heard peculiar noises in the store cellar and an investigation disclosed a large musk rat imprisoned in one of two empty kegs near the front cellar window. How the animal got into this predicament is not known but it is presumed he came up the gutter during last week's warm days and tumbled down through the window. He had gnawed out of one keg, but the other was too much for him and when discovered he was played out and gladly made a meal out of an ear of corn which was offered him.

The boys about town will have to let up on the snowballing nuisance or some of them will have to go into their pockets for fine and costs. There is a city ordinance prohibiting just such monkey business and from the way things have been going lately it needs to be enforced with a will. Twice this week teams have been struck by flying balls and broken away from the posts but were luckily stopped before any damage was done. One small boy was knocked insensible and any number of citizens smashed in the neck. If you want a snow battle, boys, go out in some field and face the music like men and not sneak around like despicable cowards to plug some unoffending person when he isn't looking.

Dr. O Q Jones was quite sick the first of the week.

There was a social hop at the Armory last evening.

Don't forget the great band matinee at Adrian tomorrow afternoon by John Philip Sousa and his magnificent aggregation of artists.

Mrs. Ezra Day, living in Brownville, died yesterday of apoplexy at the age of 76 years. Funeral to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock.

S. F. Morse had a narrow escape from death Tuesday He was driving his oil sleigh along in front of the Satterthwaite place on Evans street, when the Lake Shore pay car overtook him. The horse became unmanagable and jumped in front of the engine, which struck the rig, tore the sleigh loose from the horse, and dumped Mr Morse on the ground under the sleigh, from which interesting position he was extricated after the locomotive was backed up. Beside a few bruises and the loss of a few gallons of oil, no damage was done. Had the train been running fast, there would no doubt be a different story to tell.

A Wedding.

"I will fasten on this sleeve of thine:
Thou art an elm, my husband,
I, a vine."

The wedding invitations called together a number of friends and relatives on Tuesday afternoon to witness the marriage of Florence Lois Burlingame to Dr. Frank Russell Fletcher at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burlingame in Tecumseh. As the clock struck one the four brides maids, Misses Lena Hardenburgh, Winifred DeWolf, Lena Arnold and Julia Hicks, made way for the bridal party and marked the path with ropes of smilax as Mrs. Hayden played the wedding march. Next came the groom and best man, his brother, John Fletcher, and then the bride and father, W. A. Burlingame. The words were spoken by Rev. B. S. Hudson, using the Episcopal ring service, during which Miss Etta Thorp sang "O Promise Me." The bride wore a beautiful white organdie trimmed with valencines lace over blue silk.

All weddings are happy affairs but this one was particularly so. The bride is a most charming and beautiful young lady, the groom an exemplary young man. The home was tastefully decorated, the remembrances beautiful and numerous, the participants and guests and everybody happy. After the ceremony and congratulations came the banquet, then an hour of visiting, when the company bide goodbye to Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher and they departed on the afternoon train for Cadillac, via Detroit, Ann Arbor and Grand Rapids, where a furnished home awaits them.

Florence Burlingame is properly a Tecumseh young lady, but has spent much of her life in Cadillac with an aunt, Mrs. S. H. Merritt, and has always been a favorite in both places. Dr. Fletcher has indeed secured a prize and she, 'tis said, one of Cadillac's most most promising young men. The wish of one and all is good health, much wealth and all happiness.

Those in attendance from out of town were: Mrs. Arthur Hall, Toledo; Mrs. Geo. Tripp and Will Boyd, of Adrian; Mrs. Redding, Quincy; Mrs. Albert Boyce, Detroit; Mrs. S. H. Merritt and Jno. Fletcher, of Cadillac; and Merton Burlingame, of Elkhart. Telegrams of congratulation were received from Miss Viola Shull at Painesville, O., Miss Sophia Rosenbloom at Detroit, Geo. S. Tiffany at Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Cummers at Jacksonville, Fla., and Dr. Headle at Ann Arbor.

Washington's Birthday.

Mesdames F. B. Wood, A. L. Richmond and E. B. Hathaway entertained the "Hogan Alley" people at the home of Mrs. Wood Tuesday evening with a Washington's Birthday party. Hatchets were the souvenirs and partners were secured by cards on which were pictures of the presidents. The house was trimmed with flags and bunting and the party was unique and delightful in every particular, furnishing a most entertaining evening for every member of the club.

LETTER FROM LARAMIE.

An Interesting Epistle from the Rev. J. P. Varner.

Laramie, Wyoming.

ON HERALD:—

I fulfill my threat to inflict upon you and your readers an occasional letter. First I congratulate your town over the indications of growth and improvement, which I see as I read the columns of your paper. Hope your people in the near future will realize all and even more than they are expecting.

I will now tell you something of our stay in the mountains of Wyoming. Laramie is located on the Laramie River. Here are located three noted summer resorts: "Gleneyre," "Mountain Home," and "North Park." It has extensive car shops; two mills, manufacturing iron rails, angles, bolts and bar iron, a soda factory; a cement and plaster works; the State university and the State penitentiary.

Some people leaving their palatial homes in the east, expect to encounter wild Indians, and see bear and wild game the instant they cross the Wyoming line. Of course they will not see them. The cities of Laramie, Cheyenne, and some others are as civilized and as cultured as like cities in Michigan or New York. Indians are as great a curiosity here as they are in Detroit. And as for Buffalo Bill's "Wild West," it seems as remote from civilization here as it seems from Tecumseh, where you some times see it advertized on flaming posters. Nevertheless the "Wild West" is out here, and to find it the traveller must leave the lines of railroad and penetrate the mountains to the large basins or parks in the remote and hardly explored sections of the country. There children grow up to adult life, and have children of their own, and yet have never seen a railroad. There congregate many of the outlaws, and not a few who have hurriedly left civilization behind them for the novelties of the less civilized.

Coming west we cross the continental divide forty miles east of this city. Soon after crossing the mountain, we find ourselves in the midst of a magnificent landscape. While mountains, canons and forests create a feeling of wonderment and awe, silvery, rippling water courses, and the great stretch of the Laramie plains captivate our senses and hold us spell-bound with delight. On some of our high, surrounding eminences one can behold the 2,000,000 acres of the Laramie plains, while the Big and Little Laramie rivers are seen as they steal from the snow capped mountains, miles and miles distant and stretch across the country. The fantastic finger of nature has cut and smoothed the rocks until the ornamentations of the plains, where the rocks are grouped and the mountainous belts of beauty seem to challenge at sight the beholder.

The climate fully meets the expectation. The altitude at Laramie is 7,122 ft. above the level of the sea. You see we are more than a mile higher than the good people of Tecumseh. The winter here owing to the crisp, dry air and the daily shining of the sun, is robbed of many rigors of the season experienced in lower altitudes. As I read in the daily papers of the deep snows and blinding storms in more eastern states I am pleased with the mildness of our Wyoming winter. We have been here six months, and have seen only one shower of rain, and that fell soon after we came last September, and we have not seen a blizzard yet. The old settlers say, however, that this winter is an exception to all they have seen. We had in the early part of winter three weeks of sleighing. On these smooth roads a very little snow will permit the use of sleighs. The snow rarely lasts more than two or three days. Sleighs and cutters are not very common among the people here, and the extemporized vehicles on runners, which have made their appearance during this winter, have been a sight for a painter. Soon after the snow fell, one had to stand but a short time on a street corner to see a score of vehicles on runners, no two of which were alike. Nearly all were of home manufacture, ranging in seating capacity from two to twenty, and variety of style, which would have amazed a Connecticut Yankee.

The climate is certainly conducive to health. The general health of the people is remarkably good and the mortality very low. I have charge of the largest congregation in the city, and in six months I have had only two funerals. It is a poor place for undertakers.

The climate, doubtless, is proving beneficial to Carl's health. The trouble in his throat is gradually disappearing. The physician that is treating him says, notwithstanding the fact, that the winter is the most unfavorable season for him, he is steadily improving, and he thinks one summer here will permanently cure him. More anon.

J. P. VARNER.

The March number of the American Monthly Review of Reviews is another achievement in monthly journalism. The topics treated in this magazine are such as occupy much space in the daily press, but the Review is able to treat them more deliberately and in a more carefully adjusted proportion. No other illustrated monthly appearing on the first day of March will have so much as a reference to the De Lome letter, the Maine disaster, or the Zola trial in Paris; but these great themes of the hour are fully discussed in the Review's pages. The Review's readers expect to have them discussed there, so accustomed have they become to the essential qualities of timeliness and comprehensiveness in the "busy man's magazine."

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

While the little ones were singing "Precious Jewels" in the Congregational Sunday school, last Sunday, a visiting Detroit tot came near breaking up the meeting by joining in the chorus with the words of "A Hot Time in the Old Town To-Night."—Hudson Gazette.

Injuries received from an icy sidewalk cost the city of Monroe $2,600. Now Monroe proposes to take the matter of clearing its sidewalks of ice and snow into its own hands. Ann Arbor will be obliged to learn the same lesson from experience before she will act in the matter.—A. A. Courier. Here too, perhaps.

"Brethren and sisters," said Ole Uncle Enoch, "on account of the currency, I have invented an automatic collection box. Half dollars and dollars drop on a cushion, making no noise, dimes and nickels ring a bell, and suspender buttons fire off a pistol. Let the brethren now take up the collection, while I line up a hymn."—Hudson News.

Brother Wright, of Ridgeway, was passing some corn fodder to one of his thoroughbreds the other day. The animal made a grab at a stalk and got the elders thumb instead. After artistically removing a portion of the cuticle the horse generously left the thumb for the good brother to nurse back into a serviceable condition.—Britton Citizen.

"My friends," exclaimed the eloquent minister, "were the average man to [illegible] and look himself squarely [illegible] and ask himself what he [illegible] what would be the reply [illegible] to his mind?" "A rubber [illegible]" shouted an urchin in the rear of the room and, in the confusion which followed, the good man lost his place in the sermon and began over again.—Ann Arbor Argus.

The much abused "Ranch" at Britton, which has ruffled the serenity of the city dads and fair damsels of that place for several years, has at last devised a scheme for eternal quietude, according to the Citizen: It is rumored that the "Ranch" is to be turned into a club house. A number of the "bloods" will organize into a club for mutual edification and benefit. The village ordinance relative to license does not apply to a club.

We have read of people who had run a rusty nail in their foot, knee, hand, or some other portion of the body, and the lockjaw resulted, from which the patient died. A simple remedy, almost always at hand, can be applied by anyone, and what is better is infallible. It is simply to smoke the wound with wool or woolen cloth. Twenty minutes o' smoking will take pain out of the worst cases of inflammation arising from the wound.—Hudson News.

Field's Main street "booze bazaar" was the scene of a genuine Bowery row Friday night of last week. A patron of the place disputed an account, whereupon the proprietor, assisted by a local Sandow, endeavored to impress the disputant with the fact that the books were correct. B-i-f-f! B-a-n-g!! and the patron made up his mind to beat a retreat. He was in such a great rush that he never stopped to open the door, but jumped through, breaking glass, sash and all. At last reports the retreating patron was running yet.—Hudson Gazette.

A lady died in Grand Ledge and while the pallbearers were conveying her to her last resting place, by some mishap they stumbled and dropped the corpse. The concussion brought the deceased back to life and she lived six or seven years and died again. On the way to the grave they passed over the same ground, and when the pallbearers reached the identical spot where the stumble had been made at the previous funeral, the stricken husband stepped in front of those bearing the remains of his lamented wife and said, "Steady, boys, steady."—Portland News.

Plan to be at the church just as the bell ceases to toll, and you are very likely to be late; endeavor to reach the place of service before the time to commence, and you will have laid one stone in the foundation of success.—Epworth League Notes in Deerfield Times.

A minister, in his opening prayer, laid several stones by praying thus: "O Lord, bless those who are present, and those who are now coming in at the door, and those who are on the way here, and O, Lord, bless also, those who are still at home getting ready to come; and do not even withhold thy blessing O Lord, from those who may arrive in time to hear the benediction."

Here is what John Wanamaker, the most successful merchant in this country, says about advertising: "I never in my life used such a thing as a poster or dodger or handbill. My plan for 20 years has been to buy so much space in the newspaper and fill it up as I wanted. I would not give an advertisement in a newspaper of 500 circulation for 5,000 dodgers and posters. If I wanted to sell cheap jewelry or run a gambling scheme I might use posters, but I deal directly with the publisher. I owe my success to the newspapers, and to them I freely give a certain profit of my yearly business." Mr. Wanamaker spent $400,000 last year in newspaper advertising and says he will spend more than that this year.—Argus.

It is now nearly three quarters of a year since the bold Norwegian, Andree, sailed out of all human sight in his balloon, in the hope of reaching the North Pole. Experts in Arctic travel and exploration are far from convinced that he is lost; indeed they are quite confident that he will yet be heard from. One of them, Mr. Walter Wellman, who himself conducted an expedition into the Arctic in 1894, will review the chances for and against Andree's safety in an article in McClure's magazine for March.

The readers of the Ladies' Home Journal are about as responsive a clientele as any magazine possesses. About six months ago the Philadelphia magazine started to publish a series of practical architectural plans showing how artistic houses could be built at a moderate cost. It employed a special architect, and his work was certainly artistic. Besides the plans it agreed to furnish complete specifications of each house at a minimum cost. Thousands of people liked the plans given and the series has been a great success for the magazine. This spring the building of over five hundred houses, varying in cost from $1500 to $7000 each, will be started in different parts of the country by Journal readers, in addition to over one hundred other houses which have already been built.

AN OLD PENNSYLVANIA TOWN.

Purchased from William Penn Two Hundred Years Ago.

Two hundred years ago Gwynedd township, in Montgomery county, was purchased from William Penn and settled by a company of fifteen men from Wales. There is at present a strong agitation among prominent people of the township, numbers of them direct descendants of these original settlers, to commemorate the bicentennial of this event and the movement, without doubt, will be successful, says the Buffalo Commercial.

William John and Thomas Evans, two of the company of settlers, came to this country previous to the arrival of the other members, and selected the ground for the settlement, as was the custom of the Welsh settlers. In March, 1698, the ground which they selected, 11,449 acres, was purchased by the company, and in April they sailed from Liverpool, reaching Philadelphia in July. It is supposed that about November they occupied their lands.

It was in 1700 that the first meeting-house was built at Gwynedd on the site of the present structure. In 1701 William Penn visited Gwynedd. A second meeting-house was built in 1712 and two years later the first monthly meeting was established.

Five years later a Baptist church was organized at Montgomery, and in 1734 the Schwenkfelders arrived and settled in the upper end of Montgomery county, and in 1740 Boehm's Reformed church, at Blue Bell, was built. At the latter church but recently the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the formation of the first synod of the church in the United States was celebrated. The present meeting-house of the Friends, which is the third, was built in 1823.

IN THE STEERAGE.

Human Nature Grows Very Brutal in Its Aspect.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh writes of "The Steerage of To-day" in Century. Mr. Whitmarsh, who crossed the ocean in the steerage himself, says: To me the most noticeable thing about the life was the ease with which the yoke of civilization was thrown off. If conditions be favorable, I opine that a large proportion of the steerage passengers throw back to their Darwinian ancestry about the third day out. Away from home, country, and religious influences, unrestrained by custom and conventionality, bound by no laws of action, and separated from all that force of opinion so strong in the world ashore, they let themselves go, and allow their baser natures to run riot. No sooner has the seasickness left them than they growl and snarl over their food like dogs, scrambling for the choice pieces, and running off to their bunks with them; they grow quarrelsome; their talk is lewd and insulting; brute strength is in the ascendant; and, without shame, both sexes show the animal side of their natures. But most apparent and obnoxious are the filthy habits into which many of them fall. The sea seems utterly to demoralize them. Some of them will remain for days in their berths, where, without changing their clothes, they eat, sleep, and are sick with the utmost impartiality, and without the blessing of soap and water. Hence the seerage as a whole, the "married quarters" (where there were children) in particular, was ill-smelling and otherwise objectionable.

THE GIRL IN BUSINESS.

She Should Not Accept Gifts Nor Social Recognition from Employer.

"You may meet your employer socially," writes Ruth Ashmore, in an article on "The Business Girl and Her Employer," in Ladies' Home Journal, "but during the hours that you are in the office you are employed by him, and you have no right to claim, and he has no right to ask, any social recognition. You can always be polite; you need not be hard-hearted, and there can be, without harm, an exchange of pleasant words. But during business hours there is wisdom in attending to your business and doing nothing else. Your self-respect should not allow you to be free in your manner with the different clerks who are your companions, and you should be wise enough not to have a confidante in the office.

"No matter who your employer is, you cannot afford to accept luncheons, drives, flowers, or any special social recognition from him. I do not mean that all men are bad. Again, I thank God there are thousands of good men, but masculine human nature is weak, and when things have gone wrong at home there is an immense satisfaction to the average man in getting a sweet sympathy, which he probably does not deserve, from a pretty, charming girl who believes in him. But you are hired to work, not to cater to the emotions of your employer, and when you are doing your work faithfully you are doing all that you are paid for."

Comets to Appear.

The London Globe says that a number of comets will appear in the skies during the year 1898. The Pons Winnecke comet should open the list by appearing in April, after an absence of about 5½ years. In May the celebrated Encke comet is due. This comet has a period of only 3¼ years, and its frequent reappearance has been the means of astronomers discovering a great deal about comets and their wanderings through space. In June we should have two of these cosmical visitors—Swift's and Wolfe's comets—the former after an absence of six years and the latter a trifle longer. Temple's comet completes the visitors' list by arriving in September. These comets are all regular visitors, whose periods are so well known that their arrivals may be timed almost to the hour.

The Cause of the Destruction of the War Ship Maine Is Being Investigated.

THE NAVAL BOARD OF INQUIRY AT WORK

Their Findings Will Be Kept Secret Until All the Testimony Is Taken—Evidence of Divers Points to an Outside Explosion — Latest News Concerning the Disaster.

Havana, Feb. 26.—The United States naval board of inquiry continued yesterday taking testimony of the divers who have been working in the wreck of the Maine. Those who were here from the battle ship Iowa and the cruiser New York were examined. While, of course, the members of the court will not talk for publication, information on the highest authority is to the effect that the evidence of Diver Morgan as to the condition of the Maine shows almost beyond the possibility of a doubt that the Maine was blown up by an outside agency. Furthermore, Morgan's report was verified by the other American divers who descended yesterday. Late in the day the paymaster's safe, containing $22,500 and his papers, was taken from the wreck.

Awaits the Investigation.

Washington, Feb. 26.—In spite of the stories that come from unofficial sources in Havana as to sensational developments in connection with the work of the divers in the Maine's hull, the administration remains firm in its statement that there is no credible evidence one way or the other as to the cause of the disaster, and holds to its purpose to await the conclusion of the investigation now making by the court of inquiry. This position was emphasized at yesterday's cabinet meeting.

Willing to Fight.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Activity is seen at the military posts, and men by the thousands are announcing their readiness to serve the country in the event of a conflict with Spain. In order to hasten work on war ships at League Island navy yard large forces of men were kept at work all day Sunday. Many clerks were also kept at the navy department for Sunday work, something that is very unusual.

According to a report laid before President McKinley, 10,073,576 able-bodied men are now available for military duty in the United States. Of these 112,082 are already in the militia.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 28.—The naval court of inquiry arrived here Sunday morning on the Mangrove. The members of the board went on board the United States cruiser New York, where they held a conference with Admiral Sicard.

The court will resume its sessions in the United States district courtroom in the federal building at ten o'clock this morning, and will probably return to Havana on Wednesday. The most important witness to be examined here is Lieut. Blandin, the officer of the deck when the explosion on the Maine occurred. The testimony of the other survivors will take only a short time. Capt. Sampson, Capt. Chadwick and Lieut. Commander Potter came ashore and arranged preliminary details for the sessions of the court.

HOW A SUBMARINE MINE IS PLACED AND OPERATED.

HOW A WARSHIP CAN BE BLOWN UP.

"What has the court found out?" while Sunday one heard all around: "When will war be declared?"

Brought face to face with the court, men realize for the first time how unlikely it will be for the court to allow any inkling of its conclusions to be known out of due season.

What an Officer Says.

Few know more than was known Monday morning. An officer of the Maine, however, who had been examined by the court during the day talked at length to a correspondent. He said:

"I can't tell you what line of questioning was adopted, but the court will find, I believe, that the Maine was blown up by design, though I don't think it will be able to ascertain exactly how. The court's finding will be based on negative rather than positive evidence. By this I mean that all of the testimony heard so far has, bit by bit, upset the theories of those who think the explosion was of internal origin. This negative evidence is so strong and so general that I see no possibility of the court deciding that the explosion was internal. The only alternative then left for the court is to fall back on evidence which points to the intentional blowing up of the Maine. This, I think, will be done, unless the court formulates a theory of its own or declares that it does not know how the disaster occurred, both of which conjectures I think improbable."

England Won't Support Spain.

London, March 1.—The Daily News, commenting editorially on the relations between the United States and Spain, says: "Spain can expect no support, moral or otherwise, from England against the United States. She has ruined Cuba, as she has ruined or lost every other colony, by the grossest corruption, cruelty and maladministration, and she must be left to settle the account for it with those whom it may concern without any aid or sympathy on our part."

Second Day at Key West.

Key West, Fla., March 2.—The second day's sessions of the court of inquiry here are over, and nothing new is known regarding the fate of the Maine, at all events outside the members of the court. Some who confidently declared a week ago that the court had already found that the vessel was intentionally blown up have modified this conviction, and, for the most part, admit that such reports must have been based largely on speculation. Excellent progress has been made in the examinations, and the court will probably finish its work here to-day, when its members will be taken back to Havana on the Mangrove.

RELIEF NOT NEEDED.

War Department Abandons Expedition to Klondike.

Washington, March 2. — The war department has decided to abandon the expedition for the relief of the miners in the Klondike country because the conclusion has been reached that no necessity exists for it. Secretary Alger has written a letter to Senator Hawley, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, explaining the department's position and asking that congress take action by joint resolution authorizing the department to dispose of the supplies purchased for the expedition, including the reindeer which have just arrived from Norway, and to abandon the project entirely.

Sad Fate of Two Aged Sisters.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Feb. 28.—At Mineral Wells, near here, two old women, Edith and Linda Caplinger, lived together on a small farm. The dress of Edith, who is 90 years old, caught fire. Her sister Linda must have attempted to put it out. Both women ran to the yard all ablaze, and fell to the ground, where they died in a short time, but were not discovered until two hours afterward.

OBEYED THE JUDGE.

Got His Man and Brought Him to Town.

Among the wills that were probated the other day was that of a negro blacksmith named Austin Thompson, whose shop was on Sycamore street. There is a story connected with this man's name that is worth telling, says the Lexington (Ky.) Herald.

Just after the war old Benjamin F. Graves was county judge. He was an eccentric man, very peculiar in many ways, very honest and very positive. He ruled with a strong hand. One day Austin Thompson, who lived in the county, was brought before him charged with hog stealing. The meat was found upon his premises, but he had made no effort at concealment.

He acknowledged having the hog and killing it, but insisted that he bought the hog from another negro, who represented it as his own. Judge Graves inquired if he could "bring that other nigger into court." He was answered somewhat doubtfully. The old judge then answered to Austin that he "must bring that other nigger in, dead or alive."

A day or two afterward Austin drove up with a cart to the judge's office, and entering informed his honor that he had his man.

"Bring him in," said the judge.

"I can't," said Austin; "he's dead."

He had followed the old judge's instructions to the letter. The other negro refused to accompany Austin to town, and so Austin killed him.

Of course it caused an immense sensation in the community, and there was talk of impeaching the judge and of hanging Austin. But nothing after all was done about it, and the matter was allowed to drop.

BOVINE VALOR.

Two Cows Stormed a Barbed-Wire Fence to Rescue Their Calves.

The editor of the Condon (Ore.) Globe saw a deed of valor lately that was worth recording as well as seeing. A herd of cattle, among them two cows accompanied by their calves, were grazing in tall, dead grass when the calves became separated a little way from the rest of the cattle, and some wolves started in pursuit of them. After running about 200 yards the calves came to a high, five-wired, barbed-wire fence, and, being small, managed to get through it. On the other side of the fence was an open pasture.

The wolves quickly followed the calves through the fence, and were rapidly running them down on the other side, when the two cow mothers discovered what was going on. Each uttered a loud bellow, hoisted her tail and started for the rescue.

It appeared to be a hopeless chase, for the fence intervened, and the cows were certainly much too large to get through it. They knew well enough that it was there, and could, beside, see it plainly; but both cows plunged straight into it.

The watching editor, horrified, looked to see them hurled back, frightfully wounded, but, instead, one of the posts gave way under the onslaught, the wires sank down, and in another moment the mothers were on the pasture side of the fence, badly cut and bleeding, but still able to charge the wolves successfully and put them to flight.

Soon the cows were licking the rescued calves affectionately, and the coyotes were howling a disappointed duet from the summit of a knoll near by.

STRANGE CASES OF POISONING

Gila Bite Was Not Deadly, But Umbrella Tree Was.

In the far northeastern part of Arizona territory, that is to say in Navajo county, a young man was bitten by a Gila monster recently. Almost at the same time, at Yuma, in the extreme southwestern corner of the territory, a little girl ate some berries that fell from the umbrella trees that grow so plentiful in southern Arizona. The young man lived, but the little maiden died. The latter case is the more remarkable, perhaps, for until this instance not even the medical profession suspected that there was anything poisonous about the umbrella tree. The child's name was Dora Lynch, her father being well-known in Yuma. The lucky young man in the northeast was Orrin Barney, who had started out with a party for Utah. He was following a wagon up a hill and "scotching" it with rocks. He reached down for a rock and picked up a Gila monster. The monster's head had to be cut off to loosen the grip on Barney's hand. The latter suffered severe pain for two days, but then recovered. His only remedies were tobacco and whisky.

Lengthening the Eyes.

It is said that it is a common custom practiced among the Turks, who hold long eyes in such exalted esteem as to lengthen them by cutting the corners of the eyes. This is done very early—at the age of two or three years—the outer corner being deftly slit with a lancet about the twelfth part of an inch. While the wound is healing the lids are drawn outward every day, and when it is quite cured the eye is still submitted to the drawing process every day for a long time, with the eventual result that it becomes long and narrow, and satisfies the taste of the "unspeakable Turk."

Clinton Lodge No. 175 F. A. M. held a pleasant special meeting last Friday evening. Dr. M. C. Reeves received the third degree.

Chas. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, Pa., on his way west, stopped over Monday with E. VanDeMark and family. He is a brother of E. W. Shoemaker.

Mrs. Albert Kolkloesch, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is some better and it is hoped that she will be spared to the four little ones left fatherless.

Last Friday while unloading grain at the station, Elias DePuy had a narrow escape from serious injury if not death. While a freight train was moving in and out, he stood in front of the team. For a time they did not seem to care for the train but finally became uneasy and starting threw him down. The front bob passed over him but he was caught by the rear one and dragged across the street where the team was secured and he extricated. He was taken to Dr. Tuttle's, who could not discover any broken bones. He was badly jarred and bruised and after being taken home for a day or two suffered severely and fears were entertained of internal injuries but he soon began to rally and is now doing nicely. Another case where the old horse proved more treacherous than the colt.

Mrs. Louise Shoemaker left yesterday morning to join her husband at Denver, Col.

Steve Huntington was very sore and lame the first of the week. Saturday he did a little work and it being exercise to which for sometime he has been estranged, his physical system rebelled as above.

Wm. Kennedy, a brother of Aleck, who has resided in Canada, arrived here Tuesday. He will take a position in the dye house at the mill and his family will join him as soon as a suitable house can be secured.

For some time Jas. Hogan's children have been very anxious for a goat. While in Chicago after sheep recently he procured one and until Monday last Billy behaved himself as a well trained goat should and everything was serene, goat and children apparently happy. On this particular day Mr. Billy, while on the front porch admiring the surrounding scenery turned and seeing his reflection in one of the large windows, made a dive at his supposed rival and landed inside, catching a glance of a goat in another window again made a break landing outside again. The glass was 24x36, double strength, cost $1 a piece. Jim says had he been around when it occurred there would have been a dead goat but then Jim's bark is worse than his bite so the children and the goat are not at all alarmed.

The death of Albert Kolkloesch, which occurred from pneumonia early Friday morning, was a sad one as not only a wife is bereaved but four small children are left without a protector. Mr. Kolkloesch was 42 years of age. He was born in the village. Being left an orphan at an early age, for several years he lived with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Silvers. His whole life was spent in this vicinity and no one but entertained for him great respect. Industrious and frugal, he was rapidly bringing his farm from a barren waste to a most productive tract, and his highest enjoyment was with his family. Having himself had many obstacles to encounter in life's battle, he had great sympathy for those in affliction and misfortune which manifested itself in many deeds of kindness. His funeral at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon was largely attended.

From Extreme Nervousness.

THAT no one remedy can contain the elements necessary to cure all diseases, is a fact well known to everyone. Dr. Miles' System of Restorative Remedies consists of seven distinctively different preparations, each for its own purpose.

Mrs. L. C. Bramley, 37 Henry St., St. Catherines, Ontario, writes: "For years I suffered from extreme nervousness and annoying constipation, developing into palpitation and weakness of the heart. I was unable to sleep, suffered much from headache, pain in my left side, palpitation and a constant feeling of weakness and prostration. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills and the Anti-Pain Pills to relieve sudden paroxysms of pain and headache. I soon felt much improved and the pains and aches and weariness left me. I then took Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and am now restored to my former good health."

An entirely new and remarkable phase of Walter A. Wyckoff's experiences as a day-laborer is begun in the March Scribner's with "The Workers—The West." A certain idyllic quality was never far distant from even his most sordid experiences in the rural regions, which made the first division of this narrative the most talk-of serial feature of the year. But in this new experiment he plunges into the "heart of a congested labor market"—Chicago, before the World's Fair. His narrative differs from all previous accounts of the slums because he lived for months on the same conditions as the poorest. He does not believe that we are on the eve of a "Social Revolution," and this narrative will be the best answer to alarmists. It is an absorbing, often dramatic and pathetic, account of actual people and experiences.

LA GRIPPE

Mistaken for Consumption—Given Up to Die.

To some people the mention of la grippe calls forth a smile. They are the people who have never had it. Any one who has ever had even the slightest touch of la grippe knows well the complete misery it brings. And not only misery for the time being, but unless properly treated its sequella follow it month after month until the patient despairs of ever getting well again.

Pe-ru-na is the remedy for all such cases. Mrs. Lou Davis, Fayetteville, Tenn., writes as follows: "I was afflicted with a disease commonly known as la grippe; the doctors said I had consumption. I had a dreadful cough and could not sleep at night. I was advised by a friend to try Pe-ru-na. I got one bottle, and the second night my cough stopped. I took ten bottles, and I will say that I believe I would be a dead woman now if it had not been for Pe-ru-na. I recommend Pe-ru-na to all those who suffer with la grippe."

SMALL GIRL'S APRON.

It Will Be Liked by the Little One Who Goes to School.

The small girl's apron is receiving attention, and the little maid can have several varieties from which to choose. One of these is the little Fife apron, the pattern for which is taken from the apron worn by the oldest daughter of the duchess of Fife.

This little girl, Lady Alexandra Duff, wears this season a series of pretty house aprons all made of Scotch gingham in pretty stripes of various colors.

APRON FOR SCHOOLGIRL.

The pattern for the apron is a simple one and the diagram for it was sent over from England by an American lady who visits the Fife house.

The skirt is plain and is the same length front and back. Around the edge of the bib is a broad ruffle ending in a point at the waist. When the apron is laundered the waist is separated from the skirt and washed separately. By making two waists to each skirt one skirt will often outlast two waists, both in the laundry and in the wear and tear of the apron.

Fruit Fairs at Churches.

A fruit fair was the form of a recent church entertainment. Oranges, limes, apples, bananas, grape fruit and hothouse peaches and pears were attractively arranged in various styles. There was a table of fancy work at which no piece was offered which did not in some way associate itself with fruit. Until one attempts to make out the list it is difficult to realize how long it can be made. There are all sorts of menu cards, prettily decorated with fruits, and innumerable doilies and centers whose limitations to fruit designs did not prevent a wide variety. There were fruit plates and fruit baskets, pin cushions in fruit shapes, and pretty water colors, with bunches of fruit, altogether a considerable array. At the table where refreshments were served the ices were in fruit forms. The idea was at least novel, which seems to be the most desirable thing nowadays.—Chicago Tribune.

A Motor Cradle for Baby.

A motor cradle is the latest domestic invention. It is said to be a great advance on the hand-rocked article, and can be worked with either electricity or petroleum. The motion can be accelerated or slackened by simply turning a screw, and one great advantage is that the bercean does not cease swinging though the baby may be left in the room alone. There are, of course, doctors who say that a baby should not be rocked at all; but few mothers are of the same opinion, and with the majority the motor cradle will no doubt become popular.

NOVEL WINDOW DRAPERY.

Simple in Construction, But Handsome in Appearance.

A charming effect at a window with a curtain that is at once a graceful drape and mellows the tone of the room by filtering the light beautifully, is the economical contrivance of a New York artist, Miss Alice Donbery, who took the gold medal for tapestry at the world's fair.

A white lace curtain of least expensive make, but a good and bold floral design, had become the worst for wear in the laundress' hands, and what to do with it was a problem. It was mounted on old gold yellow cheese cloth at four cents a yard, tacked on a quilting frame, and the outlines were evenly but sketchily run in with old gold yellow crewel stitches. It was then "whipped" at the edge, finished with brass rings, run on a mahl-stick and passed through two polettes, which served as window brackets.

To make the light more graceful to the eye, the lower part of the window was lined with white tissue paper pasted on without a crease, which when dry gives a faint gray light so needful to the artist who at that angle must guard against a glare. The curtain was, however, one of a pair for a tiny drawing-room. The effect was rich, and only on close examination revealed its simplicity of method.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Average Height of Women.

The average height of women in England is five feet six inches. The average height of American women, according to William Blaikie, the expert on physical culture, is five feet four inches. The two inches in favor of the English women are doubtless due to many generations of outdoor life and sports.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

It Comes to the Preacher from Over Study and Brain Tire—It Comes to Any Person, too, who Worries and Frets.

From the Huron Tribune, Bad Axe, Mich.

A "breaking down of the nervous system" is a modern expression—a modern complaint. It is induced by prolonged strain and the overtaxing of the nervous system, and is a product of over hurry and hustle. It affects the preacher and the lawyer—the direct result of brain tire. It affects people in any walk of life, too, who worry and fret. It means a depleting of the nerve forces.

It is curable by complete rest and change of scene, also by the use of nerve restoratives and nerve foods. As the first method is not within the reach of all, the latter offers the most universal and practical method of treating the complaint. When it is determined that medicine is to be used, select that one which contains the most nerve-nourishing properties. Do not take nerve tonics. They only stimulate, and the reaction leaves you worse than you were before. Select the medicine that is to the nerves what meat is to the body—one that as it builds up the nerves, also increases your weight. The best thing for the purpose is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, the reputation of which is built up by solid and indisputable proof, and which is known in every hamlet in the country.

As a proof of its merits in such cases, read the following letter of a clergyman:

DR. WILLIAMS' MED. CO.,
Schenectady, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—In April, 1896, I was a hopeless case, owing to a complete breaking down of my nervous system and to a persistent stomach trouble. I had been treated by a great many physicians but received no permanent benefit. I had been down four times with nervous prostration and twice with gastritis. These attacks would come with such violence as to throw me into spasms. The time came when physicians said I must stop preaching or die. I would be so exhausted after the last service on Sunday that I could scarcely get from the pulpit. Many a time I have had to sit down and rest before I could leave the church in order to gain a little strength. I could eat neither meat nor vegetables. I dared not allow my bare feet to as much as touch the cold carpet or floor to say nothing of taking a cold foot or flour to say nothing of taking a cold foot bath. If I did I was immediately seized with cramps. In this condition I commenced to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I took one box and felt no better—in fact worse. I said I would take no more, but my wife urged the matter, feeling my life depended upon the result, as every thing else had failed, and I was "used up." I therefore continued to take them. Since then, and it has been several months, I have had but one slight attack and have enjoyed life. Have preached all summer and held revival meetings for fifteen weeks. During that time my wife was sick seven weeks, so that my rest was much broken. Some nights I did not sleep at all. I have had no muscular exercise for years until recently, when I have done some work in my garden, and my muscles stand the test remarkably well. I can eat any thing I desire, and can now enjoy a cold bath daily. Every Sabbath I preach three times, and now think I am good for another twenty years if the Lord wills. I am surprised at myself and sometimes think it cannot be possible that I have accomplished what I have.

Sunday Disturbance.

Every one was sorry for those people in church last Sunday, who were suffering with a distressing cough. A full dose of Downs' Elixir on going to bed at night and small doses during the day will cure the most persistent cough. Whenever there is a tickling sensation in the throat take a few drops of the Elixir on the tongue and let it run slowly down the throat and immediate relief will be the result. We guarantee it to cure any cough, cold, croup or lung trouble or money refunded.

Deafness cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer is not propped up by fictitious or anonymous testimonials, but is demonstrating its curative powers every day in stubborn cases of chronic and acute dyspepsia among reputable citizens of your own county. Persons who have tried nearly all of the highly advertised preparations for stomach disorders, without relief, are now rejoicing over the speedy and permanent results of this new combined method treatment. If you are troubled with any form of stomach or nerve troubles a trial with Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer will substantiate all we claim for it. For sale by John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich. Read the following testimonial:

To all whom it may concern:

For the benefit of those suffering from stomach and nerve troubles I wish to give a brief statement of my own case. I have suffered from dyspepsia more or less for twelve years. My troubles were indigestion, sour stomach, and acid fermentation, associated with severe nervous difficulties, rendering sleep at times impossible. I tried many preparations recommended for my troubles, without relief. Recently I procured a package of Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. I had taken the treatment only three days, when, to my surprise, I began to feel better in every way. I have used only one package, and can now eat and retain any kind of food with perfect comfort. I sleep undisturbed and feel refreshed in the morning, something I had not done before for years. I advise any person troubled with dyspepsia to try this treatment. Yours,

Entered at the postoffice at Tecumseh, Michig as second class matter.

It now looks as if the village council would pass an ordinance that property owners must keep their walks free from snow from May 1st to October 1st inclusive. Such a law would at least be harmless and some people might be fooled into the idea that it was in force the year around.

The time has now arrived when Tecumseh should be governed by Standard Time. The schools should be run on Standard time, factories and everything else should correspond and every watch and clock in the town should be run according to one basis of time. In this one regard our village is way behind the times. With the large number of railroad people now living here two kinds of time is a great annoyance. If the school board would adopt Standare time for the schools, this would start the ball rolling and soon the change would be universal.

The following from the Chicago Record of this morning explains the situation as regards the Maine disaster, giving the latest news and in an honest conservative shape:

Reports from Havanna show that the divers have secured further proofs that the Maine was destroyed by an external explosion. The naval board may not be able to name those who committed the outrage, but it is declared the matter is now in such shape that Spain will be required to show who was responsible. Spaniards in Cuba openly declare their hatred of Americans and Spanish newspapers in Madrid publish editorials of a warlike character. Large shipments of supplies are being sent to Cuba for relief of the thousands now starving there. The conditions are declared much worse than in Armenia by W. W. Howard, who has visited both countries. Heavy orders for steel projectiles are being filled by large concerns in the east, although no formal contract has been made with the government. The governments of Japan Germany and Sweden have asked the state department for names of their subjects who were among the victims of the Maine disaster.

There is no doubt in the minds of the most conservative persons but that the Maine was blown up by enemies of the United States. Whether Spain is responsible for the act or whether it will cause war between the two countries cannot be told until the official investigation is completed.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

The Grass Lake News says it is not improbable that the Ann Arbor and Dexter electric railway will be extended through to Jackson, and advises against giving the right-of-way through its village because of the injury likely to arise to business from such convenient and cheap connection with Jackson. It urges that with hourly trains and one cent per mile fare, trade will naturally seek the larger place. The News is right. There is little doubt the business of Grass Lake would suffer under such favorable circumstances. But the paralleling of steam lines by electric roads is inevitable and bound to come, and would bring compensations that might out-weigh the business considerations alluded to. If the railroads were wise, instead of fighting to courts of last resoft the wholesome and just provisions of the people of the state reducing fares to two cents per mile, electric competition would be postponed, but if cheap fares cannot be attained through legislation electricity furnishes a key that will soon unravel the problem.—Jackson Patriot.

The Monroe branch train, on the Lake Shore road, had a rather peculiar experience, Thursday night, enroute from Monroe to this city. Near Sibson the flues of the engine began leaking badly and the machine died on the engineer's hands. The crew and some of the passenger turned in and split kindling enough to whoop the locomotive up to within a short distance of Lenawee Junction, and they stuck. The Fayette crew, surmising that something was wrong, went to their relief with their locomotive, and hauled them to Adrian. It was after one o'clock when they arrived here and the passengers, about 15 in number, had a good time over it.—Adrian Telegram.

Chicago, March 1.—The Western lines will put in cut rates to Puget Sound points to-day. From Chicago to Seattle the first-class fare will be $36.50 and second class $31.50. The regular rates are $61.50 for first-class and $51.50 for second class. The cut rates will apply through the St. Paul and Missouri river gateway. By way of St. Paul, tickets will be sold at the flat rate; by the Missouri river the rebate plan will be adopted. Western passenger agents have spent four days in arranging the details for putting in new rates, and have not completed their work yet. They will have another struggle with the question to-day.—Toledo Blade.

It is reported that N. K. Elliott has accepted the appointment of superintendent of the D. T. & M., with headquarters at Detroit. With this appointment, the general headquarters of the company will be moved from Tecumseh to Detroit. Superintendent G. R. Haskell, who has been superintendent of the D. & L. N. and the D. T. & M., will have jurisdiction over the Lima Northern only. Mr. Elliot is a railroader of ripe experience. He was formerly superintendent of transportation of the Terre Haute & Indianapolis, with headquarters at Terre Haute. This position he held from 1885 to a recent date. Previous to that time, he held a responsible position with the Columbus & Chicago.—Blade.

The above is substantially correct except the location of Supt. Elliott's office, which will be in Tecumseh. We know whereof we speak, as the gentleman secured his official stationery at this office, and it is not probable he will use it all either to day or tomorrow.

Lansing, Feb 26.—A report issued by the railroad commissioner to-day shows the total Michigan earnings of railroads operated in the state for the year 1897 to be $28,108 909 42, as against $28,144,943 29 for the year 1896, the decrease being $36 933 87. The earnings for December were $3,344,482; an increase of $95,545 over the month of December, 1896. The last six months of 1897 show large gains, but they are not sufficient to overcome the losses of the first part of the year. Reports for the month of January, 1898, which are being received, show a marked increase in the amount of business. The Flint & Pere Marquette railroad company had earnings in January of $205,155, an increase of $35,662 over the first month of 1897. The earnings of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic were $98,814, increase, $13,891; Mineral Range, earnings $7,895; decrease, $1,006; Hancock and Calumet, earnings, $14,989; increase, $5,407.

The Railroad Gazette, in commenting on the present methods of the railways in making their maps, says each railroad tries to make its own line straighter than the others, and in order to do so does not scruple to move large cities out of their proper places. Washington and Baltimore are uniformly represented on railroad maps many miles north of their actual position, and the real Philadelphia has no railroads, the fictitious Philadelphia being far to the northwest, and Cleveland is placed in the very center of Lake Erie. Every considerable town has three or four different positions, according to the interests of the road publishing the map. The Gazette says there is no advantage in distorting the geography of the country by shifting cities around. It is the cost of the ticket, not the looks of the map, that decides the average traveler.—Times-Democrat Lima.

It is stated on good authority that the Lima Northern intends to build a new depot at Detroit. The alleged attempt that the company is making to gain an entrance into the Union depot, is only to conceal other movements in the direction of securing ground for a depot of its own. As the company is situated now, it does not own any terminals worthy of consideration. It extends through a good territory and makes excellent connections. It is the only line extending from the Ohio coal fields to the great coal market of Michigan and the Northwest. Yet with all of these advantages, the property will never be a dividend payer unless it secures good terminals. The promoters realize this, the Lima Northern will soon be numbered among the first-class north and south roads in the country, but not until it secures some terminal facilities.

The Detroit, Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor electric railroad company have purchased the land occupied by the two shops owned by John Long on Congress street for $3,500, and the creamery building adjoining owned by O. Ainsworth for $1,800. The company proposed to locate the power-house on this site, and will begin to build at once. It is thought the iron bridge will be removed to Forest avenue and a new one substituted on Congress street, wide enough to accommodate the car track and have a track on each side for general travel.—Ypsilantian.

Detroit Tribune: The trains of the Detroit & Lima Northern road will be running into Detroit within 30 days, according to Right of Way Agent Brailey. The 60 foot span bridge over the cut in the River Rouge, built by the Detroit Bridge & Iron works, was finished yesterday and turned over to the company late in the afternoon. The work on the bridge over the main channel of River Rouge to connect Zug island with the mainland will be commenced at once.

The "cannon ball," as the Ypsi. branch passenger train is often called, narrowly escaped a serious accident last Tuesday. It stopped here about 20 minutes to cool a hot journal on the front truck of the locomotive, and just as the train was entering Hillsdale at slackened speed, the journal broke letting the locomotive down on the track.—Manchester Enterprise.

Yes, Adrian must be getting big and tanglesome for Ross Springer is credited with getting so completely lost there last Saturday that his friend Charley had to institute a systematic search for him and eventually pilot him back to the familiarity of Main street.

A. L. Richmond has resigned as Auditor of the D. & L. N., to take effect as soon as his successor is appointed. Mr. Richmond is still Auditor of the D. T. & M. with headquarters at Tecumseh.

Miss Edith Nichols, who has been the guest of Mrs. Geo. R. Haskell for a couple of weeks, returned to her home in Continental, O., to-day.

Supt. Haskell, of the Lima Northern and D. T. & M., was at the Ottawa yards on official business Tuesday.—Toledo Blade.

S. P. Grey, of New Orleans, has been in town several days this week, organizing a branch of the United Literary Association of which he is the president. The object of this association is the free distribution of good reading to the poor white classes of the southern states, whose lamentable ignorance and poverty have been materially helped by the work of its members. Magazines of past date and used Sunday school sheets are very acceptable, and may be left with the superintendents of the different local Sunday schools.

Earl Burtless, a very nice young gentleman from Tecumseh, just finished today a stay in the Lenawee county jail lasting 103 days. It seems that Mr. Burtless ran into Attorney James W. Wightman, at Tecumseh, with his bicycle last fall and the attorney sued him. Mr. Burtless claims he thought the case had been adjourned, and judgment was taken by default. He preferred remaining in jail than to settle under such conditions and has thus been here since the 6th of October last. He made application to the Circuit Court Commissioner Chapman, of Hudson, for release on the 90 days limit, and was to-day set at liberty.—Adrian Telegram.

Cal Hiteshu got a fall Saturday morning which might easily have been fatal. He had been down in the store cellar after a box for a young lad and after putting it on a sled, he stepped backward into the store and off into the open trap in the floor. As he fell he caught the door, which closed, and for a second he hung suspended by his right hand which was then drawn through the opening and he went to the cellar bottom. The doctor found no broken bones, but a badly jammed and lacerated hand, and some bad body bruises. No doubt the sorely pinched hand saved Cal a broken neck.

The band and orchestra with the Al. G. Field Genuine Negro Minstrel Co., is not by any means one of the least important features. It can be said without any fear of contradiction that it is the best colored musical organization ever put together. Mr. R. N. Thompson, director of the band and Mr. Frank Hailstock, director of the orchestra are both educated musicians of great ability and both have an unusually good set of musicians under them. The trombone solos of Mr. Fred Simpson and cornet solos of Mr. Thompson are features of the every day concerts. A grand free band concert Tuesday afternoon, Mar. 8, at 4 o'clock p. m.

D. L. Whitenack began to use the acelylene gas plant a week ago today, and we can say that his is the best lighted store in the town excepting none and uses only eleven lights. By this statement we don't mean that there are not stores which are lighter in spots, but for equal distribution and quality of illumination, the gas plant is many laps ahead. The flame is small, noiseless and pure white with no variation in intensity such as may be found in many other kinds of lighting, while the intensity is equal to 25 candle power per burner. The plant itself is small, about the size of an ordinary heating stove and handles with the utmost simplicity, while the cost per light has been a trifle less than 1-2 cent per hour. The Calcic Carbide from which the gas is made, may be bought at 4 1-2 cent per pound.

Glenn Hive L. O. T. M., of Macon, held a very interesting review last Thursday afternoon, Feb. 24. Interesting to one, at least, namely the goat. However it had on its very best behavior and carried the candidate in a manner satisfactory to every one present, candidate included. Next regular review occurs March 10th, at which all members should be present for the good of the order.

Mr. John Q. Look has taken a position with the Tecumseh State Savings bank during the absence of Geo. W. Knapp. Mr. Look is a practical banker, having had several years' experience as cashier of the Sault Savings bank at Sault St. Marie, also vice-president of Sault National bank. Mr. Look is an uncle of Mrs. S. E. Parrish and has been making his home in Tecumseh for some time and has made many friends here.

We clip the following from the Toledo Blade. Mr. Heywood is well and favorably known here, having made his home in this village some years ago. His many friends hope the report erroneous.

Longview, Tex., Feb. 26.—A desperate shooting occurred last night between Alba Heywood, manager of the Heywood Opera Company, and P. T. Pegues, the opera house manager at this place. Both are seriously if not fatally wounded. The difficulty occurred over free tickets for Mr. Pegues' family.

Remember that E. W. Howard is in the field for all your wall paper business.

The Alaskan fever has at last made itself felt in our town, the first case coming to a focus Tuesday when George W. Knapp, assistant cashier in the State Savings Bank, started for the land of promise and frozen diet. Mr. Knapp went to Detroit where he met Fred J. Boyd, a mining expert from the Houghton school, who is also an old Tecumseh boy, and the two, joining a large party will travel by way of the Canadian Pacific through the Dominion to Vancouver or Seattle, Wash., and from thence the nearest route to Copper River from which place they will work north into the interior of Alaska. We sincerely hope the boys will be among the fortunate ones who will strike rich claims this season and return in the fall with a generous supply of yellow dust.

The next entertainment of the Tecumseh Star Course will be at Sutton's opera house Monday evening March 7th, by Dr. Samuel Phelps Leland. This is the fifth entertainment of the course, is expected to be one of the most pleasing and instructive. Tickets and reserved seats now on sale at E. J. Peter's jewelery store. See what the Press says of Dr. Samuel Phelps Leland:

Dr. Leland is a gentleman of portly stature and broad good nature. The lecture was interspersed with delicate wit and humor, that pleasantly relieved the awe and mental tension accompanying a contemplation and study of the universe.—Kansas City (Mo) Daily Times.

The People's Lecture Course, which was a great success last winter, was inaugurated for the season by a lecture from Dr. Samuel Phelps Leland on "World Making." The lecture, which occupied nearly two hours, was a very happy blending of the popular and scientific. There were passages of rare beauty and eloquence; and while discussing the most intricate questions of geology and astronomy, it was done with such simplicity and pure English that the audience was held by the speaker from the first word to the last.—Pittsburg Daily Dispatch.

It costs no more to own a county directory than to go without, and it may be wonderfully convenient to have one at hand for reference now and then. The list of places in Adrian where you can secure a copy free may be found in another column. They are honorable dealers, keep first-class goods and at lowest market prices.

There is nothing that catches the general public as does a good first class minstrel show. There is the first part with its rows of marionette like figures, seated one above another, the bass drum and bass fiddle capping the pyramid. Then the deep voiced interlocutor says: "Overture, gentlemen," and they are off. The rattling of the bones, the sounding of the tambourine, the blending of the voices harmoniously in the opening chorus; here and there a few catchy bars from some opera; then a lively negro air, the dancing and prancing of the end men, and the end of the overture; the funny jokes, the pathetic ballad, the quartettes, then the Olio, then the sensational specialities, then comes the funny afterpiece and it's all over. Who don't enjoy the minstrels? A real good minstrel show is as vivifying and refreshing as a shower during a drouth. The Al. G. Field Real Negro Minstrels composed of more than 40 people will be at Sutton's Opera House, Tuesday evening, Mar. 8.

Corporation Caucus.

Notice is hereby given that the annual Corporation caucus will be held in the council building in the Village of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee, and State of Michigan, on Tuesday, March 8th, A. D. 1898, at 7:30 p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination for election candidates for the following offices, viz: One president, one clerk, one treasurer, three trustees 2 years, and one assessor.

How to Construct a Windlass of an Improved Pattern.

In the making of plans for a windlass to elevate box from wagons or sleighs, the first requisite is a building of proper dimensions and construction to make it practicable. Fig. 1 portrays one 24 by 20 feet, and allows for corn crib full length on one side. It requires three sills and two plates, three cross beams, nine posts eight feet long and double doors at each end seven feet wide; comfortable space is left to pass between two wagons side by side. A post set in the ground at center or where doors meet should be about eight or ten inches high, with groove at both sides to receive the end of board placed directly under the edge of door, which serves to keep out chickens or vermin. A groove also across the top of said post receives the door lock. A rope fastened to upper door frame and also to beam will keep the door from swinging too far back, so as not to damage hinges; foot of doors should be eight or ten inches from the ground in case of snow.

THE WINDLASS COMPLETE.

Now procure a straight stick or log (a) eight inches in diameter, to reach from first across middle beam, and placed on bearings mortised into beams as at k and braced. Eight spokes (f) mortised through near one end of log (a) and braced form the wheel (h). Spokes are notched at one end to receive chain (g), to make revolve. Notches are made near the bearing into which a dog (d) falls and serves to lock it and hold the box at any desired height. Holes are bored through windlass directly above ends of box through which runs a rope (b b) and falls down and is made forked; one end goes through a strip (c c) one by four inches, which is dovetailed at opposite end over which a loop end of forked rope passes. When strip is placed underneath the wagon box a tilting lever (e) hangs down with holes through it, which is placed on a spike driven into beam and holds aloft the dog while lowering the box. One end of dog is anchored to cross beam and passes through a slot in a strip one by three inches, which serves to guide it to place. Two pieces, one by five inches, are nailed securely to cross beam with large holes through them and placed directly under ends of spoke and serve to guide chain to place. In Fig. 1, h shows floor space overhead to store vehicles; i is space through which they are elevated. The best style of chain is such as is used on endless chain pumps. This also serves as a handy device to elevate a beef when one has occasion to butcher.. The windlass should be on opposite side from crib.—R. Logan, in Farm and Home.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Good fences will preserve friendships and save lawsuits.

Stump pullers are too cheap to permit negligence in pulling out the stumps.

There should be a forge, anvil and tools to go with them on every farm.

If there is much tile drainage to do, it will pay to hire an engineer to lay out the system.

If we would only make it a rule that nothing, not even the most insignificant thing on the farm, should go to waste, we should be that much richer.

We know of nothing that gives more satisfaction than good walks about the premises, and they can be made cheaply with cinders or boards, or even packed sand is better than nothing.

Coal ashes, we would say to an inquirer, often do soil good, not so much from their fertilizing as from their mechanical effects. Soils sometimes become disorganized and need mechanical reconstruction, which coal ashes sometimes can do.

The markets in the towns near you ought to be worked for all they are worth, especially for vegetables, fresh eggs, dairy products and fruit. We know a farmer who keeps one team and man peddling nearly all the time, and it pays him.—Western Plowman.

Concerning Book Training.

A certain amount of teaching in the different departments of the dairy and of agriculture is no doubt of great benefit to young farmers and dairymen, but it must be associated with good "common sense" if there are to be any valuable, practical results. Indeed, good "horse sense," with energy, is the largest element in the successful management of a farm or dairy. Training at the agricultural schools is very valuable, but it cannot make successful workers without the thoughtful, energetic brain to give it direction. Farmers' boys must have thought and energy or training will be of little value.

IMPROVING THE SOIL.

Clover Will Do It When All Other Means Have Failed.

Clover succeeds well on all soils where there is sufficient moisture. It grows in the eastern and central states, and as far north as Minnesota, but succeeds best on the heavy clay lands and dark soils of the south. It also succeeds well on soils too poor to produce any other crop of value. On cold clay uplands it succeeds well if the surplus water is removed by the drainage. It grows most luxuriously in dark, loamy soils with a gravel or sand drainage, not too close to the surface. Still by artificial drainage, and the application of stable and barn yard manure, it can be made to produce a heavy crop on stiff clay lands. In any system of first-class farming, on soils that will produce grain crops regularly, it can be made to play an important part and produce profitable crops. Its successful growth in the west is only limited by the lack of moisture. It is out of the question to grow it on soil too wet or too dry. It can be grown successfully in rotation with all farm crops—and we doubt not with many of the garden crops. The part it takes in a rotation depends very much on the section of country in which it is grown, and the crop most in demand. Suffice it to say that we cannot get too much of it. As a rule farmers are satisfied with too little. The shortest rotation profitable, running through a series of years, is one in which it occupies the land every third year. Say in a rotation of corn, wheat and clover; or of potatoes, wheat, and clover; or of corn, rye and clover. Where the hay crop is a profitable one, clover and timothy can follow wheat. In the first crop of hay the clover will predominate, the second will be timothy in the main, the fertilizing benefits of the clover stimulating the timothy to a remarkable degree. It should be understood by farmers that in our great farming area, where mixed farming is practiced, that clover reaches the highest state of perfection the second year after sowing. Leaving it to occupy the land longer than this results in loss. Very seldom is the third year's crop as good as the second. Usually not much more than one-half as good, aftentimes nearly a complete failure. If there is a farmer who grows wheat, corn and timothy on his land, and thinks he cannot grow clover, the best thing he can do is to know why he cannot. By his system of farming he or his progeny are sure to come to want with the increasing poverty of the soil. On such lands, clover will certainly thrive if the land is put in proper mechanical condition. It will do work in impoving the soil that no other known agency will accomplsh as well and perfectly.—John M. Jamison, in Prairie Farmer.

MODEL FARM GATE.

Its Designer Calls It the Cheapest and Best of All.

I inclose for the consideration of your readers a sketch of farm gate—the lightest, cheapest and best of all. If there is a weak spot in it I would like to have it located, and if there is any way to make one with less lumber and labor, the man who knows the fact should prove his philanthropy by publishing it. Of course the gate can be made as tall or as low as may be desired by using many or few horizontal bars. In the sketch I have employed six which, cut 1 by 4 inches and properly spaced, make the gate just 5 feet high, and the calculation is based on that number: Six horizontal bars, 1 by 4 by 11, equals 22 feet; two diagonal braces, 1 by 4 by 6½, 9 feet; four upright braces and latch, 1 by 4 by 5, 7 feet; total amount of lumber, 38 feet, at $1.50 per hundred costs 57 cents; bolts and hinges, 25 cents; nails, 5 cents; hanging and making (two hours) 20 cents; total cost of gate, $1.07. This does not include posts, as they are identical with those used with other kinds of gates. In this locality two good black locust posts of proper size would cost about 20 to 25 cents each. The one to which the gate is hung should be put at least 3 feet into the ground.—Cor. Breeder's Gazetter.

LIGHT FARM GATE.

Better Wheat Cultivation.

The farmer should endeavor to increase his production of wheat by better cultivation, rather than by planting more acres. The latter method is being adopted in other countries that have the available area. Our people have an immense area of wheat culture in foreign lands to compete with, lands where labor is cheap. Europe, except perhaps in Russia and Roumania, and India, have dense populations, and are less dangerous competitors. European and Asiatic Russia, Argentina and, perhaps before many years, large areas of Africa, will be in the market against us. We must diminish cost of production by improved methods.—Rural World.

Agricultural Appropriations.

As compared with other lines of government appropriations agriculture has always drawn quite slenderly on the public purse. The appropriations of the past eight years show up as follows: In 1890 the appropriation was $1,669,770. In 1891 this was increased to $1,796,502. In 1892 a great increase was asked for and secured, the figure being $3,028,153. This was again increased in 1893 to $3,233,061. In the next year, 1894, the high water mark of agricultural appropriations was reached, the figure being $3,323,500. In 1895 this was reduced to $3,226,915. In 1896 this was slightly increased, the total being $3,303,750. This was reduced last year to $3,255,532.

SEEKING THE TRUTH.

Congressmen Leave for Cuba on a Tour of Personal Inspection.

Washington, March 2.—A party of senators and members of the house consisting of Senators Gallinger, Thurston and Money and Representatives Amos J. Cummings and William Alden Smith and their wives left Washington yesterday for a trip to Cuba. Senator Thurston said that the trip was undertaken for the purpose of making a personal investigation into affairs in Cuba.

"It is not," he said, "in any sense an official tour, but it will naturally give us a better opportunity for investigation than we can possibly have from this distance." He said the party would be absent about ten days, which would allow several days in Cuba.

Senator Gallinger said in reply to a question that he had not exchanged a word with the president about the trip, and that it was purely a private undertaking for the purpose of making a personal inspection.

Scarcity of Food in Spain.

London, Feb. 28.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: There is an appalling scarcity of food in many provinces of Spain. The price of wheat is unprecedently high. Bread riots are of daily occurrence at Salamanca and it is feared that martial law will be proclaimed.

Indians Show Progress.

Washington, March 1.—In its twenty-eighth annual report submitted to Secretary Bliss by the border Indian commission the statement is made that the Indians are showing marked progress in educational matters and in industrial pursuits.

Long Trip Ended.

Tacoma, Wash., March 2.—The American clipper ship Tacoma arrived here yesterday, winning one of the longest races ever run. She sailed from Philadelphia October 12, making the time of her passage over a 16,000-mile course 138 days.

The Public Debt.

Washington, March 2.—The monthly treasury statement of the public debt shows that the debt, less cash in the treasury at the close of business Monday, amounted to $1,010,104,216, a decrease for the month of $1,597,122.

Victims of a Maniac.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Officer Patrick Fenton was killed and Officer Daniel Carey was fatally shot by Michael Clark, a maniac, whom they attempted to arrest Sunday night. Clark escaped, but later gave himself up.

THE LAW IS VOID.

Government Inspection of Meat Is Held to Be Illegal.

Kansas City, Mo., March 1.—The entire system of government inspection of meat which has been established in the packing houses of the United States was declared to be unconstitutional, ineffective and void in an opinion handed down in the United States district court Monday by Judge John P. Rogers, federal judge at Fort Smith, Ark., who sat for Judge Philips.

The effect of the decision is to declare invalid the law by which people who consume the products of American packing houses are protected from impure or diseased meats. It is probable that the decision will make necessary a complete reorganization of the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture.

VICTIMS OF FLAMES.

Nine Lives Lost in a Tenement House Fire in Charleston, S. C.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 26.—Nine lives were lost in a fearful fire which destroyed a tenement house in this city this morning. The dead are: Mrs. Rebecca Knickmeyer, Hobart O'Neal, Caswell O'Neal, Josephine Knickmeyer, seven years of age; Leonora Knickmeyer, nine years; Frances Knickmeyer, six years; Lillie Knickmeyer, three years; a baby of Mrs. Knickmeyer, one month old. Mrs. Knickmeyer was the wife of Theodore E. Knickmeyer, a carpenter.

Many Deaths Reported.

Nanaimo, B. C., March 1.—The steamer Oregon arrived here Monday afternoon from Skaguay and Taiya, Alaska. She had a number of passengers who are returning home disgusted with Alaska. Before the Oregon left Skaguay 17 deaths from cerebro spinal meningitis were reported in 24 hours. Dr. C. B. Estees, of Astoria, who was a passenger on the Oregon, predicts that the number of deaths will soon run into the hundreds.

MET DEATH SUDDENLY.

A Train Crashes Into a Party of Pleasure Seekers and Kills Six.

Chicago, Feb. 28. — Six persons, pleasure seekers, residents of West Harvey, were crushed to death Saturday evening at the Western avenue crossing of the Grand Trunk railroad south of Blue Island. A bus loaded with 11 men and women was struck by a passenger train. Only two of the occupants, James Rogers and J. H. McKeon, escaped injury. Instant death came to five, one died later at St. Luke's hospital and the others are dangerously wounded. The victims are:

DEAD—Thomas Hayes, Fred Pelky, Mary Reitz, Louis Souerbier, Sophia Van Buren, Jennie Willette.

INJURED—George Souerbier and Grant Walker

The accident was caused directly by the icy ground. The bus rounded a curve in the country road just before reaching the rails. There is a slight down grade beginning at the curve and the driver was unable to stop the vehicle, which slid down and on the tracks directly in front of the flying passenger train.

The victims of the disaster were on their way from West Harvey, a little village two miles south of Blue Island, to give a surprise party to one of their friends, a daughter of Ferdinand Landgraf, proprietor of the Union house, a hotel in Blue Island

HIS PARDON POLICY.

Gov. Pingree Thinks He Does State Service in Freeing Convicts.

Lansing, March 1.—Gov. Pingree has been severely criticised for the large number of convicts he has paroled during the last year. In defense of his action he says that there are so many men in some of the Michigan prisons that beds have to be provided in the hallways, and that he believes that he is doing the state a service in releasing men who have been given heavy sentences for minor offenses after they have served two or three years of their time. At any rate, he says he proposes to continue to act on this theory. On Monday the governor pardoned Elgie Stevens, sentenced from Calhoun county in December, 1896, to Ionia for three years for burglary. He also paroled the following convicts:

John S. Brown, sentenced at Detroit in March, 1896, to Ionia for three years for burglary; J. W. Badgely, sentenced from Mackinac to Marquette prison in September, 1893, for eight years for assault; Frank Bartlett, sentenced from Clinton in February, 1896, to Ionia for two years for assault, and David Smith, sent from Eaton in May, 1896, to Ionia for three years for embezzlement.

OWN THE ENTIRE SYSTEM.

All of Detroit's Street Railway Feeders Purchased by Capitalists.

Lansing, March 2.—All the street railway property and franchises in Detroit are now owned by the interests represented by Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, and Albert Pack, of Detroit. These men have for some time been at the head of the Detroit Railway company and the Citizens' Street Railway company. Tuesday they filed here articles of association of the Detroit, Fort Wayne & Belle Isle railway, the successor of the Fort Wayne & Belle Isle company, the purchase of which for $700,000 they completed Tuesday morning. The new company has a capital stock of $1,200,000, which, it is asserted, represents the actual value of the property and franchise, the capitalization of the old company being far too small. The stockholders of all three companies are now practically the same.

SEEK MICHIPICOTEN GOLD.

Prospectors Already Starting for North Shore of Lake Superior.

Sault Ste. Marie, March 1.—The Michipicoten gold fields on the Canadian shore of Lake Superior are again attracting the attention of fortune seekers. Prospectors are already starting north, and returning Indians report numerous dog-sled parties en route. The shaft of the Great Northern company is down 50 feet on its Jubilee claim near Wawa lake. The quartz at that depth contains free gold averaging $45 a ton. The Gold Fields company has a shaft down 25 feet near the mouth of Michipicoten river, and the quartz is said to be rich in gold. A large party of Ohio men have just located claims at Wawa. Miss Johnson, a Cleveland newspaper correspondent, who located a paying claim at Wawa last fall, was married to George Andrae, a half-breed, two weeks ago. A hotel is being erected at Missanabie.

SEELEY GUILTY OF BIGAMY.

Withdraws His First Plea and Now Awaits Sentence.

Kalamazoo, Feb. 26. — David Seeley changed his plea of not guilty to guilty to the charge of bigamy in the circuit court Friday mornig. This action came rather unexpectedly, as Under Sheriff Eberstein has been in New York state this week securing witnesses by which the prosecution proposed to prove Seeley's first marriage to Miss Margaret McComb at Leroy, N. Y., who now lives at Otsego. Seeley was sent to Jackson for two years in 1874 for obtaining money under false pretenses when Judge Buck was prosecuting attorney. Seeley was remanded for sentence.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Land Case Ended.

Marquette, Mich., March 3.—The case of the settlers against the Michigan Land and Iron company over the title of the company to lands which it purchased from the M. H. & O. railroad, secured by the company as a government grant to aid in construction, came to a close Sunday. The amount of land involved is 27,000 acres. The decision is not yet reached.

New Bank Commissioner.

Lansing, March 1.—George L. Maltz, of Detroit, ex-state treasurer, will be commissioner of banking for the state of Michigan instead of bank examiner for the federal government. Gov. Pingree has settled that question by appointing Mr. Maltz to the vacancy caused by the death of Bank Commissioner Just. The appointment takes effect at once.

Big Gun to Be Built.

Holland, Feb. 26. — It is reported that the Buss machine works of this city have received an order from the government for a large war gun. W. I. Buss, the manager, does not deny the rumor, but says he is not at liberty to make any statement in regard to the matter.

Two Men Instantly Killed and Several Others Hurt at Wetmore.

Wetmore, Mich., March 2.—The boilers in Clark & Acker's shingle mill exploded Tuesday evening, killing two men and seriously injuring several others. Hugh Long, a teamster, was killed instantly. Peter Morris, ex-sheriff of Alger county, was found lying dead and badly mangled near the boiler. George Moore was seriously injured and will probably die. Hiram Zantz and Peter Bolk also received serious injuries. Several others were slightly injured. Cause of the explosion unknown.

Likes Harrison's Speech.

Lansing, Feb. 25. — Gov. Pingree says he will ask ex-President Harrison's permission to have printed 20,000 copies of the speech delivered by the latter in Chicago last week for distribution in Michigan. The governor is greatly pleased with the speech, declaring that it is a forcible argument in favor of the principles of taxation which he has been advocating for the past ten years.

DOWN WITH THE DONS.
AMERICA FOREVER!

The figure was left dangling on the pole until late Tuesday afternoon and caused any amount of excitement. A hatred of everything Spanish was expressed. The small boys showed their patriotism by pelting the effigy with snowballs. Farmers coming into town greeted the sight with cheers.

INSANE MOTHER'S ACT.

With Her Two-Weeks-Old Babe in Her Arms She Leaps Into the River.

St. Joseph, March 1.—Mrs. George Davidson, aged 28 years, left her home at an early hour Monday morning with her two-weeks-old babe in her arms and drowned herself and little one in the river. She was missed soon after leaving her home, and her husband started in search of her. Neighbors said some one had passed their door before dawn with a crying child. On reaching the river bank the wife's shawl was discovered. The body of the mother was picked up by the tug Andy about daybreak. That of the infant is supposed to have floated out into the lake. The unfortunate woman was in bad health and undoubtedly insane.

Village Loses Heavily by Fire.

Watersmeet, March 3.—Fire started in Main street in the building formerly occupied by F. C. Payne & Co. Monday night, destroying the Commercial house, M. Kelly's store building, which was occupied as a dwelling; John Kelly's dry-goods store, Ted Kelly's saloon and Kelly's barber shop. The Krom building occupied by F. C. Payne & Co. was the only building in Main street that was saved. This is nearly the whole business portion of Watersmeet, and on account of having no water works the village was practically at the mercy of the flames.

Fatally Hurt.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 25.—William Maybee was struck by a train Wednesday afternoon, which he saw approaching and tried to get across the track ahead of. He sustained fatal injuries and his two horses were killed. He was a farmer of Alpine township, 50 years old.

Heiress to a Fortune.

Benton Harbor, March 1.—Mrs. Fannie McCracken, an art teacher in the college here, has fallen heir to about $100,000 by the death or a relative in St. Cloud, Minn. It is to be paid in installments, and $14,000 is the first received.

Killed by the Cars.

Ossineke, Feb. 28.—Lewis and Frank Nehring went to Alpena Saturday morning in a sleigh, and while returning Sunday night about seven o'clock was struck by an express train. Frank was killed, but Lewis was uninjured.

Grand Rapids Will Furnish Cash.

Grand Rapids, Feb. 28.—Bankers here estimate that in the event of war and a necessity for a government loan on emergency bonds this city would easily absorb $500,000 to $1,000,000 of the securities.

A BIRD ON THE BONNET.

An Odd Experience Which May Befall Any Woman.

A new danger has been found to attend the wearing of dead birds on hats and bonnets. A Shreveport (La.) paper gives an account of a singular occurrence near the town of Houghton, not far from Shreveport. A young girl of that place had bought in Shreveport a hat of the latest style, ornamented with a golden bird. She had put on the hat, which was fastened under her chin with strings, and was going out a little way into the country to show it to a friend.

She was no sooner outside the town than she noticed a large American eagle flying around over her head, and seeming to follow her. She was not disturbed, although she thought it strange.

Some seconds, later, however, she was disturbed, indeed, when she felt some great object descend upon her, and the sharp talons of an eagle piercing the sides of her head. She screamed, and for a moment believed herself to be drawn up into the air. It is scarcely possible, however, that this could actually have taken place. But it is certain that the young girl presently found herself on the ground, badly frightened and somewhat hurt, and also minus her fine new hat with the golden bird on it. This entire triumph of the milliner's art the eagle had flown away with into the upper air.

It is needless to say that she never recovered it; though whether the eagle really enjoyed his meal of stuffed and dyed bird may be doubted.

ADVICE ABOUT EATING.

Women Should Take More Time Between Meals.

It wouldn't make so much difference as to what a woman ate, says a publication which claims to be authority on culinary topics, if she would only wait long enough between meals to get hungry, but she doesn't, and there's where the trouble begins. Nature is a tenacious old jade. Given time, she will digest and assimilate almost anything that the stomach can retain.

It is a well-known fact that spells of adverse fortune are invariably accompanied by superior physical conditions. Brokers' families never look so well as during a panic. High-toned criminals invariably come out of prison in better health and face than they had when they went in. And who has not remarked the refinement of spirit and nature born of sorrow and temperance in bereaved families. It is well worth the expense of a trip to Carlsbad or Aix-les-Bains—not only to take the waters, but to learn how not to take the foods that deform and destroy the body.

Unless a woman washes or works for a living she doesn't need three meals any day of her life. It takes systematic work to consume that much fuel. Engineers are too clever to fill the furnace with coal unless there is a trip to make, an elevator to run or work to do.

It doesn't matter what a man looks like, so long as he is decent and healthy, but it is the duty of every gentlewoman to be as good looking as her circumstances will permit. Women often eat themselves ugly, ill and brutal.

ROYALTY DANCED IN BALLET.

In the "Good Old Days" It Was Considered Proper in England.

Many of the members of the English royal family are knownto take a keen interest in the drama, some of them even delighting to take part in theatrical performances. As far as is known, however, they have never indulged in ballet dancing on their own account. It was different, however, in the days of Henry VIII., for that jovial monarch of the many wives actually encouraged his daughter, Princess Mary, to appear before the court as the principal dancer in several ballets and pantomimes. When the princess first appeared in one of these ballets she wore a black crape mask, in the character of an Ethiopian princess, but she soon became emboldened, and freely took her part as a dancer in the court balls and pageants.

Princess Mary appeared before the French ambassadors at Greenwich palace in the spring of 1527, with five of her ladies in waiting, disguised in Icelandic dresses, and the contemporary chronicles inform us that, with six lords in the costume of the same country, she "danced lustily about the hall." At another banquet and masque, before the same ambassadors, Princess Mary issued from a cave with her seven women, all appareled after the Roman fashion, in rich cloth of gold and crimson tinsel.

CALKING THE HATCHES.

How the Cargo Is Kept Dry on Sailing Vessels and on Steamers.

When the loading of a ship has been completed and the hatches have been put on, every precaution is taken to make them tight, so as to keep the cargo dry during the voyage. The hatches are in sections, which rest on frames laid across the hatchway. All the seams around the coamings of the hatchway and between the sections of the hatch are calked and then pitched or painted, the entire hatch is then covered with tarapulins, which are battened down at the sides. The ship may be months at sea. She may take over her bows solid water that will sweep aft, submerging her decks like a river, and she is likely to have more or less water on deck at any time. But none of it gets below. The ship's hatches are as impervious to water as her sides, says the New York Sun.

On steamers when the hatches are put on they rest upon strips of rubber, and they are secured by means of set screws, making the hatch tight in substantially the same manner that a fruit jar is sealed.

Rabbits in St. Louis.

In one day recently nearly 90,000 rabbits were received by the St. Louis market.

IT WAS ABOUT A DOG.

An Apparently Earnest Argument with a Continuous Beginning.

The man who was waiting for a train and had nothing to do with an hour walked down the avenue to see what he could see, says the New York Sun. On a corner stood four young men engaged in apparently earnest argument. The tall, slender one in a light coat waggled a long forefinger at the others collectively, and said:

"Now, you take a dawg—"

"Do' wan' no dog," put in one of the others.

"Wha' kin' dog?" asked another.

The tall one straightened up, wabbled a bit, and returned to the argument.

"You take a dawg," he said.

"Whozh dog?" asked one of the other three.

The man waiting for a train walked on out of hearing. He made several blocks down the avenue and then turned back. The four young men still stood on the corner, and as he came near he heard the tall one say:

"Now, you take a dwag."

"Yellow dog?" asked one of the others.

"Wha'd take a dog for?" asked another.

The man walked on quickly, and as he passed out of sound the last he heard was:

"You take a dwag."

Perhaps by now the argument has reached specifications.

NO PATRIOTISM IN CHINA.

This Was Made Manifest in the War with Japan.

As for the patriotism of the Chinese, if it ever existed, it is unquestionably a thing of the past, says the Illustrated American. At the time of the war with Japan, China had two squadrons, the main or northern squadron, with headquarters at Port Arthur and Wei-Hai-Wei, and the southern squadron, composed of fine Armstrong cruisers, of gunboats and torpedo boats. As it was clear that the Japanese would carry the war into Manchuria and toward the Gulf of Petchili, the southern squadron was ordered to proceed northward and to reinforce the northern fleet. Far from obeying, the commanding admiral and his officers decided that, being a great deal safer in the south, they would quietly remain there, and go up a river, the entrance of which could be defended by torpedo mines, which they hurried to lay. Why, in the name of Confucius, should they have exposed themselves for the sake of defending the northern provinces?

About the same time the Chinese government being in need of money to carry on the war decided that a small tax would be imposed upon the tea plantations, most of whose proprietors are wealthy, or at least well-to-do people. But these patriotic citizens, in order to avoid paying that small tax, begged the foreign merchants to take the plantations in their names!

DEPOSIT OF DIAMONDS.

Valuable Gems Found Associated with Tin Ore in Australia.

An interesting occurrence of tin ore and diamonds, which is believed to be unique, is described in the recently-issued report of the department of mines and agriculutre of New South Wales for 1896. Gravel containing cassiterite in workable quantities, together with diamonds, was discovered last year at Boggy camp, 15 miles west of Tingha, which has been for some time a productive tin field.

The pay streak at Boggy camp, which is from 30 to 50 feet deep, averages from two to seven feet in thickness, the width of the lead not yet having been ascertained. One load of gravel yielded 515 stones of 184 karats aggregate weight and 42 loads furnished 600 karats of diamonds and tinstone at the rate of 13 pounds per load. The pay streak is a quartz pebble drift underlying a large hill of basalt. E. F. Pitman, the government geologist who examined the occurrence, considers that the basalt filled what was originally an oval-shaped depression.

The gravel rests on granite, and granite can be traced entirely around the basalt. The diamonds are white and of good quality, and it is thought that when the gravel is drained the district will make a considerable production.

TO SURPASS NIAGARA.

An English Paper's Account of an American Project.

Big as the Niagara scheme is, work has just commenced upon a still larger scheme of water power development near Massena, on the St. Lawrence river, United States of America, says Chambers' Journal. It is intended to develop here 150,000 horse power by taking advantage of the difference in level between the St. Lawrence river and the Grass river, flowing nearly parallel to it at a distance of 3½ miles. A big canal is to be cut across the intervening plateau, and a fall of water 50 feet in height thus obtained on the banks of the Grass river. The latter river will itself form the "tail race" of the power station.

This scheme dwarfs the Niagara one, since not only do the plans provide for a greater amount of power, but man is going to do what nature has done for him at Niagara—namely, provide the waterfall. The necessary capital for carrying out this scheme has been provided, work has been commenced, and it is hoped that some of the turbines and dynamos will be working by December, 1898. If no unforeseen difficulty occur, and if this scheme be completed by the date named, it will certainly form one of the most remarkable achievements of the century.

Queer Greetings.

A South Sea islander greets a friend by flinging a jar of water over his head. In Russia it is correct for gentlemen to press the foreheads of ladies whom they know intimately with their lips; and in Germany and other continental nations kissing between men is by no means uncommon.

A HALF SCORE ARE DEAD.

The City of Kalamazoo Is the Scene of a Horribly Fatal Disaster, Caused by Fire.

LABORATORY OF HULL BROS. BURNS.

Explosion of Chemicals Blows the Blazing Building to Pieces—Ten Citizens and Firemen Are Killed and Fourteen Others Are Badly Injured.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 28.—While firemen were trying to extinguish a fire in the second story of Hall Bros. laboratory Saturday night a terrific explosion took place, blowing the roof and the walls of the building into the street. Ten men were killed and fourteen injured, as follows:

DEAD—George Halliday, engine driver; Pat McHugh, pipeman; John Hastings, Jr., hoseman; Charles Whiting, spectator; James Quigley, spectator; William Wager, fireman; L. L. Holloway, druggist; Frank Auwers, fireman; Eugene Dole, fireman; Joseph Clifford, telephone lineman.

INJURED—Will Hastings, scalp badly cut and right foot blown off, necessitating amputation; James Utter, driver, both legs broken; John McDermott, fireman, leg broken, face badly burned; Ordway Knight, fireman, head badly cut; George Chatterton, back broken, leg injured; Victor Vocelle, scalp badly cut, skull injured; Fred Stohrer, hip injured; John McAllister, fireman, leg broken; six others received lesser injuries.

Firemen were perched upon ladders on several sides of the building and they were buried in the great heaps of debris. The flames shot up 100 feet, and then after a moment two more explosions occurred. The shocks broke many windows in other buildings, horses were knocked down, and spectators thrown off their feet. The loss will be $30,000, upon which there is an insurance of $18,000. The Kalamazoo Paper Box company occupied the same building, and its loss is $6,000; insurance, $4,225. Some of the debris was blown across the tracks of the Michigan Central railroad, and it will stop traffic for several hours. A fire engine was covered up by the bricks, mortar and timbers, and the horses ran away, dashing into the crowd.

The bodies of Eugene Dole and William Wagar, both firemen, were taken from the ruins Sunday. Early Sunday morning a force of men was set at work, and at noon the mangled body of Joseph Clifford, a laundry employe, was found. Other bodies are supposed to be still in the building, as two boys, Phillips and West, and a Michigan Central brakeman, are missing.

Kalamazoo, March 3.—Business was generally suspended here Tuesday on account of the funerals of seven of the victims of Saturday night's explosion, with Rev. F. A. O'Brien officiating at high mass. Sixty firemen from neighboring Michigan and Indiana cities acted as escort to the cemetery. Memorial service will be held this afternoon.

EARNINGS OF MICHIGAN ROADS.

MONEY IN OLD TRUNK.

Junk Dealer Finds $5,000 Which His Demented Wife Had Secreted.

Saginaw, Feb. 26. — Christopher H. Sternhagen, a wealthy junk dealer of this place, while cleaning out an old closet in an unused portion of his house, found $5,000 in coin and bills stored away in an old trunk. From time to time during the past 20 years Mr. Sternhagen has missed sums from his business and it now appears that his wife, who is demented, is responsble for the strange accumulation.

Adventists to Meet.

Battle Creek, Feb. 27.—There is to be an important meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists in this city March 16, lasting three weeks. It is the board of trustees of the general conference for the world. This week's issue of their official organ makes an urgent appeal to the members throughout the world to make sacrifices for the cause and to make liberal donations for the work of the coming year. To those who cannot donate outright they make an appeal to loan the denomination all the money they can without interest. They expect to realize several hundred thousand dollars in this manner.

Prof. Ashley Installed.

Albion, Mich., Feb. 24. — The installation of Prof. John P. Ashley as president of Albion seminary took place Wednesday in the presence of a large number of prominent Methodists. The charge to the new president was delivered by Bishop W. X. Ninde, of Detroit. President Ashley succeeds Prof. Samuel Dickey, who for many years has been chairman of the executive committee of the national prohibition party.

STATE LAND IN TAX SALE.

Three Business Lots in Lansing Bought by Title Dealers.

Lansing, Feb. 26. — Three business lots, on which a handsome business block owned by the state in this city is located, were returned delinquent for a sidewalk tax a year ago and were this month purchased by a couple of tax-title dealers. The property is valued at $35,000 and the price paid by the dealers was $10. The tax sale is probably invalid, state property being exempt from taxation, but the purchasers propose to fight the case.

Reported to Exceed Those of Corresponding Period Last Year.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 26.—Twelve railroad companies have thus far reported to the commissioner of railroads their Michigan earnings for January. These companies earned an aggregate of $1,213,039, an increase of $145,556 over the earnings of January, 1896. Commissioner Wesselius estimates that last month's increase for all Michigan roads will approximate 15 per cent., traffic having been steadily growing since the first of the year. All the companies report that they have all the business they can handle.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Could Not Weaken Such Testimony As This.

(From the Kalamazoo Telegraph.)

The following statement is one of great interest to many a citizen of Kalamazoo, and a man as well known as Mr. Wallace should carry more than ordinary weight with our readers. Here it is as taken down by our representative:

"My name is John A. Wallace. I am a member of the firm of J. A. Wallace & Co., doing business as tinners, etc., at 106 Eleanor Street, Kalamazoo, in which city I also reside. For the past nine or ten months I have been having attacks of kidney complaint, the pain in my back over my hips was very severe at times; my urinary system was also in a bad state of derangement, sometimes the urine was scanty and then again the amount would be excessive, and a difficulty of passage always existed. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills at a time when I felt that I was going to be sick, but their use warded off an attack, and I am now feeling very much better; the urinary organism has regained a normal condition, and the terrific pain in my back is much reduced in severity, while it is now fast going away altogether. I am continuing the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, with positive feeling that they will effect on me a permanent and speedy cure. I have unbounded confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all kidney ailments; have good reason to be, as they have done so much for me."

Can you ask any more than this? Doan's Kidney Pills are relieving more backs of the burdens they have been forced to bear through the kidneys than all other means devised, and, better still, they are doing this right here in Michigan. Ask any one who has ever taken them and see what they will say.

Cleveland Letter.

The news of dear old Tecumseh's good fortune in being made one of the division centres of the new D. & L. N. R. R. has spread abroad and been mentioned in some of our Cleveland dailies Good fortune is hardly the word either to define an advantage that was secured by liberal gifts and earnest work. You are feeling already, no doubt, some of the benefits, which it was your aim to obtain, in the shape of a larger population and an increase of trade. We used to think that Tecumseh was an ideal place for a quiet retreat from the turmoil of the outside world or for spending a pleasant summer vacation. A pleasant place it will no doubt continue to be. It could hardly be otherwise, with its wide well kept streets, its neat and tasteful homes, its refined society and the fine farming country roundabout. There is an attraction, however, about places that are growing and improving and which have some enterprise and bustle about them, which stagnant ones do not possess. What is it Shakespeare says? "To be finished, my lord, is to hang like ancient armor on a rusty nail, in monumental mockery"—or something to this effect. Finished characters, as well as finished towns are rather out of place in this progressive world. "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those which are before," is a good attitude for a living person to maintain. It is especially good for those who have youth and vigor and therefore opportunity on their side. That was excellent counsel which the uncle of the famous painter, Paul Veronese gave to him before he had achieved his fame, "One has never done well enough when he can do better; one never knows enough when he can know more." Could there be a better motto for the young people of Tecumseh to adopt? The city of Cleveland always has a boom on hand. It certainly is growing gradually and healthily, but not so fast perhaps as has be n claimed. Residents of the "Forest ity" claim a larger population than ther Buffalo or Cincinnati, which are regarded as rivals. There seems to be a fair prospect that this city is to be the great center soon of the iron trade and manufacture. So Mr. Carnegie, the iron king of Pittsburg, prophecies. If coal smoke is to decide the question of supremacy in this trade, our New Burg quarter is as dark and dismal from it as the blackest locality in the city of Pitt.

We have just been entertaining the most remarkable conventions that ever met in any city, the third triennial of the International Students' Volunteer Missionary Association. Fully 2.000 delegates were present from the United States, Canada, Great Britton, etc., some being veteran missionaries from far distant lands. But there were at least 1500 students of colleges and medical schools and theological seminaries here, 1000 of whom had pledged themselves to devote their lives to missionary work in foreign fields. The meetings held filled Gray's Armory and overflow meetings filled daily one or two places beside. Our Y. M. C. A. building was a perfect beehive of activity during the entire convention which was from Feb. 23 to 28. Impressions were made on persons indifferent and opposed to the effort to give the Christian religion to the world as well as on those already friends of missions that will not soon be effaced. There is a moral sublimity in this association, composed of different denominations and all of them earnest, intelligent young men and women that is inspiring. In view of such spontaneous movements what becomes of the assertion we sometimes hear from uninformed and prejudiced sources that Christianity and the church of Christ are both dying out?

It is pleasant to know that the churches of Tecumseh, so far from dying out are in good condition, provided with faithful and competent pastors and are doing good work for the Master. The HERALD goes into many families in and near Tecumseh, which it was our privilege to visit in former years, will you permit it to bear to them with this best wishes for all their members.

W. H. BABBITT.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, March 2, 1898.

Wheat continued its upward march to-day, the May option crossing 107, and the people who have been predicting a slump are in worse position than ever before. Schwartz, Dupee & Co's reports, both in this country and Europe, tend to show that the confidence of those who believe in higher prices for all cereals is not misplaced. It has all along been argued that the shipments of wheat to Europe would decrease, but such has not proven to be the case, and with an admitted shortage in this country the conditions are such that a material advance from present values could easily take place in a perfectly normal manner. The traders who have for months arrayed themselves on the bear side only to meet defeat at every turn, are now thoroughly discouraged, and from now on their resistance will indeed be feeble. On the other hand the bulls are confident because their operations thus far have been eminently successful and to-day they are talking confidently of $1.25 for May wheat and $1 for July.

Corn and oats hold their own remarkably well, the former in the face of large receipts every day at primary points. Provisions have had quite a drop from top prices, and as the shipments continue to be large and cash trade excellent there is no disposition on the part of large holders to sell at present prices. The price range to-day in wheat was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
May - - -	107	105 1-4	106 7-8
July - - -	92 1-8	91	91

Henry Carlisle, of Hudson, fell down the door steps and ripped a couple of ribs loose from the back bone one day last week.

A window sign in one of our near-by towns reads thus: "Satin dyed here." A small boy who saw it went home and told his mother that the devil was dead.—Onsted News.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

R. G. White, of Blissfield, chased an unruly pig, slipped on a rusty nail and and is now laid up for repairs.

Marvin Kelley is a Hudson man, who imagined his face was harder than an ax so he fell upon the edge of one with great aridity and split his proboscis open the whole length.

Wm. Maloney, of Palmyra, while chopping wood the other day clipped off two of his toes. Whether he was looking forward to trouble with Spain and would avoid a draft we are unable to say.

There was consternation in Hillsdale when a Jersey cow, an old horse and two Thomas cats died at nearly the same time. For a few days it was as hard to sell sausage as in Chicago during the Leutgart trial.—Hudson Post.

A dog with a fit scared the whole town of Onsted into a mad dog panic the other night, but before a loaded gun could be found in the blooming place, his dogship had entirely recovered his balance and yet lives to tell his marvelous escape.

Mary had a Billy goat, its tail was sort o' bent, and everywhere that Mary goes that goat is sure to went. He followed her to school one day, which made her hot as fire, for Mary had ridden on her wheel, and Billy ate the tire.—Hudson News.

While going for a doctor for a neighbor Friday, Fred Robinson on the Tecumseh road, had a sad mishap, the horse which he was riding fell and Fred landed under the horse, breaking both bones of his leg above the ankle.—Saline Observer.

Deputy State Game and Fish Warden L. Whitney Watkins received by express here on Tuesday morning, 7,000 brook trout, which he will plant in suitable streams in this vicinity. The little fellows were only "pin heads" but in a few years we trust they will furnish much sport for devotees of the rod. He says he intends to plant large numbers of pickerel, brown bass, etc., in our surrounding lakes, in the near future. Every true sportsman will undoubtedly appreciate his efforts in this direction, as well as his vigorous prosecutions of all violators of the game laws.—Manchester Enterprise.

Niles, Mich., Feb. 25.—A farmer residing near this city was swindled recently by a new scheme which has just been put into practice. A couple of men drove on his premises and presented papers purporting to give state authority for examination of wells and cisterns under the pure food law. They inspected the water through a microscope, and found all kinds of microbes, bacteria, cholera germs and typhoid fever bugs. They permitted the farmer and his other half to look through the microstope they carried. Of course they saw a managerie that always was and always will be contained in a drop of water. The thoroughly frightened farm folks were advised to apply certain remedies, the fakirs sold to them at a high figure and then went on their swindling way. An analysis of the remedy proved to be plain soda, and nothing more.—Free Press.

Mrs. Hannah Day.

At supper time on Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. Day was stricken with apoplexy and died a few hours later. The funeral occurred on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. W. F. Jones officiating.

Hannah McCoy was born in Antrim county, Ireland, 76 years ago. She was married in early life to Wm. Kennedy, by whom she had one child, Mrs. Wm. Lowry, of this place, in whose home she died. Twenty-two years ago Mr. Kennedy died and his wife came to America in 1881. Twelve years ago she was married to Ezra Day, of Tecumseh. One and a half years ago Mr. Day died, since which time Mrs Day has lived with her daughter. She united with the Presbyterian church in Ireland in early life. In 1885 she united with the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh. Her last words were "I'll soon be at rest."

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to extend our thanks to our many friends for their help and sympathy in our bereavement and especially to the Presbyterian choir for their assistance at the funeral.

MR. AND MRS. W. A. LOWRY
AND FAMILY.

THE CHURCHES.

The regular services of the Friend's church, will be as usual. Preaching Sunday morning and evening by the pastor, Mrs. Lida G. Romick. Sabbath school immediately following morning service and C. E. meeting at 6 o'clock.

The churches were well filled last Sunday, to hear Rev. Brant and Rev. Barnes speak in the interests of the Anti Saloon League. The gentlemen were pleasing talkers and interested a number of the church societies in the work. Quite a generous collection and guarantee fund were raised and committees were appointed to further the local work.

Morning subject at the Presbyterian church next Sunday, "Sabbath Observance;" evening, "The Social Life of Young People." Next Sunday evening, the pastor will begin a series of sermons, entitled "Life Lessons for Young Men and Young Women." The following subjects will be discussed:

March 6. The Social Life of Young People.
March 13. The Young Woman's Ideal Young Man.
March 27. The Young Man's Ideal Young Woman.
April 3. Life's Chief Concern.
April 10. Reading.

The pastor hopes to make these sermons of profit to the young men and women, and cordially invites them all to be present.

High School Happenings.

The botany class numbers forty-two this spring.

Miss Mabel Smith, class of '96, visited her old friends here Monday.

Miss Alice McCowen has been absent this week on account of illness.

Miss Lehn, of Manchester, a guest of Miss Lena Arnold, called at the A room on Monday.

The third and fourth grades at the east branch are very much over crowded just now.

The class in physics have completed the section on sound and will seek "light" next week.

Miss Lilla Norris, of the North branch took an enforced vacation last Monday on account of illness.

Albert Rector is out of school this week owing to weak eyes. We hope he will be able to rejoin us soon.

English IV are reviewing grammar and will soon take up Lowell's "Vision of Sir Launfel" and Burke's speech on "Conciliation."

The seventh grade have begun the study of United States history. Wednesday they had an exhibition, a miniature birch bark canoe and Indian boxes and baskets to illustrate their work.

High School Oratorical Contest.

Two years ago, the Michigan high school oratorical association was organized. The state is divided into six districts in each of which a contest will be held March 25th. Those who win in these contests, will meet at Albion April 29th to contest for the state championship. The first district includes Jackson, Tecumseh, Ypsilanti, Adrian and Macon, and representatives from these schools will meet at Adrian March 25 for the district contest. In order to select a representative of the Tecumseh high school, a local contest will be held at the Baptist church on Friday evening March 11, at eight o'clock, when six pupils will take part. Music will be furnished by high school students. An admission of ten cents will be charged to defray expenses, and every one is invited to attend.

Improvement in Obituary Resolutions.

There has been a great and general improvement within fifteen years in the phrasing of obituary resolutions. Persons, still pitiably young, may remember when almost all the formal obituary resolutions that appeared in the newspapers began: "Whereas it has pleased an inscrutable Providence to remove our late neighbor, James Smith, Resolved, That we submit," etc. This form seems no longer to be in general use. The resolutions of the day take some things for granted, and are a good deal more tersely and simply contrived.—Harper's Weekly.

LITERARY NOTES.

The complete novel in the March issue of Lippincott's is "An American Aspirant," by Jennie Bullard Waterbury. It deals with the fortunes and misfortunes of a spirited young lady who studies music in Paris and hopes to become a prima donna. The moral drawn by the author for such as contemplate similar efforts is, Dont. "The Civil Authority" is a powerful story of a weak-kneed sheriff, a resolute captain and a company of the National Guard which attempted to defend a jail against a mob. It is by Henry Holcomb Bennett.

To all those who are now waiting and watching the daily papers, to learn the adventures experienced and the results obtained by the government divers who are now exploring the wreck of the gallant Maine, the concluding pages of F. Hopkinson Smith's story of Caleb West the Diver, in the March Atlantic, will have an especial interest. Writing from experience, Mr. Smith takes his readers into the investigation, not of a sunken ship, but of a railroad train, plunged through an open draw into the slimy bottom of a deep river; and he paints with the lifelike touch of a skilled expert the methods, details and results of the same skillful and ghastly work which is now going on amid the wrecked timbers of the Maine.

When you meet a girl carrying what looks to be a pair of pretty little scarlet morocco volumes bound together, do not be too sure that they are prayer-book and hymnal—even during these Lenten days. The newest cases for playing cards are of red morocco, just the shape and size and clasping of the combined prayer-book and hymnal; and with nothing of the inside showing but the demure gilt edges of the two packs of cards, and all under cover of the eminently ecclesiastic scarlet, the illusion is perfect. If one had ever the desire to appear pious when in reality on pleasure bent, she has here a convenient shield ready to her hand, and an opportunity that no telltale conventional case for playing cards could ever hope to bring about. But the chief charm of the new case is its ability to lay bare the gullibility of the average human being Not one in ten of those who see the little red morocco h pocrisy for the first time but takes it to be the real thing.—Harper's Bazar.

JOSE WORRIES HIS MOTHER.

Young Venezuelan Has Become a Yankee Maniac and Rides a Wheel.

In America there is a type of individual who turns up his trousers, docks his horse's tail, and when he travels hands in his brasses to redeem his luggage. Among the native-born Venezuelans his prototype, according to a writer in the New York Tribune, is numerous and diversified. Sometimes he has been educated at Harvard or Yale; then he is a "Yankee maniac."

He is unduly energetic, and vainly endeavors to inspire in his companions a love of football. He dresses in tweed, and has been known to ride a bicycle, when he becomes an object of interest to the community and of anxiety to his unsophisticated mamma. She calls the blessed saints to witness the scandal of it! That her young Jose should expose to the world the calves of his legs, put a peaked cap upon his head, and go tearing through the streets on a two-wheeled machine, followed by an excited crowd of riffraff—bringing to their windows as many interested but more dignified spectators; it is dreadful! She talks to Jose by the hour, but he only laughs and persists in his wickedness.

He even goes further. He becomes acquainted with the foreign tourists at the hotels, girls of the most immodest appearance, who wear coats like men, and shirts, and stiff collars and cravats and sailor hats. They go upon the streets, these boy-girls, unchaperoned, carrying a little black instrument with which they take everybody's picture, and often they are accompanied by Jose.

He says they belong to the best North American families, which is a statement that Jose's mother cannot bring herself to believe.

A WASHINGTON MUSICALE.

How the Rich Winter Residents of the National Capital Entertain.

"A cabinet member's wife," writing her "Inner Experiences," in Ladies, Home Journal, presents an interesting glimpse of the lavish entertainments given by the wealthy winter residents of Washington: "The Swaggers' home," she writes, "comes quite up to our childish idea of a palace, even to the golden dishes, of which they have a set, I believe. I never saw so many flowers used at one time before as at that musicale. There were not more than 150 guests present. You will hardly believe me when I tell you that the music of the evening cost $5,000. There was a string quartette from Boston, which played music far beyond my comprehension; but I know this much, they played like one man doing it all, instead of four. Then there were three singers from the Metropolitan Opera House company in New York, each one paid $1,000 for the night. A pretty girl played the violin beautifully, and I suppose she also got a thousand for her performance.

"The collation was beyond my description, even though I do know more about food than music. In this instance the eats' were so fearfully and wonderfully made that an ordinary home cook (now out of practice) had not an idea even of their names. I verily believe they must have spent another $5,000 on the supper, because there were so many imported dishes. The family attache on a salary was ubiquitous. He is a fine-looking man, of remarkable ability in his way, I should think, after seeing the wonders he and plenty of money wrought that night."

LEE WILL STAY IN CUBA.

Spain's Request That Our Consul General Be Recalled Refused by President McKinley.

CONGRESS STANDS BY THE PRESIDENT.

Americans in Havana Talk of War Plans—Spaniards Look for an Attack—Warships Going to Havana—Spain Withdraws Her Request—The Court of Inquiry.

Washington, March 7.—The Spanish situation developed two new phases Sunday, when it became known that the Spanish government had formally requested the recall of Consul General Lee at his post at Havana, to which request the United States had courteously but firmly refused to comply; also that the Spanish government has suggested the impropriety of sending relief supplies to the Cuban reconcentradoes on the cruiser Montgomery and gunboat Nashville, to which suggestion the United States had given a like answer in the negative.

The first intimation of these steps came in a brief and explicit cable dispatch from Madrid. Prior to its receipt, however, the authorities here had been fully conversant with the facts, although no intimation had been allowed to get to the public on either subject. The disclosures from Madrid left no further ground for reticence in Washington, and after a conference at the white house between the president, Assistant Secretary Day, of the state department, and Secretary Long, of the navy department, the following authorized statement was given out by Judge Day, as comprising everything that was to be said by the administration on the subject:

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE.

President Refuses.

"The president will not consider the recall of Gen. Lee. He has borne himself throughout this crisis with judgment, fidelity and courage, to the president's entire satisfaction.

"As to the supplies for the relief of the Cuban people, all arrangements have been made to carry a consignment this week from Key West by one of the naval vessels, whichever may be best adapted and most available for the purpose, to Matanzas and Sagua."

Beyond the foregoing those who had participated in the conference at the white house would not discuss the subject, and it was stated positively that the authorized statement comprised everything that would be given to anyone.

Stand by the President.

Washington, March 7.—Every member of congress who could be found stands by the president in his refusal to recall Lee and his declination to abandon the plan of sending relief to Cuba in war vessels. To a man, irrespective of party, the president will be sustained by them. It is noteworthy that throughout the long delay and the various controversies over Cuba and the Spanish complications not one word of censure has been heard of Gen. Lee from republican, democrat or populist. All believe Gen. Lee is the one American who can fill the position at Havana, and with one accord they will sustain the president, even should the stand lead to war.

Talk of War Plans.

Havana, March 7.—As the conviction becomes settled that the court of inquiry will decide that there was a mine explosion under the Maine discussion among American naval officers and civilians here is prevalent as to the warlike measures which it is believed the United States government will adopt in case the question of the payment of indemnity by Spain is overruled. A majority believe that American troops will be landed at some point east of Havana and the insurgents communicated with, that the Spanish soldiery will be defeated or captured in detail, and that in the meantime a fleet of United States vessels will blockade, if not bombard Havana

Spaniards Look for an Attack.

That some Spaniards are of the opinion that an attack on Havana will be made is believed to be shown by the abnormal activity displayed on board the Vizcaya. On the best naval authority the statement is made that the Vizcaya is in a constant state of readiness for emergencies, and that picket boats are on the alert day and night inside the harbor and outside the harbor at night.

Many Warships to Go to Havana.

Key West, Fla., March 7.—The American colony in Havana is in a feverish state of excitement. Rumors that preparations for war are being made by the United States have reached the city and have caused great consternation. Thirty-eight warships will be at Key West and vicinity within the next 30 days.

Spain Backs Down.

Washington, March 8.—Spain has withdrawn her request for the recall of Consul-General Lee and it is now believed that the incident is practically closed.

The withdrawal came yesterday in the shape of an official communication from Minister Woodford. It is now stated that the request was never put in the shape of a demand, but that it was merely a suggestion on the part of Spain, and when she found that it would not be pleasantly received by this country she promptly receded.

It is learned that the Spanish objection to Consul-General Lee is based upon his sympathy for the Cubans and some of his utterances which have found their way into print.

Cruiser to Go to Havana.

The navy department announced yesterday that the cruiser Montgomery would relieve the dispatch boat Fern at Havana and that the Fern would carry provisions and relief supplies to Matanzas and Sagua La Grande. This is understood to be a satisfactory arrangement to the Spanish government and will relieve the incident of its irritating feature.

Lee Will Do His Duty.

Havana, March 8.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, consul general of the United States, was questioned yesterday regarding Spain's demand for his recall. He said: "I shall continue to do my duty, which is to guard American interests."

Not So Warlike.

Washington, March 9.—In spite of numerous conferences of officials, of the continuation of the preparations now in progress on a large scale to put the country in a state of defense, of the outburst of patriotic speeches in congress, there was a certain feeling apparent in the best informed circles that the situation as to our relations with Spain is much more favorable than it was. Perhaps the semi-official advices received from Madrid, indicating a peaceful purpose on the part of the Spanish government contributed in large measures to that feeling, or it may have been that the growing knowledge of the vast extent of our own resources tended to the belief that they would impress others with the futility of attacking the United States. However that may be, the feeling prevailed and at the white house, too, after the cabinet meeting, wherein all of the facts that were known to the president as to the existing state of affairs were laid unreservedly before the cabinet members and discussed.

Nothing Known Officially.

Three weeks ago the Maine was blown up. As it was last week at this time, so it is now, nothing is known officially as to the cause of the disaster. The court is at work hard. That is all that is known at the navy department. It is not even known when it may be expected to finish its work. But the importance of its report does not diminish in the slightest degree by the lapse of time, and in the midst of diversions caused by more recent happenings the more thoughtful officials have not lost sight of the fact that when the report of the court of inquiry comes to the navy department in the hands of some trusty naval officer, probably Lieutenant Commander Marix himself, the judge advocate of the court, the government may be face to face with another and vital issue.

Talks of the Situation.

Senor Du Bosc, when seen at the Spanish legation and asked as to the present status of affairs, said:

"Notwithstanding the apparent agitation, I am gratified to note that so far as actual occurrences are concerned, they are adjusting themselves naturally and in a manner most satisfactory to both governments. The Lee incident is closed, if, indeed, it was ever open. At most it was a misapprehension of what actually occurred. I am directly authorized by Senor Gullen, the minister of foreign affairs, to deny that any demand or request has ever been made for the recall of Consul-General Lee, and it is unfortunate and misleading for the reports to be printed that Spain has withdrawn a request or demand never in fact made. The entire matter appears to have arisen out of some suggestion as to the propriety of certain conduct, just as any official action relating to two governments may be discussed in a friendly spirit and with no thought of eventualities on the subject. But, in any event, the incident is closed and has no further bearing on the general condition of affairs.

"The matter of sending relief supplies to Cuba in war ships is also satisfactorily adjusted, and, so far as it ever amounted to an incident, it, also, is closed. These are the two passing occurrences which have appeared to awaken agitation, and, being closed, I cannot see any substantial reason for further agitation.

"So far as the defense bill in congress is concerned, diplomatic etiquette precludes my discussing it. But I may say, unofficially, that it seems to be a quite natural result from the undue importance attached by the public to incidents, now closed. In normal times these passing incidents of the day—which are inevitable to diplomatic intercourse between nations—could not be seized upon by the radical branch of the press to inflame public opinion."

Luetgert Goes to Prison.

Chicago, March 7.—Adolph L. Luetgert was taken from the county jail Saturday and placed in the state prison at Joliet, there to remain for the rest of his natural life, for the murder of his wife—unless he is given a new trial and gets an acquittal through action of the supreme court of the state.

Kansas Republicans.

Topeka, Kan., March 9.—The republican state central committee met here and authorized the holding of the state convention at Hutchinson on June 8. A full state ticket will be nominated.

PINGREE ISSUES A CALL.

The Governor Summons the State Legislature to Assemble in Special Session.

IT WILL MEET ON TUESDAY, MARCH 22.

Text of Mr. Pingree's Proclamation—The Principal Questions Upon Which Action Should Be Taken Are Those of Taxation of Railroad and Express Companies.

Lansing, March 9.—The following proclamation, convening a special session of the legislature, was issued by Gov. Pingree Tuesday:

"By section 6 of article 5 of the constitution of the state of Michigan it is provided that the governor shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed.

"By section 7 of the same article he is given the power to convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions.

"By section 11 of article 14 it is made the duty of the legislature to provide a uniform rule of tax.

"By section 12 of the same article 'all assessments hereafter authorized shall be on property at its cash value.'

"These provisions have been a part of the fundamental law of this state since 1850. In violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of these provisions of the constitution laws have been passed from time to time by which railroad companies, express companies, telegraph and telephone companies now owning, according to their sworn returns, at least one-third of the property of this state, are required to pay only about one-twenty-sixth of the taxes levied for state, county and municipal purposes, leaving their just proportion of supporting our schools, asylums and other public institutions and defraying the public expenses to fall upon the farmers, laborers and manufacturers and other property-owners of the state.

"Taxation has in many parts of the state become in the nature of confiscation, the amount levied being greater than the property taxed can be made to produce. I regard the situation as extraordinary and one that demands an immediate remedy, which can only be given by the legislature.

"It is the duty of the governor, under his oath of office, to see that the constitution of the state is obeyed, and the laws faithfully executed, and to submit to the legislature, from time to time, his views upon existing mischiefs, so that a remedy can be provided.

"In obedience to this duty I hereby call the legislature of the state to meet in extraordinary session on Tuesday, March 22, 1898, at noon of that day, to consider the question of the taxation of railroad companies, express companies and such other matters as shall be submitted by special message."

EPIDEMIC OF FEVER.

Physicians at St. Clair Differ as to Its Exact Nature.

St. Clair, March 5.—The state board of health has been called upon to determine whether an epidemic of fever, which has been running its course here, is malarial or of a typhoid nature. Local physicians cannot agree, and a quarrel is the result. There have been over 100 cases reported to Health Officer Inches, yet but two fever patients have died. In these two cases the patients were recovering from the measles when stricken with the epidemic. A representative of the state board of health is expected here to determine the character and cause of the epidemic.

A GIRL'S HEROISM.

Saves Three Persons from a Burning House at Great Risk.

Mount Clemens, March 8.—At an early hour Monday morning Miss Winifred Ferrin, deputy city clerk, discovered that the residence of Herman Orbitz, a neighbor, was on fire. At great peril she fought her way through smoke and fire and succeeded in dragging Mrs. Orbitz and two children out of the building. Miss Ferrin made three trips, and was prostrated by the heat and smoke. The residence was completely destroyed.

Wheat in Good Condition.

Lansing, March 9. — The Michigan crop report for March says that wheat throughout the state has been well covered with snow during the last month and has not been injured. The amount of last year's crop thus far marketed is 11,359,400 bushels, or 4,481,957 bushels more than was marketed at this time last year. It is estimated that the farmers still have 5,165,000 bushels for the market. This year's acreage is estimated at 1,600,000 acres.

Second in the List.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The treasury department has prepared a statement showing the amount of domestic merchandise which last year passed from one point in the United States to another through Canada under bond. The amount of merchandise so shipped is shown to have been 5,351,350 tons. Michigan shipped 1,333,936 tons, and was second in the amount of tonnage to Illinois alone, which shipped 1,407,835 tons.

Suspected of Parricide.

Bay City, March 7.—Charles Bock, of Pinconning, was brought to the city in custody Sunday afternoon pending investigation into the death of his father, Henry Bock, who died suddenly last week. An examination of the deceased's body discloses bruises on his head and a blood clot on the brain. Neighbors assert that the family had frequent rows.

Loss, $200,000.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 4.—Fire destroyed the McMillan opera house and Pomeroy blocks. Loss about $200,000.

The Royal is the highest grade baking powder known. Actual tests show it goes one-third further than any other brand.

Her Health Restored

THE misery of sleeplessness can only be realized by those who have experienced it. Nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, neuralgia and that miserable feeling of unrest, can surely be cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. So certain is Dr. Miles of this fact that all druggists are authorized to refund price paid for the first bottle tried, providing it does not benefit.

Mrs. Henry Bruns, wife of the well known blacksmith at Grand Junction, Iowa, says: "I was troubled with sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and irregular menstruation; suffering untold misery for years. I used various advertised remedies for female complaints besides being under the care of local physicians, without help. I noticed in Dr. Miles' advertisement the testimonial of a lady cured of ailments similar to mine, and I shall never cease to thank that lady. Her testimonial induced me to use Dr. Miles' Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills, which restored me to health. I cannot say enough for Dr. Miles' Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

PUBLISH MY LETTER

So That Women May Know Where to Find Relief

Such is the request of Mrs. L. M. Haynes, Springfield, Mo. (General delivery). A part of Mrs. Haynes' letter reads as follows: "I wrote to you in May, 1897; I was about to give it up, for I had the best four doctors in the city and they could not cure me. My disease was female weakness. I had been troubled with it for five years or and a half bottles of Pe-ru-na cured me. I hope all suffering women will take Pe ru-na. I know it will cure others also. I cannot praise Pe-ru- na enough." Bear in mind that female weakness is pelvic catarrh, to which women are peculiarly liable, and from which few are entirely exempt. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located. "Health and Beauty," a book devoted to the phase of catarrh peculiar to women, will be sent free to any woman by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

ABOUT ELOPEMENTS.

A Wise Mother Discusses the Subject in an Interesting Way.

A mother whose daughters are all happily married, referring to the subject of elopements and marriage unsanctioned by the bride's parents, recently said: "I think the trouble in such a matter is largely owing to the mistaken treatment which the daughters receive from the members of their family circle. Their brothers, if brothers they possess, are not apt to make much of them, and the father and mother are so taken up with the cares of existence that they unwittingly fall into the error of appearing indifferent to the budding beauty of their daughters. Every woman's heart longs for love. Compliments and endearing words are as sunshine to a growing plant, and if there is a lack of these at home is it any wonder that when a young man comes along and tells a young girl that she is the sweetest thing on earth, she feels she has been unappreciated for years, and imagines that to dwell forever with an individual who adores her, who recognizes her charm, will be the acme of human happiness?

"I made up my mind when my girls were babes that they should never have to look for admiration away from home. It was the rule in our household to give them every pleasure within our power, to tell them when they looked well, and to be as complimentary and gracious as though they were the young ladies of a neighbor's household. And so they were not upset by the first chance words of admiration from a stranger, and having been always given to understand that what could be afforded was theirs they were not prompted to run off to better their condition. Runaway matches are seldom made in Heaven, but are brought about, as I said in the beginning, through a natural longing for affection that has been wanting in places where it should be expected to come from first."—Chicago Daily News.

RUN OVER A SCARECROW.

Engineer of a Fast Train Receives a Fright Which He Can't Forget.

"The nervous strain on the engineer of a fast train is something enormous," said one of them the other day, reports the Detroit Free Press. "Not only the lives of the passengers are at stake, but there is the constant fear of running over someone on the track. An accident, no matter how innocent the engineer, is always a kind of hoodoo. What was my first accident? I shall never forget it. If it had been traced on my mind with a streak of lightning it couldn't have made a more lasting impression.

"It happened one bright moonlight night in November. We were spinning over the rails at full speed across the country where there were few people passing at that time of night, when I looked out and saw the figure of a man lying across the track not ten feet in front of the engine. I stopped quick as possible, but too late, of course. We had run over him, and the lifeless body was under the wheels. We got out to look for him, and found his hat, a piece of his coat sleeve and one of his shoes, but the rest seemed to be further back under the train. I backed up the engine and got out to look again. There lay the body. I nearly fainted when I saw its distorted form. I felt like a murderer. Did I know the man? No, not personally. He was a scarecrow from a neighboring corn field."

ECCENTRIC WESTERNER.

His Neighbors Had Aptly Named Him "Old Comparison."

The people around the little mountain town, says the Yakima (Wash.) Herald, called him "Old Comparison," and I knew in a general way why the soubriquet had been given him, but I did not, during my month's stay, have an opportunity to test it, though I had a speaking acquaintance with him. One day I was passing his house, and he was sitting on the steps of the little vine-clad porch in front.

"Good-morning," I said. "It's a lovely day."

"Finer'n silk," he responded.

"How are you this morning?"

"Friskier'n a colt."

"How's your wife?"

"Pearter'n a pullet."

"The weather is very hot and dry for this season, don't you think?"

"Hotter'n a run hoss 'and drier'n a clean shirt."

"I suppose you went to the wedding last night in the meeting house? A pretty bride, I thought."

"Purtier'n a speckled dog."

"The young man is very rich, I hear."

"Richer'n a fertilizer a foot thick."

"By the way, are you willing to sell me those sawlogs Brown couldn't take off your hands?"

"Williner'n a girl to get spliced."

"When can I see them?"

"Quicker'n a lamb can shake his tail.'"

And the old man grabbed his hat and stick and led the way to the river, offering no remark, but answering all questions as usual.

SWEETS IN QUEEN BESS' TIME.

Odd Names of Some Old Time Delicacies.

During the Elizabethan period there grew up in England a great national liking for sweet things. Not merely was this seen in the general taste for sugar confiture, but it was manifested in the general demand for sweet wines, the rich sherries, the charneco, the sack, the sugary almond-flavored sack-posset, and other drinks of the same class. In drinking, as in eating, the increase of appetite for sugar grew by what it fed on. Though not a sweetmeat in the strict sense of the term, "sack-posset", so largely represented the taste of that time for sweetness and flavor that the recipe of Sir Fleetwood Shepherd, given by Mr. Howard Staunton in his Shakespeare notes, is worth quoting: "To make a sack-posset. Take two quarts of pure good cream and a quarter of a pound of the best almonds. Stamp them in the cream and boil with amber and musk therein. Then take a pint of sack in a basin and set it on a chafing dish till it be blood-warm. Then take the yolks of 12 eggs, with four of their whites, and beat them well together; and so put the eggs into the sack. Then stir all together over the coals till it is as thick as you would have it. If you now take some amber and musk and grind the same quite small with sugar and strew this on top of your posset, I promise you that it shall have a most delicate and pleasant taste." There was another mixture of the same class called "rambooz," made of eggs, ale, wine and sugar.

THE STINGIEST MAN.

How the Mean Man Managed to Save His Money.

"Yes, he was a mean man," said a visitor to a St. Louis host the other day, according to the Sunday Republic.

"How? Tell me about it," questioned the host.

"Well, this man I speak of was the champion stingy man of our country. He kept a good-sized wooden ring in his pocket, and when he went to the store to buy eggs he would try every one of those eggs in the ring. If they were small enough to go through the ring he would not take them. He bought nothing but large eggs, you see. He believed in getting everything possible for his money."

"I never heard of such a thing," ejaculated the St. Louis man.

"Of course you didn't," said the visitor. "Nobody else ever heard of such meanness. Why, he used to give his children a nickel apiece to go to bed without their suppers. The next morning he would charge them a nickel apiece for their breakfasts. Saving game, wasn't it?"

"Say, that's a fish story!" shouted the St. Louis man, indignantly.

A Daring Joke.

The celebrated Handel had such sensitive nerves that he could not bear the tuning of instruments, and so this was always done before he arrived at the theater. A musical wag wishing to make mirth from Handel's irascibility of temper, stole into the orchestra on a night when the prince of Wales was to be present and untuned all the instruments. As soon as the prince arrived Handel gave the signal for beginning con spirito; but such was the horrible discord that the enraged master started up from his seat, and overturning a double-bass which stood in his way, he seized a kettle-drum and threw it with such violence at the head of the leader of the band that he lost his wig in the effort. Without waiting to replace it, he advanced bareheaded to the front of the orchestra, breathing vengeance, but so choked with passion that he could not speak. In this ridiculous attitude he stood stamping and staring for some moments, amid a convulsion of laughter. Nor could he be prevailed upon to resume his seat until the prince went in person and with much difficulty appeased his wrath.

Some People too Modest to Confide in their Physician—A Woman Cured of a Serious Disease by a Certain Method, the Only Drawback of which was, it "Made Her Too Fat."

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

The doctor came in haste and found his patient again in great agony from a splitting headache. It was his fifth call on the same patient, and each time to treat the same trouble. With a suspicion that his diagnosis was incorrect and that he was treating a symptom and not the disease, he said to her: "Madam, it is useless for me to visit you again. You are keeping from me facts and symptoms which it is necessary I should know. The patient finally acknowledged that, through a false modesty, she had not told him all. Then she told how she had suffered from female weakness but had kept it from him—too modest to speak. The old doctor was disgusted at such prudishness, but when he knew the facts, cured her easily and quickly.

The following case differs from the above only in the fact that the patient is not afraid to speak, and to "call a spade a spade."

"Words fail to describe the suffering I endured before I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mrs. Alexander B. Clark, of 417 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Mich. "For five years I have suffered from ovarian troubles, and was confined to my room for months at a time. I have undergone two operations for this trouble at the hospital, and seemed to grow worse instead of better. I had the best doctors and the best nursing, but for nearly five years I was not free for one single day from the most fearful headaches and intense twitching pains in my neck and shoulders.

"You would scarcely believe, to look at me now, that for about three days every week for nearly six years, I had to stay in bed. Those headaches would come on me every week regularly. First, I would notice black spots before my eyes, and then I would go blind, and send for the doctor.

"At first they would treat me for indigestion and dyspepsia, then finally acknowledge that something else caused the trouble. During these spells I was so nervous that I could not bear to have my husband walk across the floor, and as the doctors said there was no medicine that would reach my trouble, I consented to the operations, which left me worse off than I was before.

"In January of this year there was an article in the Evening News about the druggists that sold Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in Detroit. I told my husband I was going to try them and he said, 'try anything.'

"The next morning I went into Murphy Brothers' drug store and bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Murphy said he had a big sale for the pills and personally knew many people who had been helped by them. I took the pills as directed but was not helped a bit, and I told Mr. Murphy so, but he suggested that I give them a better trial. Before I had finished the second box I began to feel better and went down and bought a dozen boxes. When I had taken six boxes my headaches were gone, but I continued using the pills until I had taken the twelve boxes.

"Just think what I have suffered by operations and vile medicines, when a simple remedy cured me.

"There is only one thing against Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," continued Mrs. Clark, "they made me fat. Since I commenced taking them, in January, I have gained twenty-six pounds. I remember the many times when my friends came to see me, when I was so thin and weak, that they expected to hear that I was dead the next week. To-day I am perfectly well, and never felt better in my life, and it is all due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

All dealers sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, or they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Best Papers the Best Mediums.

There is much good solid sense for every advertiser in the following paragraph from a thoughtful eastern advertiser:

The daily paper is by far the safest and most certain method of reaching the public. It should not be difficult for any intelligent man who has lived for any time in a community to know just what papers will serve him as advertising mediums. It isn't at all necessary to examine the books in the newspaper's counting room or to get their affidavits of circulation. A paper that you read yourself and that your neighbors read and respect and that you know to be widely read and respected, you can safely rely on as a satisfactory medium for reaching people of your own kind.

YOU HAVE BEEN GETTING BETTER RESULTS FROM The Detroit Journal WE'RE GIVING YOU MORE CIRCULATION

Did You Ever Notice?

The best business houses in Detroit use THE DETROIT JOURNAL largely—more largely every year.

Nearly every successful general advertiser uses THE DETROIT JOURNAL.

Some advertisers are not allowed in THE DETROIT JOURNAL.

Deafness cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

A Positive Cure for Dyspepsia.

The results of the New Cure for Indigestion and Nervous Dyspepsia Given by Your Neighbors.

Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer is not propped up by fictitious or anonymous testimonials, but is demonstrating its curative powers every day in stubborn cases of chronic and acute dyspepsia among reputable citizens of your own county. Persons who have tried nearly all of the highly advertised preparations for stomach disorders, without relief, are now rejoicing over the speedy and permanent results of this new combined method treatment. If you are troubled with any form of stomach or nerve troubles a trial with Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer will substantiate all we claim for it. For sale by John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich. Read the following testimonial:

To all whom it may concern:

For the benefit of those suffering from stomach and nerve troubles I wish to give a brief statement of my own case. I have suffered from dyspepsia more or less for twelve years. My troubles were indigestion, sour stomach, and acid fermentation, associated with severe nervous difficulties, rendering sleep at times impossible. I tried many preparations recommended for my troubles, without relief. Recently I procured a package of Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. I had taken the treatment only three days, when, to my surprise, I began to feel better in every way. I have used only one package, and can now eat and retain any kind of food with perfect comfort. I sleep undisturbed and feel refreshed in the morning, something I had not done before for years. I advise any person troubled with dyspepsia to try this treatment. Yours,

Homer, Jan. 4, 1898. FRANK RABY.

There will be two corporation tickets in the field at the coming election. This is as it should be, the voters should have a choice. The personel of either ticket is not bad. C. E. Williamson has not made a bad president of the council but has done nothing to give reason why he should be re-elected. The village council needs a little new blood. Some man should be president who has time and disposition to see that we get a little more for our money paid out in taxes. Tecumseh has the just reputation of being one of the most beautiful towns in Michigan still the health regulations here are abominable and it needs someone who will take an interest in village affairs to start the needed improvement. The money raised by village tax each year is very large in proportion to the benefits derived. The matter of lighting the village is becoming a burden and there are many improvements that would be of great benefit to the corporation which Mr. Williamson does not seem to have in his mind. Although the HERALD has nothing personal against the present president of the council, a change would benefit the village.

On Tuesday the lower house of Congress passed a bill appropriating 50 millions of dollars for the use of President McKinley in case of war with Spain. Wednesday the senate concurred in the measure. It was at once signed by the President and is now a law. In neither house was there a dissenting vote. Was such a measure ever passed in such a manner by any country before? Party lines entirely broken, every man thinking only of his country. This will be quite an object lesson to Spain and do more to avert war than all the resolutions and threats in the world. The people of the United States are a peculiar lot. Political parties fight each other to the bitter end, but when danger comes to the old flag, one man and one man only is president of the United States. Party patroitism is not known in this country. The average American is all business or all fight and may it always be so.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

"I am afraid," said a railroad official in high position to the Indianapolis Journal, "that the Wabash people have made a mistake in extending their line east of Toledo and Detroit. I can see that already it is creating a good deal of uneasiness, and I know of two at least, of the through lines which have their knives whetted to make a bold stroke in the reduction in both passenger and freight rates if the Wabash should profit in its business through the radical departure. Neither the Lake Shore, with its easy grades and its excellent condition to move business at high speed and at small cost, nor the Miahigan Central, with its excellent transportation facilities, will look on and allow the Wabash, with its new freight line between Chicago and Buffalo, which went into operation March 1, to make any serious encroachments on their business, and there are lines between St. Louis and Buffalo that will be just as jealous of their rights. If the action of the Wabash does not bring on an ugly rate war I have misjudged the case. Once stirred up, the roads which are competitors for east and west-bound business can make it very interesting for the Wabash should they make offers to the western and eastern connections in the way of rates and service, which they might decide to do. At any rate I think the Wabash people have made a mistake in reaching further east. Their position is by no means as independent as before, and such strained relations are liable to be brought about that several of the connections of the Wabash in the past, both east and west, will turn their business to competing lines."—Free Press.

N. K. Elliott has been appointed superintendent of the D. T. & M., with headquarters at Tecumseh. Mr. Elliott entered railroad service on the Muskingum Valley road as brakeman, was advanced as conductor; afterward he received an appointment as conductor on the Columbus & Indiana Central road, now the Panhandle, with Jno. F. Miller. After a service of five years with this company Mr. W. R. McKeen, on the completion of the Vandalia line through to St. Louis, appointed him passenger conductor and later advanced him to the following positions: Master of transportation, superintendent of transportation and general superintendent. Mr. Elliott retired from the latter position when the Pennsylvania Co. assumed control of the property. J. R. Megrue, general manager of the D. & L. N., also announces the appointment of W. S. Allen to the position of auditor, to succeed A. L. Richmond. His headquarters will be at Tecumseh also. Mr. Allen comes from the New York Central. —Sunday Free Press.

The Klondike business is not the only business out of Toledo which is in a demoralized state. The Chicago and Western rates are being cut extensively. The Grand Trunk has invaded Toledo and through the scalsers is quietly cutting the rates to Chicago and western points. One broker, it is said, took 100 long hauls out of Toledo for Chicago and western points last month. The route out of Toledo is over the D. T. & M. to Battle Creek, where very good connections are made with the Grand Trunk for western points. By the Lake Shore the rate to Chicago is $7 and over the Grand Trunk, the brokers have been able to make a $6 rate. The brokers have never been known to work for nothing. A very much lower rate must be made to the brokers by the Grand Trunk and D. T. & M.—Toledo Blade.

Strange as it may seem, the feeling between the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific is more bitter than that which exists between the American roads and the C. P. In the fight over Klondike business, the Grand Trunk has co-operated with the American roads. In fact the Grand Trunk has carried the trouble into local business. The rates between Canadian points were never so demoralized as they are now. An open rate has been made from Detroit to Toronto, and a rate of $2.25 to Buffalo. The Grand Trunk has refused to honor Canadian Pacific tickets from Toronto to North Bay on westbound business out of Detroit. Not daunted by this, the C. P. has put on a special train which runs to Smith Falls and there makes connections with the main line.—Toledo Blade.

The most unique railway ever constructed, will be at the contemplated Pan-American Exposition near Niagara Falls; it is properly termed a Railroad to the Clouds, and consists of a tower 500 feet high, 80 feet in diameter at the bottom and 30 feet at the top, around which in a spiral will run the track upon which the cars will be propelled. The rachet rails such as those on Pike's peak railway, will be used, and the power will be furnished from Niagara itself. The whole structure will be lighted with electricity and a mammoth search light will illuminate the surrounding country.

A prominent Michigan Central official says: "That Kalamazoo dispatch saying the Michigan railroads have sent circulars to their agents directing them to clip all railway criticisms from the local papers with the ultimate view of coming back at the papers on advertising contracts must refer to some little one-horse roads, if it isn't a fake pure and simple. This company sent out an order several years ago to clip all notices, but such clippings were merely meant for our scrap book. All railroads keep scrap books."—A. A. Democrat.

The Wabash section foremen have been notified to send to the roadmaster's office the names, ages, and time of service of all men in their employ who cannot sign the payroll. Those who cannot will be given one month to learn to write their names, after which they will be dropped unless they can comply with the order. It is thought this means the dismissal of a number of men who have long been in the service of the company.—Free Press.

The most powerful locomotive in the world is one which has been built by the Brooks company for the Great Northern railway. Some of the dimensions of this gigantic machine are: Weight, 212,750 pounds; cylinders, 21x34 inches; driving wheels, 55 inches in diameter; working boiler pressure, 210 pounds. It is about as powerful as six of the former 15x22 inch locomotives and can pull 7,700 tons on a level track.—Toledo Blade.

The Detroit, Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor Electric Railway company are now employing 20 men on their power house, and during the next week will double the force. The company is going to put in a five-foot solid concrete footing for the machinery. They go on the principle that the best is the cheapest in the end.—A. A. Democrat.

Auditor W. S. Allen, of the D. & L. N., is here from New York, has taken his position and has his force nicely at work. Mr. Allen is a railroad man of much experience. He comes recently from the Nickle Plate.

G. B. Grubb, who has been here for several months building and helping to open the restaurant for his son-in-law, C. R. Wilson, returned to his home in Columbus, O., Saturday.

Watts, Bean & Smith have been appointed assistant general counsel of the Detroit and Lima Northern and will have entire charge of the Michigan business.

Chas. Hack, who has been in charge of the yards at Lima, has been called here to take charge or the yards at Tecumseh.

Miss Richmond, of Lima, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Richmond.

Financial Letter.

Chicago, March 9, 1898.

There was a better color in the financial sky today as shown by reports to Schwartz, Dupee & Co., and this may have been to some extent reflected in the grain and provision markets. At all events they were firm and higher.

Wheat has of late disregarded the movement of prices in all other speculative articles, holding firmly to a higher plan than has been reached for several years, and not only is this true of the cash article nd near option, but also of the further ones. For instance, September wheat sold today over 81 cents per bushel, as did also December, showing conclusively, as argued by the bulls, that no manipulation is necessary to maintain the present high rates for May and July, which are the most active futures. In case the trouble between England and Russia should assume a serious aspect it is admitted that all our breadstuffs would command much higher prices, and that this is a possible factor to which attention is being paid by some traders cannot be doubted. Provisions are also included in this line of argument and today they hardened materially, pork, lard and ribs scoring an advance. The price range of wheat was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
May,	105 3-8	104 1-4	104 3-4
July,	91 1-2	90 5-8	90 3-4--7-8

"Faust," the masterpiece of that gifted writer, Goethe, was presented at the Academy last night. The scenic and pictorial effect are remarkable, and time and forth enthusiastic applause. Porter White, as "Mephisto" won chief honors. His every appearance was loudly applauded. The other parts were capably carried by the members of the company.—Washington, D. C.

Tell that old time fake, the man with the patent lamp wick cap, has been about the town again this week selling his little pieces of milk strainer, and incidentally the people who bought them. The cap is useful only for making a living for some individual who would otherwise be around our back door asking for a hand out. If you want the experience however, get a cap of perforated strainer, metal cable and linch it over the end of your lamp wick, and you have the whole outfit, which will not last much longer than it takes to make it.

The HERALD'S agitation for the adoption of standard time is having fruit. The first thing is for the school board to order the clocks set standard time, and this will start the ball rolling. P. S. McKinnon, Seaton W. Anderson and J. H. Smith, have stated that they will vote for standard time in the schools, and Dr. Howell is quite favorable to the idea.

The Tecumseh Coal and Lumber Co. have been increasing their store space and have now one of the very neatest little groceries in town. The partitions which divided the building into three parts, have all been removed making one large square room. New shelving has been placed along both sides and the counters and desk rearranged in a very convenient manner. The change materially improves the proper display of goods.

A large audience turned out Tuesday evening to witness the performance of the Al. G Field negro minstrels and were well pleased with the show. The band was exceptionally good, as was the trombone soloist while the contortionist gave a new list of feats, seemingly impossible to the human body. The dog circus was also new, the singing was fine and the jokes clean and new. Taken as a whole the exhibition of jolly minstrelsy pleased the crowd.

McCann Bros. have found their store too small to accommodate the rush of new spring goods, and have torn out the rear partitions, throwing the store into one large room, which with added shelf room, will make nearly one third difference in the store capacity.

If you are going to buy a wheel it will pay you to look at Albert Lowry's stock. He handles the best, the Gendron, Reliance, Signal and Lucas. The prices range from $23 to $45 and it is guaranteed that no better can be had. Show room first door west of the Lilley House.

The fifth number on the lecture course was listened to by the usual large audience Monday evening. The lecturer, Samuel Phelps Leland, handled "World Building" in the scientific style which the subject would naturally indicate. Taken outside of some rather tedious statistics the lecture was very instructive and interesting.

Frank Jones, of Edin, O., has associated himself with Wm. Witherall of this place, and the firm will go into the carriage business. The lower floor of the table factory has been secured for a display and sales room, and a number of fine vehicles have been placed on sale with many more coming. Mr. Jones who is expected here tomorrow, will move his family to this place in the near future.

The Lima street flouring mills at Toledo, which was lately acquired by our townsman C. A. Slayton at receivers sale, has been sold by that gentleman to W. C. Bechtol & Co., at that place. Owing to some disagreement among the members of the old firm Bechtol Carney & Co. as to dissolution of partnership, the property was placed in a receivers hands and while valued at between $12,000 and $14,000, Mr. Slayton secured it for $5,550, and being in a splendid location, found no difficulty in making a ready sale.

Messrs. Edward Goodside, F. W. Woodruff, Edward Lauman, J. Stevenson, Frank Rose, and W. H. Stebbins, members of the Toledo camp No. 14, Woodman of the World, were in attendance at the funeral of Jas Brown in Raisin Saturday and conducted the services at the grave. Mr. Brown carried $1000 insurance in this order which will be paid to his mother, Mrs. E. Brown. One of the provisions of this order is that no member's grave shall be unmarked and so this summer a $100 monument will be erected and unveiled with appropriate ceremonies by the lodge of which the deceased was a member.

The finest cooking potatoes in town at R. S. Moore's.

Rochesterians and suburbanites crowded Cook's Opera House last night and laughed and wept as of yore over the presentation of the spectacular version of "Faust" by Porter White and a capable company. The play has been heard in Rochester so regularly, that a season without it would seem incomplete. As Mephisto, Porter White is fortunate in possessing the voice, physique and power of grimace which combine to give that character the necessary devilishness. The electric and scenic features are very fine. Every seat in the house held an occupant last night, and the advance sale was the largest in the history of the house.—Rochester, N. Y.

VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS.

The House Passes the Bill Appropriating $50,000,000 for Defense.

Washington, March 9.—In a spirit of patriotism, with eloquent words ringing in their ears, every member of the house of representatives yesterday responded to the president's first call to meet the Spanish situation by casting his vote for a bill placing in President McKinley's hands $50,000,000 to be expended at his discretion for the national defense.

Party lines were swept away and with a unanimous voice congress voted its confidence in the administration. Many members who were paired with absent colleagues took the responsibility of breaking their pairs, an unprecedented thing in legislative annals, in order that they might go on record in support of this vast appropriation to maintain the dignity and honor of their country.

Speaker Reed, who, as the presiding officer, seldom votes only in case of a tie, had his name called and voted in his capacity as a representative. The scene of enthusiasm which greeted the announcement of the vote—ayes, 311; nays, 0—has seldom been paralleled in the house.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Sudden Call Comes to the Mayor of Jacksonville, Ill.

Springfield, Ill., March 8. — Andrew Holly, mayor of Jacksonville, Ill., was found dead in bed at the Nicholas hotel here at 4:30 Monday morning. Mayor Holly came to the hotel Sunday morning and in the evening left an early call to return home. When he could not be awakened, Clerk Parrish forced the door and found him lying on the bed, in his night shirt, dead. It is supposed heart disease was the cause. The members of the family were notified by wire and are here to accompany the remains home in the evening.

ASPHYXIATED.

Aged Couple Found Dead in Their Home in Mentor, O.

Ashtabula, O., March 8.—At an early hour Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Justin Alexander, an aged couple residing at Mentor, near here, were found dead in their home by a washwoman who called at the house. Receiving no response to her rapping she looked through the window and saw the dead bodies of the aged couple lying on the floor, death having been due to asphyxiation caused by escaping gas from a hard coal stove. Both had been dead several hours.

FATAL SHOTS FOR TWO.

Charles W. Wood Kills Irene Breider and Himself.

Ottawa, Ill., March 7.—Charles W. Wood, of Chicago, shot and killed Irene Breider and then fatally wounded himself here just after Friday midnight in the woman's apartments. The assailant died an hour later at the Ryburn hospital. Jealousy probably caused the tragedy. A letter found in the woman's apartments indicates that the couple had agreed to die.

Four Drowned at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, March 4.—As the Bostonia steamed out from her wharf Thursday night for Louisville eight colored roustabouts were thrown into the river. Four were rescued and four were drowned. The dead are: Millard Dancy, Louis Jackson, Louis Miller and William Van Dike, all of Louisville. They leave families. The gang plank broke. Ten other roustabouts were starting on to the plank when it broke.

Cut in Two.

Burlington, Ia., March 7. — Lieut. Frank Kalke, of the United States army, commandent at the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mt. Pleasant, attempted to board a freight train here at 2:50 in the morning, missed his footing and was completely cut in two at the waist. He leaves a wife and two children at Mount Pleasant.

Chicago, March 7.—Dudley Winston, president of the Chicago civil service commission; ex-Mayor Washburne, a member of the commission, and Adolph Kraus, ex-president of the body, have been indicted by the grand jury on charges of violation of the law. Robert Lindblom, a board of trade man and member of the civil service commission, was also indicted, charged with running a bucket shop. All were released on bail in the sum of $1,000 each.

Accidentally Killed.

Lancaster, Wis., March 8. — Reuben Black, a well-known business man, while cleaning a repeating rifle Monday, the charge exploded, presumably through accident, and he was instantly killed, the charge passing through the body near the heart. The coroner's jury decided that Mr. Black's death was accidental.

Will Not Accept.

Champaign, Ill., March 9.—Andrew S. Draper, president of the University of Illinois, who was on Monday elected superintendent of the schools of Greater New York, at a salary said to be $8,000, on Tuesday declined the offer.

The Underwriter Is Safe.

Charleston, S. C., March 7.—The tug Underwriter, towing the Merritt Wrecking company's derrick Chief, came into Charleston harbor Sunday morning after a very rough passage off Hatteras.

Notorious Woman Shot.

San Francisco, March 8.—Mabel Keating, the "queen of pickpockets," was shot and fatally wounded in San Francisco by Jerry Sullivan. It is said she secured $80,000 at the world's fair in Chicago.

Strike Ended.

Biddeford, Me., March 7. — The strike of the 3,500 employes of the Pepperel and Laconia cotton manufacturing corporations, which began January 17, has been declared off.

Calhoun Gets the Place.

Washington, March 9.—President McKinley has appointed William J. Calhoun, of Illinois, interstate commerce commissioner.

tanooga in October, 1863, he noticed a rebel cannon formidably posted on Lookout mountain, and ordered that he be informed as soon as the gun was fired. Four days passed, and then Grant said: 'That gun will never be fired. It is a Quaker gun.' And he was right.

"Logs painted black were called Quaker guns. With a lot of those decoys the confederates fooled McClellan for weeks at Yorktown; and in the same manner they fooled Halleck before Corinth. But Grant had more gumption, or whatever you call it, than to allow himself to be fooled in that way. As a matter of fact he had telepathic information on various occasions. It is a matter of record that on the afternoon of the first day of the battle of Pittsburg Landing Sherman told Grant that they must make preparations to retreat over the river during the night. Grant replied that Buell would be up with re-enforcements, and a victory would be won on the morrow. Sherman said that inquiry developed the fact that Buell could not possibly reach the ground in time for the battle of the following day. Grant replied: 'I am firmly impressed that Buell will be here, and I shall stay where I am.' His 'impression' was correct, and he won a victory the next day."

"It is my impression," said Mr. Goodrich, "that the very first case of well-defined modern telepathy occurred upwards of 60 years ago. A lady in New York was entertaining some friends in her parlor, when she suddenly, as one in a trance, began to describe a shipwreck which she said she could mentally see. She described it with such vividness of detail that a profound impression was made upon the minds of all present. There happened to be one cool-headed person there who wrote down the day, the hour and the minute when this description of the shipwreck was made, and a few weeks later news was received of a dreadful marine disaster in which a near relative of the lady had met his death. There can be no doubt that there was thought transmission in that case."

"That reminds me," said a newspaper correspondent, "of a book which I read 30 years ago. It was a treatise on all diseases, prepared by a physician named Gunn, and was designed to be a household necessity. It was entertaining and instructive. I remember in his essay on mesmerism (that was before the word telepathy came into common use) the author said that when he was a young man he was very much in love with a bright and beautiful girl who returned his affection. One day he went into a park and sat there thinking of his love. In a short time she appeared before him and said that she had been thinking of him so constantly that she had come to the park hoping that she might find him there. He attributed the occurence to mesmerism, and at different hours, without warning her, he went to the park and, by fixing his mind upon the object of his affections, he could invariably draw her to the spot. It usually took her half an hour to dress and reach the place, so the young physician calculated that his mental command that she come to him was received and obeyed instantly."

"By the way," said Dr. Miller, "about a year ago I read a magazine article written by Mark Twain on the subject of telepathy which made a great impression upon my mind. There were a number of instances given out of the personal experiences of Mark Twain, and one of them remains until this day very vividly impressed upon my memory. It seems that one evening, in New York, Mark Twain was thinking of a literary friend of his, away out on the other side of the continent in California, and conceived the idea of a peculiar style of book, for the writing of which his friend was particularly well fitted. He gave the matter considerable attention during the few remaining days of the week, and on the following Sunday he wrote a letter to his friend in California, giving a skeleton outline of the book which he believed that he could write, and make considerable money by publishing. Before mailing the letter which he had written he received a letter from his friend in California, who had evidently been thinking of the same subject at the same time that Mark Twain first gave it consideration. The letter from California contained a detailed outline of the skeleton of the same kind of a book; only instead of suggesting to Mark Twain that he write the book, the writer asked his opinion and judgment as to the advisability of spending some time in the preparation of such a book, and as to whether he could secure its publication at advantageous terms to the writer. Of all of the instances given in the superior article written by Mark Twain upon the subject that appeared to be the most remarkable case of thought transmission upon record in this country or anywhere else. There could be no doubt that the thoughts of the two men were communicated clear across the North American continent."

SMITH D. FRY.

THOUGHT TRANSMISSION.

Well-Authenticated Cases of Telepathic Communication.

Washingtonians Are Very Much Interested in Psychical Phenomena Just Now—Reminiscences of the War.

(Special Washington Letter.)

"I HAVE had some personal experiences with telepathy," says Dr. S. C. Miller of this city. "My father was governor of Minnesota, my brother Wesley was a lieutenant in the army of the Potomac, and I was a soldier in the army of the frontier. In July, 1863, my mother was at the old home in Harrisburg, Pa., and at exactly 15 minutes of six o'clock on the evening of July 2 she said: 'Wesley is shot.' Fifteen minutes later, exactly at six o'clock, she said: 'Wesley is dead.' She afterwards explained that at a quarter of six o'clock she heard him say as though standing close behind her: 'Oh, my mother.' On the following morning a telegram was received announcing the fact that my brother had been killed at the battle of Gettysburg on the preceding evening. Of course mother knew that a great battle was going on because the guns could be heard very distinctly in Harrisburg, but she had no means of knowing that her son was actually engaged in the battle, or was where his life was in danger. She simply received the impression that he was shot, and then 15 minutes later that he was dead. Two days afterwards my uncle went to Gettysburg and found the body of my brother and had it removed to Harrisburg, where the remains were interred.

"I had another experience which was very singular. I was in the national cemetery at Gettysburg several years ago, and by some instinctive impulse I walked towards the graves of the regular army soldiers. There, to my great surprise, I saw the headstone of Lieut. Wesley F. Miller. I called the attention of the superintendent to the headstone and asked him if he had any means of knowing that Lieut. Miller was buried there, and he said that there could be no doubt of it. I told him that I personally knew that my brother was buried in Harrisburg, and he indifferently said: 'Well, some other soldier is buried there, and that name will do just as well for him as any other, now that he is no longer fit for duty on this earth.'

"I either read or heard of a singular story several years ago, which had an amusing side to it. A veteran of one of the union armies went to the national cemetery, I believe it was at Gettysburg, and instinctively was led to a grave bearing his own name, company and regiment. He went off immediately and got a little cart full of flowers which he brought into the cemetery and deposited upon that grave. One of the keepers asked him why he was so profuse in decorating that particular grave and he responded: 'Well, if there is any grave on earth in which I ought to take a great deal of interest, and upon which I should bestow a number of floral decorations from time to time, it is that particular grave, because I am buried there.'"

"WESLEY IS DEAD."

Mr. Earl S. Goodrich, founder of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, was a lieutenant colonel in the army of the Potomac, on staff duty. He said: "There were a great many instances of telepathy during the civil war, but nobody at that time was able to give any scientific name to the peculiar transmission of thought from mind to mind, which is now receiving a great deal of attention from the scientific world. I know a number of instances where men received not only impressions concerning the death or wounding of their friends, but concerning their own impending death. Every old soldier will remember a number of instances of bright, happy-dispositioned fellows in the ranks, or carrying swords and wearing epaulettes, who were fearless of death and careless of their future, who would at times, before a battle, become grave, solemn, thoughtful, and announce to their comrades the impression that their turn would come next. Almost invariably these impressions were followed by the actual facts of sudden wounding and death. I recollect one particular instance which occurred at Port Republic. We had a battery advantageously posted upon an eminence not far from the bridge, and when the confederates came to attack us they planted a battery within easy range of us and commenced an artillery duel. One of our cavalry men who had informed his comrades that his last day had dawned had his head torn off with a cannon ball; his legs contracted, and he remained on the horse until taken off by comrades."

"It is a pity that some of our generals had no telepathic means of getting correct impressions of the enemy," said Dr. Miller. "When Grant came to Chat-

PINGREE PLEADS FOR JUSTICE.

Protests Against Tax-Dodging by Rich Men and Corporations.

Ann Arbor, March 5.—Gov. Pingree delivered a speech here Friday night before the University of Michigan Republican club. The governor spoke as follows:

"We are engaged in a deadly struggle with corporations, which enslave us. The railroads own one-third of the property in the state, and pay only one-twenty-sixth of the taxes. The supreme court at Washington has decided that the state is master, and the state can compel the railroads to pay taxes. The trouble arises in getting the right men—men who refuse to ride on passes or take bribes in any other form. The Michigan Central charges passengers three cents a mile; the Grand Trunk, a competing road, can only charge two cents. Of the $3,000,000 which the people pay to the former road $1,000,000 is wrung out by extortion. The people don't understand this or they would make it dangerous for men to live among them who barter away their rights.

"The same class which controls the railroads is getting control of the streets in our municipalities, and after becoming firmly fixed there they charge unreasonable fares, and howl down anyone who tries to make them reduce fares as an agitator or an unsafe man. I believe in agitation, however. There is a great opportunity open to you, young men; corporate wealth may try to harm you if you pursue a popular course, but in the end you will be victorious and have the satisfaction of having done your duty.

"The supreme court has decided against an income tax. The decision should be reversed if possible. If the constitution is such that the decision must stand, it should be amended so as to allow the government to get at corporate wealth which is escaping taxation. It is the same with charters. I don't believe in long-time charters. How can one generation of men give away the rights of those who come after them? The right to control the affairs of the world belongs to the living."

PEACH PROSPECTS GOOD.

Orchards in Michigan Escape Damage During the Winter.

Grand Rapids, March 7.—The western Michigan peach prospects were never more favorable at this time of the year than now. The trees were in perfect condition for cold weather when the winter began, and the winter has been so uniformly mild that the trees have not suffered. The danger from extreme cold is now past, but late frosts are yet to be apprehended, and not until June will the growers be entirely out of the woods. In this city the growers have an association for mutual benefit, through which they advertise Grand Rapids as a peach market. Through the efforts of their association this city has become one of the greatest wholesale fruit markets in the country, and during the peach season buyers come from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Minneapolis and other points to buy the peaches as they are brought in by the growers.

TITLES ARE GOOD.

Land Commissioner French So Informs Anxious Inquirers.

Lansing, March 8.—Several homesteaders on state lands in Montmorency county have received letters from Alpena lawyers inviting them to "call and settle." They were informed that the supreme court had declared the tax titles illegal, and the original owners, whom the lawyers represented, demanded a settlement. These letters were forwarded to Land Commissioner French, who replied as follows: "I have to advise you that the supreme court has not pronounced the state tax homestead law illegal."

To Build a Big Bridge.

Lansing, March 9.—Articles of association of the Union Bridge company were filed with the secretary of state Tuesday. The company is incorporated under the provisions of the general railroad law for a period of 99 years and is capitalized at $2,000,000. A franchise fee of $100 accompanied the articles. The purpose of the company is to construct, maintain and operate a bridge across the Detroit river at or near Detroit, for the accommodation and use of all connecting railroads in the United States and Canada.

Woman Burned to Death.

Detroit, March 9.—George M. Parry is under arrest and held to await an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of his wife, who was found enveloped in flames in the yard of her home Tuesday morning. He says he thought his wife arose early to start the kitchen fire, but there are no evidences of her having attempted this. The kerosene can was missing, and there were drippings of oil down the back stairs.

Pioneer Dead.

Grand Rapids, March 7.—Deacon William Kaldanea, resident of this city since 1836, and the founder of the Grand Rapids furniture industry, died Saturday night, aged 91 years. He began the manufacture of chairs in 1837, and in addition made bureaus, tables and bedsteads for the pioneers. In 1854 he formed a partnership with E. W. Winchester and manufactured furniture on a larger scale, and his factory developed into one of the largest plants now here.

Sentenced.

Kalamazoo, March 5.—David Seeley, who pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy and had three wives after him at once and was known to have ten, was sentenced to Jackson prison for four years and six months by Judge Buck.

Will Buy Klondike Reindeer.

Marquette, March 5. — The Huron Mountain club, a select fishing and hunting organization, whose grounds are located 40 miles north of here, will purchase some of the reindeer intended for the Klondike.

Patton Is Not a Candidate.

Detroit, March 8.—It is announced by ex-Senator Patton's friends here that he is not a candidate for the United States senate to succeed Burrows. He favors Justice Robert M. Montgomery of the supreme court.

Passed Away.

St. Joseph, March 4.—B. F. King died Thursday evening at the age of 73. He was father of Ben King, the poet, and was formerly one of the wealthiest men in the county.

THE DISAPPEARING TRAY.

Result of Putting a Japanese Metal Ash Receiver Upon a Hot Stove.

If you ever use one of those little fancy Japanese metal trays sold about the streets for ash receivers, don't put it on the stove, though that happens to be a handy place for a circle of smokers to reach. That was what the observant Jerseyman did the other night at his country home, says the New York Sun.

He and his sons were sitting about a big stove on a cold night, all smoking, and for convenience he put the ash receiver on a sort of shelf at the back of the stove against the smoke pipe. When he went to bed he left the ash receiver there. The following morning his wife discovered it. It was perfect in appearance and form, and still held the pile of ashes, burned match ends, and cigar butts which had been deposited in it the night before. She was about to pick it up, when she bethought herself that it might be hot. Taking something, therefore, to push it with, she attempted to slide it off upon a plate.

The moment she touched it the ash receiver lost its form, became liquid, and ran off the stove upon the floor in a shining stream of white metal. The heat of the stove had been sufficient to melt the pewter, of which it was composed, and it had probably stood there for hours, all in a liquid form, except the little crust of oxide and lacquer upon its outer surface. This crust had been coherent enough to keep the tray in form until a touch broke it, and then the whole had collapsed.

LIVING PROGENY OF FISH.

Viviparous Pisces Recorded in the Territory of Arizona.

A doubt that has troubled scientists for years—whether there exists a viviparous kind of fish, one that gives birth to its young in a living state—was definitely settled in the affirmative the other day, when the city hall fountain of the capital of Arizona territory was cleaned out. In turning the water out of the big cement basin, where a goldfish variety of the carp family has long disported itself for the edification of the Phoenix nurse girl and the Maricopa county hobo, it was found that many of the fish had given birth to progeny fully formed and ready to dart in search of food at the moment of coming into their watery world. Others had given birth to tiny creatures that were globular in shape, except for the protruding eyes and a nascent tail fin that could scarcely be seen without a strong glass. From all the evidences, it was clear that the clean-up had been made during the breeding season, yet there was no sign of fish roe or eggs. Many specimens of the strange young fish were collected, and will be shipped to different experts, one lot going to the Smithsonian institution.

WHY HE DINES EARLY.

Explaining His Reason for an Unusual Proceeding.

There is a man in Wentzville, Mo., who has a habit of eating his midday meal before 12 o'clock, says the Sunday Republic. A neighbor went to his house not long ago, and found him and his family at the dinner table. It was then half-past 11.

"Why, Mr. Majors are you at dinner?" ejaculated the surprised neighbor.

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Majors. "We nearly always eat dinner about this time of day."

"It seems to me that this is pretty early," said the visitor, smiling. "Why, you must get through by 12 o'clock."

"Yes, I suppose we do," was the reply. "You see we always have our dinner early as a precautionary measure."

"As a precautionary measure!" exclaimed the neighbor. "Why? Do you want to keep from getting hungry?"

"No, that's not it," said Majors. "Don't you see, if we don't eat our dinner early the house might burn down and then we wouldn't have any? It's a precautionary measure, a precautionary measure!"

HIS ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE.

Two Views of the Lecture Delivered by a Novelist in a Jersey Town.

A well-known novelist delivered a lecture recently in a New Jersey town not far from this city, in which he read selections from his own works. His reputation and the society that engaged him brought together an audience composed of the best people of the neighborhood. After the lecture, when people met, it was the proper thing for one to ask the other:

"Were you at the lecture?" and the answer in every case was:

"Oh, yes! I was there, but I didn't hear a word. Did you hear the lecture?"

"Well, no! I was there but I couldn't hear, either."

A friend who met the novelist a few days after his visit to the suburban town asked him what kind of audience he had and how he liked the town.

"It's a fine place," was the reply, "and I had the most attentive audience that I have ever spoken to. No one made a sound, and I didn't have to raise my voice above a whisper."

Historic Canes.

Walking sticks have frequently been left by will. Franklin bequeathed his favorite stick, with a gold handle shaped like a cap of liberty, to George Washington. The gold-headed cane used by Drs. Radcliffe and Mead and others, whose arms are engraved upon it, was bequeathed by Baillie to the college of physicians. Napoleon's walking stick of tortoiseshell was sold in London in 1823 for £38.

Decline of French Shipping.

French shipping is slowly but steadily declining. In 1860 there were 500 candidates for examination for masters' mates, and in 1890 only 25.

Breakage on Ocean Steamers.

It is calculated on large ocean steamers more than 3,000 articles of glass and china are broken on every voyage.

PLANT SUGAR MAPLES.

Every Farmer Can Grow His Own Supply of Sugar.

Should we plant maple groves? There can hardly be two opinions on this subject. The beet sugar industry is a problem, but the maple sugar industry never was a problem. It pays better than three-fourths of our farm work. At eight cents a pound maple sugar finds ready market, while much of the better product sells at ten and twelve cents. The sirup is sold by producers directly to consumers at one dollar a gallon—very rarely at less than 80 cents. Throughout New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other states this direct sale to consumers takes up a large part of the product, excepting only two or three counties of northern New York. But it is not just now as a market product that the subject should be mainly considered. Every family is a sugar consumer and a sugar buyer. Most farmers can make the larger part of this sugar supply as easily as they can raise their own potatoes. A family of six or seven will consume from one to two barrels of sugar in a year. Granulated sugar will cost such a family from $15 to $30 a year. A grove of 50 trees will produce from 200 to 250 pounds of maple sugar. That is, where the trees stand in the open. The product is less where the sugar is made from trees in the forest. This is equivalent to at least half the family's requirements for sugar. But the sales of sirup will make an aggregate value per tree even higher. A grove of 50 trees standing in the open will occupy not more than a quarter of an acre. Besides the sugar product, the grove is advantageous for shade, also for an enormous product of humus each fall, and for windbreaks and shelter, and as an equalizer of temperature and moisture. Maple trees should grow in a grove. They do not thrive well as street trees, where they are subject to much abuse of the saw and exposure of the trunk to hot sunshine. A grove might well be given place on every farm of 20 acres. Why shall there not be a general planting of maple groves during the spring of 1898?—N. Y. Tribune.

HANDY FARM APPLIANCE.

A Device That Serves Every Purpose of the Stone Boat.

Several years ago the writer felt the need of something lighter and smaller than an ordinary stone boat for conveying light articles around the farm. The result of some study was the device shown in the illustration, which the hired man says is "about the handiest thing on the farm." It is, in fact, a sort of cross between a stone boat and a bob sled. The length over all is five feet, the width 2½ feet. The runners are of hard maple, five feet long, ten inches wide, and two inches thick, the forward end rising 3½ inches. The hardpiece is also of hard maple plank, 30 inches long, two inches thick and one foot wide. An oval hole three inches from the front edge affords a means of attaching a chain for hauling. This piece is firmly fastened to the runners by six bolts—three at each end—of which the heads are countersunk in the lower sides of the runners. The floor is made of white ash boards, inch thick and 30 inches long, nailed crosswise, flush with the outer edge of the runners. This is surmounted on either side by a hickory rail two inches thick and three inches wide, extending the entire length flush with the outside. These rails are secured in place by four inch lag screws. Made thus of selected materials, and firmly put together, it has been in use, summer and winter, for five years, and is still nearly as good as new, save for the natural wear on the runners.

GOOD THING TO HAVE AROUND

For conveying plows, cultivators, other implements, seeds, etc., hauling barrels of spraying mixture, removing bowlders, and other light short hauls around the farm, it has become almost indispensable. On a small farm it serves about every purpose of the old-fashioned stone boat, and is of much lighter draught.—George A. Martin, in N. Y. Tribune.

How to Fight Black Rot.

Black rot has been causing serious loss among the cabbage growers, and the department of agriculture has been investigating the disease, which, it is said, may be spread by the seed, manure and insects, especially slugs. Late-planted cabbage are less liable to damage than those planted early. The germ develops best in very hot weather, while cool weather seems to check it. Rotation is advised as a means of prevention. The bulletin observes that the planting of other crops for a long series of years seems to be the only satisfactory way of getting rid of the disease when it has once become serious. Fields that have shown even a little of the disease should not be planted to cabbages or other cruciferous plants for several years.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Not a Good Thing to Do.

We do not approve of tying trees to stakes, though this is often recommended and often done. The bark is apt to be rubbed and injured in spite of watchfulness. Much better is it to reduce the size of the head so the tree will stand without aid. Nor would we hill up around a tree to brace it, because often, when the ground is soft in the winter, the swaying of the trees opens the earth about the stem, which is filled with water, and this, later, freezes and kills the bark and damages the tree.—Rural World.

HORTICULTURE

FIGHTING INSECTS.

Some Valuable Formulas Furnished by Prof. Maynard.

Every fruit and plant has its peculiar insect enemies and fungous diseases. Progressive farmers, gardeners and fruit growers are provided with spraying machinery for overcoming these pests, and spraying is as much routine work as is cultivation or fertilizing. For fungous pests, because of cheapness, effectiveness and lasting qualities, the bordeaux mixture has superseded all other mixtures. To make it, four pounds of copper sulphate or blue vitriol are dissolved in two gallons of hot water; or, suspended in a coarse rack in a cask of cold water it will dissolve in a few hours. Caustic or quicklime, four pounds, is then slaked slowly by adding small quantities of water until thoroughly dissolved. When cooled, the lime wash is poured through a fine mesh sieve into the dissolved copper sulphate. To the mixture is then added 25 to 50 gallons of water. Destruction to fungous is probably caused by the copper, which is held in place by the lime. Should the bordeaux mixture disfigure the fruit, the ammoniacal carbonate of copper should be used and applied often, as it washes easily. Formula: Copper carbonate three ounces, ammonia enough to dissolve the copper, water 40 gallons.

DOUBLE CYLINDER SPRAY PUMP.

Paris green and kerosene emulsion are the insecticides in most common use. Paris green effectually destroys chewing or leaf-eating insects, and is less liable to injure foliage than london purple. Use in water, one pound to 200 gallons. If lime is added, or the paris green added to the bordeaux mixture, use one pound to 50 gallons. For sucking insects, the kerosene emulsion is unequaled: Dissolve a half-pound of bar soap in two gallons of hot water, and while hot add two gallons of kerosene oil and stir until a lard-like substance is formed. When used, dilute with water to 15 or 25 gallons. Insects and fungous growths appear together, hence, many combine paris green with the bordeaux mixture, saving half the cost of application. For applying, the pump selected should throw a heavy stream, with considerable force, and yet work with ease. The illustration herewith shows a powerful pump and suitable sprayer for all ordinary crops. The barrel is readily mounted on any form of wagon.—Prof. S. T. Maynard, Mass. Agr. College, in Farm and Home.

HORTICULTURAL HINTS.

Give the orchard all the potash that it needs.

Coarse, raw manure is not fit for the garden.

Toads, frogs and lizards are useful in the garden.

The gem melon is the best seller in the market.

Prune the quinee tree and train it to a single stem.

Missouri sold $19,500,000 worth of fruit last year.

Extra work in getting a good seed bed pays in garden work.

Cut off all the bruised roots when planting a tree, but do not mutilate the top.

A neglected orchard incumbers land that might be used profitably for other purposes.

A late crop of cabbage is easily grown, for the seed can be planted in the open ground.

Five acres in cucumbers for pickles will ordinarily pay as much as all the rest of the farm.—Western Plowman.

Feeding Pills to Plants.

The following note by Mr. Paul, of Cheshunt, on the method employed by M. Georges Truiffent of administering artificial food to plants is of considerable interest to horticulturists. After an analysis of the ash of the living plant, the necessary salts for a given time, such as six months, are weighed out and enclosed in a metal cover to form what is called a "pill," which is presumably inserted in the pot, diffusion of the salts taking place through the folds of the metal, and the thicker the metal the slower the diffusion. As the salts dissolve and disappear they are replaced by a core which expands until it completely fills the "pill." The salts have no action on the metal cover which remains firm and hard. It is stated that the solubility of the salts can be so regulated that a "pill" may be made to last three or six months, as may be desired. By this method of feeding large well-colored plants are grown in pots of less than half the usual size.—Gardeners' Chronicle.

Charcoal for Lawns.

The dark color of charcoal makes it absorb heat, and thus warm the land to which it is applied as a dressing. It may also have considerable manurial value, as the charcoal easily absorbs ammonia, and if soaked in strong manure water from a compost it will carry the ammonia to the lawn in less offensive form than in the manure, which is often used for that purpose.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Could Not Weaken Such Testimony As This.

(From the Kalamazoo Telegraph.)

The following statement is one of great interest to many a citizen of Kalamazoo and a man as well known as Mr. Wallace should carry more than ordinary weight with our readers. Here it is as taken down by our representative:

"My name is John A. Wallace. I am a member of the firm of J. A. Wallace & Co., doing business as tinners, etc., at 106 Eleanor Street, Kalamazoo, in which city I also reside. For the past nine or ten months I have been having attacks of kidney complaint, the pain in my back over my hips was very severe at times; my urinary system was also in a bad state of derangement, sometimes the urine was scanty and then again the amount would be excessive, and a difficulty of passage always existed. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills at a time when I felt that I was going to be sick, but their use warded off an attack, and I am now feeling very much better; the urinary organism has regained a normal condition, and the terrific pain in my back is much reduced in severity, while it is now fast going away altogether. I am continuing the use of Doan's Kidney Pills with positive feeling that they will effect on me a permanent and speedy cure. I have unbounded confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all kidney ailments; have good reason to be, as they have done so much for me."

Can you ask any more than this? Doan's Kidney Pills are relieving more backs of the burdens they have been forced to bear through the kidneys than all other means devised, and, better still, they are doing this right here in Michigan. Ask any one who has ever taken them and see what they will say.

'ROUND ABOUT US.

Clippings and Condensations From our County Contemporaries.

The football team has lost two of its best players, Hazen S. Pingree, Jr., of Detroit, and H. B. Hodgman, of Chicago, both of whom have left college.—A. A. Courier. Mr. Hodgman is the genial full back who played with our boy Thanksgiving day.

Hon. A. O. Abbott has sold twelve voting machines to Kalamazoo. There will be forty Abbott voting machines in use in the state at the spring elections. Six cities have purchased them. Adrian, Lansing, Pontiac, Caro, Kalamazoo and Hudson.—Adrian Times.

The newly elected directors of the Lenawee County Fair Association are as follows: J. R. Bennett, Adrian; Howard Hopkins, Rome; S. M. Hamilton, Adrian; Chas. G. Wilcox, Adrian; M. H. Coggswell, Blissfield. The fair will be held in the week commencing September 18th.

Wyandotte people sent a sample of the city water to Ann Arbor for analysis and the big brewery company at once commenced to enlarge the capacity of its plant. Now nearly all the people are mad because the U. of M. experts pronounced the water pure.—Northville Record.

It was a narrow escape a bob load of boys and girls had on Miller ave. Saturday night, by running into a team of horses that were going up the hill they were coasting down. The youngsters were all more or less injured, and that some of them were not killed is a miracle.—A. A. Courier.

Governor Pingree will deliver his canned speech at the Athens Theatre this evening before the Student' Republican club. He has had it on ice to keep it from exploding since Feb. 17, the date he was to have delivered it here at the Young Men's Republican Club banquet, when he got "put off at Buffalo."—Ann Arbor Argus.

Last Monday evening Everett Gardner was arraigned for trial in Justice Thorn's court, and was found guilty of not supporting his children. He was required to give bonds to support them for three months, but was unable to do so, consequently was sentenced to twenty days' imprisonment in the Adrian jail.—Hudson Post. Who supports those kids now?

William Jennings Bryan will not be heard in Ann Arbor this season. It was expected that he would speak in the Students' Lecture Association course, but his price of $1,000 is beyond the limit of the association's purse. He offered to lecture free if he could talk on "Bi-metalism," but that is a political subject and political subjects are tabooed in University hall except when Chauncy M. Depew speaks.—Ann Arbor Argus.

W. H. Heartt, formerly of this city, who sued the township of Indianfields, Tuscola county, to recover thistle tax which he was forced to pay a year ago, has received a judgement for the tax paid and costs. The case excited much interest, as it involved the right of the overseerrs of highways to cut Canada thistles and charge the expense against adjacent land owners. This has been the practice all over the state and overseers have made large fees at land owners' expeuse.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

The Hudson Post says: Not the least important matter in the paper this week are the council proceedings, as the deliberations of the city fathers were of more than ordinary moment. One of the acts passed was the adoption of standard time. In the past the business of the city has been done by what was known as local time. This is to be changed.

Yes, and it's a mighty good change. Lets all have one time and let it be the time of the world. Come on, Tecumseh solons, lets us have it.

The most accomodating man in the state probably is Jim Withee, of Plymouth. If you ask him to go with you to church, he is Withee. When the wife says she is going visiting and wants him to go along and carry the baby, he says, "Darling I will be Withee." If you ask him to go to a dance or a dog fight, he says, "Sure I am Withee." He telegraphed the President the other day, "If you go to war with Spain over the Cuban trouble, I'll be Withee." That's the kind of fellow Jim is.—Adrian Press.

A short story of an occurrence that happened some time ago has never yet found its way in print. Everybody who has taken work in the Conservatory of Music well knows that "harmony" is just as essential to the course as sugar is to cake frosting. A young lady with a very Bostonese accent applied to take a course in the Conservatory. "But," said she, "I don't want 'hominy'," "Well," responded the gentleman who was tending to the classification, "you can take boiled rice with sweetened cream if you prefer it, but you must take harmony."—Ypsilanti dept. Ann Arbor Democrat.

Memorial Service of Miss Frances E. Willard.

The last official act of Miss Willard was to issue a call, inviting the cooperation of all christian churches, young people's societies and temperance organizations, in celebrating March 20th, the birthday of General Neal Dow, as prohibition day.

It has seemed to the general officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that nothing could be more fitting than to observe this day as a universal memorial Sunday to her whose life was spent in the service of god and humanity. In accordance with this call a mass meeting will be held in the M. E. church of Tecumseh, on Sunday evening March 20th at 7:30, at which all the churches will unite with the W. C. T. U. in appropriate memorial services for Miss Frances E. Willard the beloved leader of hundreds and thousands of devoted women, and who is universally acknowledged to have been one of the greatest women the world has ever known.

Jas. A. Brown.

Jas. A., son of Elias and Esther M. Brown, was born in Raisin, Lenawee county, Mich., July 11th, 1867, and departed this life Friday morning March 3rd, 1898, being over thirty years of age.

He was ill nearly two years with consumption and longed during the last weeks and days of his sickness to have the end come and rest secured. His parting benediction to mother and all was heart-touching, and assures how deep are those ties that bind heart to heart in love and in prayer.

The father passed away on May 29th, 1898. The family now consists of the mother and five children, three daughters and two sons.

The funeral occurred on Saturday forenoon at the family home in Raisin, Rev. J. M. Getchell, of Marshall, Mich., officiating. Burial was at the cemetery in Raisin township. The services were attended by many residing in that community, and several from Tecumseh, Ridgeway, Adrian, and Toledo, Ohio.

The closing ceremonies at the grave save a prayer and benediction, were under the direction of several members of the order known as "Workmen of Woodmen," from Toledo, Ohio, of which the deceased was a member. It was a service of fraternity, condolence and memory.

The singing was under the charge of Mr. Doty and Miss Fowler, and the two selections, "Jesus is Mine" and "Only Remembered by What I Have Done," is worthy of mention. The officiating minister based his words of comfort and prayer on John 22: 1, as indicating "Revealed Blessings." The closing remarks were tender, referring to those happy days when the family were active members and he pastor of the Universalist church at Tecumseh, interested in the choir, the Sunday school, and all that pertained to the general welfare of the society and he referred them to its Christian hope, love, comfort and victory. J. M. GETCHELL.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends and especially to the Woodman of the World and choir for their sympathy and assistance in our recent bereavement.

MRS. ESTHER BROWN AND FAMILY.

CAUTIOUS.

He walked into the apothecary shop with a hesitating step, and glanced nervously at the rows of bottles with a scared look in his pale blue eyes. After fidgeting about uncertainly for some time, he at last caught the eye of the clerk, and beckoning mysteriously, led the way to a secluded corner by the cigar-case, where the clerk was surprised by finding a trembling forefinger hooked tenaciously into one of his buttonholes and an eager face thrust suddenly almost against his.

"What's the matter?" asked the clerk.

"I s'pose you can lay your hand right on the morphine bottle, can't you?" said the stranger, in an anxious whisper.

"Yes, sir. Certainly," replied the astonished salesman.

"An' I reckon if you was pushed you could find the strychnine in a minute or two?"

"Of course."

"Mebbe the arsenic hasn't got lost or mislaid clear beyond findin', if you just had to, has it?"

"Assuredly not."

"An' the sugar-of-lead bottle couldn't get away from you if it tried?"

"No, indeed."

"An' chasin' up the vitriol to its lair would be just play for you?"

"My dear sir, of course I am familiar with all the drugs here."

"But s'posin' some other fellers had been changin' them around, just as a joke, you know?"

"What do you mean?"

"Suppose the bottles had got mixed?"

"Impossible. Besides, everything is plainly labelled."

"An' there ain't no chance of your palmin' off prussic acid for peppermint?"

"Not the slightest."

"Well, I've—half—a—notion—to—risk—it. Yes, you may give me two ounces of peppermint, young man."—Harper's Round Table.

Reduced Freight Rates for Settlers.

In order to encourage the movement of settlers and land buyers from Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and the eastern states to Western Minnesota, South Dakota, and North Dakota, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. has very materially reduced its carload rates for emigrant movables, so that farmers who have purchased lands in Western Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota can take all of their belongings with them to their new homes at small expense, which inducement upon the part of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry, will no doubt be greatly appreciated by those who are thus benefited.

For further information apply to any representative of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry., or address J. H. Hiland, General Freight Agent, Old Colony Building, Chicago, Ill.

The Arena for March is rich in great contributions. The first article entitled Trusts: Their causes and the Remedy by Senator Marion Butler is a powerful exposition of the great theme now occupying the attention of the public. B. O. Fowler takes for his theme "The Exiled Christ in Christian Russia," in which he shows one aspect of the terrible despotism in that country. A subject of great importance is that of Girls' Co-operative Boarding Homes," discussed by Robert Stein. The fiction number is a powerful and pathetic sketch entitled "Under the Winding Sheet" by Grace Ada Brown. In the Editor's evening Dr. Ridpath notes "The Ascendency of Kipling" and presents a sonnet called "Ecce Homo."

HIS DEATH FORETOLD.

Mow Chong Expires at the Hour He Had Named.

An astounding case of fatalism has just come under the attention of the British Columbia medical practitioners, who find in science no explanation and but few precedents for the extraordinary occurrence, reports the St. Louis Republic.

Ten months ago Mow Chong, a wealthy merchant and manufacturer of paper flowers, had a vision in which, he said, he received a supernatural communication informing him that he would die at six p. m. the 19th day of Shap Yee, the 11th of January. Before the fateful day arrived he closed up his business, distributed bequests and on the day set for his death was banqueted by some 20 intimate friends at his residence here.

The feast was in progress when he quietly left the board and retired to his couch. Just as the clock struck six he died, without a word or struggle. Much against the wishes of his relatives, an autopsy was ordered, which, however, failed to disclose any cause of death. Now the authorities are in a quandary, as the body cannot be buried or sent home to China, as desired, without a death certificate, and no local practitioner can solve the riddle and issue one.

Highly Coppers.

Among numismatists one of the most sought after colonial coins is the Highly copper. They are of several varieties, and were struck in 737 by Samuel Highly, who was a physician and a blacksmith at Granby, Conn. He obtained the copper from a mine near by, and shaped the coins at his forge.

VICTIM OF AN ASSASSIN.

Xenia, O., March 8.—At an early hour Monday morning Dr. A. A. Matthews, a prominent physician at Gladstone, this county, was called to his door by an unknown person. Upon reaching the doorway a man standing in the yard fired a revolver at him, the bullet taking effect in Matthews' abdomen, making a fatal wound. The assassin fled, and there is no clew to his identity.

Mrs. Behrens Sentenced.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 20.—Judge Waterman overruled the motion for a new trial of Mrs. Christine Behrens, convicted of the murder of her husband, and also denied an arrest of judgment. He sentenced the prisoner to imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary for life. She was taken to Anamosa Saturday afternoon.

SAW AWFUL DESTITUTION.

Senator Proctor Returns to Key West from His Inspection of the Island of Cuba.

THE SPANIARDS' HATRED OF AMERICANS

Col. Parker, Who Returns with Senator Proctor, Says Everyone in Havana Knows the Maine Was Blown Up Intentionally and the Spaniards Glory in the Fact.

New York, March 10. — A special to the Evening World from Key West, Fla. says: Among the passengers on the Olivette from Havana yesterday was Senator Proctor of Vermont, who has been making a study of Cuba and the Cubans. With him was Col. M. M. Parker, of Washington. Senator Proctor said:

"I have not had an easy time. I have seen all from the highest general and the richest merchant to the neediest reconcentrado and the humblest pacifico, bankers, officers, officials and others. I have visited the military prison, hospitals, relief depots, asylums, guardhouses, trochas, farms offices and homes. I have been in four provinces, Havana, Pinar del Rio, Matanzas and Santa Clara, and in the principal cities of each. I am of an observant turn of mind and I kept my eyes open. I have found out what I could not possibly have learned without a personal visit, while I have not to my knowledge antagonized a single person on the island. My trips with Miss Barton have been of great service, because, when the minds of people are mellowed by gratitude their hearts speak out the truth. As a business man, I wish to say that Miss Barton's methods of receiving, caring for and distributing the supplies are most admirable. I am surprised at her ability and delighted at the results attained. The American people may be fully confident that all money or supplies sent will be conscientiously applied. Could they see, as I have seen, the suffering, starvation and death, they would, as Whittier says, pour forth wine and oil."

Saw Awful Destitution.

Col. Parker said to an Evening World reporter:

"The senator's trip to Cuba was merely to satisfy himself as to the real merits of the Cuban question. It has no political significance whatever. The famine, suffering and awful destitution among the reconcentrados is something almost indescribable. The alcalde of Matanzas told me that 55,000 persons had died of starvation in that city during the last year and that 5,600 had died during February.

"In a ward of the hospital at Matanzas there are 100 Cubans, most of them sleeping on the floor. We spent a half hour at the hospital and during that time three of the patients in that ward died. Blanco's order modifying Weyler's 'reconcentrados' edict has not gone into effect, but when it does I do not believe that it will help matters any. Around every town is a trocha. Any citizen who walks outside of it is liable to be shot by a Spanish sentry. Blanco's order permits them to go outside the trocha for a few hours every day, but does not remove the sentries, and so long as they remain Cubans are not going to venture outside.

Maine Was Blown Up.

"Concerning the cause of the Maine disaster, I feel free to say that such information as I have obtained indicates that the explosion was from the outside. It does not show that the Spanish government or any of its officials in Havana were participants in the crime. In the first place, I do not think there were any mines in the harbor. I have not the slightest knowledge of what the decision of the naval court of inquiry will be, or when it will reach Washington. Such information as I have is entirely of an unofficial character."

Visits the White House.

Washington, March 15. — Senator Proctor visited the white house and uptown department yesterday. He spent half an hour first with Secretary Alger, explaining, it is believed, the military situation in Cuba, and afterward had a conference with Judge Day, assistant secretary of state. Then he went to the white house and was closeted with the president for two hours and a quarter. When he emerged from the room he courteously declined to speak regarding the nature of the information he had communicated to the president.

Quarantine by Texas.

Austin, Tex., March 15.—Gov. Culberson has issued a general quarantine proclamation, going into effect April 1 and applying on all coast points and along the Rio Grande. The quarantine is against yellow fever, smallpox and cholera. The governor takes occasion in this proclamation to urge upon all cities and towns in the state to exercise the greatest diligence in cleaning up and avoiding any introduction of yellow fever into their midst.

Victim of Apoplexy.

Utica, N. Y., March 16.—Lillian Kennedy, the actress who was stricken with apoplexy during a performance of "The Charity Girl" at the Utica opera house Saturday evening, died Tuesday. In private life Miss Kennedy was Mrs. Charles Hassenford.

"Every American in Cuba is watched as though he were a criminal. The Spaniards hate us and do not hesitate to say so.

"Everyone in Havana now knows that the Maine was blown up. Spaniards no longer deny it. They do not seem to be very sad over it, either.

"Are we going to have war? Well, if we don't I shall be surprised."

Col. Parker said all the American consuls in Cuba are doing their best in the distribution of relief supplies, except Consul Magar at Cienfugos, who, the colonel said, denied that there was much suffering, and who seemed to be in sympathy with the Spaniards.

Senator Proctor Returns.

Washington, March 14. — Senator Proctor, of Vermont, and his companion, Col. Myron M. Parker, who have been spending some time in Cuba, returned to Washington last night. The Post claims to have had an interview with Senator Proctor, in which the latter said:

another busy day in the war and navy departments. Secretary Alger was enabled to make an allotment of funds from the appropriation of $50,000,000 which will greatly facilitate the work of the bureaus. These bureaus had not been able to conclude any contracts for the procurement of war supplies because no allotment had been made, but Tuesday afternoon the ordnance bureau was given $2,500,000 and business went forward with a rush. It is true that this sum is already mortgaged under provisional arrangements made during the past week, but with the assurance of more funds to come the work of the bureaus is now moving rapidly.

Court Leaves Havana.

Havana, March 16.—The Mangrove, with the court of inquiry on board, sailed Tuesday night for Key West. Capt. Sampson, president of the board, assured the correspondents that the decision to leave Havana was not reached until Tuesday afternoon after a consultation of the members. It was decided that, while further testimony might be obtained here, this was not sufficiently likely to justify a longer stay. The court has no prophecy to make as to the further duration of its sittings or as to when or where the findings will be promulgated.

Will Force the Issue.

Madrid, March 16.—Spain will stand by the report of its naval court of inquiry, regardless of any conclusion that may be reached by the American commission. The Madrid press is practically unanimous in making this statement. It says that if the Spanish naval officers report that the theory that the Maine was destroyed by an accidental explosion is at all tenable the Spanish government will consider the decision final and will not consider any other theory.

Hopes There Will Be No War.

Princeton, N. J., March 16.—Former President Cleveland says all loyal citizens should support the government in any exigency that may arise, but he is hopeful that there may be no war.

OLD GLORY TO FLY AT THE MASTHEAD.

Two New Military Departments Created—The President Will Do His Duty—Spain Wants to Know Why We Buy Warships—Court of Inquiry Leaves Havana.

Washington, March 14.—The war department Saturday promulgated its order creating the departments of the gulf and of the lakes and abolishing the departments of the Missouri and of Texas. The department of the east will embrace the states on the Atlantic coast to and including North Carolina; the department of the lakes will include Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, with headquarters at Chicago, and the department of the gulf will comprise the states of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, with headquarters at Atlanta. Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke will command the department of the lakes and Brig. Gen. William Graham the department of the gulf.

Massing War Forces.

Gen. Miles has matured plans for the massing of all available troops, both infantry and cavalry, at stations along the Atlantic seaboard. His order to this effect has already been sent to Secretary Alger.

Advices have been sent to commanding officers at interior ports to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice. It is expected that within a few days the line of defense will be complete along the entire coast.

Large quantities of ammunition and weapons have also been ordered to the seaboard fortifications. At all stations the activity is most intense and word is given that on the word the entire coast would be in such a state of defense as would make any movement on the part of Spain little to be feared.

THE AMAZONAS.

Will Fly Old Glory.

Washington, March 15.—A week's negotiations closed yesterday by the purchase by the navy department in London of the two fine cruisers Amazonas and Admiral Abreuall, built at Elswick for the Brazilian government. The United States flag will be hoisted over the new ships within a week, probably, and just as soon as the crew can be put aboard the Amazonas she will start for the United States. The other vessel will follow at the earliest possible moment. The terms of sale are secret.

Prospect for Peace.

Washington, March 15.—Feeling here is that the prospect for peace has materially brightened, and that in the end Spain will yield to all the reasonable demands of the United States, both as regards the Maine tragedy and Cuban reforms.

A special cable dispatch from Madrid declares that the ministry is for peace and tranquility prevails.

War Should Be Stopped at Once.

Jackson, Miss., March 15.—Secretary of State Powerton has received a letter from United States Consul Barker at Rio la Grande, Cuba, enumerating the needs of the starving Cubans in his district. In concluding his letter Consul Barker says: "In my humble judgment substantial relief can come to this people only through peace alone. Stop the war and stop it instantly, if not the Cuban race will soon be extinct."

Will Do His Duty.

Washington, March 16.—President McKinley told a senatorial caller he would "rather have his administration called a failure than to bring on an unholy war." Nevertheless he is resolved to do his duty regardless of what the consequences may be.

Spain Grows Curious.

Washington, March 16,—Spain has again ventured on dangerous ground. Another step has been taken that may increase the irritation in this country. The case in point is a question directed to this government as to what construction is to be placed on its purchase of foreign war vessels. Rumors touching the question of the Sagasta ministry have been going the rounds here and it has proved impossible to get any of the cabinet officers to deny them. Assistant Secretary Day said he would speak if it were proper for him to do so, but under the circumstances he was unable to discuss the subject.

As a general thing such a query is a prelude to more vigorous measures, but in this case it is believed in government circles that it is merely another of Spain's bluffs, like the one she made when she suggested Gen. Lee's recall from Cuba.

Activity in the Departments.

Washington, March 16.—Tuesday was another busy day in the war and navy departments.

Insurance Statistics.

Lansing, March 11.—The Michigan business of stock life insurance companies last year amounted to 11,926 policies, amounting to $20,637,021. The total premiums collected was $4,432,391, and the losses incurred $1,820,599. The total insurance written in the state by life, casualty, assessment and fraternal companies was $27,850,705; premiums received, $4,572,519; losses incurred, $1,903,219.

Munising, March 16.—Hon. Timothy Nester has been reelected mayor of Munising. The contest was one of the most exciting ever known in northern Michigan. This is Mr. Nester's third term.

Death of Col. J. A. Mann.

Lansing, March 14.—Col. J. A. Mann, city poor director and formerly one of the best-known live stock auctioneers in the west, died Sunday.

Death of an Inventor.

Reading, Pa., March 7.—James H. Carpenter, inventor of the Carpenter projectile, died here Sunday night of pneumonia, aged 51 years.

Death of Col. Van Duzer.

Escanaba, March 5.—Col. John C. Van Duzer, the veteran warrior and editor, died Thursday night at his home in this city at the age of 70 years. Col. Van Duzer was a warm personal friend of Capt. Howgate, the embezzling chief of the weather bureau, and for a long time after the latter's flight he worked for Mr. Van Duzer as a printer, under an assumed name.

Demand Increases.

Lansing, March 7. — The demand for state land is increasing. The receipts of the state land office for February were $8,383, an increase of $2,100 over February of last year. The lands disposed of were for the most part primary school and agricultural college lands.

The special meetings at the M. E. church were brought to a close Friday.

The remains of Miss Celia Eagen, who died Friday at Asheville, S. Carolina, accompanied by her brother James, arrived here Monday night. The funeral took place at the Catholic church Tuesday morning, Rev. Father Heidenreich celebrating high mass, and was attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends. She was born and reared in this community and her death has cast a gloom over many hearts. She possessed in a marked degree those feminine virtues which go to make up a noble character and useful life. She was nearly 21 years of age, and to be thus stricken down in the morning of life is sad indeed. When the symptoms of that dread disease, consumption, presented themselves, she was taken south, hoping the climate might work a cure, but such was not the case and she now rests beside father and mother.

The village election passed off very quietly. A large vote was polled, 132 straight and 15 split votes on the Corporation and 130 straight and 18 split on the Law and Order ticket and 2 tickets were thrown out as they were not marked. La Grippe, Followed by Heart Disease, Cured by DR. MILES' HEART CURE.

MR. C. C. SHULTS, of Winterset, Iowa, inventor and manufacturer of Shults' Safety Whiffletree Coupling, writes of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. "Two years ago an attack of LaGrippe left me with a weak heart. I had run down in flesh to mere skin and bone. I could not sleep lying down for smothering spells; frequent sharp darting pains and palpitation caused a constant fear of sudden death, nothing could induce me to remain away from home over night. My local physician prescribed Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and in a few days I was able to sleep well and the pains gradually lessened, and finally ceased. I reduced the the doses, having gained fifteen pounds, and am now feeling better in every way than I have for years."

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

A Positive Cure for Dyspepsia.

The results of the New Cure for Indigestion and Nervous Dyspepsia Given by Your Neighbors.

Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer is not propped up by fictitious or anonymous testimonials, but is demonstrating its curative powers every day in stubborn cases of chronic and acute dyspepsia among reputable citizens of your own county. Persons who have tried nearly all of the highly advertised preparations for stomach disorders, without relief, are now rejoicing over the speedy and permanent results of this new combined method treatment. If you are troubled with any form of stomach or nerve troubles a trial with Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer will substantiate all we claim for it. For sale by John J. Orr, leading druggist, Tecumseh, Mich. Read the following testimonial:

To all whom it may concern:
For the benefit of those suffering from stomach and nerve troubles I wish to give a brief statement of my own case. I have suffered from dyspepsia more or less for twelve years. My troubles were indigestion, sour stomach, and acid fermentation, associated with severe nervous difficulties, rendering sleep at times impossible. I tried many preparations recommended for my troubles, without relief. Recently I procured a package of Drake's Dyspepsia Cure and Nerve Restorer. I had taken the treatment only three days, when, to my surprise, I began to feel better in every way. I have used only one package, and can now eat and retain any kind of food with perfect comfort. I sleep undisturbed and feel refreshed in the morning, something I had not done before for years. I advise any person troubled with dyspepsia to try this treatment. Yours.

A HAPPY WOMAN

Writes to Dr. Hartman and Tells Him What Makes Her So.

Mrs. Lucy Lee, of Naples, Tex., had almost come to the conclusion that the blessing of health was no longer hers, and so when she regained it, her happiness was almost too great for words. She writes as follows: "I am well now and am enjoying good health, better than ever before in my life. How happy I feel that I can write and tell youthis. I cannot praise Pe-ru-na too much. Man-a-lin is the best medicine I have ever tried for that purpose; it relieved me from all pain. I advised my neighbor to use Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin for catarrh and stomach trouble. It is the best in the world. I can do all my housework and not feel it. I can't praise Pe-ru-na as I would like to; it is the greatest medicine there is in the world."

Dr. Hartman receives many such letters as this every week. Some of them have been gathered together and published in book form. The book is called "Facts and Faces," and will be sent free to any address by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

when done you will have a high side-plaited collarette. For the heading many persons baste the top within an inch of the edge, then pull out the edge with the fingers to make a ruffle. A tiny wire here and there is necessary to preserve the shape of the collarette. The front can be a careless bow and end of the chiffon.

A Medici collarette of mink is comfortable for wearing over this.

A Woman's Deed.

A BENEFACTRESS WHO IS DOING INCALCULABLE GOOD.

Devotes Much of Her Time to the Benefits of Children—How She Helps Them.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. John Tansey, of 130 Baker Street, Detroit, Michigan, is one of those women who always know just what to do in all trouble and sickness. One that is a mother to those in distress. To a reporter she said: "I am the mother of ten children and have raised eight of them. Several years ago we had a serious time with my daughter, which began when she was about sixteen years old. She did not have any serious illness but seemed to gradually waste away. Having never had any consumption in our families, as we come of good old Irish and Scotch descent, we did not think it was that disease. Neither did she have a hacking cough, yet she grew thinner and paler each day. Our doctor called the disease by an odd name which, as I afterward learned, meant lack of blood.

"It is impossible to describe the feelings John and I had as we noticed our daughter slowly passing away from us. As a last resort I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, made by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., which I understood contained in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. Before she had taken half a box, there was a decided change, and after three months' treatment you would not have recognized her, as her health was so greatly improved. She gained in flesh rapidly and soon was in perfect health. I have always kept the pills in the house since and have recommended them to every one I could. I have told many mothers about them and they have made some wonderful cures. One of the girls had a young lady friend that came to the house almost every day, and she was a sight. Honestly, she seemed almost transparent. I did not care to have my daughters associate with her, as I was afraid she would drop dead some day when they were out on the street. I recommended and begged her to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and told her of their sterling qualities and how the cost was slight, being only 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, at any druggist's. Finally I induced her to try them.

"They helped her wonderfully, and undoubtedly saved her life. She now recommends them to other young women.

"Every mother in this land should keep these pills in the house, as they are good for many other ailments. I don't believe in doctoring and never spent much money in medicines, but I can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every mother that has a daughter just coming into womanhood."

NONE SO GOOD.

BRITTON.

Rev. Nickerson was an Adrian visitor Monday.

The Wabash pay car is billed to be on hand March 22.

Ernest Taylor, son of Henry Taylor, is very low at present.

C. R. Mabee is busy building a new tangled lighting plant.

A. U. Reattoire's auction sale was adjourned to Thursday, March 24.

The HERALD can use a few loads of subscription wood if delivered at once.

Lawrence Brown went to Jackson Tuesday, in the interest of the Osborne Machine Co.

Will Taylor, of Detroit, has been called here by the serious illness of his brother Ernest.

Mrs. Ed. Bachman and Miss Bertha Britton went to Cambria Tuesday for a visit with friends.

Sarah Wells returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. Chas. Haines, at Ypsilanti.

Miss Jennie Ellis, of Rea, and Miss Alba Caux, of Monroe, are the guests of Miss Nettie Bannister this week.

Will Ousterhout has moved onto Jno. Clarkson's farm in Macon and Jno. Stewart has moved into Will's house here.

W. R. Osgood, Burt Nichols, Will Britton, Darius and Shirley Smith were visitors at Adrian, Tuesday on business.

There was an unusual large attendance at the Maccabee Tent review on Tuesday evening, and thirteen new Knights rode the goat. The poor old goat was nearly exhausted.

Jno. Brooks, of North Manchester, Ind., is here inspecting hay. He has contracted for 700 tons of Arthur Hughes, the same to be delivered in sixty days. Such purchases make things boom.

Rev. E G. Palmer and son, of Rochester, Mich., arrived here Tuesday for a visit with Enos Taylor, but were met by a telegram to return to a wedding Wednesday. Such events must happen at any cost.

The Exelby House will change landlords next Monday morning, and Edgar Exelby will take charge. L. Bannister the present proprietor, will go into partnership with Arthur Hughes, and attend to running the hay press.

At the Reformed church, on Sunday at 10:30 a. m. the pastor will preach, the topic not yet decided upon. At 7:30 p. m., he will deliver the sixth number in the lecture course, topic "The Great New York Aqueduct and its Lessons." The C. E. society will meet at 6:30. The topic, "The Evils of Intemperance," will be discussed by the members. The choir will be led with organ and violin.

The village election Monday passed off quietly, the nomination of only one ticket not awakening much interest, although Dr. E. Hendershot only lacked seven votes of defeating F. Brown for trustee, the regular candidate. Following are the elected: Pres. W. J. Clark; Clerk, W. R. Osgood; Treas., Jas. Du Bois; Assessor, Wm. Britton; Trustees, Jno. Britton, Wm. Rinn, Frank Brown.

Another chapter in the village of Cone vs Dr. Wood farce was enacted Saturday. The worthy doctor was again brought before the presiding genius of Milan and released on a flaw in the papers. Before the same could be corrected, the Britton contingent caught a train and returned home with Deputy Rice in full pursuit on the next train. Arriving here the doctor mounted the car from the opposite side to which the deputy dismounted and going to Adrian swore out a warrant for our Milan friend and returning with Turnkey Haviland gobbled him up and lodged him in jail at Adrian. Bail was secured and now both sides are waiting for the next move with their coats off and teeth shut tight.

Elizabeth McWilliams, wife of James McCarberry, died at her home in east Macon, March 14, 1898. She was born in County Antrim, Ireland, and was 59 years of age. She came to America about 25 years ago in company with her sister, and two years later was married to Mr. McCarberry, becoming his second wife. She leaves a daughter and two sons to mourn her loss. There are also four brothers living, whose homes are namely in Ireland, Scotland, England and New Zeland. One sister survives her, while three have preceeded her to the spirit world. She has always been of robust frame and enjoyed the best of health until within a few years, but has since been slowly declining and becoming enfeebled in mind as well as in body, keeping her room, and avoiding the society of all except her own family. On Sunday noon when the accident occurred from the effects of which she died the husband and sons had gone to a neighbors house, leaving the mother and daughter together at home. The first the daughter discovered of the trouble was seeing her mother standing in the doorway of the sitting room, her head and shoulders enveloped in flames. With rare presence of mind and noble heroism, she caught up a woolen blanket and wrapping it about her mother, smothered the flames, escaping herself with only a burned hand. The elder son arriving at an opportune moment also helped in saving his mother from the flames. The sufferer survived until Monday evening, when she quietly fell asleep in death almost without the observance of the family watching at her bedside. The exact origin of the accident is not certainly known. She was a member of the Presbytersan church in Ireland. The funeral service was held at the family residence on Wednesday at 10 a. m., Rev. N. F. Nickerson officiating. The remains ware laid at rest in the family lot in the Tecumseh cemetery.

Mrs Fred Warner, with her husband of Detroit, spent Monday with her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fenner Palmer. She was accompanied by her sister, Maggie Cheever, on her return home.

There was a good attendance at the parlor meeting of the W. C. T. U., held at the home of Mrs. C. L. Lowe on Friday evening of last week. The hostess furnished warm maple sugar and biscuits for refreshments.

A full line of Toledo Burch plows and extras at Ed. Smith's.

Fifty or more of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Pocklington, sprung a surprise on them Wednesday evening of last week, and the evening passed very pleasantly in their new home, which, by the way, is one of the finest farm residences in the township.

There was a large attendance at the Francis Willard memorial services held at the church Sunday evening, under the direction of the ladies of the Union here. A life size portrait of Miss Willard was placed upon the rostrum and draped with white, banked in with white lillies and geraniums. The exercises opened with a selection by the choir, devotional exercises by the pastor, followed by singing her favorite hymn, Lux Benigna. A sketch of her life was read by Mrs. D. H. Yokom. A paper on her work by Mrs. Flora Exelby, read by Miss Dora Pocklington, was very fine. A paper on general temperance work by Mrs. F. E. Pocklington, was presented in a very able manner.

The King's Helpers social at Geo. F. Westgate's was reported a success as well as a jolly time. The proceeds being over $18.

On account of the surprise party for Mrs Baker Saturday, the Woman's Missionary society was postponed until Thursday March 17th at the home of Mrs A. Galaway.

Saturday was a day of pleasure to the neighbors and friends of Mrs. Jacob Baker, it being her 70th birthday. While busily reading she did not notice the company drive in and was only aware she had company when her daughter and husband entered followed by others until they numbered 70. The company took possession and at 1 o'clock dinner was announced. As a token of esteem from her friends, Mrs. Baker was presented with a neat sum in cash with which she was directed to purchase a gift such as her fancy might choose.

Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at the friendly advice to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing until he changes his mind or change his earthly residence. A great many scoffers have been converted by the use of the standard remedy, Carter's Cough Cure. But some are scoffing yet; they wheeze with asthma, bark with bronchitis or groan with the grippe. Singular, isn't it? the number of stuborn people, who persist in gambling with health and perhaps life as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold or lung trouble, by a few doses of Carter's Cough Cure. Price 25c. S. E. PARRISH.

Suspicion is a heavy armor, and with its own weight impedes us more.

Deafness cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Sunday Disturbance.

Every one was sorry for those people in church last Sunday, who were suffering with a distressing cough. A full dose of Downs' Elixir on going to bed at night and small doses during the day will cure the most persistent cough. Whenever there is a tickling sensation in the throat take a few drops of the Elixir on the tongue and let it run slowly down the throat and immediate relief will be the result. We guarantee it to cure any cough, cold, croup or lung trouble or money refunded.

The result of the village election last Monday to anyone who has had any experience in politics, was not a surprise. The anti-saloon feature was a farce, as conducted, as there were really no anti-saloon candidates, indeed it was amusing to see anti-saloon and saloon men working all day for the same ticket. The men elected are satisfactory to the conservative element of the village and are all capable of filling their positions. Mr. Kyle is certainly to be congratulated on his large majority. It is not the purpose of the HERALD to map out a policy for the council, but a few things as suggestions may not be out of place. The laws of the village as to the opening and closing of saloons should be rigidly enforced; as should be the ordinances relating to the speed of horses and bicycles. Some regulations should be adopted to compel the strict observance of measures that will keep the alleys back of the stores in a clean and healthful condition and, last but not least, the taxes are too high, more than our people can afford to pay. The new president and council must find out the trouble and remedy it.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Notes and Condensations Concerning the Railroads.

A Detroit paper says: Since its entry into Michigan, the Detroit & Lima Northern has encountered obstacles of many kinds, but recently one arose that came near resulting more seriously than any yet met with. For awhile the strong arm of Uncle Sam was held threateningly above the heads of the officials of the road. The cause of the trouble was the bridges which have been constructed over the Rouge and Ecorse rivers. It appears that permission had been given by the secretary of war for the building of a steel draw bridge over the Rouge river, but instead the contractors put up a stationary wooden bridge which entirely closed the channel; this was likewise repeated at the Ecorse river, and without permission of the government. As these two streams are considered navigable waters by the United States engineers, it became the duty of Col. Lydecker, who has charge of the river and harbor work in this district, to make a complaint to the United States district attorney. The complaint was made accordiflg to the statutes. "For obstructing the navigable waters of the great lakes and rivers tributary thereto." United States District Attorney Finney sent a note to the local officials of the road, requesting them to call at his office. These gentlemen evidently knew what was coming, as they came with their attorneys, Donnely, Brennan & Vandemark. When the case was stated to them and the complaint read it did not take very long for a settlement to be arrived at. The officials of the road promised that if the matter did not go any farther they would immediately replace the wooden structures with steel draw bridges which would entirely comply with the law. They will be given reasonable time to make the changes.

Last Tuesday was Roadmaster Grant's 38th birthday and Mrs. Grant invited about 40 of his friends in to give him a surprise party and remind him that he was passing another mile stone in Life's journey. His railroad associates presented him with an elegant chain and charm while Mrs. Grant remembered him with a fine oak rocker. The party played at progressive pedro, the first ladies' prize, a silver bonbon dish being awarded to Mrs. F. Gregg and the first gentlemen's, a silver pocket comb, to Mr. Grant. Mrs. Harper secured the consolation prize, a card tray, and our friend, J. J. Orr, consoled himself with a pair of suspenders. Fine refreshments were served and everyone enjoyed the occasion. Present from Lima were Messrs. and Mesdames F. Gregg, T. E. Harper and W. L. Lockard.

Passenger trains No. 21 and 24 collided at Devil's Lake Wednesday, seriously damaging the locomotives but injuring none of the passengers or train hands. The east bound was endeavoring to get onto a switch to allow the west bound to pass but fails to get out of the way in time, hence the catastrophe.

Beginning next Sunday March 20, D. T. & M. trains No. 22 and 23 will be discontinued for the present. No. 22 is the train leaving here eastbound at 6:55 p. m. and No. 23 is westbound arriving here at 2:59 p. m. No change will be made in the running time of the other trains at present.

The railroad shops are booming along in nice shape, the brick work on the engine house being completed and the frame work for another building up and being sheeted with steel.

Mrs. F. M. Bauer went to Toledo for a visit this morning.

—Don't fail to see those steel ranges at Satterthwaite Bros.'

ENROUTE TO ALASKA.

Winnipeg, Man., March 5th, 1898.

We arrived here at 10:30 last night and some of the party wishing to stop over a day, our car was side tracked and we will stay till 7:30 this evening, and then hitch on to the regular train again and go on west. You see we are traveling in high toned style, a private car all to ourselves; if we want to stop anywhere for a look around, we can give our orders accordingly.

We have just been up in the city looking it over; we walked several miles around it until we got up a good appetite and then went into the Arlington hotel and ordered our breakfast. It seemed pretty good to sit down to a table again and eat a warm meal. They only charged us twenty five cents each, and I think we got the worth of our money. This is a very fine morning, about down to zero, but very clear and still. In fact we have had very nice weather all the time so far and everybody feeling good. It is very interesting to watch the people up here, their way of dress etc. They all dress to suit the climate. A good share of them wear furs, and they are all very robust looking people. It is quite a sight to see the dog teams here. We saw a good many of them this morning. You can see them from the one horse (or one dog I should say) outfit and the inevitable small boy and his sled, up to three, four, six and eight dog teams. The boys go through the streets like the wind. I noted one in particular this morning, who was riding along beside the street car and he seemed to keep up all right and the car was going very fast. The boys enjoy it and I think the dogs also, they certainly seem to. The six and eight dog teams will draw quite a heavy load and are very well broken. They use a sort of a harness and hitch them in single file. There has been two three-dog teams down here to our car this morning for sale. They asked $25.00 a team or $48 00 for the two. Some of our party have been bantering them, and one of the boys just came in and told me they had bought the whole outfit of six dogs for $25.00. They think if they don't use them themselves, they can sell them at a profit when they get to the coast.

Well we are having a good time and lots of funny things happen. We always get off the car and look around whenever they stop sufficiently long enough for us to do so at any station, and we generally have some fun. Yesterday, one place we stopped at for a few minutes, there were several Indians and some of the boys tried to flirt with the squaws. Some one threw away an old pipe that had passed its usefullness and an old squaw went and fished it out of the snow bank and stuck it in her mouth. One of the boys took pity on her and handed her a cigar, another one lighted it for her and when we pulled out, she stood on the platform puffing away, seemed supremely happy and smiled on us sweetly.

We have a very agreeable party to travel with in our car—three or four doctors, several lawyers, photographers, merchants, mechanics, drummers etc. Take them all together they are a very lively crowd and first class fellows. Most all of them we have nick-named. They call me Sousa and I wish you could hear my band, they are noisy if not musical, but we have some very good music. We have a good guitar player, three mouth organ players and a fellow who can play on the comb to beat anything I ever heard on that instrument. There are several good singers and dancers and Sousa has to lead the aggregation with his fiddle. We generally have a matinee in the morning and one in the afternoon and then the regular program in the evening. Last night we added another matinee from 11 to 12 o'clock p. m., but I told them that hereafter I should have to charge extra if we gave a midnight matinee. We play and sing about everything that was ever written I think, from "Nellie Gray" to a "Hot Time in the Old Town to Night," which we have changed to a "Hot Time in the Old Car to Night." When some high toned Englishman comes through who thinks he is a little better than common people, we give him Yankee Doodle, and he don't generally look very pleasant. I have invited two different conductors in to hear our concerts and they seemed to enjoy it. They were quite nice fellows and so we gave them "God Save the Queen" to wind up with, which pleased them still more. With regards to all will close for this time and write again when I get a chance. GEORGE W. KNAPP.

The Election.

Well it is rumored that we had an election Monday and as the smoke clears away we find the People's ticket on top in the battle, having elected every man on the ticket but assessor which went to our veteran, Alfred James. It has been many years since so much interest has been manifested in a village election. The whole number of votes cast was 474 of which the Corporation ticket polled 79 straight ballots and the People's 139. There were 14 voters challenged and 8 of these challenges were sustained, 6 being sworn in. Four votes were thrown out in the count, having been marked incorrectly. Following is the tabulated result:

President—
Chas. E. Williamson, 166.
Thomas R. Kyle, 302-136.
Clerk—
James H. Elliott, 225.
Don H. C. Bowen, 240-15.
Treasurer—
Arthur Kennedy, 209.
Robert S. Moore, 254-45.
Trustees—
George Howell, 185.
W. H. Hayden, 279-94.
James Lowry, 189.
James Elliott, 280-91.
F. B. Wood, 229.
E. Ames, 234-5.
Assessor—
A. James, 239-8.
H. Weller, 231.

HOME-SEEKERS' EXCURSION.

On April 5th and 19th, 1898, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry will sell round-trip excursion tickets (good 21 days) from Chicago, Milwaukee and other points on its line, to a great many points in South and North Dakota and other western and southwestern states, at greatly reduced rates. Take a trip west and see what an amount of good land can be purchased for the least money. Further information as to rates, routes, prices of farm lands, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing the following named persons: W. E. Powell, Gen'l Immigration Agent, 410 Old Colony Bldg., Chicago; H. F. Hunter, Immigration Agt. for South Dakota, 291 Dearborn St., Chicago, or Geo. H. Heafford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Illinois.

—Consult Satterthwaite Bros.' line of bicycles before purchasing.

Reduced Freight Rates for Settlers

In order to encourage the movement of settlers and land buyers from Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and the eastern states to Western Minnesota, South Dakota, and North Dakota, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. has very materially reduced its carload rates for emigrant movables, so that farmers who have purchased lands in Western Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota can take all of their belongings with them to their new homes at small expense, which inducement upon the part of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry, will no doubt be greatly appreciated by those who are thus benefited.

For further information apply to any representative of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry., or address J. H. Hiland, General Freight Agent, Old Colony Building, Chicago, Ill.

To Whom This May Concern:

I have been nearly blind in my right eye for years, and have had pain in the right side of my head, which I supposed was neuralgia, and finally my sight began to fail in my left eye. I consulted Mr. E. F. Kirchgessner, who fitted me with glasses, and after making two changes of lenses, I now have perfect vision in both eyes. I do fine cabinet work, and find my glasses are a great help towards doing good work. Mr. Kirchgessner also fitted my wife with glasses, which have relelved her entirely of headache, from which she was a sufferer for years. G. V. STANTON.

It is reported by W. C. Burridge that Grant Fellows, of Hudson, and himself are organizing a military company to go to the front and fight our country's battles in case of unpleasantness with Spain. The uniform of this organization is unique and will consist of full dress suits and silk hats. Every member of the company will be commissioned as a captain, and will make forced marches in hacks, drawn by coal black steeds.

Bert Cutting and Leon Rosacrans have rented the table factory office and will open a bicycle establishment there. Bert will occupy the rear as a work shop putting in his general repairing machinery and will attend to all bicycle ailments, while Leon will open up a big display of new wheels in the front room. Both of the boys are experts in their line and both being so well known and centrally located, will enjoy a rushing patronage.

Postmaster Shull has been notified that after April 1st he is to collect box rents at the following rates: Call boxes, 25 cts. per quarter; lock boxes, 35c per quarter; lock drawers, 50c per quarter. With this raise in call boxes of 10 cents per duarter and only 5 cents on lock boxes, there will be an increased demand for the latter, but unless a new section is installed, people may as well content themselves with waiting as even at existing rates. the lock box demand is in excess of the supply.

Mrs. Bice's committee served supper last evening to 331 persons at the M. E. church parlors, being a record breaker both in point of numbers and good things to eat. Avery & Co. did not forget to donate the Seal Brand coffee and napkins for the occasion and the ladies have a warm place in their hearts for this progressive firm. While we are suggesting, why not make the suppers 15 cents instead of 10 and get just as much money with less outlay and still be giving value received. A feature of last evening was the paper on St. Patrick, prepared and read by Mrs. E. M. Lewis. It will be published next week.

The audience at the Opera House Monday evening was not a large one but was very appreciative of the merits of Faust as presented under the management of Geo. A. Mansfield with Porter J. White as Mephisto supported by a capable and pleasing company. White, as Mephisto, and Stanley Johns; as Valentine, each received curtain calls while other members of the company were roundly applauded. Faust as depicted on the modern stage never fails to have a strange facination for old and young and is, indeed, an illustrated sermon, which never fails to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the masses.

A large number of our townsmen were summoned to Adrian Tuesday and Wednesday in the kitchen cabinet case. It seems that a number of the promisory notes had been purchased by a Chicago man named Foulke and he brought suit against five parties in the circuit court to recover notes and interest. The fight promised to be a savage one and a large number of witnesses were called by the defense to prove misrepresentation on the part of the cabinet salesmen to secure the notes, it being a well known fact that not one cabinet in twenty was sold without a condition on the back stating that it might be paid for in anything from medical advice to cornstalks and that practically none of the tin freaks were ever delivered, while the company claimed every one was sold for spot cash. The attorneys for the plaintiff seeing no hope of winning were glad to accept a settlement whereby they get 30 per cent of the face of the five notes and discharge the debt. What will be done in the remainder of the cases or whether they will ever be sued is conjecture.

We are in receipt of a communication from Alba Heywood, giving a detailed account of the shooting affray between himself and P. T. Pegues at Longview some weeks since, in which Mr. Heywood states that he acted purely in self defense. The altercation began over the opera house manager refusing to pay for eight tickets issued by him in excess of his contract and that in support of his argument, he with the usual southern instinct, drew his gun. The compliment was returned and better than a dozen shots were exchanged, both men being wounded several times. Mr. Heywood is recovering, but no reference is made to the other combatant.

William Cairns was born in Geneva N. Y., Aug 28, 1826. He came to Michigan in 1836, settling in Lenawee county in 1837. In 1854 he removed to Illinois, where he remained for 8 or 10 years. He then went to Texas for his health. Four years ago he went to California. He died in Los Angeles on the 5th of March and was buried in Tecumseh last Monday afternoon from the Presbyterian church, Rev. W. F. Jones officiating. Mr. Cairns united with the Congregational church in Clinton at the age of nineteen. He was for many years an elder in the Presbyterian church. He was married in 1848 to Ann Bunting, who died in 1890. In 1892 he was married to Mrs. Phoebe Hunt, who survives him. He had no children.

The impression that Postmaster Shull has anything to do with the raise in box rents should be corrected as he reaps no benefit whatever from the use of boxes. While a postmaster is compelled to buy the boxes of the government, he has nothing to do with making of rates or the receipts of the same more than to turn them over to the department the same as he does the money for postage stamps. The people's grievance if they have one is against the department at Washington and no blame can be attached to Mr. Shull for the increase in price. If new boxes are constructed that will be done at his expense.

A large party went out to the home of Mrs. F. C. Rector's last evening to a St. Patrick's day party. No little interest was attached to the same, it being the outcome of a wager between a couple of young people and the result was being closely watched. One of the conditions was that it was to be held at Mrs. Rector's on her birthday. The invitations were issued in green ink and a sprig of shamrock decorated one corner. The dining room was draped in green bunting and shamrock, while the inner wants of the party, by no means the least, were supplied with oysters, salads, cake and other eatables calculated to make one dream of the worthy Irish saint and his snake exodus.

The Baptist church was filled Friday evening to hear the High school oratorical contest. Miss Julia Hicks acted as chairman, and the following took part in the contest: Frank Morgan on "Moral Principles in Public Affairs;" Nathan Bailey, "Farm Life;" Addie E. Wood, "A Noble Heroism;" Cora D. Day, "Value of Ideals;" N. Clare Brazee, "Conquest Through Sacrifice," and Helen M. Temple, "Evolution." The orations were interspersed with music. Miss Mary Burridge, Mrs. G. N. Stacy and H. C. Conkling, were the judges on composition, and Mrs. C. A. Wright, Rev. W. B. Pope and P. S. McKinnon on delivery. The judges decided that Mr. Brazee had the most points in his favor with Miss Day second, although all the participants acquitted themselves with great credit.

AN IMPORTANT ITEM.

What Is What the Planting of the Farm Corn Crop Is.

So far as conditions will permit, the planting should be done early, as in nearly all cases it is the early planting that makes the best growth and yield. At the same time it is a detriment to the crop and often to the soil to work it when wet or to plant before the soil is in a good tilth. In order to make sure of planting early every advantage should be taken to plow now. With the plowing all done, by using the disc and the smoothing harrow the soil can be made ready for planting very rapidly. It is always best to plow deep and thorough. Ground plowed deep will will hold moisture much better than if plowed shallow, and this is quite an item with corn. When plowed early run out the furrows clean so as to give good drainage as in many cases this will help materially in drying out the soil.

It always pays to prepare the soil well before planting the seed, not only as an aid to the germination of the seed, but also to get more vigorous start of the plants to growing and as a help to beginning the cultivation early. Harrow, drag and roll if necessary to secure the desired tilth.

When planted early it is best to plant shallower than later on. A certain amount of heat and moisture are essential to a good germination, and these conditions can best be secured by planting early, while later on, when the soil gets warmer and drier, deeper planting will be best.

In determining the varieties to plant the character of the soil as well as the time of planting should always be considered. On a good rich soil it is nearly always best to plant the large late-maturing varieties, but on thin or gravelly land it will be best to plant the smaller, quicker-maturing sorts. The large, late varieties may be planted late, and on a rich, strong soil make a good crop, though there is always a risk of injury from early frosts. But it is an exceptional case when it is advisable to plant a large late variety on thin land. Use plenty of seed, so as to secure as far as possible a good, even stand. It is always better to thin out than to replant.

The condition of the soil as regards fertility should largely determine the number of plants in a hill. Two vigorous stalks capable of producing two or three good ears of corn are better than four little stalks with four nubbins.—St. Louis Republic.

BERRIES IN BARRELS.

A Method of Culture That Has Been Tried Successfully.

Probably many readers have heard of the plan of raising strawberries on the outside of a barrel. If one has only a small city or village lot, or "back yard," the experiment is well worth trying. The accompanying illustration shows one or two wrinkles that may help to make the experiment a success. First bore the holes all about the barrel, then put inside a drain pipe made of four strips of board, reaching from the top to the bottom. The joints should not be tight. Now fill in earth about the pipe and set out the strawberry plants in all the holes and over the top. Put the barrel on a bit of a plank on the bottom of which wide castors have been screwed. The barrel can then be turned about every few days to bring the sun to all the plants. An ordinary flour barrel will answer very well for trying this interesting experiment.—American Agriculturist.

CORN STALK DISEASE.

Scientists Cannot Agree Upon Its Nature or Effect.

The farmers of Nebraska and Iowa seem to have suffered more from the corn-stalk disease this season than ever before, though comparatively few cases of it are reported in other states.

Dr. Peters, of the Nebraska experiment station, experimented with cattle in order to learn the exact nature of the disease and his conclusions were that a remedy may be found in feeding a grain ration instead of feeding stalks exclusively.

This conclusion has been negatived by the experience of John N. Garth, of Webster City, Ia., as related in a local paper.

Mr. Garth has been feeding his cattle shock corn. They have had access to water and salt all the time. They were turned into a stalk field one hour the first day; two hours the second day, and the third day five of them died. This case sets at naught the smut theory, the impacted stomach theory and negatives the conclusions of Dr. Peters.

The government has been investigating the disease for four or five years, but no definite remedy has been discovered. If the disease is not increasing, it is attracting more general attention than ever, and farmers soon will become afraid to turn their cattle into stalk fields where a mysterious death lurks.

The consensus of opinion is that corn stalks preserved in a silo never serve to introduce the disease. If this is proved to be a fact we may look for a large increase in the number of silos in the corn belt in the near future. This would add to the value of the corn crop and improve its feeding qualities.—Farmers' Voice.

FARM & GARDEN.

A GOOD SHEEP RACK.

So Simple That It Can Be Made by Most Any Farmer.

The sheep rack that I describe is a very simple but good one. I use it for fattening sheep. Below I give a view of the rack. It is all made of (dressed) inch lumber, except frames. Width of rack, 28 inches at top and 24 at the bottom; height, 34 inches, and any length desired. The board at top is six inches wide. The slats are four inches wide, nailed to the inside of top and bottom boards. Bottom board is 8 inches wide and forms the trough, with the lower edge nailed to the bottom or floor of rack. This makes the trough seven inches deep. Feeding spaces are 8x16 inches. A rack 12 feet long will admit 26 sheep, 22 at the sides and 2 at each end. Some give 10 inches for each sheep, but we prefer 12. A piece of board is nailed to the inside of posts or frame pieces. This is what the bottom of the trough rests on, and should be well nailed to the same. A 12-foot rack should have three frames, frame pieces or posts should be made of 12-inch stuff. This makes a very cheap rack. One 12 feet long takes about 60 feet of lumber. Either grain or rough feed can be fed in this rack, but only one at a time. My sheep are admitted from the stable to a yard where they can have access to a straw stack while I am filling the rack. Then I don't have to contend with them or crowd through them.—E. L. Horner, in National Stockman.

HANDY SHEEP RACK.

PLOWING UNDER RYE.

It Should Be Done When the Crop Is Full of Moisture.

The plowing under of green crops serves more than one purpose. As generally understood, it is done to supply humus to the soil. But for what purpose is that vegetable matter required? Is it not for rendering the soil porous so that the air can penetrate it and store up within it moisture? If it be true that humus and moisture are the two essential elements most needed in our soils, and I find it so in my experience, is it not reasonable, asks a writer in Rural New Yorker, to conclude that the vegetable matter, the growing crop, whether it be rye or any of the leguminous plants, should be plowed under when there is the greatest weight of vegetable matter, which is before the crop begins to mature? At this time, it would be filled with rich juices, and the plowing under of the crop at this stage of its growth, and compacting it so that fermentation would set in, would supply in its decomposition the moisture necessary to dissolve the mineral elements in the soil, and thus serve a double purpose. In this indirect action lies the chief value of this green crop which is plowed under; therefore, you see that mowing and allowing the crop to dry before plowing it under would be taking from it this power of making the plant food in the soil available. Again, it could not be plowed under after being cut without being placed in the furrow, as it would bunch up and clog the plow, and very much of this dry matter would be on the surface after harrowing. Therefore, I would always plow under rye or any other green crop when full of moisture, for the reason stated.

TIMELY FARM NOTES.

Hogs thrive best when not excited or disturbed.

Keep some of the best hay for the spring feeding.

Get ready to set out a good strawberry bed in the spring.

Mange in horses or hogs is caused by an insect which burrows itself into the skin.

Growing pigs will keep healthier if they have plenty of opportunity for exercise.

Mineral matter in the food aids in the digestion and absorption of the other nutriments.

Commence feeding the lambs intended for market as soon as they show a disposition to eat.

Milk and bran will grow a thrifty pig with a good frame ready to fatten on grain for market.

The only objection to low limbed trees is that they are not so convenient to cultivate under.

To send apples to market put only one variety in a barrel marking the name plainly on the head end.

In all farm work to obtain the best results the work must be done in the best manner and at the proper time.

Good digestion is the result of feeding the animal enough to sustain the animal, but not overload the stomach.—Farmers' Voice.

Good Points of Goats.

Cheapness of feeding is not the only recommendation of the goat, as it is hardy, docile when well treated, and entirely free from suspicion of tuberculosis. With regular feeds of hay, oats and bean meal, the well-bred goat is a liberal milker and continues in milk a good part of the year. An effort is being made to create a "fad" in their favor in England, and if it succeeds we may yet see them adorning the lawns of the rich in this country, and then we suppose they will become more popular among the poor.

FOULLY MURDERED.

Stephen Sprague, of South Haven, Shot to Death on a Lonely Road.

Niles, March 13.—The dead body of Stephen Sprague, an old resident of South Haven, was found Friday night two miles south of that village near a bridge crossing Deer Lick creek, with two bullet holes in his head, one on the right side and the other in the back part. All indications pointed to a murder, and the coroner's jury brought in a verdict that death was caused by two bullets fired with murderous intent by parties unknown. Prosecuting Attorney J. E. Chandler, who has been investigating the mystery, declares the slaying of Sprague to be one of the most dastardly murders ever committed in Michigan, and he is putting forth all his efforts to unravel the crime and bring the guilty party to justice.

The murder of Mr. Sprague is thought to have been more for revenge than for robbery, as his watch was still in his pocket and also a small amount of money.

Late Saturday evening under order of the prosecuting attorney the sheriff placed under arrest Jefferson Davis, who is suspected of the crime, but the evidence against him is purely circumstantial. Davis and Sprague were enemies and it is thought he may know something of the murder. The people of South Haven are inflamed over the dastardly crime and are anxious for the murderer to be apprehended. All effort to get a statement from Davis has proved fruitless and he declares he will have no difficulty in proving an alibi. A large reward has been offered for the apprehension of the murderer and prompt action has been taken by the authorities to run him down.

FLOOD AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Rise in the River Fills Basements with Water—Several Factories Shut Down.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 16.—Basements of a few factory buildings and many residences are flooded. The river below the rapids is less than a foot below high water mark, but above the city it lacks several feet of the height reached in former floods. The wires supplying the city lights are flooded in the basement of the power house and the city was in darkness Tuesday night. Commercial wires used by the same company have higher connections, and are as yet in working order. Factories on the canals depending on water power have been shut down since Monday. None of the residents in the lower sections of the city have had to abandon their houses or remove their effects, though 30 or 40 are surrounded by water, which sets back from the flats below the city. The water has been rising steadily since Sunday morning, and reports show this same condition at all up-river points below the state capital. At Lansing and Grand Ledge the river was reported stationary, and at Jackson a fall of a few inches was recorded. Without a change in the weather a fall is not expected here until Thursday or Friday. The rise is about half an inch per hour.

Saginaw, Mich., March 16.—The steam fire engines have been busy pumping out cellars of business blocks. On the low ground between here and Bay City many families have moved from their homes. The interurban track is washed out in a number of places. The river is higher than at any time for 22 years.

Convicts May Make Shirts.

Lansing, March 16.—Gov. Pingree lost his fight against the employment of convicts at the Ionia prison on a shirt contract by a decision of the supreme court Tuesday, when a mandamus was granted to compel the prison board to approve the bond of the contractors. The contract calls for the service of 300 convicts for ten years, and is one of the most important contracts ever entered into by a Michigan prison. It was opposed by Gov. Pingree and many labor organizations.

Incendiary Owns Up.

Saginaw, March 16.—William F. Reimers, who was arrested on a charge of setting fire to the A. W. Wright mill plant, is believed to be the author of many of the incendiary fires which have done much damage here in the last few years. He has made a confession to a committee representing the citizens, the insurance companies and the police, explaining how he started fires in which property valued at $250,000 was destroyed.

Badge for Gen. Alger.

Lansing, March 15. — Commander Bliss and Assistant Adjt.-Gen. Bond, of the Michigan department, Grand Army of the Republic, returned Monday night from Washington, whither they went to present Secretary of War Alger with a past department commander's badge. Gen. Alger was the first department commander under the old organization and the first Michigan man to become a member of the grand army.

Death of a Pioneer Merchant.

Niles, Feb. 9.—George W. Dougan, a pioneer drygoods merchant, died Tuesday. He served one term as mayor of Niles and several terms as alderman. In 1884 he was appointed Indian agent by President Cleveland, with headquarters in Montana.

Lansing, Feb. 5.—Telephone companies have paid taxes as follows: Michigan Telephone company, $26,358.32; Detroit Telephone company, $6,650.02; Citizens' company, of Grand Rapids, $1,780.

WAR ON RAILWAY PASSES

Gov. Pingree Issues a Proclamation to the Legislators and the State Officials.

DEMANDS THAT THE LAW BE OBSERVED.

The Governor Points Out Emphatically Wherein the Acceptance of Such Favors from the Railroads Is a Crime—A Full Text of the Document.

Detroit, March 14.—Gov. Pingree has issued another proclamation on the railroad question. It is as follows:

"I am required by the constitution of the state to take care that the laws are faithfully executed. An extraordinary session of the legislature has been called to consider questions of vital importance to the people, and especially affecting the railroad companies.

"It has been the practice in this state for many years, as I am informed, for railroad companies to issue passes to state officers—executive, legislative and judicial. The object of doing this is apparent. It is to secure from the officer some favor at the expense of his constituents.

"In view of the situation I deem it my duty to call the attention of all persons and corporations in this state to section 9241 of Howell's statutes.

"The violation of these statutes has been so common that I deem it my duty to warn those who have heretofore been violating them that I intend to do my utmost to have them enforced.

"The acceptance of a pass upon railroads in this state is not only a crime against the statute but against the school children of the state. Every pass given makes the earnings of the railroads so much less, and as at present we collect a percentage on earnings, which goes to the school fund, every man who accepts a pass robs that fund of the percentage to which it is entitled.

"What is said of passes is also true of reduced fares, under whatever pretense they may be offered.

"I call upon the justices of the peace and prosecuting attorneys throughout the state, as well as on the judges of our higher courts, to see that offenses against these statutes which come under their observation or which may be brought to their attention are properly dealt with.

"It is useless to have laws if they are not enforced, and it is folly to elect public officers to perform important public duties if they are to be corrupted by interested parties.

"H. S. PINGREE, Governor."

Detroit, March 16.—Gov. Pingree has a copy of a circular which has been sent to ministers by the Central Passenger association, located in Chicago, in which the preachers are asked to use their influence to pass the anti-scalping bill now before congress. The railroads point out how evil they consider the ticket brokers, and then intimate that the clergyman's half-fare privilege will be curtailed unless the anti-scalping law is adopted.

Grand Rapids, March 14.—Gov. Pingree's special message to the legislature will, among other things, contain a review of the entire history of corporation taxation from the earliest days in Michigan. The early land-grant enactments provided for the payment of certain taxes on the lands themselves, and on the revenue from the lands. A subsequent legislature repealed the taxation clause without the state receiving consideration from the waived taxes. The legality of this repeal will be questioned.

Nets Made Useless.

St. Joseph, March 15.—At a meeting of the board of trade it was decided to unite with other ports and send a delegation to Lansing to try to secure an amendment of the present fish laws, regulating the size of the mesh in fish nets. Twenty thousand dollars worth of nets in St. Joseph are made illegal and worthless, and fishermen are moving to other ports.

Want to Buy Big Tugs.

Bay City, March 16.—Representatives of the navy department are in the city negotiating for options on several mammoth tugs owned by the Saginaw Bay Towing association that have been used in towing timber between Georgian bay and Michigan ports. These tugs are said to compose the largest and most powerful fleet of the kind on fresh waters.

Due to Spontaneous Combustion.

Kalamazoo, March 14.—The coroner's jury which investigated the recent explosion brought in a verdict that deaths were caused by falling walls resulting from the explosion of gas generated from the chemicals and acids used by Hall Brothers. The jury finds that the fire started from spontaneous combustion.

New Commandant Named.

Grand Rapids, March 10. — The Soldiers' home board held its annual meeting. A year ago Gov. Pingree attended and wanted a new commandant, but the board refused to sanction it, and Col. James A. Crozer held over. Wednesday Gov. Pingree's vote broke the tie, and Capt. George E. Judd, Grand Rapids, was chosen to the place.

Printers Grow Desperate.

Detroit, March 11.—The unemployed printers of Detroit are becoming desperate and announce if the scale of composition is not cut by the Typographical union at its next meeting from 35 cents to 25 cents per thousand ems all of them will throw up union cards and work for anything they can get.

For Saturday Half Holidays.

Grand Rapids, March 12. — The Furniture Manufacturers' association has adopted a resolution favoring Saturday half-holidays in the furniture factories during July and August. The movement will probably reach all industries and business houses as well.

Held for Murder.

Chicago, Ill., March 15.—George H. Jacks, ex-chief of police of Muskegon, Mich., has been held to the criminal court by a coroner's jury to answer a charge of murdering Andrew McGee, an old milkman, who was found dead in a hallway two weeks ago.

ARBOR DAY NAMED.

March 29 Is Designated by Gov. Pingree in a Proclamation Recently Issued.

Lansing, March 11. — Gov. Pingree bas issued a proclamation making March 29 Arbor day. He recommends that this day be devoted by the trustees of public institutions, by the faculties and students of colleges and normal schools, by the teachers, pupils and school boards of public schools and the people of the state generally, to planting trees, shrubs and vines about state and school buildings, by the highways and around the homes. The occasion should be made one of study of the subject of planting, care and culture of trees and of the great good that may come therefrom. He says let the day be so fittingly observed that the home and school grounds may be beautified and enriched and the people will be greatly profited thereby.

COULDN'T AGREE.

The "Middle-of-the-Road" and Fusion Wings of the Populist Party Unable to Come to Terms.

Lansing, March 11.—The conference here Thursday between the state committees of the "middle of the road" and fusion wings of the populist party did not result in the anticipated reconciliation, but rather tended to widen the breach. The "middle of the road" faction, which the courts have recognized as the regular populist committee, issued a call for a state convention to be held at Grand Rapids June 21, and the programme of the leaders is to head off the republicans by nominating Pingree for governor. The other faction will participate in the Detroit conference to arrange a fusion.

Death of Sylvester A. Ward.

Niles, Mich., March 12. — Sylvester A. Ward, a pioneer of Michigan, died Friday from a paralytic stroke which he suffered last Monday afternoon. Mr. Ward was born May, 1815, at Chatham, N. J., and came to Niles in 1853. Mr. Ward was married December 1, 1841, at Albany, N. Y., to Miss Julia A. Green, who survives him, and there were born two sons and five daughters, one of the sons being Montgomery Ward, of Chicago.

OLD HORN'S PEAK'S LEAD.

The Lost Mine That Cost George Skinner His Life.

NOT long ago a party of mining men gathered at one of the principal hotels in Denver to discuss matters and things of interest to the mining business. Some of them had made large fortunes in mining, and not a few had had actual experience in prospecting and its many hardships. The conversation naturally turned to the early days of mining in the state, and, after several incidents of interest had been recounted, one of the party drew from his pocket a buckskin bag, from which he produced a large gold nugget of considerable value, and in appearance unlike anything usually seen in that part of the state.

"This nugget," said he, "has a history which to me is extremely interesting. Its possession cost one human life, besides years of hardship and anguish. The exact spot where it came from is unknown to man, and I confidently believe many years will elapse before it is known.

"In the early part of the year 1860, when the country generally in Colorado was in its primitive form, inhabited for the most part by coyotes and redskins, and before its natural attractiveness had been marred by money-making contrivances, a lone prospector set out from Denver to explore the then uninhabited region in the vicinity of the Greenhorn and Sangre de Christo ranges, in the south-central part of the state, some 200 miles from Denver. No one knew who he was or where he came from—few questions were asked in those days regarding a man's antecedents. It was sufficient to know he was there and one of them. At the place where he bought his outfit, however, he gave the name of George W. Skinner, and said he was outfitting for a trip to the Sangre de Christo country. Besides paying for what he purchased he deposited with the proprietor of the store a sum of money which he did not care to take with him to the mountains, saying he would call for it when he returned in the fall.

"Mr. Skinner, somewhat discouraged by the failure of his mission, procured the services of an old hunter and guide and started into the mountains in the hope of obtaining some information. Some months were thus spent without finding even a trace of the man for whom they were searching, and as the summer season was rapidly drawing to a close, Mr. Skinner and his guide started for the valley, where they proposed to winter, intending to take up the search again in the early spring. They camped one night just at the timber line on the eastern slope of Horn's peak, near what had apparently been at one time the camp of a prospector. Mr. Skinner's curiosity prompted him to make some explorations in the gathering twilight, and while removing some of the brush and debris that had evidently formed the floor and roof of the cabin, he found an old leather pocketbook, partly rotted away and carefully tied up with wire. Worn out with the travel of the day, he put his find in his pocket, intending to examine it in the morning.

"In the night one of the snowstorms so common in the mountains at that time of the year came up, and when the travelers awoke in the morning they found several inches of snow awaiting them, with no signs of the storm abating. Hastily getting their camp fixtures together, they packed their burros and made their ways as rapidly as possible to the home of the German in the valley below, where they arrived safely in the course of a few days. Not until the animals had been safely housed and everything made snug for the winter did Mr. Skinner think of his find, and when he finally unfolded his pocketbook the secret of his long search was revealed to him. Carefully rolled up on the inside of the pocketbook was a letter written by his brother more than eight years before, which said:

"'My weary search is ended, and my efforts crowned with success. To-morrow I start for the settlements, to return in the spring to uncover and work the valuable mine which I have discovered. Realizing the fact that I am a long way from civilization and liable to meet with serious mishap if not death before I reach the outer world, I am prompted to make the following statements, which may reach the hand of some friend should misfortune overtake me. This letter I will leave in my cabin, hoping that I will be on the ground again in the spring, as soon as anyone. My name is George W. Skinner, and my home is in the city of ——, Ill. Early this spring I started for the Sangre de Christo mountains from Denver to prospect, being impelled to come here by the reports of gold finds disclosed to me by some friendly Indians. God knows the hardships I endured in reaching this country, and after spending the greater part of the season in fruitless search I finally discovered what I believe to be one of the richest mines in Colorado, and will carry out with me all the gold I can manage with my limited facilities. To find the discovery shaft of the property, which I have purposely filled up, you will stand with your back to the west side of the cabin, alongside the door, walk in a westerly direction about 22 paces to a ravine or gulch; then turn to the left and walk up the gulch 105 paces; then turn to the right and walk 20 paces, when you will arrive at the place. The lead is a blind one, and I accidentally found it while digging near the roots of a tree that had been blown over. Should any person find this letter inside of one year it will avail him nothing, as I have complied with the law sufficiently to hold the property for that length of time. If I do not return within that time the property can be located by anyone. The only request I have to make is that the finder of this note notify my brother at the above address.

"'GEORGE W. SKINNER.'

"The brother was now thoroughly convinced that some harm had befallen his brother, and without telling anyone of his discovery, determined to set out in the spring and endeavor to solve the mystery of his disappearance. The snows of that winter were unusually severe, and heavy slides were often heard tearing down the mountain sides, sweeping everything before them. With the opening of spring the snow on the south and east sides of the mountains rapidly disappeared, and early in March Mr. Skinner and his guide struck into the mountains, the guide being informed that they would take up the search where they left off the year before. When they arrived at what they supposed was the place where the old cabin had been found, everything was changed. The heavy snows and the terrific snowslides had completely changed the face of nature, and they were unable to find even a vestige of the cabin. Trees had been swept away, heavy bowlders removed, and the general appearance of the country completely altered.

"Nothing daunted, Mr. Skinner determined to spend the summer in that locality in the hope of obtaining some clew of his missing brother, and, if possible, of locating the lost mine. All their efforts were without avail, and when fall set in they reluctantly abandoned the search and again started for the foothills. Mr. Skinner had decided to organize a party and make a systematic search the following year, after returning home and arranging necessary business affairs. One day's travel from where they started on the return trip the mountain broke off very abruptly, the dim trail which the party was following leading them along the rocky side of the precipitous mountain, overhanging a chasm hundreds of feet deep. While carefully picking their way along this dangerous trail, one of the burros became frightened at some imaginary object, and in his plunging and bucking jumped off the cliff and rolled down into the gulch below. As several articles of value were in the pack, the two men secured the remaining burro and carefully picked their way to the bottom of the gulch to save what they could of the wreck. At the place where the burro had lodged, some 200 feet below the trail, they were horrified to find the skeletons of a man and some animal lodged on a small shelf of rock near where their burro had struck. Portions of the pack were still on the animal, and some of the clothing still hung to the skeleton.

"Among the articles found near the dead man was a book containing a diary, a perusal of which soon showed that the skeleton was that of George Skinner, the missing man, the last entry in the diary referring to the writing of the latter, telling the secret of the mine, and indicating that it had been written on the day prior to his death. An examination of the skeleton showed that the skull had been split in two, and Skinner thought it had been the work of Indians. Robbery could not have been the motive, however, as considerable gold and all the paraphernalia of a camping outfit were found near by.

"The remains were buried under a large pine tree on the mountain side near where they had lain so long, and Mr. Skinner resumed his homeward trip, which saddened the fate of his brother, yet satisfied to know that he had unraveled the mystery surrounding his disappearance. He headed a party the following summer which endeavored to locate the lost mine; in fact, they continued their researches for several years, but the snows and the accompanying slides, together with the forest fires and heavy rainstorms of summer, had completely obliterated all traces of the mine, and buried deeper than ever the rich lead of Old Horn's peak.

"I accompanied Mr. Skinner one year on his search, and from him I learned the story. He showed me the letter written by his brother telling of the lost mine, and allowed me to take a copy of it, which I still have among my relics. This nugget of gold I have shown you is only one of a number taken from the pack of the dead burro by his brother, and convinces me that the dead man was not far wrong when he said that he had found one of the richest mines in Colorado. Mr. Skinner and his party abandoned the search long ago, but some day in the future Old Horn's peak will yield the secret of his buried treasure."—N. Y. Sun.

THIS CAT LOVED ITS YOUNG

Kitten Falls Into a Glass Jar and the Mother Drops Down Food for It.

Grace, the office cat in a downtown preserving establishment, recently gave a display of intelligence that stamped her a remarkable feline, says the Philadelphia Record. About a year ago, when Grace was but a kitten, she wandered into the place and was adopted by the typewriter, Miss Grace Kelley.

The glass-incased office is on the first floor, the rear of which is used for the storage of jars and boxes, in which the products of the place are packed. About six weeks ago the interesting pet became the mamma of three kittens, and it was a pretty sight for the occupants of the office to look out and see the family at play among the boxes.

About a week ago Miss Kelley missed one of the kittens, and it was noticed that the mother acted very strangely for several days. Since then, from time to time, Miss Kelley has noticed Grace going to and from a pile of boxes that contain large jars of a peculiar shape, used for exporting preserves. Rat hunting was supposed to be the cause of so many visits, until recently she was seen taking food to a box on top of the heap and dropping it down. Out of curiosity Miss Kelley got one of the boys to climb to the top, and then the mystery was explained.

In one of the jars, which are very large and deep, was the missing kitten. It is surmised that the kitten fell in and could not get out, the mother being unable to assist it on account of the small opening in the jar. The feeding of the prisoner is explained, but how drinkables were obtained is causing much conjecturing.

NOVEL TREATMENT.

The Russians Take an Ant Bath to Cure Rheumatism.

The Russian peasants, more especially those residing in the neighborhood of Moscow, have a peculiar and original method of treating themselves for that bane of mankind, rheumatism. Many cures, even in very bad cases, are, it is claimed, effected by making the patient take ant baths, says an exchange.

The manner of preparing these baths is as follows: An anthill is sought, and when found, a sack is filled with ants, ants' eggs, and if it be considered necessary, a certain quantity of the earth which composes the hill. The sack is then closed hermetically and carried to the home of the sufferer. A warm bath is already prepared here, and the sack is plunged bodily into the hot water. Soon this latter begins to give off a peculiar pungent odor, characteristic of formic acid. The bath is now ready for the patient's immersion. The action of the bath on the skin is one of intense irritation, and the result seems to be a drawing out of the evil, and the consequent disappearance of the rheumatic pains.

It is advisable for anyone who may be tempted to try this remedy to be careful not to remain too long in the ant bath, as the consequences might be a total disorganization of the skin, which would peel off, due to the violent action of the acid.

ROOTS ENTWINED HIM.

An Oak Tree Sundered the Coffin of John Randolph.

John Randolph, of Roanoke, died June 24, 1833, at the City hotel in Philadelphia, where he had gone to set sail for England. On his way there, says the Philadelphia Times, he passed through Washington, and, dragging his emaciated body with difficulty to the senate chamber, again met Henry Clay. The former enemies had a touching interview and parted, for the last time, in peace and good will.

Randolph was carried to Virginia and buried under the pines of Roanoke in the midst of that solitude which he had always craved in life. Many years later his remains were removed to Hollywood cemetery in Richmond, and a handsome monument placed over them by John Randolph Bryan.

In making the removal it was found that his body was buried no less than eight feet in the ground; the triple lead coffin was with difficulty removed, as the roots of an old oak had burst it asunder and wrapped round and round his body, holding him in a long embrace close to the state he had loved so well.

To Preserve the Queen's Voice.

The London Daily Mail says that arrangements have been made to preserve permanently the tones of Queen Victoria's voice. The latest type of phonograph will be sent to Windsor castle, and into this instrument her majesty has consented to speak a certain message, which will be permanently preserved on the cylinder and kept in the British museum.

RECIPE FOR SCRIPTURE CAKE.

Aunt Susanna was troubled,
Worried as she could be—
The ministers were coming,
What should she have for tea?

She'd heated well the oven,
The bread and pies to bake;
"I guess," says Aunt Susanna,
"I'll make a Scripture cake."

So while the bread was baking,
Intent on kitchen lore,
Her cook book Aunt Susanna
Was conning o'er and o'er.

And then from out her pantry,
When bread and pies were done,
She took with careful fingers,
Ingredients, one by one.

From Kings, First, twenty-second,
And chapter fourth, she took
Four cups, one-half, then lightly,
This in a pipkin shook.

One cup, one-half, V Judges,
Verse 25 (last clause),
She next put in the pipkin,
And stirred without a pause.

Of Jeremiah, VI, 20,
Two cups she now did take;
First Samuel 12, XXX,
Two cups went in the cake.

Then two she took of Nahum,
Verse 12 and chapter third;
And one of XVII. Numbers,
Verse 8, with these she stirred.

And now, if you had watched her,
My aunt you might have seen
Two tablespoonfuls taking,
Of Samuel 25, XIV.

She put this in the pipkin,
Sure not a bit to waste;
Then with 9, IX of Chropicles,
She seasoned all to taste.

The prophet Jeremiah
Then helped the cake to mix,
From verse 11, XVII,
I saw her beat up six.

And heard her say to grand'ma:
"I'm sure this won't be bad."
Leviticus then, 13 second,
A pinch I saw her add.

From the last clause of Judges,
The fourth, and verse 19,
She took just half a cupful,
And stirred it in, I ween.

Two teaspoonfuls of Amos,
IV, 5, to make it light.
"I'm sure," said Aunt Susanna,
"This cake will be just right.

"And now, as I am meaning
To make it extra nice,
I think I'll have to follow
Old Solomon's advice.

"What's that?—Oh, look in Proverbs,
14, and twenty-three,
And there, for cake and children,
You'll find the recipe."

Sub rosa, let me whisper,
Be sure you keep it mum—
The ministers all liked it,
And ate up every crumb.

CARE OF UMBRELLAS.

Merits of Different Materials and How to Treat Them.

In buying an umbrella you must take it on faith, for the most experienced shopper cannot tell how long it will wear. Silk of a smooth taffeta weave is a good purchase and light to carry. Gloria makes a heavier umbrella, but it outwears any silk make. No matter what the material may be, however, never keep it strapped, when it is carried. Keeping it tightly rolled up destroys half of its durable qualities. When wet, dry an umbrella by standing it with the handle down, so as to prevent rusting the framework, as happens when the water runs off the other end and collects at the top.

When nearly dry do not open the umbrella or it will stretch out of shape with drying. Wipe off the handle when ready to put away, using a piece of chamois if there is any silver about it. Sometimes a blue or green umbrella spots when lightly wet; in such a case open it and set out in the first hard rain, the spots disappearing when it is thoroughly dampened.

To furl an umbrella properly, grasp it firmly at the lower end of the ribs with the right hand, holding them perfectly straight and even, and do not allow them to twist while you shake out the folds; next wrap them evenly around the stick with the left hand and finally fasten the strap over a smooth, firmly rolled umbrella.

If either black silk or gloria becomes spotted with mud, etc., clean with a bit of old silk dipped into warm water and ammonia. If colored silk needs cleaning, do it with a rag of the same color and naphtha, remembering that the latter is very explosive. If grease gets on the silk, remove with magnesia, rubbing it in, and allowing it to remain for 24 hours. Naphtha also removes grease, but this liquid cannot be purchased everywhere, and magnesia can. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

ELEVEN LIVES LOST.

Flames Destroy the Bowery Mission House in New York and Inmates Are Cremated.

New York, March 14.—Eleven men lost their lives in the fire which swept through the Bowery Mission house at 105 Bowery early yesterday morning and left it a blackened shell. The mission was conducted by the Christian Herald. In the basement of the building there was a cheap restaurant, while the ground floor was used exclusively for mission purposes, Gospel services having been held there daily for several years. The four upper floors were fitted up as a cheap lodging house with accommodations for 150 males, who paid 15, 20 or 25 cents each, according to the location of the rooms.

SIR HENRY BESSEMER.

Death of the Inventor of the Process for Making the Steel Which Bears His Name.

London, March 16.—Sir Henry Bessemer, the celebrated inventor of Bessemer steel, died Tuesday evening.

[Sir Henry Bessemer, whose name is inseparably connected with the development of the steel industry, was born in Hertfordshire, in 1813. His discovery of the means of rapidly and cheaply converting pig iron into steel by blowing a blast of air through the iron when in a state of fusion, was the result of costly and laborious experiments which extended over a long period, and in which the end was attained only after many disheartening failures. The invention revolutionized the whole iron trade of the world in the short space of 50 years.

An Intercepted Message.

An Incident Tending to Show That Appearances Do Sometimes Deceive.

SITTING in a New York hotel one November evening, carelessly running over the headlines of a newspaper, I had my eyes and wandering thoughts arrested by an article that stirred some pleasant memories. Stepping to the table near at hand I was clipping the bit of news when a handsome, athletic young fellow approached from the opposite side, knife and paper in hand. A moment later each noticed that the other was preserving the same information. Our eyes met, his brown and laughing, mine blue and aggressive.

"Beg pardon," he began with a smile that lighted up his dark face and showed his strong white teeth to advantage, "odd coincidence, isn't it?"

"I don't know," with some constraint. "Up to a short time ago my experience was so entirely along one pleasant line that my thoughts never went outside of it. Of late surprises have come so rapidly that they cease to surprise. Do you know her?"

"I'm inclined to think it my privilege to do the interrogating in this instance, but you have already satisfied my chief curiosity in the matter. If you were not acquainted with Margie Morell you would scarcely be putting that flattering criticism away in your pocketbook."

"You speak familiarly of her;" and, despite my efforts to imitate his easy manner, there was a challenge in my voice.

"Naturally enough," and his smile was the more aggravating because the more genial. "I have known her for years. Used to carry her books, haul her on her little sled, skate with her, ride with her, advise with her, encourage her when success in music seemed so far off, and all that. Held her on my knee a thousand times. Why, she spoiled the creases in this very pair of trousers I'm wearing."

Now there was an effort at self-control on my part. "You are a scoundrel and a blackguard," I whispered as I leaned over the table. "If I ever hear of your repeating such language I'll find a way to punish you without involving the name of the young lady you have been coward enough to slander."

No change in his smile, but a little more blood in his face as he answered: "Southerner, I should judge?"

"Yes, southerner, and one that tries to retain the virtues of chivalry without its faults. I want nothing more to say to you."

"But I like you. I insist on pursuing the acquaintance. It makes me happy to chance upon so stout a champion of Margie."

"Mention that name again and I'll—"

"Hold hard, my bold southron," and this time he laughed outright. "I'm Fred Morell, Margie's brother. In fact, I'm the responsible head of the family. Have you any special right to fight the battles of my sister?"

"Only the right of a gentleman who holds her in the highest respect. I met her abroad with her mother. I was completing my education in medicine and Miss Morell was cultivating her wonderful voice. In the midst of an acquaintance so delightful to me I received news of my father's sudden death, and with it the startling information that disastrous speculation had wiped out the large fortune that I had always been led to expect. I hastened home to Kentucky, spent six months in settling up the affairs of the estate, and have just come north to see what I can make of talents that have never yet been called upon to earn anything."

"It might have been worse. You are Dr. Tom Curran. I've heard them speak of you frequently. Why not take a run out with me and renew the acquaintance?"

It was a temptation, and we are prone to compromise with temptation. I could not go then because I was to spend a couple of weeks with my own relative, Uncle Bruff Curran, who lived 20 miles out of St. Louis. But when Fred and I parted it had been arranged that I should take dinner with the Morell household.

At Uncle Bruff's I was having a glorious time, though he was a bachelor of 60 and cynical as he was rich. My strange experience there began one afternoon when I was out shooting over as fine a pair of Irish setters as ever stood a covey of birds. The sport was fast and furious and I was banging away without any precautions, for the game was in a desolate preserve and the thought of danger to anyone else never entered my mind. But my confidence in the fact of my complete isolation was brought up with a short turn. I had just let go with both barrels at a flying bunch of quail when I heard a shout of terror and witnessed a laughable sight. It was a man literally dropping down a telegraph pole, his eyes big with fright and a false beard shifted to the side of his face. The fine shot had peppered him harmlessly, but he thought that he had been fired upon and was beginning to plead for mercy when I approached him.

When I went in from my holiday hunt I found a new guest at the house. He was president of the then leading bank in St. Louis, in which uncle was a director and large stockholder. After dinner we smoked together and the two old men told me what had brought the president there.

But a short time before two elegant and distinguished-looking gentlemen had flashed upon the most exclusive social circle of the city. They dressed just within the extreme of fashion, spent money with princely prodigality, and one of them had placed $20,000 in the president's bank, just to meet the expenses of the brief visit. He had been introduced at the president's home and made such an inroad upon the daughter's affections that their engagement was currently reported. This depositor had unexceptional letters and each one guaranteed him entitled to unlimited credit.

One afternoon he rushed hurriedly into the bank. He just had a letter from one of his best and wealthiest friends in Boston. He was to have met a Denver lawyer in St. Louis that very day to pay a balance of $750,000 on a contract for mining lands in Colorado. Business involving an enormous sum kept this Boston man at home, and, despite his wealth, he did not have the ready money to meet the engagement. Would his old friend, known in St. Louis as Lawrence Bochart, draw on his own funds and look after the matter? There was an assured profit of a million, and they would share it.

"Is it all right?" asked the president, who was dazzled with Bochart and his apparently fabulous riches.

"I would like to help my friend, for it is my disposition. But let me insist that you first telegraph my bank in New York to see whether it will honor a draft for the amount required. For your kindness in the matter I want you to accept half the gain which my friend would make through the deal."

"I cannot think of it," replied the president.

"Then, sir, let me make it a wedding present to your daughter. I have not asked her hand, but, with your permission, I will do so."

"I sent the telegram at once," said the president to my uncle and myself. "Inside of half an hour I had an answer, signed by both the president and cashier, informing me that Mr. Bochart's account was far more than equal to the demand made upon it. I may have been blinded somewhat by the impression the young man had made upon me and the prospect of having him for a son-in-law, but I took the usual precautions, though the largeness of the amount at stake might have demanded more.

"We went to the hotel and paid the 'Denver lawyer' in currency, as exacted by the terms of the contract. He said that he would have preferred a certified check, but he would be around before the close of banking hours to deposit the sum with us. I had no sooner returned to the bank than I received a telegram from the New York bank saying that Lawrence Bochart had no account there and never had. Then it came upon me with the force of a terrible blow that the wire must have been tapped, that we were swindled and that the bank was crippled beyond hope of recovery. For myself, I was ruined.

"Of course," continued the president, "the rascal who cut such a wide swath in society, did not distribute his photographs, but my daughter is something of an artist and she sketched the fellow from memory. Here he is, and we'd gladly give $100,000 to recover the amount of the robbery."

The two older gentlemen took a look at the picture and then passed it to me. An exclamation of surprise had almost passed my lips, but I was a fortune-seeker myself and here was an unexpected opening. The picture was that of Fred Morell. Why should I not win the reward offered for the recovery of this stolen money? I had seen the wire-tapper and I knew the man who had so successfully played his part in the aristocratic set of St. Louis.

Two days later I was on my way to join in the Christmas festivities to which young Morell had invited me. I had no idea that he would be there to receive me, but then he was not the chief attraction. I had said nothing to the two old gentlemen of what I knew or what I had in mind, but I had decided to play the novel part of a detective and lay the foundation for some such fortune as I had always expected to inherit.

Fred Morell met me at the door of his home and a welcome could not have been more hearty. His mother was one of the most gracious of the old-school ladies, and her daughter was even more fascinating in her wondrous beauty than when she had won my love beyond the ocean. I could not enjoy such hospitality and then bring a sorrow worse than death upon those who offered it. I asked a private talk with Fred, and frankly told him what I had learned and how I had started out to recover the stolen money. There was mingled anger and contempt in his face as he answered me.

"You have taken me for a scoundrel again," he said, "but I must admit the force of the evidence. Cousin Bob has broken loose once more. Seen apart we have always been taken one for the other. He is a wonderful man and his talents, properly directed, would win him almost any position. But his inclination is to go wrong and he does not restrain it. Your mission is to bring him to book. If you like, I will go this far with you. He is rich through inheritance and fraud. Together we will run him down and secure a return of the money lost by the bank. We will make him leave the country for good, but without such an arrangement I will lend you no assistance. He is the first to bring disgrace on the family name and I care more for it than for his punishment."

In New York we found the man whom I had surprised in hunting. Through fear he was induced to discover the whereabouts of "Cousin Bob." With the suavity of a diplomat and a running fire of wit, he accepted our terms. He assured us with unblushing raillery that the president's daughter had pierced his heart, that he had voluntarily decided upon a residence abroad and that it afforded him inexpressible pleasure to comply with our wishes.

I put the bank on its feet again, made the old president the happiest man in the country, tickled Uncle Bruff so that he named me as his sole heir, and made Margie Morell my wife. I'll say nothing of myself, but Mrs. Dr. Tom Curran's receptions are the most popular and most sought after in one of the greatest cities of the country. — Detroit Free Press.

JEWELED LEAF BELT.

How to Make an Artistic Article of Personal Adornment.

The sketch suggests a jeweled belt made in the form of ivy leaves. Excellent colors in which to reproduce this belt would be rich green satin of the best quality, with jeweling of emeralds and outlinings of gold cord. The leaves should be finally mounted upon a narrow band of black satin or velvet. Alternative colorings would be light steel moire velour leaves, with silver thread and crystal gems upon black velvet. Or, again, pale leaf-green satin upon a turquoise-blue velvet band; the trimmings to consist of seed pearls, turquoises, and silver thread. The whole depth of the belt should be no more than one and three-quarter inches, with a centerpiece of two and a half inches deep; the size of each individual leaf should be about one and three-quarter inches deep and one and one-quarter inches wide, not including the small piece of stalk of gold thread.

The first thing to do in making the belt is to cut out the required number of leaves in rough tailor's linen, then paint one side of each leaf over with strong, clear gum, which will stiffen the linen and prevent it fraying untidily at the edges. When the gum has quite dried gum the other side also; and while it is still wet press each leaf down upon the wrong side of the piece of satin bought to cover the leaves. As the linen and satin dry together cut out the satin to the shape of the leaf, which should present a very neat appearance if too much gum has not been used, and if the satin is cut out with a sharp pair of scissors.

AN ECONOMICAL VEST.

How to Make a Lovely "Front" to Wear Over Old Waists.

Plain prosaic crinoline is the foundation for many a handsome vest. The crinoline holds the vest in shape and allows the lighter materials to be draped over it.

Over a pointed piece of crinoline gather a strip of white silk embroidery

VEST FOR OLD WAISTS.

so that the embroidery lies on each side of the front seam of the waist. Tack the embroidery securely and under the edge set a plaiting of chiffon. White and pink make a very pretty vest.

For the neck take a band of black velvet and use a bow of the same material for the belt.

Old Black Kid Gloves.

Nothing is better to renovate black silk or ribbon than the water in which a pair of old black gloves has been boiled. Use a quart of water for each pair and boil till the color is extracted. In cleaning with it do not iron the ribbon, but pin it smoothly on a board or table, or roll it round on a new rolling pin devoted to this purpose.

Each leaf being thus covered with satin, the needle-worker would proceed to the decoration. A rather thick gold cord, perhaps three times the thickness of No. 24 sewing cotton, is required to outline the shape of the leaf, and this is bound over and over to secure it to the leaf by means of stitches of silk; this silk may either be gold-colored to match the cord or emerald green to match the gems. The gems selected must not be too large or clumsy, for the larger these mock stones are the less effective are they.

Having studded the emeralds round the edge and down the center vein of the leaf, nothing more will be required to finish it beyond a veining of gold bullion, which, as most fancy workers know, is sewn down in pieces threaded upon silk.

When the due number of leaves have been made to fit the waist of the person intending to wear the belt, they should be attached to the velvet band by means of long stitches concealed under the veining and jeweling; at the center of the back two leaves are placed point to point to allow of them appearing in front, as the sketch illustrates.—Philadelphia Record.

Peanut Molasses Candy.

Place in a good-sized kettle one quart of good molasses, one cup of sugar and one-fourth of cup of butter, according to a writer in What to Eat. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly until it snaps sharply in ice water, then add a level teaspoon of baking soda, and stir a moment. Have ready one quart of shelled peanuts, i. e., have them shelled, skinned and broken apart into halves. Add them to the candy, and stir rapidly and just enough to mix well, and pour at once into flat, square, greased pans. When partly cold mark into blocks and cut through. If wrapped neatly in waxed paper and kept in a dry place, this will keep nicely for weeks.

The "old maids" of Morenci held a convention, and the entertainment netted about $20. What the aforesaid entertainment was the deponent saith not but the supposition is that the men were enticed thither by some pretext and when they gazed upon the aggregation were perfectly willing to give up all their valuables to be allowed to depart in peace.

Deputy Sheriff Nelson Rice, of Milan, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Turnkey Haviland, on a capias charging him with false imprisonment, for arresting Dr. A. C. Dr. Wood now sues Rice for $5,000 damages. —Adrian Times.

The summer girl will be interested in the chance for ice cream and cold beverages so here it is from the Hudson Gazette:

Abbott & Beardsell will clean up a "cool" $3,000 from this season's ice business at Devil's lake, and it is said Mr. Abbott will sell his interest in the business for just that sum. The plant originally cost more than $6,000. Here's a good opportunity for some one who has got the "necessary."

George Tansley was in Tecumseh Tuesday and succeeded in closing negotiations with his son Harry, acting agent for the M. E church there, for a small pipe organ, for many years used in the audience room of that society, but recently discarded. Altho' plain in appearance, the instrument has an excellent action, and will be a desirable fixture in the Congregational church here.—Addison Courier.

A well-known bank teller discovered the other day that a local bartender had a purpose in daily obtaining a dollar's worth of Canadian five-cent pieces. "We sell more beer by having them," he explained. "You see, if a man gives me a dime and I throw him out one of those little silver pieces in change, he looks at it a second, thinks if he puts it in his pocket he'll probally lose it, and so shoves it back and says 'Gimme another beer.'—Adrian Times.

The Blissfield Advance couldn't let a good story alone.

The statement made by Geo. B. Horton at Hudson dairy institute, which has been going the rounds of the papers, that Lenawee county had 40,000 cows, and their yearly product was valued at $1,000,000, is wide of the truth. No county in the state, according to the supervisors' report, has half that many cows, while Lenawee county's number is about 15,000. In fact, the banner dairy county of the United States—Jefferson county, Wis.—has only 35,000.

Negotiations have been under way for several weeks looking to the establishment of a knitting factory in this village. The Clinton Plow Co's stock was to be turned in and a new company with a capital of $24,500 was to take its place. The new concern would employ sixty girls to start with, besides several men. Just at the last moment some of the stockholders failed to agree and would not sign the necessary papers and it is feared the whole project will fall through. Some of the interested parties were at work yesterday and hopes are entertained that the new industry may yet be secured.—Clinton Local.

THE VERDICT IS REACHED.

The Court of Inquiry Into the Maine Explosion in Havana Harbor Completes Its Labors.

THE REPORT EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON

The Cabinet Decides Upon the Plan to Be Pursued After the Report Has Been Examined—A Policy of Intervention Said to Have Been Agreed Upon.

Key West, Fla., March 23.—Lieut. Commander Marix, judge advocate of the United States naval court of inquiry into the loss of the battleship Maine, left Key West Monday afternoon on his way to Washington, taking with him the report of the court on the disaster.

All the officers of the Maine now here, except Paymaster's Clerk McCarthy, have received orders to leave for their homes, there to await orders, as in the case of other officers who left here last week. This is considered to be evidence that the court will not require the corroboration of technical evidence as was thought a few days ago.

Judge Advocate Marix is reported to have said prior to his departure: "Havana will be a hot place when the findings of the court are known. It is as much as your life is worth to go there."

Session of the Cabinet.

Washington, March 23.—The cabinet meeting yesterday lasted something over an hour, and was devoted exclusively to the Spanish situation in general and to the forthcoming report of the Maine court of inquiry in particular. The tone of the discussion was very firm and determined that there must come an end to the present state of affairs in Cuba. Secretary Long authorized the stafement that the understanding before the cabinet was that the report was on the way; that it was very voluminous and that the publication and transmission to congress would not occur until next Monday or Tuesday, as the president would require that much time to give the document the mature consideration that its momentous character required.

Plan to Be Pursued.

Other cabinet officers stated that the general plan included the sending of a presidential message along with the report, stating that Spain had been called upon to make suitable response to the case presented by the court of inquiry. While the cabinet associates of the president maintained their usual reserve as to the exact character of their deliberations, yet it was conceded that the discussion proceeded on theory that the coming report would show that the Maine explosion was not the result of an accident, but was due to an external cause. There is no doubt that substantial unanimity exists on the part of the president and all his cabinet both as to the Maine question and the general subject of Cuba.

All Phases Considered.

The possibilities of a recourse to intervention in case Spain declined to make suitable response to the representations we will make after receiving the Maine report has been fully discussed. Necessarily the consideration of the Maine disaster has been an abstract discussion thus far, and no conclusion has been reached, nor is it possible until the vital question as to the court's findings is before the president and the cabinet. At the same time there is a very evident intention to consider all eventualities, including the recourse to intervention, the recognition of independence and other methods which appear to suitably meet the requirements of such a condition.

It is believed to be the intention of the president, however, to bring about a very material and satisfactory condition in Cuba by what shall seem to be the best and most practicable method of obtaining this end. It is the hope of the administration that Spain herself will so far realize the situation as to see the necessity for such radical action on her part with respect to Cuba as shall command the approbation of this country, and thus at once put an end to all differences.

Alleged Policy of Intervention.

It is said that apart from the Maine incident President McKinley, with the cooperation of leaders in both houses of congress, has outlined a policy of intervention in Cuba. It is believed congress will appropriate $500,000 for the relief of the starving reconcentrados, and that supplies will be sent to them as a government measure. Spain has consented to this plan, but the administration is determined, should there be any resistance, to send food in warships and to use whatever force may be necessary.

Havana, March 23.—Chapiain Chidwick has completed his mortuary report, which shows that 257 men and two officers perished in the Maine catastrophe, six succumbed to their injuries while lying in the San Ambrosia hospital here, one died on the Spanish transport Colon; 171 bodies have been recovered from the wreck, of which 61 have been identified; 161 have been buried in Colon cemetery and 11 at Key West. This is the official report, made public after careful correction, for the first time.

AID MUST BE SENT.

Urgent Needs of the 205,000 Starving Reconcentrados in Unhappy Cuba.

New York, March 22.—Dr. Louis Klopsch, now in Cuba, in charge of the American relief work, cables from Havana under date of March 21 to the Christian Herald:

"The situation is simply this: Two hundred and five thousand reconcentrados in over 400 accessible towns are helplessly destitute. Unless we can get regularly, without a break, 300 tons of cornmeal and 50 tons of lard or bacon every week we cannot effectively relieve the suffering. Spasmodic and unsystematic efforts defeat all good intentions. Canned goods are useless and condensed milk should be substituted. Fifteen thousand dollars weekly will feed every starving man, woman and child in Cuba. Small, irregular shipments are only tantalizing."

ABOVE THE WATER LINE.

The Mississippi and Rivers and Streams Tributary Overflow Their Banks and Cause Damage.

Chicago, March 23.—Reports from as far west as St. Louis and as far east as Pittsburgh create apprehension that the Mississippi river floods of a year ago will be repeated this spring. Already many of the tributary rivers and streams are swollen, and the Mississippi is steadily rising. Three lives have been lost by train wreck in Missouri as a result of the heavy rains; the town of Blue Mills has been demolished by wind; a hurricane swept the state of Nebraska; walls, weakened by the rain, fell in St. Louis and killed an aged man; and in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio great damage is being done by the overflowing rivers and streams.

Date Is Fixed.

Madison, Wis., March 18.—Gov. Scofield has issued the proclamation fixing June 7 as the day and Madison as the place for the official observation of the semicentennial of the taking of the oath of office by the first state officers. The governors and their respective staffs of the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa are invited to join in the celebration, these states having had at some time in their history a territorial connection with Wisconsin.

Fatal Hotel Fire.

Butte, Mont., March 22.—The Hale house, used as a lodging and boarding house by miners in the employ of the Anaconda company, was entirely destroyed by fire which broke out shortly after three o'clock yesterday morning. So far as known two men are dead from injuries received in jumping from windows, another is dying and 20 are missing, while a search of the ruins may disclose the fact that many transient lodgers lost their lives also.

Killed Wife and Self.

Portland, Ore., March 23.—At Cascade locks, 40 miles east of here, Monday night, Lewis Gebhard, aged 70, shot and killed his wife, aged 65, and then blew out his own brains. The shooting was heard, but no attention was pain to it, and the bodies were not found until Tuesday. Gebhard had been in ill health, it is said, of late, and imagined that his wife was trying to cause his death.

Peter Jackson Defeated.

San Francisco, March 23.—Jim Jeffries, of Los Angeles, easily defeated Peter Jackson in the third round Tuesday night at Woodward's pavilion. Jackson did not make much of a showing after the first round. He displayed some of his old-time cleverness in ducking and jabbing with his left, but could not land hard enough to stop the rushes of his younger and stronger antagonist.

Two More Bodies Recovered.

Chicago, March 22.—Buried under only a few inches of charred wood the workmen who are clearing away the ruins of the Wabash avenue fire found the body of A. N. Peterson. Shortly after the body of C. H. Arms, secretary of the Olmsted company, was found. This makes a total of ten victims of the fire. There are undoubtedly a number of bodies yet in the ruins.

Another Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, March 23.—For the third time within a week flames broke out in the downtown district Tuesday, and in a few hours the building occupied by the Monroe restaurant, on Monroe street, between Clark and Dearborn, was in ashes. Though no lives were lost in the fire, several persons were hurt. The total loss is estimated at $150,000.

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.—John Calloway, a negro, was lynched near Round mountain in northern Alabama Sunday night. He had been paying attention to a young white girl named Stout for several months. The young woman's father became cognizant of the affair Sunday and the lynching followed.

Mob Hangs a Negro.

Montgomery, Ala., March 23.—In Dallas county Monday Sam Ellis, a negro, confessed in a justice court to attempting to assassinate H. A. Hardy, who was shot while in his store, in October. The court ordered the negro to jail, but a mob took the prisoner to the woods and hanged him to a limb.

Victim of Pneumonia.

Madison, Wis., March 21.—Samuel A. Harper, one of the best-known lawyers and politicians in Wisconsin, died at 10:45 Saturday night of pneumonia at his home here. He was 45 years old. Mr. Harper was president of the Wisconsin republican league.

TELLS A VERY SAD STORY

Senator Proctor's Narration to the Senate of the Terrible Situation in Cuba.

THE REPORTS OF STARVATION ARE TRUE

The Condition of the Reconcentrados Beggars Description — Spaniards Hold Only What Their Army Sits On—Do Not Want Autonomy—Senator Gallinger's Views.

Washington, March 18. — Senator Proctor, of Vermont, who returned last Sunday from an extended trip to and through the island of Cuba, on Thursday afternoon made a statement to the senate of his observations on the island. From many view-points the statement was remarkable. It had evidently been most carefully prepared. Every element of sensationalism had been studiously eliminated from it, and except so far as the facts recited were sensational it bore not the slightest evidence of an effort to arouse the public mind, already keenly alive to the condition of affairs on the island.

Senator Proctor was accorded the closest attention throughout his speech. He confined himself to his manuscript, and at the conclusion, while there was no demonstration, he was cordially congratulated by many of his colleagues. Senator Proctor read his speech from manuscript, speaking rapidly but clearly. A synopsis follows:

Senator Proctor's Statement.

He began by saying that more importance had been attached to his visit than necessary, but he thought a public statement would be beneficial. The only thing, he said, that he had said about the matter to the president was that he was going and asked if there was any objection to it, and was told that there was none. He had letters from Assistant Secretary of State Day and business men of the United States. He said that Gen. Lee and other United States representatives in Cuba afforded him opportunity to secure information.

He denied that he made the statement that the Maine was blown up from the outside, but might have said that was the opinion in Havana. The senator thought there was no definite information to be obtained upon this feature.

Outside of Havana there was desolation and misery. People were surrounded by trochas and controlled by forts or block houses. His observations, he said, were in the four western provinces. Outside of the trochas and forts there were no habitations or people living. The Spaniards, he said, held in the four provinces only what their army sits on.

Awful Condition of Reconcentrados.

Senator Proctor described at some length the condition of the reconcentrados, saying one-half of them had died owing to the manner in which they had been kept in the small houses and bad sanitation. It was no wonder that one-half had died, he added. He went to Cuba, he said, thinking the condition of the people had been overdrawn, but found their situation terrible. What he saw he could not tell so others could see. In one place in Havana, the senator said, he saw 400 people lying on stone floors with little clothing. The children had no clothing. "American people may be assured," he continued, "that their bounty will reach the destitute," and, he added: "The condition of the reconcentrados will not be changed until peace comes. Gen. Blanco's order of November 13 is of little practical use. No beneficial results have followed." For this he did not blame Gen. Blanco, as Blanco looked at the matter from a military point of view.

The Military Situation.

As to the military, he said there were about 60,000 Spanish troops. He thought they would fight well. There was no artillery. The troops live in barracks. The cavalry is mounted mostly on ponies. He said the Cubans had about 30,000 men in the field and were very active. The Cubans were well armed, but poorly supplied with ammunition. About one-third of the Cuban army are negroes. The cavalrymen furnish their own horses. The dividing line between the parties is sharp. It is Cubans against Spaniards. The autonomists he did not consider, as they were inconsiderable in number.

Do Not Want Autonomy.

The Spaniards did not want perfect autonomy, as it meant government by the Cubans. He inquired as to autonomy of men of wealth, business and professional men. Without exception their reply was that it was too late for autonomy. It was, he said, too late for peace under Spanish rule. Some favored annexation by the United States.

Senator Proctor said he was not in favor of annexation. The conditions for self-government in Cuba were favorable and not much danger of revolutions. He would not make any recommendations as to what should be done. He thought the matter might safely be left to an American president and the American people. With these words he closed.

Senator Gallinger Talks.

Washington, March 19. — Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, was at the capitol yesterday, for the first time since his return from Cuba. When requested to make a statement as to his observations on the condition of affairs on that island he responded:

"You can sign my name to any picture you draw of utter wretchedness and destitution in that country. The condition of affairs, so far as I had opportunity to observe it, and I was only in Havana and Matanzas, is simply indescribable. I had not expected to find it half as bad as it is, and I do not believe anyone who simply reads the accounts and does not see for himself can form an adequate idea of the situation. The reconcentrados are wedged into all available places in the cities and are perishing by the thousand for want of the commonest necessaries of life. The best information obtainable leads to the conclusion that there have been beyond a doubt 400,000 deaths as a result of Spain's brutal policy, and the tragedy goes on from day to day."

In Extra Session.

Lansing, Mich., March 23.—The legislature met in extra session yesterday. Gov. Pingree's message dealt briefly with the subject of taxation, and he confined himself to matters affecting railroads, express companies and telegraph and telephone companies.

A PAIR OF SINNERS.

BY A. St. JOHN ADCOCK.

SHE was the only daughter of a draper who had once been eminent and was now retired; he was a young and prosperous barrister. Her manners and habits of thought were, perhaps, overrefined and affected; she was of a morbidly poetical temperament, and looked at life always through a prism of sentiment. He was unimaginative and practical.

He had all those sterner qualities she lacked; she had all those dainty, tender graces he despised—until he found them in her. In a word, each was the complement of the other.

Naturally, then, when they met they loved; and she was too romantic and he too matter-of-fact to believe in a long engagement.

They had been two months married, and but just returned from the honeymoon, were seated cozily by the fire one wild, wintry evening, when Mabel, in a languishing mood of sentimental melancholy, unburdened herself of a tardy confession.

It had really never occurred to her during the rapture of their short engagement, but once or twice before since their marriage it had risen to her lips, but, fearing it might make a note of discord in the harmony of their wedded lives, she had left it unspoken. It was a trifle, no doubt; but hers was a disposition that magnified trifles. She found a subtle joy in grief, as do all who are surfeited with happiness, and, under such circumstances, the smallness of the grief is no disadvantage.

"Are you sure, Clarence," she asked, him, sighing, "that you really love me?"

"Absolutely, dearest."

"And you have never loved anyone but me?"

"Never—never—never!"

"And you will love me always?"

"Forever."

He yawned and looked at his watch. They were half expecting a visitor.

"Something might happen to change you," she persisted, dreamily.

"What could?"

"Suppose I had a secret in my life which I had never revealed to you?"

She regarded him yearningly.

"What sort of secret?"

"I always used to say dear that I had told you all about myself—everything: that I was keeping nothing back from you. I am so sorry!" Her eyes grew misty with tears. "I did not intend to deceive you. There is one—only one—event of my life I have never mentioned to you. I had forgotten it until lately. It is not much, perhaps, but I ought not to hide anything from you, ought I? It has been my one secret—the one page of my life I would rather no one read—"

"Well—and what is it?" he interrupted, a little irritably.

She sank down on the rug beside him in an attitude of supplication, and clasped her arms about his knees.

"Don't look at me so coldly, Clarence," she pleaded. "Don't speak so harshly. Say you will forgive me, dearest. I know there should be no secrets between us, but it is such a little, little secret, and I never meant to—"

"No—no. Well—let me know what it is."

"It overwhelmed me with shame. Oh, words cannot tell how deeply it humiliated me."

"My dear child, do calm yourself." He laughed, but felt vaguely uneasy. "It can't have been anything so very awful."

"You will not think I hesitated to tell you sooner because I distrusted the strength of your love—?"

"Of course not."

"Or because I feared"—she stifled a little sob—"you might scorn me, as that heartless man did!"

"What heartless man?" he demanded, sharply. "Don't mystify me with all this preamble, Mabel. Tell me the worst, at once."

"And you will forgive me, dear, for not confiding—?"

"Oh, no doubt. It is nothing much, I'll be bound. You are scaring us both with a bogey of your own making. What is it?"

"I will tell you, Clarence."

She dried her eyes, and reaching up, laid a hand upon his shoulder caressingly.

"Did you know, dear, that I once used to write poetry?"

"Well, many persons do that. It may be foolish, but it is not wicked."

"I wrote a great deal of it. My sole ambition then was to be a poetess. Much of what I wrote was love po—"

"Addressed, I presume, to the heartless man you just referred to?"

"No, dear. It was addressed to quite imaginary persons."

"Well, well! Yes?"

"And about six years ago, dear, I collected all my poems into a volume and published them."

"And the heartless man was the publisher?"

"No. The publisher was exceedingly kind. He thought very highly of my work—"

"Never mind the publisher. I am anxious to get to that heartless man."

"The book was published, and I saw only one review of it, and that—it was in a paper called The Writer—Oh, Clarence, it was cruel—cruel!"

"If that is all—"

"All! It humiliates me to think of it even now. I remember every harrowing word of it, but I cannot—cannot bring myself to repeat them."

"Don't try to. My dear girl, why on earth should you upset yourself like this over a trivial matter that happened and was forgotten six years ago by everybody but yourself?"

"But think how I suffered! The publicity—the disgrace! These poems,' he wrote—oh, do not ask me what he said."

"I assure you, I won't."

"For months after I avoided all who knew me. Such contempt—such ridicule as he poured upon me in that review! If there is any man I hate—yes, hate, Clarence!—it is he."

"And yet he may be quite a harmless, inoffensive sort of ass, if we only knew him."

"I withdrew the book instantly and burnt the entire edition."

"If all authors accepted their critics' version in the same spirit, that man who wrote about the hundred best authors would have had to fix his total at 50."

"I felt as if all the world was laughing at me."

"You little silly. I don't suppose even a millionth part of the world knew anything about it. Nobody reads reviews of books—except the men who write them."

"I could not regard it so stoically," she sighed. "I cannot even now. You do not altogether realize my utter degradation: 'These babblings of incipient imbecility.' That was one of his phrases."

She shuddered at the recollection of it.

"By Jove! Of course, the best of critics are not angels, but yours must have been a—"

"A heartless, heartless man!"

"If it had been a man's book—"

"He may not have known I was a woman."

"You are too severe. No reviewer criticises a book till he has read the title page."

"But I did not use my own name. I wanted to see if they would mistake my work for that of a man. I called it 'Heart Longings, by Harold Ransom;' but all my friends knew, so that really made no difference."

"Not a bit."

He had grown suddenly thoughtful, and spoke absently.

"You will forgive me, darling—won't you?—for deceiving you?"

"Deceiving me?" he asked.

"Well, for seeming not to confide in you unreservedly?"

Taking the childish, pretty face between his hands he gazed down into her dreamy blue eyes, and laughed softly to himself.

"I—don't—know," he said.

"But—it was nothing actually wrong, Clarence," she cried, indignantly; then, melting again. I know, dear, I used to say all along that I had concealed nothing from you. I had told you everything—"

"I used to say the same to you, didn't I?"

"Yes."

"Well, coming to think of it, I remember I have a secret which I have never disclosed to you. So, after all, we are each as bad as the other."

She started, and scanned his features eagerly.

"You? A secret, Clarence?"

"Only a little one—like yours."

"But mine was no secret. I had forgotten it," she protested. "Besides, mine was nothing for which you could blame me!"

"I wish I could say that of mine."

"Clarence!" she sobbed, "you have been deceiving me!"

"No; I had forgotten about it."

"You always said," she faltered, her lips quivering, "you never loved any girl until you met me."

"Now, I want you to make me a promise: If I forgive you, you will forgive me?"

She hesitated.

"Tell me, first, all about it."

"Do you promise?" he insisted.

"Oh, Clarence, you can never be the same to me again! I do hope it is nothing dreadful. What can it be? I—I—"

"Do you—"

"Yes, yes, dear. I promise!" she said, desperately. "Whatever it is, I love you, and I must forgive you."

"You won't hate me?"

"I could not."

She pressed her handkerchief to her eyes.

"I won't keep you in suspense," said he. "We have both been sinners, and I was the worst of the two. I must tell you, then. Before I was a successful barrister, I was a good-for-nothing young scoundrel, with a very good opinion of myself and a very bad one of everybody else. I was a wicked young dog, and did several scandalous things that I am ashamed of now."

She caught her breath and waited in an agony of expectation. He seemed very serious, and yet a baffling smile was flickering round the corners of his mouth.

"They were all of the same description, but I am sorry on account of one in particular."

"And that?"

"Well, being hard up, I used to earn odd guineas in all manner of odd ways. I was a flippant, self-satisfied brute, and—" he paused, and putting an arm about her, drew her closer to him. "I have a heart now—you know I have, sweetheart, don't you? But once upon a time—you have promised to forgive me and not to hate me!—in the days when you published your book, I was—"

"You—you—were—?"

"The heartless man who reviewed it!"

—St. Paul's.

He Had to Own Up.

He had taken his shoes off and was about to creep upstairs, when he stumbled over the umbrella rack.

"John," came a voice from the head of the stairs, "is that you?"

"Yesh, m'dear."

"Are you intoxicated?"

"Hic—no'm."

"Say 'special personal prerogatives,' then," continued the relentless voice.

There was an interval of silence.

"John."

"Yesh."

"Well, why don't you say it?"

"I'm intoshicated—hic—m'dear."

Then, hanging his shoes on the hat rack, he took his hat in his hand and proceeded upstairs.—N. Y. Journal.

DELINQUENTS WARNED.

Circular Letter from Auditor General Dix to Those Who Have Not Paid Taxes.

Lansing, March 20.—Auditor-General Roscoe D. Dix has issued a circular letter in reference to the sale of lands for 1895 taxes, and warning people who are interested to be on the alert and save their property. The letter says:

"The sale of lands delinquent for taxes of 1895 and prior years will be held at the offices of the county treasurers beginning May 3, 1898. Attention is called to this sale so that you may assure yourself that you have not neglected to pay the tax of 1895. If you have not already done so, you should obtain a copy of the published list from the newspaper in your county publishing the same, or in the county where your lands are located, and carefully examine it for description of your own lands. A little care and time spent now may save you a great deal of annoyance after your lands are sold."

MEN OF DIFFERENT MINDS.

One Leaves a Big Sum to a Circus—The Other Gives Most of His Wealth to a Church.

Niles, March 19.—William Olmstead, an eccentric Cass county farmer, died last week. His will, which has just been probated, leaves the greater part of the fortune to the Barnum & Bailey circus. Mr. Olmstead was worth $15,000, and with the exception of the homestead of 40 acres, which he leaves to his widow, it all goes to the circus.

Kalamazoo, March 19.—The will of the late Dr. Moses Hill was admitted to probate Friday. He leaves his entire estate of $40,000, except about $2,000, to the Methodist Church Extension society, with headquarters in Philadelphia.

CENTENARIAN DEAD.

Mrs. Elizabeth Babcock Passes Away at Her Home Near Mendon at the Age of 100 Years.

Sturgis, March 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Babcock, residing near Mendon, died Wednesday night, aged 100 years 3 months. In December she celebrated her 100th birthday by entertaining at dinner a host of friends. She was a pensioner of the war of 1812, and had a vivid recollection of the affairs of that period. Mrs. Babcock was a small woman, but her children are giants. Her eldest son weighs 260 pounds, is 6 feet 6 inches in height and wears a No. 14 shoe.

A DEATH-BED CONFESSION.

E. G. Veeley, of Bloomingdale, Tells of a Murder He Helped to Commit Thirty Years Ago.

Kalamazoo, March 22.—E. G. Veeley, of Bloomingdale, has caused considerable excitement by a startling death-bed confession, as follows:

"Thirty years ago myself and another man, whose name I will not reveal, killed a man at Scott's mill, south of Bloomingdale, for his money. We only got $30 for our trouble, and buried the money and have never used a cent of it. After that we took the body of the man and put it in the furnace of the mill and burned it up."

Jealousy Causes a Murder.

South Haven, March 19.—Jealousy of a married woman is the motive assigned for the murder of Stephen Sprague, who was found dead near Deer Lick creek, a few miles from here. Jeff Mason, the suspect under arrest, asserts his innocence. Sprague had been calling on the woman and her husband, who lived six miles from here, in Covert township. He started to walk home on the railroad track. A few minutes afterward Mrs. Betts says she saw Mason going in that direction.
